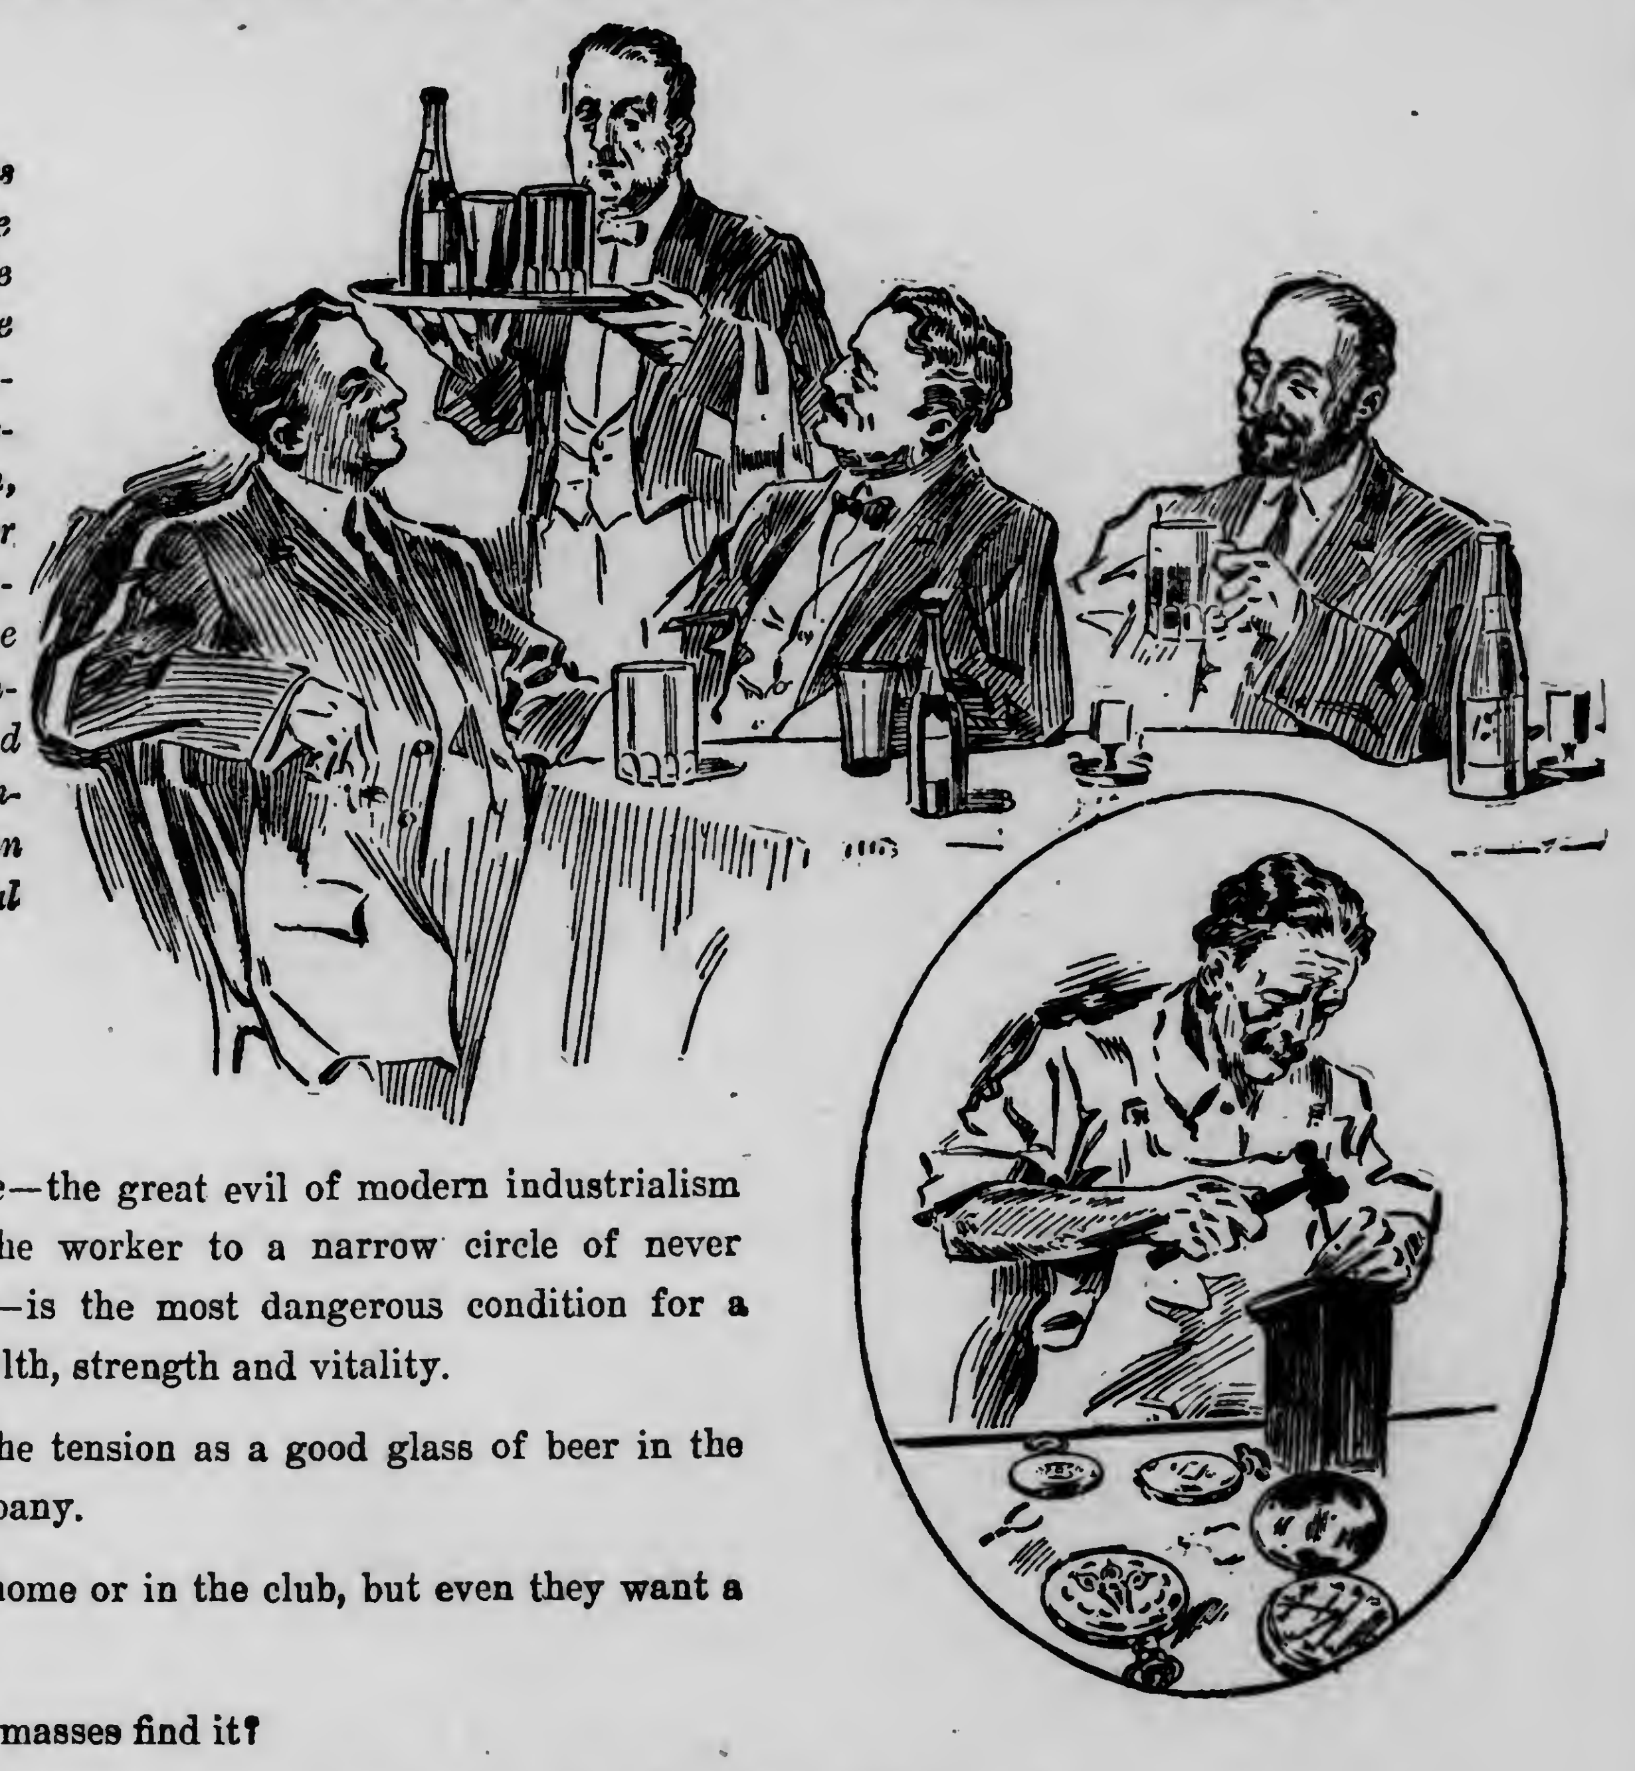
Public Drinking Places are Necessary

"To say that certain evils come from a certain source suggests only to fools the hasty annihilation of the source before studying whether greater evils might not result from its destruction, and without asking whether the evils might not be reduced, and the good from the same source remain untouched and untampered with."—Prof. Hugo Munsterberg, of Harvard, in "Prohibition and Social Psychology."



MONOTONY of life—the great evil of modern industrialism which confines the worker to a narrow circle of never changing duties—is the most dangerous condition for a people full of health, strength and vitality.

Nothing so relieves the tension as a good glass of beer in the evening in congenial company.

Many can have it at home or in the club, but even they want a change now and then.

And where will the masses find it?

Where, if not in the beer hall, concert garden or other form of public-house?

Places for the public dispensing of beer are a necessity for the health of the public mind. If there are bad features connected with existing saloons they can be corrected by those who will earnestly and honestly study the matter.

We want our beer sold only in an environment as wholesome and clean as our beer itself.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

NEW SYSTEM OF LISTING BENEFIT TO ALL PARTIES

Buyers, Sellers and Agents Will Profit By Exclusive Listing.

Cheapening of Property By Hawking Will Be Avoided.

Hereafter the Duluth real estate exchange will be conducted on the lines of exchanges in the larger cities. An exclusive listing contract has been prepared, an office has been obtained in the First National bank building and Miss M. G. Barnett will be in charge of the listings. All listings in the future will be made on the exclusive listing contract and members of the exchange will make use of the facilities offered for the transferring of property by listing it on the exchange.

Several evils of real estate dealings are wiped out by the new system. Benefits will be brought to buyers, sellers and agents and the real estate business will be on a systematic basis, which should result in a better movement of property and better satisfaction among dealers.

Under the old haphazard system, five or six or a dozen agents were often given the right to sell a piece of property. No one would feel like exerting extraordinary efforts to sell, knowing that others might step in with a sale just when he was about to close the deal. Deals were often blocked by prospective buyers going around among dealers and finding the same piece of property on the lists with different prices attached on account of the "I'll take so much net" system. The seller had no particular person representing him and the property was hawked all over town at various offices, cheapening it in the estimation of prospective buyers.

Owner Has Agent.

Under the new system, property may be listed with but one agent. That agent will make an examination of the property to determine if the price set by the owner is within reason. The agent must pay a filing fee to get the property listed on the exchange and he will not pay fees for the listing of property on which an unreasonable price is set, precluding all probability of a sale being made.

When the property is listed on the exchange, all other members will be notified of the listing and it will be to the interest of each to try to find a buyer. If a buyer is found, the agent representing the buyer will be required, under the rules of the exchange, to deal with the agent of the seller, and if a sale is made, the commission will be split between the two agents.

The seller will have an agent representing him and working for his interests. An agent, knowing that he has exclusive sale of a piece of property, will advertise it and work for a sale, knowing that no sale can be made that will cut him out of his fees. The agent will not consent to an unreasonable reduction in the price, whereas if he did not have the exclusive sale, he might try to get the owner down to an unreasonable figure in order to cut prices below the other agents having listing of the same property.

The owner will thus get the active efforts of one agent, the combined effort of the members of the exchange and will not be in danger of getting into a controversy over fees with two or three agents finding buyers at the same time. He is held for but one fee, that to the agent with whom the listing is placed.

Benefit to Buyer.

A prospective buyer will be able to go to an agent under the new system, explain his wants, and if there is a piece of property answering the description for sale in the city, the agent will be able to find it on the exchange and will be able to get into touch with the agent for it. Thus buying and selling will be facilitated.

The system has been adopted in all of the big cities of the country and has been found to work out satisfactorily. Business men investing in property would rather buy under such a system, for they will know the price is reasonable, or the agent would not have paid the listing fee; that he will get the lowest possible price, for no agent but the one having the listing can approach the owner, and that he is dealing with a reliable agent, for the exchange will not tolerate unfair or dishonest dealings and complaints will be immediately dealt with.

The listing contract calls for the exclusive handling of the property by the agent for a certain length of time, the regular fee to be paid in case of sale. It is the contract in use in other cities and has been found to work out satisfactorily.

DECEMBER IS QUIET MONTH

Little Activity in Real Estate Until After First of Year.

M. H. Alworth Buys Two Lots Near New Courthouse.

December is a quiet month in the real estate business and dealers are looking for little activity until after the first of the year. November, with its election and unsettled business conditions, was also a quiet month and some of the edges are worn off of the optimism the real estate men have consistently maintained during the fall.

The dealers are looking forward now to the period after the first of the year and they say that, with spring looming ahead, the investors will begin to get busy and there will be a pronounced movement in all classes of property.

Interest now centers on residence lots and farm lands. The cold weather of the past week and the covering of snow on the ground have hampered operations on account of the inability of prospective buyers seeing property. A number of deals, which were arranged before the snow fell, are being closed and absolute stagnation does not exist.

A good deal of interest is being taken in acreage in the vicinity of the Jean du Luth farm and especially in the activities of the Greysolon Farms company. The company has a force of men at work preparing the way for the extension of the car line to the farm and acreage in the vicinity is greatly in demand by those who want to make use of the car line.

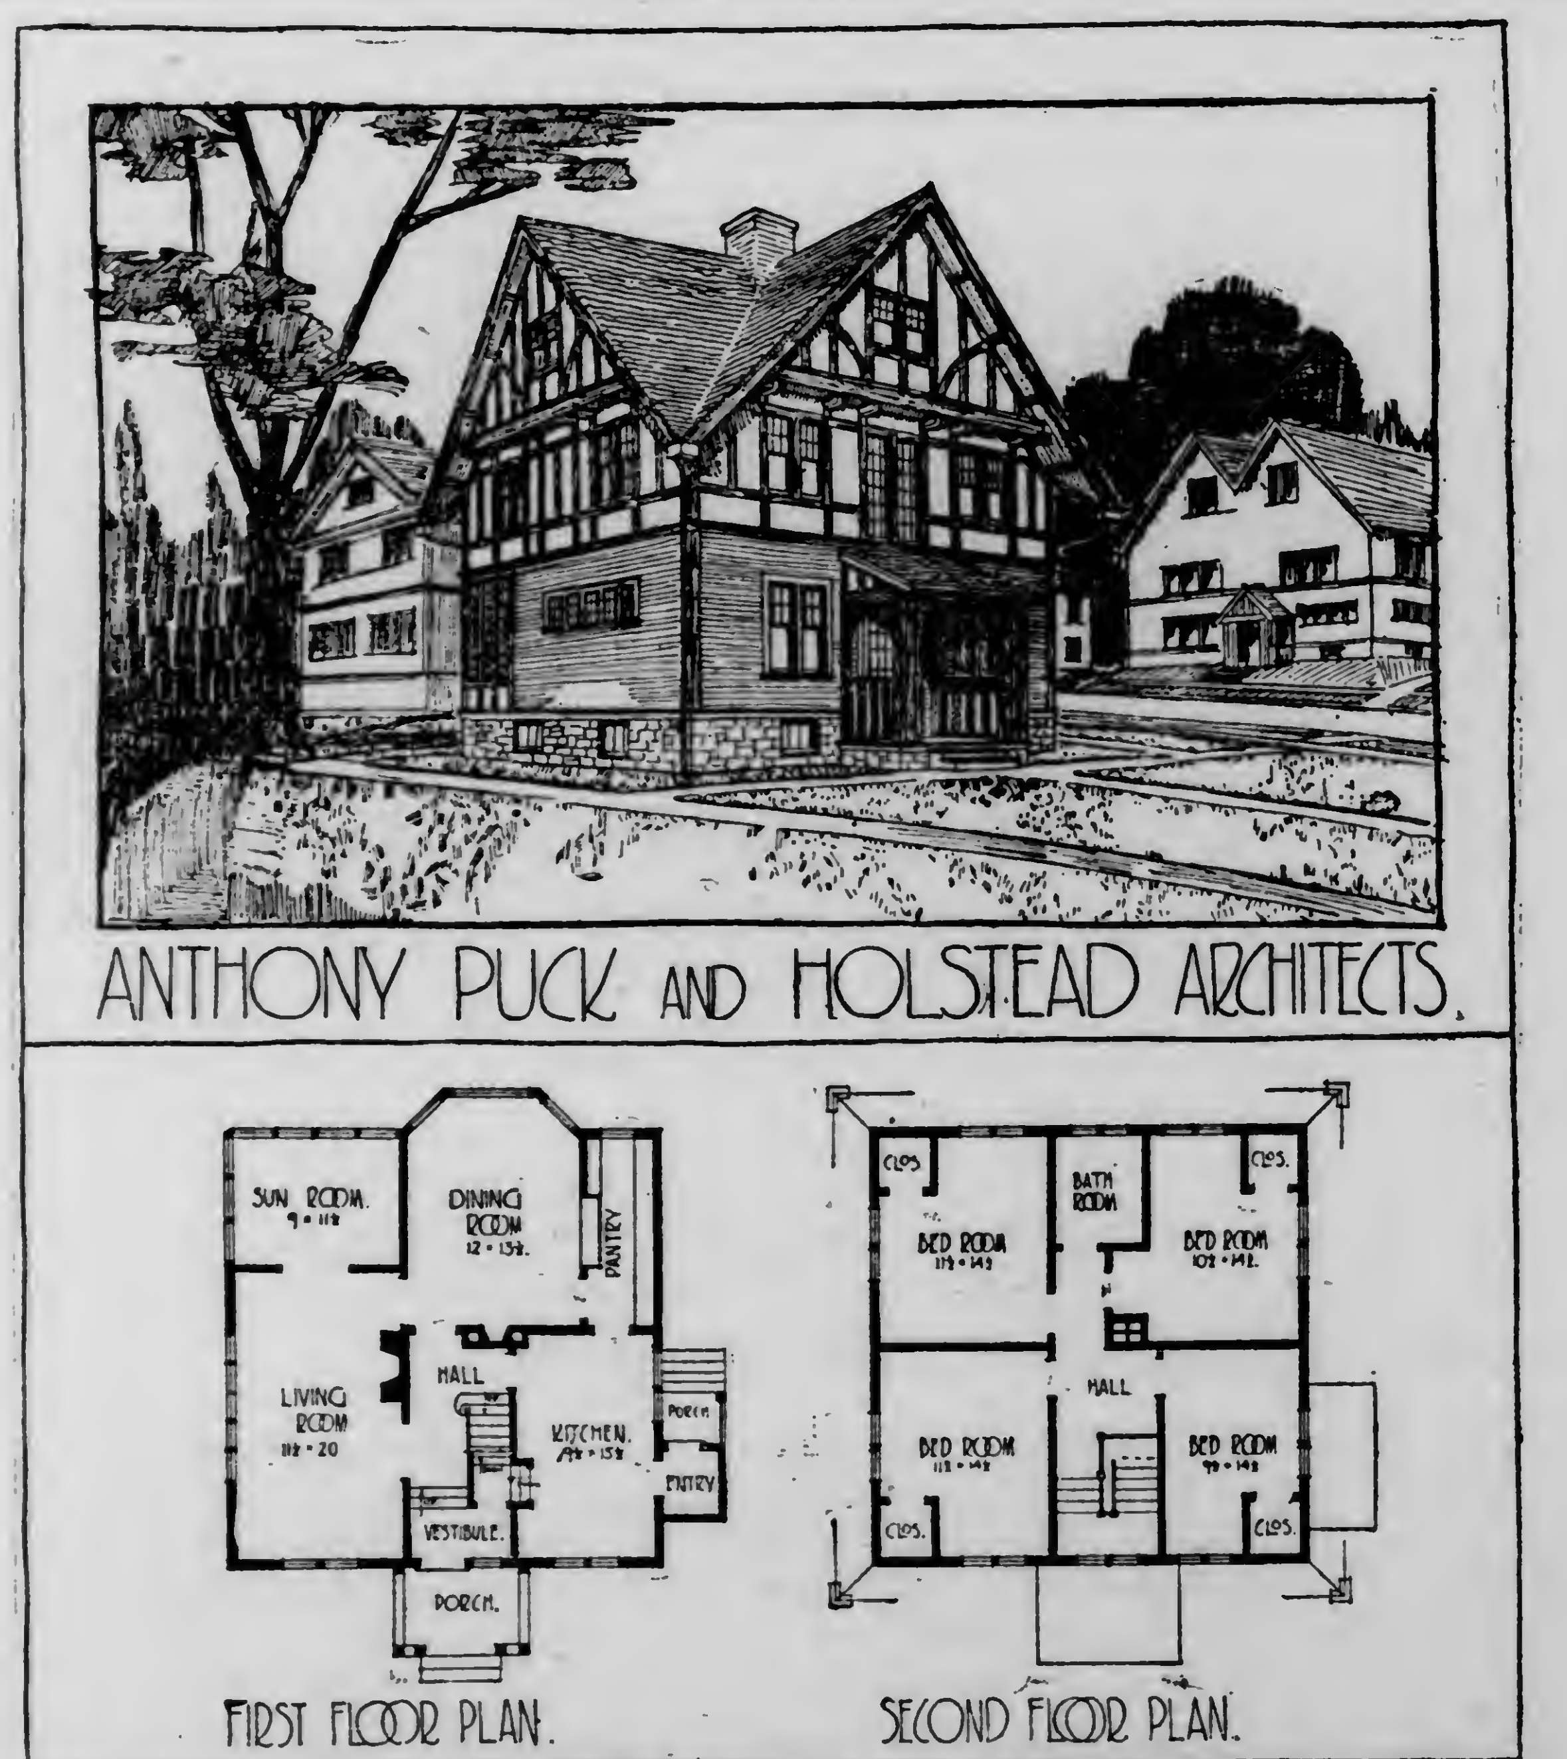
ARTISTIC ENGLISH HOME WHICH WOULD COST $4,500 IN DULUTH



Our sketch shows an artistic low cost English residence of eight rooms. The walls on all sides are carried up to a gable, which gives an economical arrangement and also balance, harmony, and rhythm to the exterior.

The plan is reduced to essential and useful elements with high ideals as to essentials. Noto the large living room, well arranged dining room with pantry connecting with kitchen, and the well planned second story, each bedroom having a fine closet where the roof is kept low for economy.

The basement is of stone, the first story is shingle and the second story and gables in half-timber work with ruogh cast stucco panels.

There are maple floors throughout. The first story is finished in birch and the second pine enamelled.

Including hot water heating plant and plumbing, a home as shown, the above house would cost to build in Duluth and vicinity, $4,500.

BUILDING WORK SCARCE

Winter Construction Is Not as Great as Was Expected.

Bids for Normal School Addition Will Be Opened Monday.

Winter building is not looming up in such volume as the builders and architects expected and little new building is expected to be begun before the first of the year. Most of the builders are working on residences started earlier in the fall and it is thought that after the first of the lear, enough work will come out to keep everybody in the building trades busy.

Grain Carrier Driven Ashore on Island in Lake Ontario.

Oswego, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Marooned for thirty-two hours on the bleak shores of the Galloup islands the crew of the steamer John Sharpless was rescued yesterday by the steamer Hinkley of this city.

The Sharpless, with twenty men and one woman aboard, and bound from Ogdensburg for Chicago laden with 70,000 bushels of corn, was overtaken Thursday by a blinding snow storm on her last trip this season. The gale drove the big grain carrier upon the rocks on the shores of the islands in the dead of night.

Efforts to release the vessel were futile and the crew suffered intensely from privation and cold.

The islands are thirty miles due north of this city. The vessel when abandoned was pounding hard upon the rocks and unless the storm abates, it is feared, will become a total loss.

When the vessel struck, a great wave broke over her and flooded the boiler room, extinguishing the fires, leaving the steamer in a helpless state.

Mrs. Frank Russell, wife of the first mate, who was abcard as a passenger was at first greatly alarmed, but displayed remarkble fortitude during the trying hours that followed.

The hatches were secured and hand lamps lighted to keep the crew from freezing. The crew remained in the cabin all night, hoping that by the following day the seas would have abated and that they would be able to secure shelter.

They were doomed to disappointment, however, the seas continniug and increasing in fury. This condition continued until early yesterday morning when the life boat was manned and a party, which included Mrs. Russell, was taken ashore. As the boat was returning for a second load, a ship was sighted.

The fog whistle, which is run by compressed air, was tested, and there was a shout of joy as the passing ship responded.

It proved to be the steamer Hinckley, which was engaged in picking up the buoys in the river and lake, and was returning to Oswego.

Those on the Sharpless were rescued by boats sent to the wrecked craft by Capt. Hinckley, master of the rescuing steamer.

The Sharpless now lies in a shattered condition off the islands. She is owned by the Great Lakes & St. Lawrence Navigation company. Her captain is George Longley of Ogdensburg.

The officers and crew are quartered at a hotel. They say that but for Capt. Hinckley's timely appearance, they might have perished.

This is regarded here as more than probable, for navigation has closed on Lake Ontario and the Hinckley was probably the only craft on the lake.

First Mate Russell and his wife live in Ogdensburg. Most of the crew are from Chicago.

DIES WITHOUT KNOWING BABY WAS MURDERED.

Johnstown, Pa., Dec. 10.—Miss Fannie M. Robinson, mother of the 3-day-old child for whose murder her mother, Mrs. Adelaine Robinson, is confined in Ebensburg jail, died in Memorial hospital here yesterday, without having been informed of its fate.

Miss Robinson was a professional nurse of Hollidaysburg, Pa., and refused to disclose the paternity of the child. Mrs. Robinson maintains an attitude of indifference. The child was chloroformed while the grandmother was taking it to the railway station in a cab.

MRS. OLESON AGAIN HEAD OF DEGREE OF HONOR.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 10.—Mrs. Faunie Buell Oleson of St. Paul, Minn., was re-elected superior chief of the Degree of Honor, the woman's auxiliary of the Ancient Order of United Workmen; Mrs. Frank M. Kempsey of Spokane, Wash., was elected past superior chief; Margaret F. Lentz of Stuttgart, Ark., superior lady of honor; Mary A. Pratt of Coldwater, Mich., superior chief of ceremonies; Elizabeth E. Ailburn of Sioux City, Iowa, superior recorder; Mary Miller of Diller, Neb., superior receiver; Frances Lichtner of Chicago, superior usher; Mary Newell of Sturgis, S. D., superior watch.

FLAX AND WHEAT OFF

Longs Try to Duck Delivery of Small Lot of Flaxseed.

Argentine Offers of Wheat Cheaper—Kansas Report Bearish.

Duluth Board of Trade, Dec. 10.—The flaxseed market declined precipitately today, the loss in December being 8½ cents and in May 7 cents. The December option has declined 21 cents and the May delivery has slumped 20 cents a bushel this week. Cash flax was on a December basis.

Wheat continued to take the toboggan. December lost 1⅛c and May declined ⅞c. Cash wheat was 1½ cents over December. Oats, rye and barley were unchanged. Durum lost ¼c.

The weakness in flaxseed was pronounced from the opening. Although the market limped throughout the entire session there was no support. Selling commenced early and the market slid without receiving any encouragement from crushers. The condition was entirely local and centered about 5,000 bushels of seed which was delivered on a December contract. Three or four houses kicked this 5,000 bushels around the pit trying to get rid of it. It was considerably battle scarred but it hung on like the cat that came back.

Nobody wanted the stuff and everybody tried to duck delivery. The result was a sharp slump in values that did not tend to foster confidence in the market. Prospective purchasers were not disposed to take the seed and run the risk of disposing of the stuff to crushers who are fighting for lower prices. The chances of a profit in such a transaction were slim. While the cat was being booted about some hardy spirits got the speculative fever and the result was a few scattered sales on speculative account.

Crushers are not disposed to support this market. They are endeavoring to buy Argentine seed and they naturally want to get the stuff as cheaply as possible. While this market may not dictate world's prices for flaxseed yet the fluctuations here have a salutary effect on the prices elsewhere. The sentimental effect of lower prices in the world's leading flaxseed markets is not lost on foreign sellers. La Plata future seed, for instance, was offered at Antwerp today for approximately $1.904 a bushel, a decline of about 17 cents from quotations of a little more than two weeks ago.

There has been a suspicion in the minds of some folk that the crushers were putting down prices this week so they could broaden and stimulate the market for linseed oil. This has not been the practice of crushers for some time. Crushers are willing to see prices sink lower in order to get their Argentine seed as cheaply as possible. Whether they care to see values then advance so that they can get a high price for the oil is problematical. Time will tell. The question is, can crushers make more money buying Argentine seed cheaply and selling a moderate amount of oil dearly than by getting the seed as cheaply as possible and selling a large amount of oil at a small profit. Any person who would attempt to answer all of the questions and solve all of the peculiar situations that appear in the flaxseed market would not only have considerable work cut out for him but it would not be long before he would be singing his swan song.

The use of substitutes for linseed oil and the disposition of buyers of products in which linseed oil is used to delay improvements and to retard projects in which these products are used will greatly reduce the consumption of linseed oil and consequently of flaxseed. On the other hand this is a new country and it cannot expand and contract its consumption either of staples or specialized products with the facility of Europe. Assuming that we will cut down our consumptive requirements by several million bushels we will have to import from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 bu and maybe more.

Whether crushers are willing to sell the leading future short in the face of existing conditions and take a chance on a heavy loss in a market susceptible to speculative influences so they can get the actual Argentine stuff cheaply will appear as the situation unravels itself.

Weather in Argentina is favorable and cable today said an Argentine expert had predicted a crop of 38,000,000 bu. This is slightly under the highest estimate for the crop. Some people have thought the crop would reach 40,000,000 bu and an international commercial concern which sells farm implements in Argentina estimated the flaxseed crop of Argentina this week at this figure. It is not likely, however, that the production indicated will be reached.

The foreign markets were lower on account of the weakness in the Buenos Ayres market and cheaper Argentine offers. The harvesting in Argentina is extending southward. The yield is said to be good and the quality of the grain is better than last year, the weight being reported at from ½ to 1 pound heavier per bushel. Smaller world's shipments this week caused some covering by shorts abroad but the effect was lost.

There was considerable liquidation in December from people who do not want to take delivery. The estimate of about 90,000,000 bu for the Kansas winter wheat crop had a weakening effect. The condition was placed by Secretary Coburn at 75.2 per cent of normal. The government made the condition of winter wheat in Kansas 73 per cent which represents an estimated crop as of Dec. 1, of 88,679,000 bu. On Dec. 1 last year the condition of the growing plant was 72 per cent.

Weakness in corn contributed to the depressed condition of wheat. There was some snow today in Illinois and prospects are favorable for additional moisture in some parts of the winter wheat territory.

The cash position in the Northwest was easier. Premiums at Minneapolis were easier but the premium of 1½c over December was unchanged here. Business is dull.

MARKET GOSSIP

Chicago Tribune: "There seems in some quarters a disposition to exaggerate the drouth situation in the Southwest by figuring the rain deficiency last spring as a factor in the present crop condition," says R. W. Snow of Bartlett-Frazier. "The rainfall from March to Aug. 1 has no more to do with this crop than does the drouth of 1904. There was surplus rainfall all over the Southwest during August and September sufficient to restore good soil conditions after the spring and summer drouth was ended, and it was under these soil moisture conditions that seeding was generally done.

"The aggregate rainfall for September, October, and November shows a material shortage only over a comparatively narrow belt in Southern Kansas west of Wichita and in Central and Western Oklahoma. All Missouri points show an aggregate rainfall above normal for the last three months, but with November taken alone deficient. Topeka, Kan., shows heavy excess of rain in September and only a moderate deficiency since."

Chicago Record-Herald: Julius Barnes of Duluth passed through Chicago on his way to the East yesterday. "We probably will have enough wheat in the Northwest to run us through and probably more than most people think," he said. "I recall very vividly how Southern Minnesota broke our backs during the black rust year by showing up more wheat than any of us thought she had. She may do the same thing this year."

Chicago Record-Herald: "Barley is in a class by itself this year," said Fred F. Bullen, the well known maltster. "This is precisely what my Northwestern people told me some months ago, and it is being demonstrated daily. There is not enough barley this year to meet the demand. The trade here will not buy the California malt because they had trouble with it when they used it three years ago. The government reports a shortage of about 12,000,000 bu in the total crop, but the shortage East of the Rockies is at least 20,000,000 bu. Farm reserves the country over at Christmas time are not over 20 per cent, according to the highest estimates that I have been able to find anywhere. They are usually about 60 per cent at this time. The quality is generally fine, as it is all good color, although some is light. Losses in cleaning run up from 5 to 25 per cent because of thin barley, oats, seeds and wild oats mixtures. As barley is not raised as extensively as the other grains, a dealer or maltster has no means to protect himself in the speculative market like dealers in wheat, corn or oats. Prices of malting barley have advanced about 10c in two weeks and about 20c from the low price this fall."

Closing wheat markets abroad follow: Paris, unchanged to ¼c lower; flour, unchanged; Liverpool, ½d off.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool—The wheat market at the opening was influenced by the weakness in Buenos Ayres and values were ¼d to ⅜d lower. Argentine offers are three pence lower and the quality is excellent as according to our agent the weight is ½ to 1 pound per bushel over last year. During the morning the market was dull, but with pressure to sell, and a further decline of ⅛d to ¼d occurred. There was some little covering by shorts during the morning on the predictions of smaller world's shipments this week, but at the close Plata houses here were free sellers and prices at this time were ½d lower than yesterday. The corn market was dull and about steady, especially the American grade. The fact of free Plata offers and predictions of larger world's shipments were offset by the fewer American offers. Wheat cargoes arrived off coast, 1 and waiting orders, 1. Wheat cargoes in distant positions, easy under large Argentine offers. Corn easy with very little inquiry. Our Argentine agent cables that the weather is generally favorable and harvesting is progressing rapidly.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Shows Tendency to Sag on Foreign and Crop News.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—With Argentine offerings more and more cheap at Liverpool and with the new harvest yielding one-half to one pound heavier weight to the bushel according to dispatches from Buenos Ayres, the wheat market here showed a tendency today to sag. Another bearish influence was the fact that receipts in the southwest part of the winter crop region in this country were making a heavy exhibit. Traders apparently gave little attention to predictions of smaller world shipments. The opening was a shade to ⅜c lower. May started at 95½@⅝c to 95¾c, a decline of 1-16 to ¼c and sold down to 95½c.

The Kansas crop report making a bearish estimate increased the depression. The close, however, was steady with May ⅜@½c net lower at 95⅜c.

Large purchases strengthened the price of corn. Previous big short sellers were putting no pressure on the market. May opened a shade higher to a shade off at 47⅜c to 47½c and rose to 47⅞@48c.

Selling on the bulge eased the market. The close was at a net gain of a shade at 47½c for May.

Oats were bullishly affected by the December shortage and by corn. May opened a shade up at 34¼c and advanced to 34¼@⅜c.

In provisions, there was a general evening up with shorts liquidating on the bulge and with longs realizing rather freely. First sales showed an advance of 5c to 17½c, May being at $17.80 to $17.97½c, lard at $9.97½ to $10 and ribs at $9.67½.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Is Again in Narrow Range and Is Somewhat Easier.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 10.—The wheat market again today was in narrow range and slightly easier. Offerings were a trifle heavier and there was some moderate selling pressure. December closed ¾c lower than yesterday, and both May and July ⅝@¾c lower. Local elevator stocks of wheat increased 95,000 bu for one day. Cotton Market.

New York, Dec. 10.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 9 points on December and of 2@5 points on later months as a result of continued heavy realizing and in sympathy with the reaction in the Liverpool market. Offerings were very well taken by shorts and fresh buying, with prices rallying to about the closing figures of yesterday during the first ten minutes, but the selling for long account continued and the market eased off a little later, ruling about 2@6 points net lower during the middle of the morning. There was some talk of freerer spot offerings in Liverpool, but the May selling here seemed to be in the way of profit-taking.

Futures closed firm; December, 14.79; January, 14.86; February, 14.97; March, 15.14; April, 15.19; May, 15.32; June, 15.30; July, 15.30; August, 14.94; October, 13.50. Spot closed quiet, 5 points decline. Middling uplands, 15.05; middling gulf, 15.30. Sales none.

NEW ORLEANS GETS OFFICE.

Mobile Loses Headquarters of Lighthouse District.

Washington, Dec. 10. — Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor today decided to locate the headquarters of the eighth lighthouse district at New Orleans instead of Mobile. The office of the engineer and the inspector will be consolidated.

In making a decision the secretary has been guided largely by the recommendations of G. R. Putnam, commissioner of lighthouses, who strongly urged New Orleans because of its railroad facilities, its importance as a seaport and its geographical position.

WILLS ROOSEVELT LAND ON BRIMSTONE CREEK.

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 10.—Charles W. Hall, who died in Benton Harbor, Mich., a year ago, left an estimated fortune between $100,000 and $200,000. His will has been probated here. One paragraph reads as follows:

"To Col. Theodore Roosevelt of Washington, D. C., I give and bequeath 1,000 acres of timber land, located on Brimstone creek, in Scott county, Tenn., to have and to hold during his natural life."

The original will bears the date of Oct. 5, 1908, but the testator, following the presidential election that year, suffering an inexplicable change of mind and on Dec. 23 he made a codicil taking back the bequest to Mr. Roosevelt and giving it to his brother. The codicil does not reveal the testator's motive in making it.

ALLEGED MURDERER OF OCEY SNEAD SANE.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 10.—Judge Teneyck, who has been hearing testimony bearing on the mental condition of Mrs. Caroline B. Martin, one of the sisters accused of the murder of Mrs. Ocey Martin Snead in a bathtub in a house in East Orange, declares the woman to be sane, within the meaning of the statute. CHECK WITH THE TICKET

Railroads May Install New System of Handling Baggage.

Would Greatly Simplify Matters for the Traveling Public.

Railroads of this city are considering the idea of establishing the checking system in vogue in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago and other cities of the West. The system has proved such a success in these other cities that it may be established here in the near future. The report of the railroad men will probably determine whether the system is established here.

In Minneapolis when you purchase a ticket you are asked the number of pieces of baggage you have and are given a check right there for all your baggage. The railroad office officials also have arrangements whereby the baggage is collected, though the railroads do not pay the expressage of the trunk.

With your check in your possession thoro is no need to give further thought to the baggage. Ladies traveling alone have found the checking system one to be very convenient and it is a great time saving device to all travelers.

Those in Duluth who have worried about the arrival of a trunk at the depot and have had to wait their turn at the baggage window to have the trunk checked, will appreciate the conveniences that travelers in the Twin Cities are enjoying.

The matter is being considered by railway men here, and a decision may be reached to install the system in Duluth.

BRAZIL NAVY HAS ANOTHER REVOLT

Cobra Island May Have to Be Taken By Forcible Assault.

Rio Janeiro, Dec. 10.—The naval battalion in the barracks of Cobra island, situated in the bay a short distance from this city, mutinied last night. The mutineers were supported by the scoutship Rio Grande Do Sul, which took part in the naval revolt of last month.

The shore batteries and the loyal warships in the harbor were ordered to fire upon the rebels.

At 5 o'clock this morning the guns were turned upon Cobra island and a furious cannonading continued for several hours.

The bombardment was resumed shortly after 11 o'clock, the rebels not having surrendered. If they do not give up, the island will be taken by force. The casualties among the rebels are said to be heavy.

ROBS HIMSELF TO BUY GIRL CHRISTMAS GIFT.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Roland Poole, 19 years old, has confessed to the police at Hyde Park station that he "held up" himself twice, cut his own clothing, arms and face and "robbed" himself of $20 so that he might buy his girl a Christmas present.

Poole, who earns $10 a week as an office boy, is said by his mother to have been a model youth until this escapade. He brought home all of his money and otherwise deported himself to the satisfaction of his mother.

BRAINERD'S NEW PAPER.

Brainerd Journal-Press Made Its Bow on Friday.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first issue of The Brainerd Journal-Press, the new weekly paper, appeared yesterday. The Journal was the name first selected but Editor Ralph M. Sheets ascertained that Brainerd at one time had a Journal in its list of newspapers and so amended the name to secure a new cognomen.

"If the ground warrants it," said Mr. Sheets, "I shall establish a daily and put in ten men. I am the sole proprietor of this newspaper enterprise and have no one else associated with me. The Lindbergh Magazine, issued by Congressman C. A. Lindbergh, will be printed on my presses and the first issue will appear on Feb. 1. I expect it to be a six by nine page, 120 pages to the issue. I shall have also the mailing and advertising connected with it."

Mr. Sheets was formerly the editor of the Todd County Argus, of Long Prairie. It is said that Congressman Lindbergh has a force of four solicitors covering the vicinity for subscribers to his magazine, which will appear ten times a year, omitting the months of July and August.

TWO DULUTH MEN ON THE PROGRAM.

E. L. Millar of Duluth and Col. Hiram Hayes will be speakers at the annual banquet of the Old Settlers' association of the Head of the Lakes, at Superior, next Wednesday. Capt. T. H. Pressnell of Duluth, president of the association, will read a paper on Rev. William T. Boutwell, who accompanied Schoolcraft on his expedition in search of the true head of the Mississippi river, and who delivered the first sermon ever preached at Fond du Lac.

The banquet will be held at the First M. E. church, Thompson avenue and West Sixth street, East end, at 1 o'clock, Wednesday, and will be preceded by the annual business meeting, at which reports of officers will be received and new officers will be elected.

KANSAS MAN ACCUSED OF MURDERING WHOLE HOUSEHOLD IN ANGER

Woman and Three Men Found Dead on Isolated Farm.

John Feigler Admits He Quarreled With Bernhard Family.

Tries to Cast Suspicion on Another When Cross-Examined.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 12.—John Feigler, a hunter and trapper, whose home is a half mile west of the Bernhardt farm in Johnson county, Kan., where Mrs. Emily Bernhard, George Bernhard, her son, Thomas H. Morgan and James Graves were murdered, was arersted in connection with the crime early today and placed in the Kansas City, Kan., jail.

A bloody pair of overalls and shirt were found by Chief of Police Zimmer today in Feigler's home. The bloody garments were concealed in a closet on the second floor of Feigler's house.

He was questioned for three hours by H. T. Zimmer, chief of police of Kansas City, Kan., and it is said he told conflicting stories regarding his relations with the Bernhard family.

Feigler was arrested after the officers learned that he and George Bernhard had quarreled several times recently because Feigler objected to Bernhard and Morgan hunting on his farm.

In his statements to Chief Zimmer, Feigler attempted to cast suspicion on another man. This man, it is said, will be arrested today.

Feigler told Chief Zimmer he found Morgan hunting on his place last Wednesday.

Quarrel With Bernhard.

"I asked him what he meant by killing my game," said Feigler, "and he told me Mrs. Benrhard's son gave him permission to hunt there. After I had ordered Morgan off my place, I went over to Bernhard's place and asked George Bernhard why he had given Morgan permission to hunt on my place. He denied that he had given Morgan any such permission."

Feigler said he and Bernhard made counter accusations against each other, and when the quarrel grew warm, Mrs. Bernhard appeared on the scène.

"When she heard me say George had told Morgan he might hunt on my place, she called me a liar," said Feigler.

He said both Mrs. Bernhard and

SUIT FOR BALDWIN FORTUNE IS BEGUN

Mrs. Turnbull's Claims Are Heard in Los Angeles Court.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12.—The fight of Beatrice Anita Baldwin Turnbull for a two-ninths' share in the $11,000,000 estate of the late E. J. Baldwin will begin before Judge Rives and a jury in the superior court today.

The contestant was born in this city 17 years ago. Her birth certificate, on record here, gives her mother's name as Lillian A. Ashley and her father's name as Elias Jackson Baldwin.

The validity of an alleged marriage between Mrs. Ashley and Baldwin is not an issue, the contention being that, under California laws the child of a void marriage is regarded as legitimate and the failure of Baldwin to mention Beatrice in the will does not raise the legal presumption that he intended to disinherit her.

Distribution of the estate to the heirs was about to be made when this contest was filed, tying up the property indefinitely.

TAMMANY HALL BADLY SCORCHED

Wigwam Suffers $25,000 Damage By Smoker's Carelessness.

New York, Dec. 12.—Tammany Hall, the "Wigwam" home of the famous political organization, known as the Tammany society, was partly destroyed by fire today. There was a fear of the blaze spreading to nearby buildings including the old Academy of Music, the Olympic Music hall and the Central hotel. The flames, however, were confined to the interior of Tammany Hall itself.

Torrents of water poured into the big structure, and the greater part of the damages was caused by this deluge. The fire chiefly exerted its force upon the gallery where it started and a portion of the floor below. It took two hours, work to get the blaze under control.

Tammany Hall stands on East Fourteenth street in the heart of the oldtime theater district and one now thickly dotted with ancient buildings.

Laid to Smoker.

A dance was given last night by a social club in the ball room of the hall and it is supposed that a lighted cigar or cigarette left in one of the boxes in the gallery started the fire. It is estimated that the damage by fire and water to the interior of the building can be repaired for approximately $25,000.

BANKS ARE PROSPEROUS

Comptroller of the Currency Makes Annual Report to Congress.

Shows Intention to Weed Out the Weaker National Institutions.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Another year of prosperity and solid growth for American banks is recorded in the annual report of the comptroller of the currency, presented to congress today. Not only the national banks which come directly under the control and supervision of the currency bureau are included in the comprehensive review of banking conditions, but state banks, savings banks, trust companies and other financial institutions—some 15,950 others—are represented.

During the fiscal year of 1910 the combined resources of the 7,000 national banks of the United States grew to approximately $1,000,000,000. On Sept. 1 last their loans and discounts had reached the immense sum of $5,400,000,000—an amount never before equaled in the history of the national

NO WORD OF THE OLYMPIA

Stranded Steamer Has One Hundred and Six Persons Aboard.

Last Report Was That Waves Were Pounding Her on Rocks.

Valdez, Alaska, Dec. 12.—All the passengers of the wrecked steamship Olympia have been saved. Some of them were brought here by the government launch Fort Liscom and the others are safely housed at Ellemar.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 12.—No word has been received from Alaska today concerning the wrecked steamer Olympia. There is good reason for believing all the passengers were saved, but the Alaska Steamship company has no advices. Every effort is being made to get in communication with the Olympia.

News is anxiously awaited concerning the fate of the 106 persons on the steamship which went on the rocks at the southeastern end of Bilg island, Prince William sound, Alaska, during a furious storm yesterday morning. Steamers and launches are hurrying to the aid of the vessel from Seward, Valdez and Katalla. Rescuing craft have gone to the steamship.

The only means of communication between Seattle and Cordova and Valdez is by military cable operated by the United States army corps. When the cable office closed for the night the last word received by the operator at the naval wireless station at Cordova was that the passengers and crew were still aboard the Olympia, which was

TWO LUMBERJACKS LOSE THEIR LIVES

Cloquet, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph Brush, about 60 years old, died Saturday night at the Cloquet hospital. Brush was found several days ago in a little shanty near Camp 5 on the Duluth & Northeastern, three miles from Shiels, where he has been watching Camp Summers. He was unconscious when found and remained in a comatose condition until death. He has been working under J. C. Campbell for the Cloquet Lumber company for about ten years and was a trustworthy, respected man among the lumber men. Brush never spoke of any reltaives, but it was known that he was married and has a family somewhere. A daughter came here to visit him several years ago and efforts are being made to locate his children.

Killed by Falling Tree.

The body of John Erickson was brought here yesterday from Camp 9 of the Northern Lumber company. Erickson was killed Saturday afternoon by a falling tree, which crushed his head. He was 26 years old. A brother of the deceased, Louis Erickson, who is a contractor and builder in Minneapolis, took charge of the remains and they were shipped away to Merrillan Junction, Wis., for burial.

John Christianson, 22 years old, died this morning at the home of his brother, Algot Christianson, from pneumonia. No funeral arrangements have been made.

WET ONLY AT BEMIDJI

"Injunction" Saloons Are the Only Ones Open in the Dry Zone.

Special Agent Will Stay in Duluth to Watch for Shipments.

Bemidji, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bemidji's twelve so-called injunction saloons are the only drink emporiums which are running peacefully and undisturbed in the dry zone which has been closed by special officers of the Indian department in accordance with orders direct from Special Agent Johnson, and indications are that these twelve places will continue to be operated without hindrance for several months and perhaps permanently.

While neither E. E. McDonald, attorney for the twelve, or Judge Spooner associated with the injunction movement, will give out any definite bearing on the cases now pending before the government officials, it is intimated that mandamus proceedings will be instituted to restrain the government from preventing shipment of liquors into this city to replenish the supply of the dealers, which is fast being depleted.

Expect No Immediate Action.

While no direct statement is made by agents, it is believed that Special Officer Brents, who was in charge of the closing movement in Bemidji, has received from Secretary Ballinger special instructions not to disturb Bemidji's injunction saloons pending determination of the rights of the department and the saloon keepers. Brents telegraphed from St. Paul Saturday for instructions.

Brents, it is said, will now retire from this section and Coggeshal, from Denver, will have charge of the work of the department in the dry zone. It is said that one deputy special officer will be stationed at each of the following places to keep a close scrutiny on closed saloons and to intercept possible shipments of wet goods: Duluth, Grand Rapids, Bemidji, Big Falls, Brainerd, Akeley, Bagley and Mahnomen. It will be the special duty of these officers to hunt down and assist in the prosecution of bootleggers or blind piggers, and they wil co-operate with the local officers in all places.

ACCUSER SENT TO COUNTY JAIL

Woman Who Told of Grand Jury Leak Fails to Prove Charge.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Mrs. Aileen Christopher, the government's witness against the alleged brick trust, today was ordered committed to the Cook county jail with her attorney, John A. Brown, until they produce certain papers and documents before the federal grand jury.

At the same time Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of the federal district court declared the accusations of Mrs. Christopher and her counsel in his court Saturday that Charles F. Dewoody, head of the department of justice's secret service here, had "tipped off" grand jury secrets were without cause, reason or justification.

Mrs. Christopher told the court Saturday she had withheld documents purporting to be corroborative of her charges of a brick trust, because Dewoody improperly gave the grand jury information to interested parties. She was given till today to produce the documents. Failing to bring in the papers, Judge Landis ordered her sent to the county jail.

SAYS SHE SAW MRS. GLOVER

Witness Testifies That the Woman Was at Scene of Murder.

Witnesses in Hattie Le Blanc's Trial Disparage Widow's Character.

Cambridge, Conn., Dec. 12.—When the trial of Hattie Le Blanc, for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, was resumed in the Middlesex county superior court today, Judge Bond allowed the defense to reopen its case in order that Nellie Walsh of Waltham might be called as a witness.

Miss Walsh testified that on the night of Nov. 20, 1909, the night on which Glover was shot, she had met Mrs. Glover walking away from the laundry at about 8:30 o'clock. The witness declared she positively recognized Mrs. Glover as she passed her in front of a building.

The case is expected to end this week.

The last day of the defense's presentation of testimony was a long distance duel by legal methods between the youthful defendant, Hattie Le Blanc, and Mrs. Lillian Glover, the widow of the Waltham laundryman. The defense directed all its shafts at the widow in marshalling its witnesses and evidence while the prosecution sought to turn them in the direction of the little Cape Breton servant girl.

ECCENTRIC DIES OF BROKEN SKULL

John Morrison-Fuller, Who Gave Away $7,000 in Drinks, Is Dead.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 12.—John Morrison-Fuller, formerly a banker of Glasgow, Mo., died here today from a fractured skull which he received by falling on the ice last week. He was a man of wealth. He took his wife's name when he married.

When his home town voted favorbly for local option, Morrison-Fuller opened a free drinking place and in one year gave away $7,000 worth of drinks to his friends. He established a bank in Glasgow so he would have a place to loaf, because he thought the bank then in existence objected to his loafing in the banking room.

Some years ago he began publishing a newspaper when he disagreed with the opinions of the editor of a paper already established.

Erbstein is seeking to establish an alibi for occasions on which the juror, Grant McCutcheon, and Stacy said he met them with bribery proposals.

TWO LINEMEN SHAKE HANDS AFTER ESCAPING DEATH BY ELECTRICITY

After both had survived severe electrical shocks within an hour, Frank Keyes and William Morgan, linemen in the employ of the Duluth Edison Electric company, shook hands and congratulated each other Saturday.

Both men were members of a crew working in First alley near Sixth avenue west. About 10 o'clock Saturday morning Keyes suffered a severe shock and Morgan assisted him from the pole.

At 11 o'clock Morgan had a miraculous escape from death in the same place where Keyes had been working, as mentioned in The Herald Saturday evening. Keyes was one of the men who assisted him down and when Morgan reached the ground and recovered from the effects of the shock, he and Keyes shook hands and congratulated each other. Neither man was injured.

HELD UP AND ROBBED OF $250

David Ryhanen Tells Police Two Men Enticed Him Into an Alley.

David Ryhanen told the police Saturday evening that he was robbed of $250 by two strangers after he had been decoyed into an alley by two other men. He claimed that he had the money in a wallet inside of his coat.

He said that he was about to send it to the Old Country. While on his way to a place to arrange for sending it he says that he was approached by two men, who induced him to go to another agent, who they said was better. On the way he claims that they took him into an alley and that two other men appeared and took his cash.

His two acquaintances disappeared and later came around to console him for his loss. He pointed them out to the police and they were placed under arrest on suspicion. They gav their names as John Aho and Nestor Saarinen.

PAYS HIGH COMPLIMENT TO SPALDING HOTEL.

"The Chocolate Soldier" company has departed from Duluth and its members took with them pleasant memories of the Zenith City, which they said had been a delightful host, and Charles A. Moore, the company's manager, took occasion before leaving the city to pay a high compliment to the Spalding hotel, its cuisine and its management.

Mr. Moore has traveled over the old world and the new as manager of E. S. Willard and William H. Crane, and he knows whereof he speaks when he talks of hotels and hotel accommodations. Mr. Moore said that under the management of Edwin H. Lee, the managing director, this hotel ranks with the best to be found anywhere. The geniality of the staff, the pleasant environment enjoyed in the hostelry and the multiple comforts of cafes and apartments won his unqualified approval. He said that nowhere has he seen more charming private dining rooms than the three new ones just opened on the parlor floor, and the Palm room and Flemish room he described as being unusually excellent in their appointments. Mr. Moore said that in the Spalding Duluth has a hotel of which it can and should be proud.

The cow escoped uninjured.

banking system since its creation in 1864. At the same time they were counting nearly $30,000,000 of overdrafts in their assets, a practice which there is no law to stop.

Growth of Banking Power.

Combining all other banks in the United States and its island possession with those of the national system and allowing an estimate for those not reported, it is evident from the comptroller's report that the banking power of the nation has grown in the last ten years from 13,977 of all sorts of banks, with capital of $1,150,900,000 and individual deposits of $7,688,000,000, to more than 27,000 banks with combined capital close to $2,000,000,000 and individual deposits of nearly $16,000,000,000. The deposits have more than doubled in little more than a decade, and in the same time the combined loans and discounts have grown to more than $12,000,000,000.

The volume of business is reflected in reports which have been assembled from 137 clearing house exchanges showing combined clearings of $169,000,000,000 for the year ended on Sept. 30, as against $158,800,000,000 for 1909.

Increase in Business.

With the exceptions of Cincinnati, Ohio.; Houston, Tex.; Greensburg, Pa.; Freemont, Neb.; Franklin, Pa.; Colorado Springs, Col.; and Vicksburg, Miss., the year showed an increased volume of business transacted. The New York Clearing House association represented 60 per cent of the clearings of all associations of the country, and during the current year has reached $102,000,000,000, some $3,000,000,000 greater than in 1909. For these enormous transactions balances of only little more than $4,000,000,000 were used.

Four National Bank Failures.

Four actual national bank failures marked the year. Final settlement of the affairs of eighteen insolvent banks was made in which depositers received nearly 86 per cent. These administrations were made at an average cost of about 5 per cent on the collections.

From the date of the first failure in 1865, 514 national banks have been placed in the hands of receivers and twenty-five of them have been restored to solvency. More than $3,300,000 in dividends was paid to depositors of insolvent banks during the year.

Seems Profitable Business.

On the whole, it appears from the report that national banking, conservatively conducted, is a profitable enterprise. The net earnings of the 7,000 national banks during the year were more than $154,000,000 from which dividends of $105,000,000 were paid at the rate of more than 10 per cent on their capital. The government, too, has profited from the existence of the national associations, for since their beginning it has received more than $202,000,000, of which more than 92 per cent has been for circulation tax on the bank notes they issue.

With the exception of banks which have become insolvent as a result of defalcations or other dishonesty, failures have been almost wholly due to incompetent or reckless management, the report says.

"A large percentage of the banks that have failed should have gone into voluntary liquidation before they reached the conditions which precipitated the failure," says Comptroller Murray.

Weed Out Weak Ones.

The report leaves no room to doubt that it is the intention of the present administration to rid the national banking system of weak banks by guiding them into voluntary liquidation, a combination with stronger institutions wherever possible, or to discontinue business as a last resort where there is no probability other than failure.

National banks, of course, provide the principal market for United States bonds. Their investments in those securities have increased $10,000,000 in the last year, and they now hold $730,000,000 in those bonds, of which approximately $700,000,000 are 2 per cents.

More than half the national banks now in existence have begun business within the last ten years, and they have a combined capital of $280,000,000. The authorized capital has increased $383,000,000 in ten years.

The bank note circulation of the country increased at the same time from $254,000,000 to $713,000,000, and reached the maximum in the history of the institutions in April of this year.

TELLS OF COPPER FLURRY.

Boston, Dec. 12.—Thomas W. Lawson attempted late Saturday to shed light on the rise and fall of Ohio Copper in May, 1909, as bearing on the allegations of F. Augustus Heinze in his suit to recover collateral pledges with A. D. F. Adams of this city, which Heinze claims was sold without his (Heinze's) consent. The case is being heard by F. Rockwood Hall, a master appointed by the supreme court, and has been in progress for nearly two months.

Mr. Lawson said he entered into an agreement with Carlos Warfield, F. Augustus Heinze and James R. Keene regarding the management of a market campaign in Ohio Copper which should enhance the value of the stock from $5 to $8 a share. He said he was assured by Mr. Warfield that the greater part of the stock was closely held and that very little stock would come out during the rise.

Began Buying at $5.

Mr. Lawson said he began purchasing the stock at $5 and continued until it had gone above $8 a share, purchasing and selling in the two weeks of the rise some 80,000 shares. When the stock reached $8 a share, he was led to believe on investigation that Ohio Copper stock, which he had been assured by Warfield and Keene would not be offered, was nevertheless being thrown on the market in large blocks. He ceased his operations on May 26, 1909.

Counsel tried to obtain from Mr. Lawson his idea of the reputation of Mr. Heinze for truth and veracity, but there was objection. He was allowed to say that he had not spoken to Mr. Heinze for eight years.

HIDING FROM THE POLICE

West Duluth Man Conceals Himself Under Pile of Carpets.

Arrested and Given Jail Sentence for Swindling Several Merchants.

Hiding under a pile of old rags and carpets in an attempt to conceal himself from the police, who were searching his father's home with warrants of several months' standing, Clement Clemetson, 28 years old, was apprehended late Saturday evening and this morning was arraigned before Judge J. B. Flack of the local justice court.

He was sentenced to 120 days in the county jail on two counts, each charging petit larceny. On each count, he received a sixty-day sentence. He is the son of Gabriel Clemetson, tent and awning maker of the firm of Clemetson Brothers, and at the time of his arrest was hiding at his father's house, Sixty-first avenue west and Nashua street.

The police learned of his presence in West Duluth and had good reason to believe that he was being concealed by his relatives. When Sergeant Barber and Officers Ek and Peters called at the Clemetson home Saturday evening, his parents denied that he was there. A search, however, revealed young Clemetson hiding in the attic.

Clemetson, say the police, has been working a "con game" among the merchants of West Duluth and the West end. His method is to call his "victim" up on the telephone and represent himself as his father, Gabriel Clemetson, of Clemetson Brothers. He would ask for a loan of a small sum of money to pay a freight bill or to meet some other expense, promising that he would return the money the next day. He would then say that he would send his son down to get the loan.

A short time later he would show up in person and get the loan. The police have a long list of merchants who claim to have been swindled out of small sums of money on the young man's game. His father has settled some of the loans but of late declared that he would not be responsible for the actions of the son.

S. D. Ives, proprietor of the Esmond hotel, last February, and Charles P. Wick, a West Duluth feed dealer, in March, swore out warrants for his arrest, but Clemetson, at the time, could not be found. Later in the summer, he was arrested for forging the name of Clemetson Bros. to a check passed off on Enger & Olson, West end furniture dealers.

On this charge he was bound over, but was never indicted by the grand jury. Later in district court, he pleaded guilty to a charge of petit larceny before Judge Ensign, who sentenced him to forty days in jail, but suspended the sentence. While on parole, he was arrested in Superior for obtaining money under false pretenses from a cloak firm and was given sixty days in the Douglas county jail.

After serving this sentence he evidently started in again at his old game. After fleecing a number of merchants, he successfully evaded arrest until Saturday. Lieut. Wilcox today stated that other warrants on similar charges may be swore out against him after he has served his 120 days.

Clemetson is married, but has not lived with his wife for the past year.

WITH THE GREAT FLOCKS.

Most of the sheep herders are great readers. There is a big book store in Casper, Wyo., which, instead of returning to the publishers unsold periodicals, sells them to sheep herders at 5 cents each. One of the owners of the store is a sheepman.

There is an attorney practicing law in Cheyenne at present that studied his books while herding sheep. College men have been known to take a profitable post-graduate course on the sheep range, to their ultimate success in life; but the general run of sheep herders doesn't average up very well.

It is the illiterate sheep herders that go crazy, says Everybody's. In the sheep country sheepmen will tell you that herders do not go crazy, and that there is nothing more elevating than association with sheep, or more broadening than life upon the range. Peculiarities generally are not marked there. It is noticeable in Wyoming, for example, that most men draw the upper lip back from the teeth, exposing them, rabbit fashion—a habit doubtless due to the strong white light upon the vast stretches of treeless land. They go grinning along through mirth and tragedy alike, and the white plain grins back at them, nobody counting it peculiar because it is common.

DESERTION ON DECREASE

Judges and County Attorney Are Solving a Difficult Problem.

Reducing the Number of Men Who Desert Their Families.

County Attorney John H. Norton is hot after those who are deserting their wives and babies.

For some time the wife desertion problem has been the biggest problem that has confronted the local district court judges and the county attorneys.

The number of cases that are brought into court is small compared with the number of men who are caught and threatened. In almost every instance, the prisoner, is glad to promise to go back to his family and provide for them rather than spend an indefinite time in prison.

Mr. Norton and the local judges figure that if a man can be made to care for his family, he is of more use outside the prison than he is in. Now and then an example is made of a man and the example is held up for others.

After they are given a chance to go back they are watched and on the first false move, they are placed promptly in jail and no more mercy is shown.

The plan is working out well. Upon complaint the party wanted is looked up, found, and given his choice of providing for his family or going to jail.

In almost every instance he chooses to provide.

The county attorney's office and the local judges are working together on the family desertion problem and there is less desertion in the county at the present time than there has been in some months past.

NEW MATERIAL MAY BE USED

Board Considers Sprinkling With Calcium Bichloride Instead of Water.

The first hearing on sprinkling assessments at the office of the board of public works this morning developed a strong sentiment in favor of treating the streets with calcium bichloride instead of sprinkling them with water. R. E. Patterson has investigated the matter, and states that it will save about 35 per cent of the cost, or more. He figures that the cost per lot under the new method would be about $1.75 to $1.70 per lot. The first experiments with the bichloride were made in Duluth last year, and it is stated that excellent results have been obtained in keeping down the dust.

NEW YEAR'S BALL BY SHRINERS

Dinner and Dance Will Be Held at the Spalding.

New Year's eve at the Spalding hotel the Shriners of Aad temple will entertain at a dinner and ball.

It is planned to make this an annual event. The women, it is understood, have begun to think that the Shriners have been giving too many "stag" affairs.

Just to show the members of the fair sex that their society is appreciated, the Shriners have planned this particular party, and with the idea in mind of following it with an event of like nature at the same time each year.

The dinner will be at 6:30 and there will be dancing from 9 until 12. The affair is given under the auspices of the patrol, and they plan to make it a very enjoyable event.

It will be only for members of the Shrine.

KEYS KEPT AT ALARM BOXES

Call Boxes May Be Readily Opened By Breaking Thin Glass.

Under the supervision of Chief Joseph Randall and the board of fire commissioners, the fire department is changing its system of keeping keys for the different alarm boxes in the city. In the past they have been in different houses near the boxes and it was difficult to get them in hurry cases. At night it was practically impossible.

The keys are now being hung in little glass cases on the boxes. They can be grabbed in a minute by smashing the thin glass. Some trouble is being had with persons who wilfully break these glasses. Two extra men are being detailed to put a stop to the practice. Efforts will be made to catch those who destroy these glass cases and if they are convicted the punishment meted out will be as extreme as the court can make it.

The change in the key system is meeting with general approval as it is a big improvement and an added protection to the property of the city.

CHILDLIKE IGNORANCE.

Los Angeles Times: Laura Jean Libbey, discussing in Brooklyn her successful appearance on the stage, said:

"I talk in my monologue about love, marriage and the other interests of the heart. On these subjects women, especially young women, are strangely ignorant.

"They really make me think, you know, of the little girl who was asked by her teacher:

"'What can you tell us about Solomon?'

"'Solomon,' replied the little girl, 'was very fond of animals.'

"'And how, my dear,' said the teacher, 'do you make that out?'

"'Because,' answered the little girl, 'the Bible says he had 500 porcupines.'"

FIREMEN RESCUE MOTHER AND BABY

Saturday Evening Blaze on Thirteenth Street Has Dramatic Features.

Firemen made a sensational rescue at a blaze caused by a lamp explosion early Saturday evening at the home of C. A. Lindquist, 1413 Thirteenth street, when they carried Mrs. George Waseen and her infant child from the second story of the house through an upper window to safety.

Escape, except through the window was cut off. The mother and child came out of the experience without injury. The Lindquist family, who lived downstairs, lost all of their household goods. The flames did but little damage to the upstairs. The damage is placed at $1,000 with no insurance.

SAYS SHE TOOK WRONG MEDICINE

East End Woman Gets Her Bottles Mixed and Is Poisoned.

Mistaking a medicine intended for external use for that to be taken internally nearly cost Mrs. John Schultz of 151 West Third street, Superior, her life today.

She was taken violently ill and was removed to St. Frances hospital at the East end, where, at a late hour this afternoon, it is stated that she will probably recover.

Mrs. Schultz claims that she got the bottles of medicine mixed and says that she took a large dose of the wrong medicine.

TO DECIDE ON BRIDGE.

Nemadji Structure Main Topic for Councilmen Tuesday Night.

The Nemadji bridge matter will be up before the council tomorrow evening.

Friday, at the special election on the bond issue, the proposition to spend $90,000 for a steel bridge was turned down by the voters and the councilmen will now take other steps to secure a bridge.

The mayor and some of the councilmen favor a creosoted timber structure, which will last from fifteen to twenty-five years, with but few repairs. The cost would be about $35,000.

SUICIDAL ATTEMPTS IS THWARTED BY FRIENDS.

Verni Koski, a Finnish laborer, attempted to take his life by swallowing poisonous tablets at his room, 407 Tower avenue, last evening. His act was discovered and a physician sent for. He was taken first to the police station and then was sent to the hospital. It is expected that he will recover.

LOCAL SOCIALISTS MAKE CHOICE FOR COMMITTEE.

Local members of the Socialist Democratic party met yesterday afternoon and nominated two national committeemen for Wisconsin besides the members of the state's executive board.

Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee and W. A. Jacobs of Racine were the choice of the local party members for the national committee. Among those named for the state executive board were H. M. Parks of Superior, the only public office holder in the city from the ranks of the Socialists. He is supervisor from the Fourth ward.

Case May Be Dropped.

Mrs. Jennie Phillips, complainant in the case against Earl Childs, proprietor of the Childs hotel, Tower avenue and North Third street, in which Childs is charged with having obtained $1,250 from her under false pretenses, probably will not press the charges against Childs. It is understood that the hotel man has brought about a settlement with her, whereby she will recover the amount claimed to be due.

Condemn for Park.

Condemnations proceedings have been started by the city for acquiring for park purposes a block in the Third ward bounded by Baxter and Grand avenue and Seventh and Eighth streets. A hearing was held Saturday, testimony being taken in the superior court. The matter will be taken up again this afternoon and an agreement will be reached as to valuations.

It is expected that the work will be completed by Jan. 15 and that the Billings Park plant will again resume operations. Of the 115 men employed at the foundry about fifty have been kept for the repair work.

PREPARED FOR DEATH

Laborer Pays Debts, Takes Bath and Cuts His Throat.

John Anderson, a laborer, carefully prepared himself for the next world last night, before he committed suicide by slashing his throat from ear to ear with a razor in the lodging house at 537 Garfield avenue.

Before ending his life he took a bath, shaved himself, and paid an old board bill to the landlady with whom he had been staying. It was stated this morning that he had been almost continuously drunk for the last eighteen months and had become despondent.

Anderson told the landlady before he went to his room, that he was going to kill himself, but she paid no attention to him, not thinking that he was in earnest. When he failed to appear this morning she went to his room and found the body lying on the bed, with the bloody razor beside it.

Dr. J. A. McCuen, county coroner, was notified and he deputized Dr. F. F. Clark to take charge of the remains, which were taken to the undertaking rooms of J. L. Crawford. Dr. Clark will make a post mortem examination at the morgue this afternoon.

The authorities have comparatively little information about Anderson. He has been in Duluth several years and up to a week ago stayed at the rooming house in which he committed suicide. He had some trouble with the landlady about a week ago and she asked him to move. It appears that he owed her for about five months' board and he gave her a note for the amount due last night. It is said that he had several hundred dollars in a local bank. No funeral arrangements have been made.

GREAT TRAINING FEATS.

Feats in the training of trotters for the purpose of winning certain races are told around the stove in training stables during the winter, but according to the American Magazine, the three that stand out from all the others having to do with present-day horses are:

1. Taking Native Belle, an unbroken 2-year-old trotter, in March and so training her that in the September following she equalled the race record for her age, a mile in 2 minutes 12¼ seconds, and ten days later reduced it to 2:07¾, an unprecedented rate of speed for a 2-year-old. This was done by Thomas W. Murphy of Long Island, N. Y., a slim young Irishman who, after years of experience, is now near the top in his chosen business.

2. Taking the Harvester, an unbroken 3-year-old stallion, in February, and so developing his speed, conditioning him to carry it, and transforming him from an exceedingly unruly horse into one of such perfect deportment that he was able, six months after his training was begun, to stamp himself a triple Futurity winner without the loss of a single heat, a distinction attained by no other colt. This was done by Edward F. Geers, a native of Tennessee, the best known horseman in America. Geers is now nearly 60 years old.

3. Taking Miss Stokes, an unbroken yearling trotting filly, in March, and in October driving her a mile in 2:19¼, the best previous record for the age being 2:23. This was done by Edward Willis, a negro, who is recognized as a wonder-worker with baby trotters.

HER REASONS.

Chicago News: "I have only a minute to stay, Mrs. Wagstaff, so I won't sit down," said Mrs. Cumback hurriedly. "I just ran over to tell you that the Wiggleshaws are moving into the house next door to us. For years I've been praying that that calamity might be averted. Oh, those Wiggleshaws!"

"Why, I always supposed they were nice people," replied Mrs. Wagstaff. "They seem to have a good reputation in the neighborhood."

"Oh, yes, they pay their bills and wear good clothes, and I don't suppose they ever have been indicted by the grand jury, but people may have a good reputation in a general way and still be atrocious neighbors, and I just feel it in my bones that Mrs. Wiggleshaw and I won't get on together. She's one of these horribly superior women. She has a way of looking at you that makes you feel that your life has been misspent. She belings to my club, and a while ago I was requested by the president to prepare a paper on the Newfoundland fisheries and read it at the next meeting.

"I think it was a silly subject to begin with, but the president always said that women never would make any true progress until they took an interest in topics of international importance. Well, I didn't know any more about the Newfoundland fisheries than you know about pingpong in Cochin China, but we had an old set of encyclopedias at home, and I spent the next two weeks reading them. Oh, I read about fisheries until my head ached, and when I went to sleep at night, I dreamed I was a codfish or a red herring or a goldfish swimming around in a glass tank. I don't believe that Shakespeare worked any harder writing his 'Paradise Lost' than I worked, getting up that paper on the Newfoundland fisheries, and when I stood up to read it I felt as though I had accomplished something worth while.

"Well, all the time I was reading that Mrs. Wiggleshaw sat opposite glaring at me in a fishy way and making note in a little book, like a lawyer in court when he's cross-examining the judge or the jury, and it made me so nervous that I felt as though I would fly to pieces. And when I was done and the women were congratulating me Mrs. Wiggleshaw stood up and said that while she was sorry to criticise a paper prepared by a member of the club, she felt it her duty to remark that my article was one tissue of misstatements. 'It is evident,' said that abominable woman, 'that Mrs. Cumback has derived her information from some old, cheap encylopedia that was got up to sell by mercenary publishers. Too many clubwomen depend upon the cheap enciclopedia. We have in our library,' she said, 'a set that cost $100. It comprises twenty volumes, all bound in Russia leather, and beautifully illustrated. The information it gives is up-to-date and reliable, as it is edited by Vice President Sherman and President Hadley and other illustrious men, who would not permit erroneous statements to appear in its pages. I have read up on the Newfoundland fisheries in this splendid work,' she went on, 'and I am sorry to say that Mrs. Cumback's paper is absurd.'

"I am not a woman to be imposed upon, Mrs. Wagstaff, and I stood up and said that I'd rather get my information from an encyclopedia that is paid for than look for facts in a showy, gingerbread set of books bought on the installment plan and the agent coming to the door every week and making a fuss to get his money. Then Mrs. Wiggleshaw said she'd rather owe money on a set of instructive books edited by such men as Vice President Sherman and President Hadley than to be in debt for a rickety, tin-panny piano that kept the whole neighborhood on edge, and I replied that if we did owe a little on our piano we had too much pride to move from one house to another every month or two to avoid paying the rent, and then the president interfered and declared the meeting adjournd. So now, you know what sort of woman Mrs. Wiggleshaw is, and you can't blame me for hating to see her in the next house."

STINGING.

Los Angeles Times: Mrs. Philip Van Volkenberg, in a recent interview, said at Newport:

"Yes, it is true that the witty French press before my marriage called me 'as rich as Croesus, as beautiful as Venus, and as innocent as Dreyfus.'"

She smiled.

"But I paid no attention," she said. "The remark wasn't ill-meant. It hadn't the sting of a remark made the other day here.

"'Is it true,' said one lady to another at the Casino, "that at your dance last night you were the only sober person present?'

"'No; of course not,' was the indignant reply.

"'Who was then?' said the first lady blandly."

Burnquist Is Reluctant to Give Up in Fight for Speakership—Duluth Socialists Expect to Control City Government in Two Years—Chisholm View of the Troubles of Eberhart—Brainerd Meeting Discussed.

Burnquist Tries To Bolster Up Hope

While J. A. A. Burnquist professes to believe that he still has a chance to land the speakership, it becomes more and more apparent that the St. Paul aspirant has more hopes than votes, and that H. H. Dunn of Albert Lea will be named for the place by the Republican house caucus the night before ligeslature goes into session. L. C. Spooner of Morris has ceded Dunn's election; R. C. Dunn of Princeton, after a survey of the field, has said the Albert Lea man has got away with it; and Mr. Dunn hasn't the slightest doubt about it.

Somebody is being a little careless about the truth in this contest, for both Burnquist and Dunn have pledges of votes from the same men, but since the tide is setting so strongly in Dunn's favor it is to be expected that the Dunn pledges will stick and the ones given Burnquist will not.

Burnquist says he has these votes: First district, 4; Seocnd, 3; Third, 2; Fourth, 4; Fifth, 5; Seventh, 10; Eighth, 9; Tenth, 10. These claims are obviously exaggerated. Burnquist hasn't the Eight district, and in the Seventh his strength is much less than he believes it is.

Dunn, by all accounts, has fifty-two votes cinched. That really settles the dispute.

Socialists Plan An Aggressive Campaign.

Within two years the Socialists of Duluth will control the city government, according to the optimistic talk heard at a meeting of that party in Odd Fellows' hall yesterday. The Socialists are officially termed the Public Ownership party. Another feature of the session was the rejection by the party of a suggestion that it go on record as favoring the commission form of government. This rejection was based on the ground that the commission form would destroy party lines and organizations, which the Socialists do not want to see accomplished.

It was decided at yesterday's meeting to make an aggressive fight for city offices in the coming campaign, and incidentally the prediction quoted above was made by the speakers. An organization will be formed with three members from each voting precinct. There will be a meeting for the purpose of perfecting this organization tonight in the office of John A. Keyes.

These are salient features of the Public Ownership platform as adopted yesterday:

"A better grade of gas for consumers and provision for regular inspection of the quality.

"An end to the alleged discrimination in water rates.

"A municipal hospital maintained by the city in which accident cases may be cared for.

"A union scale of wages for employes of the city.

"Abolishment of the contract system for public improvements.

"Change of criminal law securing work instead of jail sentence for minor offenses.

"Establishment of adequate parks and playgrounds and free music. Use of school rooms for meetings of civic nature.

"Establishment of free employment bureau and prohibiting all others.

"Privilege of free speech, press and assembly.

"Compelling corporations to pay the same rate of taxation in every respect as do individuals.

"Early removal of garbage from all properties."

The Normanna Singing society gave several selections and a number of speeches were made.

Governor Eberhart and his Delivery System.

Chisholm Tribune-Herald: After some of his recent experiences Governor Eberhart no doubt regrets that he is not still driving a grocery wagon in Duluth instead of trying to please the politicians of the Zenith City. He has been bombarded with trouble above and below and amidships. It seems his secretary, Mr. Wheelock, at a certain pink tea, conveyed the office of surveyor general of logs and lumber in fee simple to Mille Bunnell, of the Duluth News Tribune, who will put it in the Christmas stocking of one of his faithful employes. So far so good. But after election Commander Eaton, of the good ship Gopher, came forward and laid his claims before the governor. He managed the campaign for the governor in this county and took the mud baths at West Baden with him after election. Such a business. On one side was the power of the press, on the other a United States battleship. The governor felt something must be done to keep the ship of state afloat in this neck of the woods, so he reached into the hold and threw out the oil inspectorship to Commander Eaton. Oil on the troubled water,s as it were. Did the governor's trouble here cease? Well, not that any one with eyes and ears could notice at Brainerd. One Otto Gafvert, now employed in the department of internal revenue, has nursed a desire to act as the titular head of the dairy and food department. His home is in Duluth, where he claims to have brought many wandering sheep back into the Republican fold, and he claims to have had substantial assurances of support in the above mentioned ambition among the Duluth politicians who are said to be close to the gubernatorial confidence. The governor felt he had already sufficiently atoned for his measly majority in St. Louis county and started a fine line of conciliatory talk to the petulant Otto at the Brainerd meeting. But Otto was in no mood to listen. He went back to the hotel and contributed to the harmony (?) meeting of the Duluth delegates.

Bob Dunn On the Brainerd Meeting.

The Brainerd meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association continues to afford subjects for editorial comment in the state press, most of it laudatory of the results achieved by the meeting or in praise of the hospitality of Brainerd. Many of the editors of the state have been more or less facetious in commenting on the circumstance of "Pussyfoot" Johnson's refraining from putting the lid on Brainerd on the eve of the governor's coming to that place, but among the serious considerations of the Brainerd meeting the following, by R. C. Dunn in the Princeton Union, is a notable one:

> The meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association at Brainerd last Thursday and Friday was highly satisfactory. The attendance was large and representative. Able addresses were delivered and much valuable information was imparted. While many politicians were present, politics were not obtruded into the proceedings of the convention. Irrespective of party affiliations the people of Northern Minnesota are united in demanding what is guaranteed them by the Constitution of the state—the representation they are entitled to in the legislature. On this question there was no diversity of opinion. There was no bluster or braggadocio indulged in, but it was apparent to the most casual observer that Northern Minnesota, as represented in the convention, was terribly in earnest and will insist upon what it is justly entitled to and what the state Constitution guarantees it.
> The citizens of Brainerd were lavish in their hospitality and the arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the guests were most complete. The Brainerd people are certainly royal entertainers.

Quoting the Elk River Star-News' "dictatorial belligerency" paragraph, Mr. Dunn says:

> There has been no "dictatorial belligerency" evinced at any of the meetings of the Northern Minnesota Development association. On the contrary a spirit of conservatism seemed to pervade all the gatherings. An equitable apportionment of senators and representatives, based on population, is something that is guaranteed to every section of the state by the Constitution, and surely there is nothing dictatorial in Northern Minnesota demanding that our legislators comply with the requirements of the fundamental law of the state.

Which would seem to dispose of that proposition.

The Pine City Courier says:

> The meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association at Brainerd last week was a hummer. Backed by the census returns, which shows a great increase in the northern counties and a decided decrease in the southern counties, and backed by the governor, it seems impossible that reapportionment can be defeated at the next session of the legislature. If it is defeated, very little other legislation can be enacted. The officers of the Northern Minnesota Development association deserve a great deal of credit for the great work they have accomplished.

No fairer presentation of the reapportionment issue could be found in the press of the southern part of the state than this, from Sam A. Langum's paper, the Preston Times:

> Southern Minnesota is destined to surrender the advantage it has enjoyed over the balance of the state during the last decade in the way of undue representation in the legislature. By this we mean a representation out of all proportion to our population as compared with the large and growing cities and the newer portions of the state which have increased greatly during the past few years while we have remained at a standstill so far as population is concerned. We may be pardoned for giving up our advantage somewhat reluctantly, nor can we blame our neighbors to the North for making insistent demands on that which is theirs by right. There can be no further excuse for delay, and that we must lose in the new deal is simply our misfortune. The Times hopes that our members will join hands with those from the North and pass a reapportionment bill, based on fairness to all sections of the state, indeed there seems to be no other way, as Governor Eberhart has already signified his intention of calling an extra session for this special purpose if the legislature fails to do its plain duty.

Otter Tail Progressives Are Organized.

The growth of the Minnesota Republican Progressive league is one of the most interesting sequels of the election. After the victory of Governor Eberhart and the defeat of all the insurgent candidates for congress, except in the cases of Davis and Lindbergh, it is more or less surprising that men who supported the winners are going into a progressive movement. It may be a pennance, though., Last week the Republicans of Otter Tail county organized a progressive league and elected these officers:

President, Carl D. Haugen, Pelican Rapids.

Vice president at large, C. J. Wright, Fergus Falls.

Vice president, first commissioner district, Felix Nylund.

Second, Peter Klovstad, Norwegian Grove.

Third, E. D. Evenson, Clitherall.

Fourth, A. D. Anderson, Deer Creek.

Fifth, Knute Bjorka, Aastad.

Secretary, N. T. Moen.

Treasurer, Joseph P. Brendal, Dalton.

The league starts with a membership of forty.

Addresses were delivered by Dr. O. M. Haugen, Dr. A. B. Cole and T. C. Wollan and the following were elected delegates to a state convention in St. Paul: J. H. Grass, D. M. Brown, T. C. Wollan, B. N. Johnson, A. B. Cole, N. T. Moen, O. M. Haugen, A. G. Anderson, J. T. Johnson, M. W. Odland, C. N. Haugen, O. P. B. Jacobson, and C. R. Wright, of Fergus Falls, Peter Klovstad of Norwegian Grove, Dr. Jones of Red Lake, Knute Bjorka of Aastad, C. L. Alexander of Pelican Rapids, R. J. Lindberg of Henning, H. A. Putnam of Amor, Alex. Nelson of Perham, R. S. Myers of Parkers Prairie, C. F. Franz of Richville, G. F. Freeman of Woodside.

Feigler admitted that he quarreled with the Bernhards at their home last Wednesday. He said he went there to notify George Bernhard and his friends must stop hunting on his farm. George resented his statements, Feigler said, and a quarrel followed. Feigler said that Mrs. Bernhard came out of the house and entered into the controversy.

Insists He Is Innocent.

Feigler insisted that he was innocent.

A coroner's jury was empanelled at Olanthe, Kan., this morning and an inquest will be held Wednesday.

The funeral of the four victims of the murder will be held at the Bernhard farm tomorrow. No relatives of James Graves have been located.

All four victims of the murder had been beaten on the head, and a weight from an old-time clock was found covered with blood, near the bodies of the three men, which lay in a barn. The woman's body was found in a closet in the house, and there were indications that she had been wounded and had run to the closet to hide and died there.

The Bernhard farm is rather an isolated place, and the members of the household never fraternized with those living nearest to them.

In the search of the place by the officers a will was found in which Mrs. Bernhard gave the farm and all her other property to her son, George, who was murdered, cutting off her other children entirely.

Wireless Operator Hero.

Cable dispatches from Cordova indicate that Wireless Operator Hayes is the hero of the wreck.

The wireless was worked with difficulty, but Hayes stuck to his post and managed to reach the operator on duty at the naval wireless station at Cordova with his call for assistance.

Hayes finally succeeded in getting his instrument to work long enough to flash the good news to the shore station, forty miles away, that all were still on board the Olympia and hopeful that she would hold together until the rescuers arrived.

Their Second Wreck.

For seven of the fifty-two passengers of the Olympia this is the second shipwreck experience within ten days. They first sailed from Seattle Dec. 1 on the steamship Northwestern, which, when a few hours out of port, went on the rocks on False bay, San Juan island.

knew the Glover family and Hattie more or less intimately were on the witness stand. Their testimony tended to show that Glover was persistent in his attentions to women, that his wife became so angry on many occasions that she was heard to say that she would like to kill him, more than once, and that she applied indecent epithets to her husband.

Thomas J. Coffey, formerly a clerk in a Boston sporting goods house, who sold the revolver that was used in the shooting, said that a woman bought it, but when Hattie Le Blanc was led past him, he said she was not the woman.

When cross-examined by District Attorney Higgins, Coffey said that he attended the Glover will hearing and looked at a woman who was pointed out to him as Mrs. Lillian Glover. He could not identify her as the person to whom he sold the revolver, inasmuch as she was veiled at that time.

Too Much For Women.

The court then heard such salacious testimony that the women in the courtroom, and there were many, covered their faces, but few left their seats. J. Harold Gardner, who was employed in Glover's laundry for seven years, gave the unprintable words when he testified about conversations he had with Mrs. Glover before her husband's death.

Gardner told of indecent names that Mrs. Glover applied to her husband when speaking of him to the witness and he said that Mrs. Glover told him that Glover was keeping company with other women.

On one occasion Mrs. Glover, pointing to Hattie, who stood nearby, said: "There is a girl that will fix him."

Mr. Higgins cross-examined Gardner, who denied ever having done anything wrong with Hattie. Asked if Mrs. Glover had a bad reputation, he said he did not know. He added that "she had a terribly foul mouth, and called everyone by its right name."

Would Not Quote Widow.

Another witness, Mrs. Alma M. Rocho of Somerville, who was employed at the Glover home about eight years ago, was asked if she ever heard Mrs. Glover say anything about her husband. She said that she did not care to repeat it, as it was very vulgar. Witness said that once she heard Mrs. Glover say that she would kill her husband.

TOUR OF WORLD AT THE LYCEUM

Howe's "Travel Festival" Opens an Engagement of Two Nights.

Clear, faithful and spectacular as ever, Lyman H. Howe's moving pictures are at the Lyceum for a two days' engagement, which opened yesterday. The two Sunday audiences saw a wealth of new films that furnish good entertainment. Not alone for the entertainment, but for the instruction as well, the films are worth seeing and one is especially impressed with the enterprise necessary to obtain the views of the scenes shown.

The feature film is of the funeral of King Edward VII of England. Views were taken at twenty different points and they are exceptionally good in clearness of detail. The different English military bodies are shown and a most interesting feature of the film is the view of distinguished people at the funeral, Former President Theodore Roosevelt being among the number.

Views of the jubilee of all Japan, Paris from the Eiffel tower, scenes from Norway and the antics of animals in the zoo at Antwerp are interesting and instructive, while the views of the eruption of Mt. Etna are thrilling and wonderful. Some of the scenes must have been taken from the banks of rivers of lava and are testimonials to the enterprise and daring of the operators who obtained them.

"Symphonies of the Sea," is a wonderful film, varying quiet, sunset scenes with storm views that show the sea at the height of its fury.

Among the instructive pictures are a number of posed pictures shown for amusement only. Among them are, "First Attempt at Roller Skating," "Uncontrollable Motor Cyclist," "The Elusive Prisoner," and "Infectious Music."

The entertainment will be repeated this evening and Mr. Howe will return to Duluth in March with a new set of films.

VARIETY IN THE ORPHEUM BILL

Snappy Musical Comedy and Real Fainting Spell, Feature Opening Performances.

If variety constitutes a good vaudevill bill, the Orpheum program this week should approach perfection.

A musical comedy, a dramatic sketch, an acrobatic act, a juggling act, a first-class musical turn, a lively dancing act and an amusing little song and dance sketch make up the bill.

They are all bright, lively, clean and entertaining, and the person who cannot find something to amuse on this week's bill would indeed be difficult to please.

The "Top of the World Dancers," with the collie ballet from the musical comedy of the same name, is the headline feature, and a bigger and better act rarely gets into vaudeville. Practically all of the best features of the show which was seen here last year have been retained and are presented by a company of seventeen people, including Walter Burke as Jack-in-the-Box, Ali as the Peppermint Kid, Harry Hewitt as the polar bear and Miss Vivian Ford as the Doll Princess. The amusing pantomime of the three men, and the very clever dancing of Miss Ford make the act a thoroughly enjoyable hit of musical comedy. It has been given an adequate and effective setting, and is far superior to the average musical act of this type seen in vaudeville, both in size and quality. The act is called "Kris Kringle's Dream," and is especially timely at this season of the year.

During the afternoon performance, Mlle. Renee, the English musician, fell in a dead faint in the arms of the stage manager after staggering from the stage in the middle of her act, and she was unable to appear at the evening performance. Mlle. Renee has been ill for the last week, but insisted that she was able to go on in the afternoon performance. She went through part of her act with difficulty, but when she came to the cornet solo, suddenly clapped her hand to her head and staggered into the wings, where she fainted and had to be taken to her room. A physican was summoned, and it was found that her illness was not serious, although she was unable to appear last night. The other acts were lengthened last evening and the show was of the usual length, or a trifle longer, if anything. It was stated this morning that Mlle. Renee was much improved and would be able to continue her engagement.

A vest pocket edition of Bert Williams, the famous colored comedian, is the best part of the Harvey-De Vora trio, who have a good, lively song and dance turn. The name of the little colored comedian is John Dough, and he was probably the hit of the show yesterday. The other two members of the act are Miss De Vora, a clever toe dancer, and Bert Harvey, a clever acrobatic dancer. Their act has plenty of vim and go and scored heavily.

A rare little sketch called "Sweethearts" is presented by Mr. and Mrs Irwin Connelly. The sketch was written by Sir W. S. Gilbert, of comic opera fame, and it is of a type rarely seen in vaudeville. It is given a most artistic setting by Mr. and Mrs. Connelly, and it has real merit to command it. It was given a most appreciative hearing, even by the Sunday audience, which usually calls for comedy and plenty of it.

George McKay and John Cantwell got rid of a lot of slang and comedy dialogue, and introduced several songs and some very good dancing, in a sketch they call "On The Great White Way." The first part of the sketch takes a shot at the grafting methods of the New York police, in a rather amusing manner, and in the last part Mr. McKay appears as a "souse." The act is of a rather ordinary type, but it draws a good share of laughs, and the humor is clean.

There is a tall, slim, supple young chap on this week's bill, who probably attracts more attention and creates more applause than any other one person on the bill. He appears in the act of the Reed Brothers, gymnasts, and lifts that act from the level of being merely a first-class gymnastic act, to a genuine hit. The Reed Brothers are more than ordinarily good acrobats, but an acrobatic act, no matter how difficult the feats may be, is generally passed by with perfunctory notice. This slender chap, however, has such an original method that he commands attention, and the entire act is a most unusual one, and one of the best features of the bill. His comedy contortions cannot be described.

Savo, a juggler, opens the bill. He juggles many small articles, and makes a feature of balancing heavy objects on his chin. The act is of an ordinary type, but passes very well as an opening number.

The bill will continue all week with a daily matinee.

ANOTHER GOOD BILL AT EMPRESS

New Vaudeville Program Pleases Three Large Sunday Audiences.

For a bright, snappy, vaudeville performance the bill at the Empress (formerly the Bijou), this week is more than up to the high standard set at this theater during the past few weeks.

The program is all good. There are difficult athletic stunts, song and dance acts, two enjoyable playlets, some piano patter, two real comedians and some entertaining moving pictures.

Three large Sunday audiences enjoyed the bill yesterday and if their applause was any sign of their approval, the Maitland house of mirth will be mighty popular during the rest of the week.

"A Jay Circus" seemed to be the big hit of the bill although there were several numbers that ran it a close second. Dan Sherman and William Andrus as the two jays turned a great deal of comedy loose on the audience in the few minutes that it takes to put on their act. It is the kind of comedy that gets to a vaudeville audience instantly and there was only one criticism of the act—it is far too short.

The Bento Brothers are "physical culturists," it is announced on the program but it would be better to call them real athletes for that is what they are. They do all kinds of stunts that are as unusual as they are difficult. The climax of the act comes when one brother carries the other up and down a number of steps on his head. This head to head act is a difficult feat of balancing well done and for it the brothers received their share of applause.

Miss Odom and Mr. Caine sing several refreshing parodies on popular songs. Some of them were both funny and clever. The two performers were forced to respond to several encores.

Hope Booth and Company have a playlet, "The Little Blond Lady." Miss Booth and George M. Cohan are the authors. The play deals with a stenographer who turns out to be the author of a play. A dramatic editor was about to "roast" the attempt when she enters his employ and secures a favorable comment. It is one of the cleverest one-act plays seen in Duluth for some time.

Miss Vera Hall and Edward Raymond have a clever dancing act. Miss Hall made a great hit with yesterday's audiences for she introduces a new system of dancing that has never before been seen here. Mr. Raymond also gets away with his end in good shape.

The entertainment ends with the usual moving pictures which are this week, as usual, very entertaining.

The printed programs at the theater appear in a brand new dress with the new name on the cover. It is an artistic piece of work and the design was made by Frank Hamm.

"Baby Mine."

In the past America has looked to the continental farce writers for material in that branch of stage entertainment, but the overwhelming success that has attended the production of Margaret Mayo's hilarious farce by William A. Brady, Ltd., would tend to prove that America can produce her own bright quips and merry lines without foreign assistance.

The basic idea of the farce was suggested by a newspaper article which told of the adoption of children by mothers in order to delude their unsuspecting husbands. In "Baby Mine" it is a stout friend who seeks to help a childless mother to win back her husband, and the means they devise compel the stout friend to steal a child from a foundling's home, and later cause him to borrow a pair of babies from an unwilling laundress. The difficulties of Jimmy Jinks are many and they cause the beholders of "Baby Mine" to forget every trouble in their laughter at his expense. The situations are very deftly handled by Miss Margaret Mayo, who showed what she could do with farces when she made the adaptation of "Divorcons" that Grace George used some seasons ago.

The universal opinion of those who see "Baby Mine" re-echoes the remark made by the New York Herald reviewer when he said, "If Margaret Mayo never writes anything more amusing, she deserves a medal for this."

"Baby Mine" will hold the boards at the Lyceum for four nights and two matinees—Saturday and Sunday next, commencing Thursday, Dec. 15.

MARINE

STEAMER TO RUN TO CHICAGO

Chicago & Duluth Transportation Company May Purchase St. Ignace.

The Chicago & Duluth Transportation company probably will purchase the passenger and freight steamer St. Ignace and institute a regular passenger service between the Head of the Lakes and Chicago. The St. Ignace has a passenger capacity of 475 and carries 900 tons of freight. She is a sidewheeler.

The Chicago & Duluth Transportation company and the Soo Line will have a rate arrangement whereby people may take the lake trip one way and the rail trip the other.

The passenger steamer will make stops at Milwaukee, Mackinaw, Sault Ste. Marie and Portage Lake.

The St. Ignace is a 17-mile boat. She will leave Chicago every Saturday, arriving in Duluth Tuesday morning, and leave at midnight of that day, arriving in Chicago Friday afternoon.

PLANT READY BY NEXT SPRING

American Shipbuilding Company Takes Advantage of Canadian Tariff.

By a bold business stroke the American Shipbuilding company has turned the Canadian tariff handicap into an advantage. After an investment of about $1,000,000 at Port Arthur, Ont., the company's new plant there is rapidly nearing completion. The 25 per cent tax imposed by the Dominion government in 1908 on repairs to Canadian vessels done in the United States, which caused the company considerable loss of business, will now be a source of protection for it against American rivals.

W. L. Brown of Chicago, chairman of the board of the American Shipbuilding company, who recently returned from Port Arthur, is confident of the outlook for business there.

"The Port Arthur works are being built by the Western Dry Dock & Shipbuilding company is the controlling factor," he said in an interview published in Chicago. "The 700-foot concrete dry dock just completed is the largest on the lakes. There are now under erection there, and practically completed, a punch shop, molding shop and machine shop; work has been begun on a power plan, and by early spring we shall be equipped for building new ships. We expect to build small barges there this winter.

"So, in a few months, we shall have a modern, fully equipped shipyard at Port Arthur, with ability to build complete any vessel needed on the Great Lakes, and at a point where we have every reason to believe the future of the industry is good.

"The twin towns of Port Arthur and Port William are ports for enormous grain shipments coming out of the Northwest. When I was there, 500 or 600 cars of grain were arriving daily—practically all of which was transferred to boats. Moreover, these ports are getting to be a very large distributing point for incoming coal shipments."

DOCKS ARE CLEANED BY THE RAILROADS.

Duluth railroads have cleaned up about all the merchandise that was left on the docks at the close of navigation. Practically the last of the merchandise that come up the lakes on the last trip has been loaded and shipped. There is a large amount of storage freight on the docks at the present time, and the merchandise to be moved has been cleaned up at a period earlier than last season.

NAVIGATION CLOSES IN DETROIT RIVER.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 12.—When the steamer Squire, bound for Buffalo, passed down yesterday navigation in the Detroit river ended for the season of 1910. When the Squire reached Ballard's reef in Lake Erie, late in the afternoon, she ran aground in a blinding snow storm and it required the assistance of three tugs to release her. It was not thought that she would encounter more difficulty in crossing the lake.

The season of 1910 was the best in the local office record.

ASTRAKHAN LAMBS.

Illustrated London News: From Bokhara some million and a half astrakhan skins are sent each year to Europe and America. The lambs whose skins are known as astrakhan are specially bred for the purpose, and some flocks contain as many as 5,000 heads. The skins are roughly dressed before being exported. Experiments have been made in the breeding of lambs for astrakhan in various parts of Asia and Europe, but it is claimed that Bakhara alone provide the best lambs for the purpose.

BONCI IS MORE POPULAR THAN EVER

A. BONCI.

An enormous audience greeted Bonci this week when the noted Italian tenor gave his first production in New York. This suggests that the Metropolitan Opera company has made a mistake in letting Bonci go. The only tenor in the Metropolitan company, who can draw a big audience is Caruso. The Metropolitan company may find its release of Bonci still more serious if he carries out his plans to build a new opera house for English opera in New York. Since the opening of the opera season, it has been shown that one opera company was not enough to satisfy musical New York. But when Hammerstein was running his Manhattan opera house the Metropolitan company, which is under enormous expense, lost, it is said, $800,000 in a season.

SAVES UNCLE SAM MONEY

Postoffice Department Is Cutting Down Deficit, Hitchcock Says.

Several Changes Proposed in Postmaster General's Report.

Washington, Dec. 12.—In the space of twelve months a reduction has been made in the deficit of the postoffice department of $11,500,000, according to the annual report of Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock.

While a year ago the fiscal records of the postal service disclosed a deficit of $17,500,000, the largest in the history of the country, the excess of expenditures over receipts for the year ended June 30 last amounted to only $5,848,566. In commenting upon this reduction Postmaster General Hitchcock says in his report:

"No Cutting of Facilities."

"It is most gratifying to report that this unprecedented reduction has been made without any curtailment of postal facilities. On the contrary, the service has been largely extended.

"The policy of the present administration has been to wipe out losses by increasing the postal business along profitable lines, and while thus enlarging one department's income to reduce as far as possible the rate of expenditure by cutting out wasteful processes, by simplifying and rendering more effective the methods of handling postal business, and by raising to the highest possible standard the efficiency of officers and employes."

Extending the Service.

The department's policy is to extend the service as rapidly as is warranted by increasing population. In furtherance of this policy 1,500 new postoffices were established during the last year, and 515 new rural delivery routes, traversing altogether 12,235 miles, were instituted. Nearly 3,600 new employes of various classes were added whose aggregate salaries were more than $2,000,000 annually. Besides this $1,750,000 was added to salaries of postoffice clerks, $1,226,000 to the salaries of letter carriers, and $250,000 to the salaries of railway mail clerks, all based upon efficiency ratings.

Second Class Mail.

In the discussion of second-class mail, Postmaster General Hitchcock points out the constant growth of this class of matter. It is carried at a loss, and he urges that a remedy should be promptly applied by charging more postage.

"In levying the higher rate," the report suggests, "it is believed that a distinction should be made between advertising matter and what is termed legitimate reading matter.

"Under present conditions an increase in the postage on reading matter is not recommended. Such an increase would place a special burden on a large number of second-class publications, including educational and religious periodicals, that derive little or no profit from advertising. It is the circulation of this type of publications, which aid so effectively in the educational and moral advancement of the people, that the government can best afford to encourage. For these publications, and also for any other legitimate reading matter in periodical form, the department favors a continuation of the present low postage rate of 1 cent a pound, and recommends that the proposed increase in rate be applied only to magazine advertising matter.

Make Magazines Pay.

"In view of the vanishing postal deficit it is believed that if the magazines could be required to pay what it costs the government to carry their advertising pages, the department's revenues would soon grow large enough to warrant 1-cent postage on first-class mail.

"Newspapers are not included in the plan for a higher rate on advertising matter, because, being chiefly of local distribution, they do not employ the mails to any such extent as the widely circulating magazines."

While the loss resulting from the low postage rate on second-class mail is the greatest in the postal service, the loss on rural delivery service is very considerable. The appropriations annually granted to maintain the rural delivery system, however, as pointed out in the report, are expended in the interest of a vast population.

Mr. Hitchcock urges the wisdom of further extension of this system, even at a considerable loss to the government. He points out, also, the business wisdom of the consolidation during the last year of the star route and rural delivery system, the consolidation having been the means of effecting a large saving and of increasing the efficiency of the service.

Postal Savings Banks.

Mr. Hitchcock reviews the work already accomplished looking to the establishment of postal savings banks. A trial of the new system will be made, beginning Jan. 1, 1911, at one postoffice in each state and territory of the Union. It is expected that the system will be extended to many other offices before the end of the current fiscal year.

A renewal of the previous recommendation for a limited parcel post service on rural routes is made. Mr. Hitchcock expresses the hope that congress will authorize the delivery on rural routes of parcels weighing as high as eleven pounds. This scheme can be put into operation with little if any expense to the government.

Wants Postal Notes.

A recommendation is made that congressional authority be given the department for the issuance of postal notes in amounts not exceeding $10, at a lower fee than is charged for money orders.

Mr. Hitchcock believes that many abuses of the franking system could be prevented, with marked economy, by supplying special official envelopes and stamps for the free mail of the government so that it would be possible to determine definitely the cost of carrying free mail for all executive departments and for the congress.

During the last few months the principal officers of thirty-four corporations and firms have been placed under arrest for swindling the public by fraudulent use of the mails.

Keep Politics Out.

Mr. Hitchcock strongly urges that the entire postal service be taken out of politics. He says that presidential postmasters of all grades from the first-class to the third-class should be placed in the classified service.

A general extension of the civil service rules to fourth-class postmasters is recommended, although some disadvantages have developed in the application to postmasters of that class.

Thirty-Day Vacations.

In conclusion, Postmaster General Hitchcock expresses the hope that congress will see its way clear to grant an annual leave of absence of thirty days to postoffice clerks, city letter carriers, and to railway postal clerks who are required to work six days or more a week throughout the year.

FIRE DESTROYS NOTED HOSTELRY

Brunswick Hotel in Minneapolis Burned Rapidly Early Sunday Morning.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A mass of charred and splintered wreckage today marks the spot where stood for years the Hotel Brunswick, corner of Fourth and Hennepin, which was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. Heroic work by the firemen prevented a heavy death toll, the 150 guests and employes probably all being warned and hustled to the street, although it is reported one perished.

The fire, which spread with lightning rapidity after it started, originated from some mysterious cause under the Brunswick cafe, on the Hennepin avenue side, rushed through the building like a whirlwind, broke through the roof and put the firemen on the defensive from the start.

Firemen Save Lives.

Ten minutes after the fire started, the firemen had to give their attention to saving surrounding property and rescuing the frightened guests. The corridors soon filled with smoke, making escape difficult, and it was only by using the greatest presence of mind that rescuing parties found their way to the street after they had once entered on the work of rescue.

The damage to the Brunswkick is estimated at $75,000. Tenants of the building suffered total losses. The tenants and their estimated losses are as follows: Oscar E. Amundson, florist, 409 Hennepin avenue, $1,000; R. L. Harrington, haberdasher, 407 Hennepin, $20,000; Brunswick cafe, 411 Henepin, $1,000; Arthur J. Hill, cigars, Hennepin and Fourth streets, $3,000; Elliott Fuel company, 9 Fourth street south, $500; P. Psyhoyis, shoe shining parlor, 7½ Fourth street, $300; Brunswick bar, $5,000; Brunswick poolroom, $3,000. The losses are said to be covered by insurance.

Until the names of all the guests and employes of the hotel can be checked from the register and payroll, the death toll or absence of such cannot be positively ascertained, until the ruins are thoroughly searched.

WANT MORE WATER FOR THE SOO CANAL.

Washington, Dec. 12.—A delegation from Michigan, headed by Senator Smith and Representative Townsend, conferred with Secretary of War Dickinson, requesting an increase in the amount of water authorized to be diverted from Lake Superior into the Sault Ste. Marie canal. It is not permitted to divert water from the lake when that body has reached a specified level. The delegation asked that this restriction be modified. The matter has bee ntaken under advisement by the secretary, and will be referred to Gen. Bixby, chief of engineers, who was also present at the conference today.

DRIVEN OUT BY FLAMES

Two Sick People Carried From Rooms Over Grocery Store.

Early Morning Fire Damages Lundmark & Franson Building.

Fire, supposed to have been started by mice nibbling among a quantity of matches stored on a high shelf, broke out in the large grocery store of Lundmark & Franson, Tenth avenue east and Second street, shortly after 4 o'clock this morning.

The damage to the building and stock is estimated at $10,000 to $12,000, fully covered by insurance. The firm carried $25,000 insurance on the building and $20,000 on the stock.

Four families living in the flats upstairs were driven into the freezing atmosphere. Some of the residents had narrow escapes from suffocation, the smoke being very thick. Two daughters of W. W. Nott, a railway conductor, who were ill with scarlet fever, had to be carried from the building. They were taken care of by neighbors, as were the others who had to make their escape in scanty attire.

The blaze started in the store room, and worked its way upthrough the ceiling. The probability is that it was caused by mice, but is thought possible that crossed electric wires may have been responsible.

Shortly after all had made their escape, the upper floor was badly shaken by a heavy explosion, which blew out all the windows and the sash, in some instances. One heavy sash narrowly missed striking the head of Chief Joseph Randall. It fell at his feet. Others were also fortunate, no one being injured.

Some difficulty was experienced by the department in handling the water, as it froze rapidly, the thermometer being down below zero. The damage would have been heavier had it not been for the efficient work of the salvage corps, which succeeded in saving much of the stock by covering it before it was damaged by the water.

TWO YEARS IN PRISON

"Furniture Movers" Sentenced By Judge Dibell in District Court.

Admitted Stealing Household Furniture From Store of F. S. Kelly Company.

Judge Dibell of the district court this morning sentenced Sylvester F. Brenic and Peter Walmsley to two years each at hard labor at the Minnesota state prison at Stillwater. The men pleaded guilty to an indictment charging them with grand larceny in the second degree.

They are the men who were some time ago caught moving a part of the F. S. Kelly Furniture company's stock away. They had been taking things for some time, it is said. The goods taken were all household furniture.

When first arraigned the men entered pleas of not guilty but they were changed to guilty when they stood before the court this morning.

John and William Kubicki were indicted for grand larceny in the second degree with Brenic and Walmsley, but it is expected that they will maintain their pleas of not guilty and demand a trial.

Joe Schultz, who pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with assault, got off with a suspended sentence.

OBITUARY

Edward Van Wyck Rossiter, vice president of the New York Central lines, died at his home in Flushing, L. I., Sunday morning, of a complication of diseases, after an illness of some months. His life had been despaired of for several days and his wife and family were at the bedside.

James T. Hurst, a well known lumberman and politician, is dead at his home in Wyandotte, Mich. He was 67 years old.

Henry Guy Carleton, author and dramatist, died at Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 10, of paralysis after an illness extending over several years. Mr. Carleton went to Hot Springs a few years ago suffering from rheumatism. For a time it was thought his health would be restored. He relapsed, however, and for several months it was known that his condition was hopeless.

During the interval when it was thought he was improving, Mr. Carleton planned to write a play. He described his ideas of his daughter, who has been his constant attendant, but the work was not completed.

Judge James Madison Pereles, aged 58 years, died in Milwaukee, Dec. 11, after a lingering illness. He was well known throughout Wisconsin in educational circles and was a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity. He served as probate judge of Milwaukee county for a number of years.

Rev. Thomas S. Fitzgerald, former provincial of the Missouri province of the Jesuits, is dead at Florissant, Mo., where he had gone for his health. He was at the head of the church of the Jesuits in Milwaukee, Wis.

Amelie Folsom Young, a widow of the famous prophet and leader, Brigham Young, died at her home in Salt Lake City, Utah, Dec. 11. She was 72 years old and her death was caused by paralysis.

Mrs. Young played an important part in the early history of Utah, and it was for her that Brigham Young built a church known as Amelia's palace, one of the show places of Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Young was born in Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 23, 1838, her father being William H. Folsom, who had joined the Mormon church and who became prominent in its affairs.

MARSHALL ATTENDS MEETING OF MANAGERS.

C. A. Marshall, manager of the Lyceum theater, is in the Twin Cities at the present time, where he is attending a meeting of theatrical managers, called for the purpose of coming to an agreement that would result in better booking for the theaters of the Northwest.

In addition to Mr. Marshall, representing the Copper and Iron circuit; John Cort, of the Cort theaters; John Considine of the Sullivan & Considine circuit; C. P. Walker of Winnipeg, of the Red River circuit, and others were present. In all more than 2,000 theaters were represented at the gathering.

It is expected that the meeting will result in more plays coming to the Lyceum, as well as resulting in more direct and less complicated booking arrangements.

A STEADY JOB.

Chicago Record-Herald: So many witnesses had queered his clients' cases by swearing that the shots they had heard in a shooting affair were only thirty seconds apart, that when pressed to tell what they were doing when each report was heard, naming actions so dissimilar that it must have taken at least ten minutes to switch from one to the other, the criminal lawyer swore that he would maintain consistency above all things in his latest case. Gustave, the Swedish janitor, had heard two shots fired at the injured man, and the lawyer impressed upon him the importance of swearing that he was engaged in the same task at each shot.

In the course of the trial it was brought out that the shots had been fired a month apart, the first being merely a little target practice that did not harm, the second inflicting a serious wound. But there was no time to coach Gustave anew. Said the lawyer:

"What were you doing when the first shot was fired?"

"I was sitting in the kitchen gnawing a chicken bone," said Gustave.

"And what were you doing when the second shot was fired? Be careful how you answer."

And Gustave was careful.

"I was sitting in the kitchen," said he, "gnawing that same chicken bone."

AN APPLE PIE FEAST.

London Standard: A quaint ceremony, known as apple pie feast, has just been observed at Branscombe. Owners of orchards provided that the apples, and funds are collected for the making of the pies. Every one is welcome to eat of them on handing in his plate. The actual consumption takes place in the village square, the pies being brought from a local bakehouse in a decorated pony cart and placed on tables, from which they are served out to the crowd. The late vicar and his wife always had the first helping, and "for old times sake" the first was this year taken by proxy for his aged widow.

OIL ON TROUBLED WATERS.

Shop Notes Quarterly: Experiments made with various kinds of oil used with soapsuds have demonstrated that soap water is theoretically the best agent for preventing the growth of waves because it spreads more rapidly and brings about a greater reduction of the surface tension.

In practice, however, turpentine is generally preferred by seamen because it weighs less and does not mix with the water. In fact turpentine is considered superior to all other oils.

Next in order of merit are sperm oil, rapeseed oil, linseed oil, benzoin, ricinous oil, oil of almond, oil of olives and petroleum. Thick and heavy oils are the best and animal or vegetable oils are better than those derived from minerals.

Raw petroleum is much to be preferred to the refined article. Cocoanut oil and some kinds of fish oil congeal in cold weather and are then useless unless mixed with mineral oils.

Five Dollars a Box

The Price Cut No Figure With Him.

"I want to say for the benefit of some poor dyspeptic that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will give comfort and a cure every time. Five dollars a box would not stop my purchasing them should I ever suffer again as I did for a week before using them.

"The one 50-cent box I bought at my druggist's did the work and my digestion is all right again.

"Many of my neighbors have also tried these tablets and found them to be just as represented and Mr. Ellms also wants me to use his name in indorsing Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Signed

A. Ellms and Chas. F. Buzzell,
Asst. Postmaster,
South Sudbury, Mass.

Mrs. Jas. Barton of Toronto, Canada, writes: "For eighteen months I suffered from what I supposed was bladder and kidney trouble, and took medicine from three different doctors, without any sign of cure. I felt so ill at last I was hardly able to do my work.

"I thought I would try a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and see if they would make me feel better, never really thinking I had dyspepsia, but after only three or four tablets had been taken all the acid trouble disappeared and then I discovered I had had acid dyspepsia, while the doctors had been treating me for kidney and bladder trouble and one of them treated me for rheumatism.

"My digestion is fine, my complexion clear and I am able to do my work and low spirits are unknown to me.

"I am thankful for finding a cure so good and so pleasant to take as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I am surprised at the change they have made in me."

All druggists sell and recommend Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they contain only the simple natural digestives, and taken after meals prevent acidity and cause prompt digestion and assimilation of food.

Physicians everywhere indorse them because they are as safe for the child as for the adult; they are invaluable for sour stomach, nervous dyspepsia, heartburn, gas on stomach and bowels and every form of stomach derangement.

YEAR'S WAR UPON FRAUD

Story Is Told in Report of Attorney General Wickersham.

He Would Reduce Penalty for Selling Liquor to Indians.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The annual report of Attorney General Wickersham, presented to congress today, is one long story of frauds against the government.

Trusts, so called and real; their alleged conspiracies to defeat the law; land frauds; customs frauds; frauds on the internal revenue; rebates; bucket shops, and fraudulent uses of the mails have made 1910 the most strenuous year in the history of the department of justice. Mr. Wickersham states that only the earnest and enthusiastic work of the men of his force has made the work successful.

Sale of Liquor to Indians.

Among his recommendations is one that "the act providing punishment for the sale of liquor to Indians should be amended by reducing the maximum penalty to imprisonment for one year. The result of this would be that such offenses could be prosecuted by information instead of by indictment. Practically no larger penalty is ever exacted, and it is very rare that even as much as ninety days' imprisonment is imposed.

"Under the present law, an indictment being required, there is an expense incident to every prosecution amounting to about one hundred dollars per case, besides the delay incident to submission to the grand jury."

Prosecutions for violations of the anti-trust law were foremost in the work of the year. Actions, says the attorney general, are now under way or pending against the following so-called trusts: Tobacco trust, Standard Oil company, Sugar trust, Harriman lines, Hard Coal trust, Powder trust, Terminal Railway Association of St. Louis, Towing trust on the Great Lakes, James A. Patton and others for an alleged corner in cotton, Beef trust, Wholesale Grocers' trust, Butter and Egg trust, Brick trust, Bath Tub trust.

Convicted and Fined.

The following convictions were secured and fines imposed during the year:

Paper Trust, fined	$57,000
Night Riders, fined	3,500
Window Glass Trust ,fined	10,000

After the attorney general's report came from the press, however, the American Naval Stores company, known as the Turpentine trust, and six co-defendants were convicted of violations of the anti-trust law. Two of the individual defendants were sentenced to three months each in jail and fines aggregating $17,500 were imposed.

Prosecutions of the sugar trust for frauds upon the government in the weighing of raw sugar, recovered for the government $3,135,365.88. Convictions of individuals, still fresh in the public mind, were secured.

Frauds in Importations.

Most extensive af oll frauds against the government yet discovered, are those in the undervaluations of imports into the United States. The extent of the treasury losses can only be conjectured. Every step of the investigation shows fresh leads.

There are now suits under way to recover $700,000 of which the customs revenue is said to have been defrauded in imports of cheese and figs from Mediteranean ports; indictments are pending and some convictions have been secured. A highly organized system to defraud the goverment has been disclosed.

Indictments are Pending.

More than thirty individual indictments are pending against persons charged with smuggling with "steeper trunks," offers of the attorney general from several firms of importers who have confessed to frauds in undervaluations.

"The conditions disclosed seem to indicate a very general practice of under valuations," says the attorney general, "and a very lax administration of the customs laws in the past, which has subjected the government to a very material loss of revenue. A general investigation into the subject of frauds by under valuation has only commenced, and this branch of the subject will now be pressed vigorously."

General Immunity Bath.

The attorney general recommends that a general immunity statute, such as exists under the interstate commerce laws, should be enacted to apply to criminal prosecutions generally, but says such a statute should only protect a witness from the consequence of the testimony he is about to give.

Twenty-five criminal indictments charging rebating and other illegal discriminations are pending against railroads, private corporations and individuals. Two convictions with fines were secured during the year.

The department won signal victories during the year against unlawful fencing of the public domain. In ninety-eight civil suits and twenty-eight criminal prosecutions more than 400,000 acres of land illegally fenced were restored to the government.

Government After Land.

Prosecutions against the Oregon & California Railroad company and forty-five other defendants to recover 2,300,000 acres of lands valued at $50,000,000, which the government claims are illegally held, are now pending. There are also under way twenty-four suits against the Central Pacific Railway company and others to recover thousands of acres of valuable lands which the government contends were illegally patented, probably with the private knowledge that they were valuable for the mineral and oils underneath.

War On Bucket Shops.

In the department's campaign against bucket shops, 350 such places were closed, others voluntarily closed as a result of the crusade and indictments are pending against men and corporations and the telegraph company which allowed the use of its wires.

The bureau of investigation, which has built up an efficient secret police, began raids on firms charged with using the mails for fraudulent purposes. The attorney general recommends legislation to permit the agents of that bureau to administer oaths and serve processes.

Recommends New Laws.

During the year there were 15,371 criminal cases of all sorts in the United States courts, which produced fines and forfeitures and penalties aggregating $1,083,974.

Mr. Wickersham recommends legislation to give the right af appeal in Indian cases; a law for the issue of search warrants for property stolen from the government; that federal judges be allowed traveling expenses within their own districts and that the salaries of all federal justices be increased.

He also recommends that the statute of limitations in customs frauds be extended from three to five years. The attorney general also recommends legislation to permit the United States to sue and prosecute an offending corporation wherever that corporation may do business.

Needs of Alaska.

As a result of the attorney general's recent trip to Alaska he presents some recommendations for the relief in that territory. Some law should be enacted to help the needy and deserving poor in that clime, he says. Under the present law, when a person is found with legs or arms frozen off or starved nearly to death, it is necessary to charge the invalid with vagrancy and have him committed in order to get treatment in a government hospital.

SHOOTS HER HUSBAND.

Woman Says He Has Been Jealous for Fifteen Years.

Monongehela, Pa., Dec. 12. — The twenty-six years of married life of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Bowman, well known residents of this place, whose family includes several grown-up children, was punctuated Sunday by the wife's use of a revolver inflicting a dangerous wound in Bowman's neck. The circumstances as related by Mrs. Bowman after she had called the police to arrest her, are unusual.

"For fifteen years," she said, "he has persecuted me with jealous suspicions. Today it was 'too much intimacy' with one of our boarders, and he became so violent over the matter that I called police headquarters and asked if they would send up a man to keep peace in the family. They said 'no,' unless I wanted an arrest made. I asked if I might defend myself and they said 'certainly.'

"I hung up the receiver and went to my room to get a revolver. Luther stopped me as I came down stairs and said if I called the police he would kill the officer. He tried to grab me and I fired."

The bullet lodged in a dangerous position in Bowman's neck and the hospital surgeons are afraid to operate for fear of a fatal ending. Mrs. Bowman is prostrated.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR KIDNEYS

The following prescription is known to be one of the most effective obtainable for quick relief and permanent restoration of the kidneys and bladder: "Half ounce fluid extract Buchu; half ounce Murax compound; six ounces of good gin. Take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time." Any druggist can mix or furnish the ingredients of this prescription.

Pain in the back, rheumatic pains, frequent and scanty urination, and pains in groin are nature's warnings that the kidneys are deranged, and should have immediate attention, or serious illness, such as Bright's disease or diabetes, are likely to follow.

NEW YORK FIRE HERO RETIRES ON FULL PAY.

New York, Dec. 12.—For the first time in the history of the New York fire department, a fireman has been retired on full pay. Capt. James J. McCormick, characterized by Commissioner Waldo as the bravest fireman who ever donned a helmet, has returned to civil life after spending thirty-nine years in the service, and until he dies he will draw $2,500 a year, the full pay of a captain.

In 1888, when the Pratt Oil works in Brooklyn were destroyed, McCormick brought his crew of fire fighters safely out of a death trap of smoke and flame. Then he staggered into the street and fell unconscious, terribly burned from head to foot and with the use of both arms gone. He has since done clerical work in the office of the fire marshal.

CONVICT HAS LEPROSY.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 12.—A specialist engaged by the state board of health has announced that Ernest Williams, serving a seven-year term in the state penitentiary, has leprosy. The man will be moved to a leper colony immediately. He has a wife and child living at Sapulpa, Okla., and was in the Muskogee county jail six months. Warden Dick of the penitentiary says Williams has been kept apart from other prisoners during the time he has been there.

FAMOUS BLACK HEN DEAD.

Nearly Twenty-Two Years Old and Laid 4,000 Eggs.

Biddeford, Me., Dec. 12.—Capt. Daniel Tarbox's famous black hen is dead. The hen would have been 22 years old had she lived until next May.

Her record as a producer has been a remarkable one, the captain asserting the bird had laid 4,000 eggs, the last on the day after Maine went Democratic, and the egg proved of unusual size.

She had never been licked by anything on the place that wore feathers, was never known to be broody and had no use for chickens.

Peculiar Bullets.

Although lead is generally considered the only material for bullets, other softer and lighter substances produce quite effective results. Water bullets are often very destructive if shot with great speed. Greased felt plugs and wooden plugs one and one-half inches are also very effective. The use of Golden Grain Belt beer brings health, happiness and new vigor to the tired-out and run-down system. A glass with your noon-day meal or just before retiring will give new vim to the entire system. Try it and be convinced. FOUR KILLED IN WRECK.

Seven Others Injured in Grand Trunk Collision.

Montreal, Dec. 12. — Four trainmen were killed and seven others injured, one seriously, on the Grand Trunk railway near St. Hyacinth on the Portland line when the Inter-colonial railway's Nicollet train dashed into a light Grand Trunk engine. The dead:

C. BRIGGS, conductor, on the light engine.

W. W. WALKER, engineer of the light engine.

R. JAMIESON, engineer.

M. DIONNE, fireman of the Intercolonial train.

The road at this point is double tracked. The light engine took the wrong track after leaving St. Hyacinth.

JOHN D. TO BE THE VILLAGE SANTA CLAUS.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Dec. 12.—John D. Rockefeller is to be Santa Claus this year for Tarrytown children. Cards have been distributed all over the village announcing that all children who are members of the Sunday school of Mr. Rockefeller's church, the First Baptist, will receive at Christmas time a stocking full of goodies.

FORMER MINNESOTAN IS SHOT IN MONTANA.

Missoula, Mont., Dec. 13.—Fred Graham, brother of Sheriff Davis Graham of this county and formerly a resident of Anoka, Minn., accidentally shot himself while hunting rabbits.

Although bleeding profusely from a gaping hole in his side, from which his lungs protruded, Graham walked a mile to summon aid. He will die.

THE COMMISSION PLAN.

No. 24.—What It Did in Des Moines.

In this series The Herald has referred before to Des Moines; in many respects the most conspicuous examplar of the commsision form of city government in operation. These references, however, have been in general terms. Details having been given of the workings of the new plan in several typical cities, a similar showing should be made for Des Mones, the most typical. Here are some of the results of the commission plan in Des Moines:

The city's net loss in the last year of the old government was $134,510.62; the net gain in the first year under the new charter was $48,439.10; a total relative saving of $182,949.65.

The tax levy for city purposes in the last year of the old charter was 38.7 mills on the 25 per cent valuation established by law; the first year under the new charter it was 36.4 mills.

Public improvements to the value of $357,755.50 were made during the first year under the new system. Contractors were held strictly to the specifications and claims for extras, which had grown into a crying abuse, were firmly rejected. The quality of all public work was visibly improved.

Several carloads of inferior creosote paving blocks were rejected.

A modern system of bookkeeping was installed.

Municipal expenditures were held strictly within the city's revenues, ending a practice of piling up yearly deficits to which almost the entire bonded indebtedness was due.

Numerous leaks were stopped; all the licenses collected were turned into the treasury.

Street lights, formerly costing $75 to $95, were reduced to a uniform rate of $65 per arc lamp per year, and the "moonlight" service was abolished, insuring better service.

All public work was promptly done, and complaints were given immediate attention. The streets were kept cleaner; the alleys in business sections, never before cleaned at all, were thoroughly cleaned.

Street signs were put up throughout the city, years of clamor for them having failed to induce the old government to make this improvement.

The wages of men with teams were increased from $3.50 to 4.50, and those of day laborers from $2 to $2.25; better service was demanded and secured.

Uniform cement walks were laid throughout the business section. The cost of cleaning catch basins was reduced from $1.40 to $1.12; the cost of bridge paving was cut from $4.74 per yard to $4.09; the cost of culverts was reduced from $17.61 to $12.63; mowing in the parks was done at 75 per cent of the old cost.

Work done by contract was let to the lowest bidder without manipulation. Friendly but mutually self-respecting relations were established between the public service corporations and the city government.

City politics was entirely divorced from state and national politics. Private enterprise and public spirit were remarkably stimulated. The city, formerly noted for its discord, became notably harmonious.

All these things, and many minor good results, were secured solely by putting city business on a business basis and eliminating party and ward politics.

THE CHRISTMAS OF THE POOR.

The sound of money clinking in the red pots of the Salvation Army is a merry, heart-warming noise.

Out of those red pots, standing at the busy street corners and presided over by members of this gallant army of salvation, comes the Christmas of the poor, and a dime or a dollar tossed into one of these pots is money well invested. It will be well and wisely spent, it will go where it is most needed, and it will illumine the bleakness of the life of the poor with the rosy cheer of Christmas charity at Christmas time.

Nobody, perhaps, comes closer to the actual needs of the poor than the Salvation soldiers. They know how the poor live, they know how distress sits within the homes of the poor while the wolf waits at the door. They know where the little ones are whose pitiful stockings will hang limp and empty unless somebody takes the place of that old rogue Santa Claus, who betrays his sycophancy by putting in his time in the homes of the rich.

The Salvation Army pot will furnish the Christmas of the poor. Keep it boiling.

THE CIVIC BANQUET.

Such occasions as the civic banquet of Saturday night never fail to give an impulse to all good works. Co-operation is the force that is driving society along the rugged road of progress, and the energy it creates is so vast and irresistible that the wonder of it is that men and women do not use it more. Such a gathering as that of Saturday night is a clearing house of public spirit, in which is generated forces that are all-powerful in the life of a community. There men and women take counsel together, joining voice to voice and thought to thought and working out of the chaos of individual aspirations the order of a community spirit.

It is good to see that the commission form of government, the next move that Duluth is to make toward better things in city government, received marked attention at this gathering and evoked a lively interest. It is the biggest single proposition now confronting the people of Duluth, and it cannot have too much consideration.

There should be more such gatherings. They make for progress, and for a stronger, more united and more effective public spirit. The Women's council is to be congratulated on the success of its enterprise.

DEVELOPMENT OF SOUTHERN MINNESOTA.

The campaign for the development of Minnesota has tended altogether too much to create the impression that the development is to be all in Northern Minnesota.

That is decidedly wrong; and besides it fails to bring home to the people of Southern Minnesota their share in this work and their prospects of benefiting by it.

It is true that even if the development work were confined to Northern Minnesota, which, being almost wholly undeveloped, needs such work most, it could not be carried out without helping all parts of the state.

But it is a mistake to suppose that it is Northern Minnesota alone that is in need of development.

A part of the work of development—and a vital part, too,—will be the teaching of agricultural methods that will result in extracting the utmost profit from the soil without exhausting its richness; for soil can be robbed just as easily as a forest can be laid waste. Development involves soil surveys that will show what the soil is made of, what essentials it lacks, what elements have been taken out of it, and what needs to be done to restore it to its pristine fertility—or to a fertility even greater than that. Southern Minnesota needs that as much as Northern Minnesota—more, indeed, because there has been more soil waste there.

Another part of the work of development will be the planting of trees on acres unsuited for agriculture, and Southern Minnesota has such acres. Another part will be drainage, and Southern Minnesota needs drainage. Another will be good roads, and Southern Minnesota needs good roads.

A glance at the returns from the 1910 census shows clearly enough that Southern Minnesota needs development. Iowa has gone back in population, and the census figures have aroused that state to the need of action. Southern Minnesota is in the same fix, and has the same need of action.

Northern and Southern Minnesota must co-operate in this work of state development, making it all part of a general comprehensive plan, working harmoniously, effectively and with a minimum of waste toward the greater glory and prosperity of all Minnesota.

Twenty-two counties of Southern Minnesota have gone back in population in the last ten years. When the figures for the cities are available it will be found that most of them have increased in population, so that the loss of the agricultural regions is even greater than it seems from the figures by counties, the only ones now available.

Of these twenty-two counties four have not only a smaller population than they had in 1900, but their showing is less today than it was in 1890, twenty years ago.

When the cities and the newer portions of Northern Minnesota are taken out of the total, it will be found that the rural population of Minnesota has gone back at a rate that is little short of appalling.

State development is not a Northern Minnesota matter, but a state matter.

SUBSCRIPTION SWINDLERS.

Word comes to The Herald that subscription swindlers are using its name to defraud people in many parts of the territory in Minnesota in which this newspaper circulates.

These men are offering a combination of The Herald, Colliers', the Ladies' Home Journal and other periodicals at ridiculously low prices. All those who are swindled get out of it is a receipt which is worthless.

The prices at which these fake subscriptions are sold are so low that they ought to be a warning in themselves, but it seems necessary to notify the public that they are swindles, pure and simple.

The Herald does not enter into combination with any publication whatever. It does not shade its subscription price for any purpose, nor does it give premiums of any kind. It is sold only at the prices quoted at the head of this page, and no subscriptions should be given to anybody not provided with proper credentials from this office.

Any person offering The Herald at reduced prices, or in combination with any other publication, can be set down as a fraud and should be handed over to the police.

A LONG STEP AHEAD.

The Socialists of Duluth acted wisely when they refused to put a plank in their platform opposing the commission form of city government. They are not so numerous as they expect to be, but they have a tidy bunch of votes, and these votes should always be enlisted on the side of progress.

The only objection urged by Socialists to the commission plan is that it eliminates partisanship, and this is one of its chief merits in the minds of most people, who have ceased to regard party glory as the chief end of man. The Socialists's position is a little different. He is trying to bring about a co-operative commonwealth which he believes can come only through his party, and only through that medium by keeping it compactly organized, trained and disciplined. That is why the Socialist today is the greater stickler for partisanship. The commission plan prohibits candidates running under party designations, and that would prevent Socialists from running as Socialists.

However, there has come into the Socialist movement in recent years a broader spirit, sometimes called "opportunism," which is willing to yield something for the sake of progress. Instead of sticking out for the whole program or nothing at all, it is willing to take a step in advance providing it is in the right direction. And this new spirit, it may be said, is the chief thing that makes Socialism really formidable.

The commission plan is clearly a step ahead, and in the right direction, whether judged from the Socialist's viewpoint or the viewpoint of the man who simply wishes to keep humanity moving forward toward real democracy, and who wishes to see something accomplished in his life time as an incentive to renewed efforts for greater achievements. With its principles of the initiative, the referendum and the recall it is abundantly safeguarded, and under it the people rule.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

SHOULD GUARD AGAINST OVER-BONDING.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice that the city council has asked the legislature to authorize the city to issue bonds to build a municipal electric lighting plant. It seems to me that this matter of issuing bonds, or of authorizing bond issues, is something this city ought to go about very cautiously. Maybe these bonds are necessary. Maybe the authorization is necessary as a club to enforce a good contract with the private company when the present contract expires. But it seems to me that in view of all the circumstances, it ought to be evident beyond all doubt that it is necessary before there is even talk of it.

I haven't the figures at hand, but I understand that the bonded debt of Duluth, including general bonds, water and light bonds and school bonds, is now considerably more than $6,500,000. This is about $85 for every man, woman and child in Duluth.

Duluth's tax rate is high, and the size of the tax rate has an inevitable bearing upon the growth and prospects of a city. This enormous bonded debt, you may be sure, has its share in making the Duluth tax rate high and keeping it high.

Yet there is constant talk of more bonds. The park board is issuing $50,000 a year. The school board issues more at frequent intervals. The water and light board has made several large issues, and proposes a new issue of $300,000 which is, I believe, absolutely necessary. Mayor Cullum urges the issuance of bonds for dock purposes, and that is a business investment which Duluth absolutely must make if it is to hold its proper place. And now there is talk of more bonds for a city electric plant.

Where is Duluth coming out if it keeps on issuing bonds thus freely? Already this city has passed the legal limit, and can issue no more bonds without the authorization of the legislature. Its bonds ought to be freely salable at low rates of interest, but it has to pay high rates, and has, I am told, sold bonds at a discount.

Every dollar's worth of additional bonds will increase the gravity of this situation, and lower the city's credit, especially if any of them are authorized or issued for purposes not absolutely necessary. Bonds authorized but not issued will affect the city's credit and the desirability of its necessary bond issues as an investment, almost as much as bonds actually issued, because they may be issued at any time.

Before there is further talk of this bond issue, or before the legislature is asked to authorize it, why doesn't the city see if it can't get a favorable renewal of its present contract with the private company? Perhaps an attempt has been made and failed. I don't know about that, and if it has I am probably in error in thus publishing my views. Nevertheless, it seems to me as a business man that this thing of dashing lightheartedly into debt because it is easy is bad business; especially since, judging from what I have read of recent sales of Duluth bonds, it has ceased to be easy to do it on favorable terms.

I should apologize, perhaps, for thus trespassing to such an extent on your valuable space, but it seems to me that this subject is important enough to warrant it. May I ask what The Herald itself thinks about it? Very truly, CHARLES R. HAINES.

Duluth, Dec. 12.

THE SOLUTION OF THE FOREST FIRE PROBLEM.

To the Editor of The Herald:

From a number of years' experience in the woods in the northern part of the state and personal observation of our forest fires of late years, I have come to the conclusion that the proper and most effective way to fight forest fires is to prevent them by burning the slashings, rubbish and dead grass when there is enough moisture in the ground to prevent the ground itself from catching fire.

This cannot be done during the winter when rubbish and slashings left from logging are covered with snow, as it would incur enormous expense. The weather would have to be watched and the work handled locally. A few days after a heavy spring or summer rain is the best time to burn brush, because the ground is then sufficiently moist to keep fire from spreading even after the brush becomes quite dry.

Next, the burden of expense for the burning and cleaning of rubbish and slashings, which are now in many places a regular fire trap, should not fall on the tax payers of the state, but should be taxed against the land itself, as it is a benefit to the land if burnt in proper season and would increase the value of the land in proportion to the expense of clearing the same. As there is no value in the cutover lands for farming purposes before the rubbish is burned and land cleared and under cultivation, the owner of the land is the one who benefits by the work. Why should I be called upon to clean my neighbor's back yard? It would not be any added hardship to the farmers if such a law were passed, because as it is he must clear his land anyway.

We must bear in mind that our state is draining a lot of our swamp lands. Such lands must be protected in dry weather from catching fire as it is next to impossible to put the fires out after they get started on such lands. The lumber companies and railroads are logging and cutting heavily over their lands to save the timber from being burnt. This cutting leaves great slashings and brush piles and also helps to dry the land. This makes it more dangerous than heretofore and unless the proper steps are taken by the state to protect the country from forest fires, the farmers already on the ground in many places will be compelled to move out instead of bringing new settlers in. The railroads should be compelled to patrol their rights-of-way, and shall be subject to heavy fines for setting forest fires.

Would it not be possible to combine our forestry and game and fish departments? It is done in some of our Eastern states and in many of the foreign countries. This would lessen the expense as one man could act as both game and fire warden.

Our legislature should amend our laws or pass a law to make every one that wants to hunt game and birds in our state to pay a license fee of $1 for residents and $25 for outsiders. This would give the department a revenue of possibly $125,000 to $150,000 annually, which with a small addition from the state would give us a respectable fund to start with. The license fees alone would take care of the office and about 100 fire rangers or wardens, which would make a nice little army of fire fighters without much extra expense to the tax payers.

There should be one experienced and competent man at the head of the forest and fire department; also one chief assistant whose duty it would be to occasionally make a call upon the local wardens to see that they are doing their duty. There should be a sufficient emergency fund and the railroads should be compelled to discontinue setting forest fires. It can be done. JOHN MATTSON.

Duluth, Dec. 10.

Speedy.

Tit Bits: He was a very quiet boy, of a studious turn of mind, and that was probably why his fond parents apprenticed him to a naturalist. In his new sphere he was willing enough, but painfully slow. After giving the canary seed, a job that occupied two hours, he said:

"What will I do now?"

"Well," replied his master, reflectively, "I think you may take the tortoise out for a run."

A LITTLE TRAGEDY OF WASTE.

My Lady Gets a New Fur Coat for Christmas.

S. H. Howard in Colliers: Husband—What are you getting at, anyway?

Wife (gently reproachful)—Getting at, dearest? Such an expression!

Husband—Any bills?

Wife—Oh, yes!—just one.

Husband—How much?

Wife—You won't be angry—will you, duckie?

Husband (sternly)—Out with it.

Wife—Well, my newest and darlingest fur coat came home today.

Husband—What?

Wife—When you see me in it, you'll say—

Husband—Where is it? I'll send it back.

Wife—Oh, but darling—they had to alter it—they can't take it back now.

Husband—Well, what in the sacred name of common sense! Here you have a Persian lamb coat, a sable set, a set of gray squirrel, a boa of blue fox, and God only knows how many muffs, and you go and order another coat! Do you think money is—

Wife (bursting into tears)—You might just as well beat me—after all I've done to make a home for you—brought you your slippers—

Husband (fiercely)—Yes, make a continued fool of yourself—go on.

Wife (hysterical)—A fool! That's right. Curse me next. Beat me. This is the return I get for the love I squandered on you. Fool—fool—fool that I was. You told me you loved me, and I believed you. Oh, why, why! did I ever? (Screams.)

Husband—Oh, for heaven's sake shut up—you'll scare the whole block.

Wife (shrieking)—Do you hear him? He thinks more of the neighbors than he does of the poor deluded fool he calls his wife.

Husband (uneasy) — Come, come, I don't see what all this infernal fuss is about.

Wife—Infernal! Did you hear him? Oh—!

Husband (alarmed) — Dearie — don't cry like that. It breaks my heart to hear you. Please, please, for my sake (takes her up in his arms. You'll do yourself harm. I didn't mean to be rough with you—tell me all about your new fur coat, and don't think your husband such a brute.

Wife (brightening)—It's beaver—such a thick, lustrous beauty (smiles ecstatically).

Husband — Beaver! That's contraband.

Wife—Yes, but isn't it lovely?

Husband—Why, you little goose, for six months I've had a furrier saving up smuggled beaver skins to make you a new coat for Christmas. I didn't want to tell you.

Wife (clapping her hands) — You perfect old darling! (Kisses him.) Now I'll have two!

Hostess (with engaging charm)—Cream and sugar?—Yes, furs are getting positively outrageous. Everybody's cook and even the shop girls—you'd wonder where all the fur comes from. I declare it's a problem to know what to get to be ah—distinctive—(pleadingly) don't you know? Last year I tried to wear beaver. I bought one coat myself — unplucked beaver—and Dick, dear boy, gave me a plucked beaver for Christmas. But, do you know, by New Year's I found I positively couldn't wear them? — I realized they made me look a perfect fright—My complexion was too muddy, I guess—or my hair. So this spring I didn't bother sending them to cold storage, and (whispering intensely)—the moths got into them! Ruined—ab-sol-ute-ly ruined! (Throws up both hands in pretty affectation of horror.) Oh, well (sighing resignedly), I'll make Dick buy me a seal coat this winter.

Chorus — Isn't she just perfectly awful?

Lady in Black—They say there is very little seal left—they have been almost exterminated.

Hostess — That makes seal all the more desirable, doesn't it? Have another cup of tea, Clara, dear—just to please me.

He Was Scared.

Everybody's: There used to be a sheriff in a Green mountain county of Vermont who, for forty years, had driven his prisoners—murderers, moonshiners, thieves—through the woods in his buggy to the county jail and yet who had never carried a revolver nor used a pair of handcuffs in his life. He had a strong hand, a brave heart and a stutter.

"Wern't you ever afraid?" some one asked him one day.

"W-well, I 'llow once I -wuz t-t-tol-'rable well skeert," he admitted slowly. "I h-heard S-Si P-Perkins, the b-barber, wuz g-gone d-daft an' wuz c-carvin' p-people up, an' I c-calc'lated it wuz my official d-dooty to g-go an' arrest him. So I w-went d-down to S-Si's shop, an' w-went in, an' S-Si c-come at me w-with a r-razor in each h-hand. An' then I 'llow I wuz t-t-tol'rable well skeert."

"What did you do?"

"W-w-well," said the old sheriff, spitting thoughtfully into the sandbox beside the stove, "I wuz s-so s-s-skeert that I t-t-took 'em a-a-away from him."

The Psychology of Walking.

The Atlantic: Walking is not merely moving two legs rhythmically over certain intervals of ground. It is the primal and the only way to know the world, the deliberate entering into an inheritance, whose parts are wind and weather, sky and prospect, men and animals, and all vital enjoyment. The bicycle has some advantages in point of speed, and gives a deceptive sense of power; but it is a foe to observation. All carriages, whether propelled by horse or motor, insulate the traveler from the ground, steal his attention from the world through which he passes, and utterly destroy all feeling of achievement. The very word "mile" is a walker's word—mille passus—a thousand double paces. So the Roman legions measured their conquering advances; so the legion of pedestrians estimates its conquests of the day. "So many thousand buffets have mine own two feet given the resisting soil 'twixt sun and sun; so many thousand times have the good muscles of calf and thigh lent their elastic force." What has the dusty reader of figures on a dial to match with that?

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

What's Chasing Hobbies?

Mankato Free Press: James J. Hill is author of the statement that "it is highly probable in a few years there will be little in the way of party lines in the United States." The obliteration of party lines will be followed by a reign of hobbies, then chaos.

Is a Credulous Person.

Carlton Vidette: Dr. Cook has told a reporter of the New York World that he is in London. Apparently the reporter believes him.

Apparently Has Missed Some.

Coleraine Optic: At last, the real truth is out. A newspaper headline says "English Ideas Stolen." So that's where they were?

Danger Sign Put Up.

Little Falls Herald: We hope the interests will not come to the Democratic party just because a disgusted people have put the Democrats in power in the principal states. If the interests move in, the voters will move out.

Roosevelt the Future Moses.

Mora Times: Those who think that Roosevelt has been killed off politically have another guess coming. Those who are now prophesying that he cannot "come back" may some day be hailing him as the political Moses who will lead the Republican party back to victory.

May Need That Watching.

Battle Lake Review: Will the coming legislature in Minnesota vote for the constitutional amendment, in favor of the income tax? Every member's vote will be carefully watched on this great and much needed reform.

Sermon in a Paragraph.

Carlton Vidette: The nation that gets intoxicated with wealth and has no ambition above commercialism is doomed to ultimately lose its strength and die out. As with individuals so with nations it is character and not dollars that gives permanence and true power.

For Shredded Mankind.

Stillwater Gazette: A safety device on the ugly and dangerous corn shredder would prove a boon to mankind. A dozen corn shredders are more dangerous than an army with banners.

But, How Much Less.

Albert Lea Tribune: A statistician gives it out that New Yorkers are drinking less than formerly. What is the matter, has the government an Indian treaty in force down there?

THE LORD OF CHRISTMAS WEEK.

Christmas Collier's: Men have long dreamed of the perfect ruler, some happy prince who shall love his people well, whose leadership shall be wise, gentle and just. History is wistful with man's effort to find him—the hero, the strong man, the righteous ruler—and then to establish him in dominion over their broken lives and warring wills. Long ago they found Him. But all who find Him lose Him. though all have found Him fair. The eager dream came true, what time there issued out of Bethlehem the man of good-will, the lover of the race. Each year, for a handful of days, so brief, so swift to go, Lord Christ assumes the leadership. Each year we give Him Christmas week, permitting His will to prevail, His brooding spirit to rest upon the nations.

Toward that gentle interlude—the days of the Truce of God—men longingly look through the tale of the weary months. And when the brief term is ended, yearningly our thoughts turn back to that time when we were good together. His spirit is breathed through the pensive season, like faint music in the night. Strife, anger, tumult, and the hurry of the little days are banished. For our sad mood and lonely heart He brings a comfort. To His loving-kindness we yield ourselves, as tired children lay them down to rest. In His authority we find our peace. A while we dwell in that felicity. Touched with mortality, as is all earthly beauty, the rapid days glance by, and we have lost them while the welcome is still on our lips. He comes and He passes, because our hospitality is short of duration and we are troubled about many things. We crowd Him out for other guests less radiant. If His dominion over the hearts of men were more than a lovely episode, if He might but abide, it would be well with us.

The theory that the good die young seldom worries a man.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man can be most proud of his family for being proud of him.

You can get a very keen appetite for a food just by having it costly.

The Old Man's Comforts.

(And How He Gained Them.)

"You are old, Father William," the young man cried;
"The few locks which are left you are gray;
You are hale, Father William, a hearty old man;
Now tell me the reason, I pray."

"In the days of my youth," Father
  William replied,
"I remembered that youth would fly
  fast,
And abused not my health and my vigor at first,
That I never might need them at last."

"You are old, Father William, the young man cried,
"And pleasures with youth pass away,
"And yet you lament not the days that are gone;
Now tell me the reason, I pray."

"In the days of my youth," Father
  William replied,
"I remembered that youth could not
  last;
I thought of the future, whatever I did,
That I never might grieve for the past."

"You are old, Father William, the
  young man cried,
"And life must be hastening away;
You are cheerful and love to converse upon death;
Now tell me the reason, I pray."

"I am cheerful, young man," Father
  William replied;
"Let the cause thy attention engage;
In the days of my youth I remembered
  my God!
And He hath not forgotten my age."

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Chicago News: Negley—You seem to have a poor opinion of Poldier's intelligence.

Gaymer—You would, too, if you knew he had been looking in the city directory three days for Zeigler's address and had got only as far as the D's.

Smart Set: Brown—What have you got against that man Smith? He has done several good things.

Jones—Yes, but I happened to be one of them.

Louisville Courier-Journal: "What's this? A Black Hand letter?"

"Yes; a pleasant relief. I feared my tailor was dunning me again."

Puck: City Editor—Any radical changes for the better in football this season?

Sporting Writer: Verily, I understand that not more than one ticket speculator will be allowed to tackle a single patron at the same time.

Yonkers Statesman: Redd—Do you think all these automobiles running through a town help it?

Greene—Oh, my, yes! Why we're building two new hospitals in our town!"

Tit-Bits: "Editors demand stories that end happily. Perhaps that accounts for your lack of success."

"Possibly," replied the young author, with a rather sickly smile. "All mine have a sad ending—they go into the waste paper basket."

Houston Post: "What are you kicking about?"

"The unequal distribution of wealth."

"Is that all?"

"And the unequal distribution of labor. I get too much of one and not enough of the other."

Boston Transcript: Mrs. Lushman—Aren't you ashamed to come home in this condition?

Lushman—Ashamed? Wom'n, I ain't even 'fraid.

How Mark Twain Missed a Fortune.

With Steve Gillis, a printer, of whom he was fond, he went up into Calaveras county, to a cabin on Jackass hill, where Steve's brother Jim, a lovable, picturesque character (the "Truthful James" of Bret Harte), owned mining claims. Mark Twain decided to spend his vacation in pocket-mining, and soon added that science to his stock of knowledge. It was a halcyon, happy three months that he lingered there. One day, with Jim Gillis, he was following the specks of gold that led to a pocket somewhere up the hill, when a chill, dreary rain set in. Jim was washing, and Clemens was carrying water. The "color" became better and better as they ascended, and Gillis, possessed with the mining passion, would have gone on regardless of the rain. Clemens, however, protested and declared that each pail of water was his last. Finally he said, in his deliberate, drawling fashion:

"Jim, I won't carry any more water. This work is too disagreeable. Let's go to the house and wait till it clears up."

Gillis had just taken out a pan of earth.

"Bring one more pail, Sam," he pleaded.

"I won't do it, Jim! Not a drop! Not if I knew there was a million dollars in that pan!"

They left the pan standing there and went over to Angel's camp, which was nearer than their own cabin. The rain kept on, and they sat around the grocery and bar-room, smoking and telling stories to pass the time.

Meantime, the rain had washed away the top of the pan of earth left standing on the slope of Jackass hill and exposed a handful of nuggets; pure gold. Two strangers had come along, and observing it had sat down to wait until the 30-day claim notice posted by Jim Gillis should expire. They did not mind the rain—not with that gold in sight—and the minute the thirty days were up they followed the lead a few pans farther and took out $20,000 in all. It was a good pocket. Mark Twain missed it by one pail of water.

Opportunity.

Boston Traveler: A rich old man was asked how he made his money.

"Simplest thing in the world," he said. "I always did the reverse of what everybody else was doing. If everybody bought, I sold—prices were high. If everybody sold, I bought—prices were low."

Just now everybody is rushing to the cities, which are swelling to abnormal size.

Young man, go to the soil! There lies opportunity. Go with knowledge, energy and determination to succeed in your business. You will win, for the people of the swollen towns must eat three times a day, 365 days in the year.

IN DECEMBER THE YOUNG BOY'S FANCY LIGHTLY TURNS TO SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Sunday school population of Duluth and of every city and town in the state is increasing rapidly at this season of the year.

Shortly after the first of the year there will probably be another decline in Sunday school population which will reach its climax in midsummer when swimming is good and baseball and other outdoor sports are in full progress. But it is confidently believed that the decline will reach the highest stage at that time and then will gradually halt and then a slow increase in Sunday school population will begin to show. This increase will reach its climax about the middle or last of next December.

This the universal experience of men and women who watch these fluctuations of Sunday school population during the course of a twelvemonth.

The cause is easy to ascertain.

It is about the first of December that there is first heard murmurings of the approaching visit to each Sunday school of Santa Claus. It is also currently reported that at each Sunday school he visits, that he will leave something for each boy and girl who is a member of that Sunday school. Consequently the boys and girls, following the law of childhood, which is, "get all you can while you have the chance," begin, about the first Sunday in December to attend strictly to religious duty, in so far as it affects their attendance at Sunday school.

In fact experts in this fluctuating Sunday school problem declare that every December marks a remarkable awakening of Sunday school interest among the boys and girls of each neighborhood. Indications are this year will prove no exception and that beginning with next Sunday there will be a most remarkable increase in Sunday school attendance which will last until after the first of the year.

BEWARE OF HOLIDAY FIRES

Christmas Decorations Bring Many Extra Hazards for Insurance Companies.

Christmas is a time of good cheer and universal happiness but it is not with unmingled pleasure that the fire insurance men views the approach of the Yuletide season. This is because the holiday season always brings with it many disastrous fires. Fires mean insurance losses to be paid and the insurance men naturally deplore anything that means the payment of heavy losses for the heavier the losses the less the dividends of the insurance companies.

Duluth insurance agents generally agree that fire losses are generally heavier at Christmas time than at any other time of the year with the possible exception of the Fourth of July and the preceding week.

Window displays of the Christmas season also increase the fire hazard. Twinkling lights nestling in banks of flimsy white materials naturally present opportunities for a conflagration. There are hundreds of chances to start a blaze when Christmas season is on.

Most are not in the gay windows, however. They are found, on the contrary, in the packing rooms. There an unusually great amount of goods is constantly being handled. Much waste packing is scattered about. There is a constant rush and a whirling turmoil. New clerks and inexperienced helpers add to the confusion. Here and there is a cigarette smoker. A bit of glowing ash dropped in a pile of excelsior may mean a blaze that will cost millions.

COMPLIMENT TO A DOUBLE.

Los Angeles Times: Mr. Roosevelt, on his famous visit to the Pennsylvania mines, met one of his many doubles. As he gave the double a hearty handshake, he laughed and said:

"I'm delighted to meet you. I think you look more like me than any of my other doubles. In fact, the resemblance is perfect, and I have no doubt that if you stood before me in a frame I could shave you.'"

Santa Claus in the Zoo.

Said Santa Claus: "'Tis Christmas eve
  (The animals looked pleasant),
And each of you will now receive
  His yearly Christmas present.
But I'd be glad if every guest
  Would mention what he'd like the best."

The tapir said: "That pleases me.
  I'll state succinctly, therefore,
If I may be so bold and free,
  The only thing I care for
Would be those matches on the shelf,
  With which I'd like to light myself."

His wish was granted. Then up spake
  A timid little adder:
"Sir, but a trifle it will take
  To make my Christmas gladder.
A slate and pencil, if you please,
  Would let me do my sums with ease."

The reindeer said, "You may believe
  I'd be a happy fellow
If I were sure I would receive
  A good sized umberrellow,
And also I'd like four galoche,
  Yes, and a rubber mackintosh."

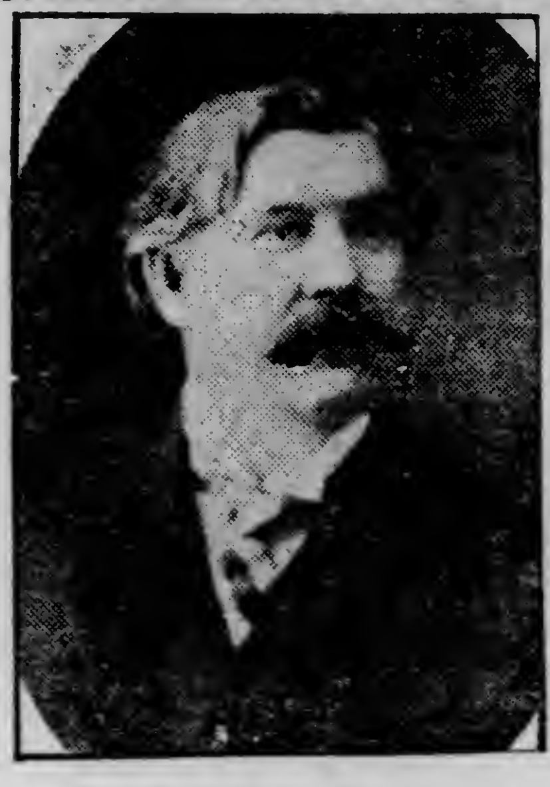
CRYSTAL FALLS MAN SENATORIAL LEADER



SENATOR MORIARTY.

Crystal Falls, Mich., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Nestor of the Upper Peninsula delegation to the Michigan senate will be Michael H. Moriarty, senator from the Thirty-first district, Alger, Dickinson, Gogebic, Iron and Marquette counties.

He is an eloquent orator and exerts a powerful influence in political circles in the Upper Peninsula and at Lansing.

Senator Moriarty was born in Hudson, Mich., in 1859 and educated in the public schools of that city. After graduating from the high school he studied law in the office of Thomas J. Hillier of Hudson, and was admitted to the bar in 1887.

In 1889 he had a clerkship in the legislature, and at the close of the session opened an office at Crystal Falls. Mr. Moriarty has held the offices of county commissioner of schools, prosecuting attorney, county treasurer of Iron county and member of the board of control of the state house of correction and branch prison at Marquette. He is a Republican and was first elected to the senate in 1903.

CLOTHING STORE IS A BLINDPIG

John Johnson of Devils Lake, N. D., Cleverly Fooled Officers.

Devils Lake, N. D., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Perfect working panels, each concealing a case of beer, were found in a small building in this city operated by John Johnson, and the proprietor is under arrest charged with violating the prohibition law. From all apparent evidence, Johnson was engaged in the clothing business, but suspicions of the authorities had been aroused and securing a search warrant, they made an investigation.

Eight cases of beer were found concealed behind the panels, and each of these panels worked independently and was so perfect that the irregularities could hardly be distinguished. A quantity of whiskey was also discovered.

Johnson has been in jail for blindpigging before, being released on a plea that his family was without any means of support while he was in jail. Conviction on this new charge will mean a penitentiary sentence.

HALL IS GIVEN LIFE.

Aged Blue Earth County Murderer Goes to Pen.

Mankato, Minn., Dec. 12.—Judge Pfau has sentenced Whitford M. Hall, who was convicted of murder in the second degree, for the shooting of George Crook, his nephew by marriage, at Madison Lake on the evening of Oct. 1, to imprisonment for life at Stillwater.

Before receiving the sentence Hall, his gray head bared addressed the court and said he hoped God would open the eyes of all concerned in his conviction to see the matter as he saw it. He declared his innocence, saying:

"I consider myself led as a lamb, dumb before the shearer, and that I am shorn.

NUMBER OF METHODISTS

In North Dakota Claimed to Be 9,875.

Bismarck, N. D., Dec. 12. — The new minutes of the Methodist conference just out gives the membership of the Methodists in North Dakota as follows: Bismarck district, 2,401; Fargo district, 2,462; Grand Forks district, 2,760; Minot district, 2,251.

The above is on the basis of the rearranged district boundaries as fixed by Bishop Hamilton at the last conference.

The total membership is 9,875 members.

NEEDS OF THE SCHOOLS.

Set Forth in Resolutions Adopted at East Grand Forks.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Before adjourning their session here Saturday the Northwestern Minnesota Educational association adopted resolutions indorsing a system of rural school and agricultural education in this state and elected these officers:

President, Supt. E. E. McIntire, Crookston; vice president, Supt. E. B. Bothe, Hallock; secretary and treasurer, Supt John Hay, Thief River Falls.

The plan proposed by the association covers the following points: Township central high school, consolidated rural schools, where practicable; provision by law granting additional state aid to high schools; extension of schools under the Putnam act through increasing the number of schools thus aided; strengthening of the schools of agriculture at St. Anthony Park, Crookston and Morris, and the extension of such schools when necessary.

TWO CEMENT THIEVES HAVE PLEADED GUILTY.

Dickinson, N. D., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Joslyn and D. H. Rhodes, implicated in the notorious Dickinson cement stealing cases, pleaded guilty when arraigned in the district court. The other men implicated will stand trial.

Two men arrested in connection with the Osborne studio robberies in this city some time ago were dismissed upon the motion of the state's attorney, there being insufficient evidence upon which to secure a conviction. At the time of the affair three men were arrested, but one of these has since escaped from jail.

Frank Smith, arrested at Belfield on a charge of larceny, he being accused of the theft of a considerable quantity of clothes, was found guilty by a jury.

CONTEST DRAGS IN POLK COUNTY

Senatorial Recount of Polk County So Far Develops Little Change.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 12. — (Special to The Herald.) — The inspection of ballots in the senatorial contest in which the Polk County Republican central committee is endeavoring to show that A. D. Stephens and not John Saugstad was elected senator from Polk county, was resumed this morning. Up to Saturday evening the ballots from eight townships had been inspected and the Stephens adherents claim that about 135 ballots, which had been counted for Saugstad should not have been because the stickers had been improperly placed. Practically every precinct will have the senatorial votes inspected, those not being called for by one side being asked for by the other. Thus far Stephens has lost but one vote as compared with the election returns, and has gained one, so that his vote remains the same. The inspectors are holding their session in the grand jury room at the courthouse and their work is being witnessed by hundreds of interested spectators. The inspectors named by Judge Watts are G. A. E. Finlayson of East Grand Forks, W. A. Marin and Judge I. E. Gossman of Crookston. They will not finish before Friday.

SOLON SPRINGS SCHOOL HAS VERY NARROW ESCAPE.

Solon Springs, Wis., Dec. 12.—The fine public schoolhouse here costing about $8,000 was nearly destroyed by a fire which started from an overheated stove, which had been fired by the janitor in anticipation of school. Prompt work by the fire fighting force after the flames burst from the windows saved the structure, the loss being only nominal.

NORTH DAKOTA PHONE LINE WILL BRANCH OUT.

Buxton, N. D., Dec. 12.—At a meeting to be held here Tuesday the Red River Valley Telephone company, operating rural telephone lines over an extensive section, will consider the question of raising its capital stock from $100,000 to $200,000. The purpose of the proposed increase in the company stock is to enable a further extension of the toll lines as the district that can be covered is one of the finest telephone fields in the state. M. F. Hagge of Hatton, a Democratic candidate for governor several years ago, is president of the concern, while J. G. Odegard of Hillsboro is the secretary.

GRAIN THIEVES BUSY AROUND HANNAH, N. D.

Hannah, N. D., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grain thieves are working in this section and on two occasions they have made raids on the granaries owned by William Campbell, carrying off about 400 bushels of wheat. Up to the present time the authorities have been unable to locate the guilty parties, and the manner in which the thieves have been able to dispose of their plunder is a mystery. Grain tank tracks have been found in the fields in which the looted granaries were located, but they have only led to the main roads only to be lost.

LEGISLATORS TO LEARN WISHES OF CONSTITUENTS.

Devils Lake, N. D., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Members of the Ramsey county delegation to the state legislative assembly have unique method of learning the wants of their constituents and have called a general meeting to be held in this city on Wednesday evening of this week. Not only citizens of Devils Lake but citizens of the entire county are expected to participate.

One of the important propositions to be taken up will be that of securing the passage of a bill that will provide for the preliminary work necessary to the carrying out of a drainage plan that will result in the Mouse river annual spring overflow being sent into Devils lake. It has been shown already by extensive surveys that such a plan is feasible, but it would cost about $250,000 to do the work.

CATCHES DEER BY LEG THEN KILLS THE ANIMAL.

Schafer, N. D., Dec. 12.—The banner hunting story of the season is told by Hill Lundin, a local druggist. It is enough to make an Indian buck hang his head in envy.

While stalking a deer in the breaks the other day, he says he acutally caught a full grown deer by one of its hing legs and killed it with a knife. He had the advantage of the animal in the lively tussle that followed, owing to the fact that it was in a small washout when he seized it. The high walls prevented it from moving about and putting up much of a fight. He managed to get a good hold of one of the animal's ears and threw it to the earth.

To the amazement of an old-time hunter, who came up in time to witness the finish, Lundin escaped without a scratch. Most any old hunter would rather fight a wildcat than take hold of a live deer. They know from experience that a deer's hoofs will cut like a knife and approach a wounded one cautiously.

With a Severe Cough the Bowels Need a Laxative.

Make This Laxative Cough Syrup Cheaply at Home.

Any one can make a full pint of finest acting laxative cough syrup for about 75 to 80 cents. About eight times cheaper than labeled cough syrups, because a pint will last a family a long time. First, obtain of any well-stocked druggist 2½ ounces of essence Mentho-laxene; empty it into a pint bottle. Then make a syrup with a pint of granulated sugar and a half pint of boiling water. Stir, let cool and fill the bottle with the syrup. Shake well and take a teaspoonful every hour or two. Eight or ten doses daily will act as a mild laxative, check the cough instantly and cure it quicker than anything you can buy. This syrup builds up the strength of the system and makes the tissues of the lungs and throat healthy.

Chronic cases yield most readily to its beneficial action. Give children less according to age.

MATERIALISM IS ON THE WANE

Edison's Philosophy Does Not Explain Existence of Edison, Says Speaker.

"The Last Thought" was the subject of the address of Dr. William Rainey Bennett at the Sunday afternoon meeting at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium yesterday. He said that the world was swinging back from materialism and took exception to the statement of Thomas Edison that man's mind is comparable to a phonograph.

"I believe I am scientific," he said, "when I say there is a God behind the universe—Edison to the contrary notwithstanding. The universe reaches its flower and culmination in man and man is the only animal that can turn and face life and ask 'Who am I? Whence did I come? and Whither am I going?' He is the only animal that can ask questions of himself. It is not true as Edison says that the brain is like the record of a phonograph, only the latter is made of wax and the brain is made of flesh. The phonograph can't turn and ask itself, "are you singing properly?" If they could there would be a lot of phonographs stop playing.

"The greatest flaw in Edison's philosophy is that it doesn't account for Edison. He is a creator as God is a creator. Edison claims we get everything from the world about us but we don't. The wireless telegraph never existed until Marconi thought it out and embodied it."

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW

New York, Dec. 12.—Steel mills and fabricating shops received some encouragement last week from a large tonnage of new orders and specifications, although the railroads gave very little support to the bridge shops. The prospect is that December will show a satisfactory increase over the preceding month.

Several of the Southern railroads are on the point of placing equipment orders. The Louisville & Nashville has bought 2,400 tons of steel for car under-frames and the Chesapeake & Ohio, Southern railway and Norfolk & Western have inquiries out for 12,500 tons of similar work. The Norfolk & Western has just closed bridge contracts for 3,500 and Virginian railway for 2,500 tons and the Pennsylvania has ordered 1,800 tons of steel for bridges on the New York division and at Harrison, N. J.

The Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas-Pacific has closed for fifteen locomotives and the Rochester & Pittsburg is about to order ten or fifteen engines. The Kenawaha & Michigan is in the market for 1,000 cars, the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg will probably buy 2,000, and the Great Northern is taking bids on 975 cars. The Western Maryland, Grand Trunk, Westchester railway and smaller roads are in the market for 35,000 tons of rails, while the Vicksburg, Chattanooga & St. Louis has ordered 10,500 tons, the St. Louis & Southwestern 5,000 tons and for small Western roads an aggregate of 7,000 tons.

The industry as a whole is still receding and all interests reducing output on both crude and finished material. The United States Steel corporation is now runnig 54 per cent of capacity and the subsidiary companies' unfilled orders on Nov. 30th were 2,760,413 tons, a decrease of 111,536 tons.

Pig iron output is now at the rate of 22,750,000 tons annually, the production in November being at the lowest rate of the year, but furnace stock increased. Business was light and prices irregular and lower.

SENATOR STOUT'S FUNERAL.

Impressive Services After Which Body Is Taken to Crematory.

Menomonie, Wis., Dec. 12.—In simple manner the funeral services of James Huff Stout were conducted here Saturday afternoon. During the hours of 12 to 3 business was at a standstill in the city, and the Stout home was visited by large processions of school children, from the first grades up to the pupils of the higher branches. The attendance from the schools was perhaps the most marked feature of the sad occasion. To each one of these the late state senator was personally known, and in no small degree they were able to appreciate the work done for them by their great friend—for them as well as for the boys and girls of this entire nation.

At 1 o'clock the services were held at the beautiful home which overlooks Lake Menomonie. The open casket stood surrounded by a wealth of floral tributes, and here again the wreaths of the children found fitting place. When the rooms were filled a beautiful solo was sung by Mrs. Noyes. Then a poem was read by the Rev. Mr. Noyes, pastor of the Unitarian church of which Mr. Stout was a member. The minister referred to the Psalms wherein the man is blessed in whose heart are "the highways of Zion." The remains were taken to St. Paul to be cremated.

At the funeral were Governor Davidson, Secretary of State Frear, Judge Helms of Hudson, Miss Stearns, state librarian of Madison; F. A. Hutchins, Madison and many from other cities.

LAKE FISHERIES PACT COMPLETE

Agreement Between Canada and the United States Is Reached.

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 12.—It is understood that as a result of the conference held here during the last three days between Prof. David Starr Jordan, the United States representative on the international fisheries commission, and Prof. Prince, the Canadian commissioner, an agreement has been reached whereby the joint international regulations governing the fisheries in inland boundary waters, as drafted over a year ago, will be brought into force without further delay by simultaneous promulgation at Washington and Ottawa.

The chief cause of the delay in bringing the regulation into force has been the contention by American fishermen in Saginaw bay that the new restrictions in regard to the size and character of nets would be unduly oppressive on them. Some objection has also been raised by fishermen on Lake Erie that the proposed regulations would be unnecessarily hard on individual fishermen who cannot afford to purchase new and expensive outfits.

Law Will Decide Controversy Over Age of Mrs. Louis E. Sekolly.

John Domonisky last night caused the arrest of Louis E. Sekolly on a warrant charging him with illegally marrying his daughter, Annie Domonisky.

It is claimed that the girl is only 14 years of age and that Sekolly swore that she was 18 years of age when he took out the marriage license at the courthouse, last Tuesday. The father claims that the groom took his daughter from her home at Sparta and brought her to Duluth without his knowledge. That Suit for Libel

Against the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Gave a Splendid Chance to Bring Out Facts

A disagreement about advertising arose with a "Weekly" Journal.

Following it, an attack on us appeared in their editorial columns, sneering at the claims we made, particularly regarding Appendicitis.

We replied through the regular papers and the "weekly" thought we hit back rather too hard and thereupon sued for libel.

The advertisement the "weekly" attacked us about claimed that in many cases of appendicitis an operation could be avoided by discontinuing indigestible food, washing out the bowels and taking a predigested food Grape-Nuts.

Observe we said MANY cases not all.

Wouldn't that knowledge be a comfort to those who fear a surgeon's knife as they fear death?

The "weekly" writer said that was a lie.

We replied that he was ignorant of the facts.

He was put on the stand and compelled to admit he was not a Dr. and had no medical knowledge of appendicitis an never investigated to find out if the testimonial letters to our Co. were genuine.

A famous surgeon testified that when an operation was required Grape-Nuts would not obviate it. True.

We never claimed that when an operation was required Grape-nuts would prevent it.

The surgeon testified bacteria (germs) helped to bring on an attack and bacteria was grown by undigested food frequently.

We claimed and proved by other famous experts that undigested food was largely responsible for appendicitis.

We showed by expert testimony that many cases are healed without a knife, but by stopping the use of food which did not digest, and when food was required again it was helpful to use a predigested food which did not overtax the weakened organs of digestion.

When a pain in the right side appears it is not always necessary to be rushed off to a hospital and, at the risk of death, be cut.

Plain common sense shows the better way is to stop food that evidently has not been digested.

Then, when food is required, use an easily digested food. Grape-Nuts or any other if you know it to be predigested (partly digested before taking).

We brought to Court analytical chemists from New York Chicago and Mishawaka, Ind., who swore to the analysis of Grape-Nuts and that part of the starchy part of the wheat and barley had been transformed into sugar, the kind of sugar produced in the human body by digesting starch (the large part of food).

Some of the State chemists brought on by the "weekly" said Grape-Nuts could not be called a "predigested" food because not all of it was digested outside the body.

The other chemists said any food which has been partly or half digested outside the body was commonly known as "predigested."

Splitting hairs about the meaning of a word.

Is it sufficient that if only one-half of the food is "predigested," it is easier on weakened stomach and bowls than food in which no part is predigested.

To show the facts we introduce, Dr. Thos. Darlington, former chief of the N. Y. Board of Health, Dr. Ralph W. Webster, chief of the Chicago Laboratories, and Dr. B. Sachs, N. Y.

If we were a little severe in our denunciation of a writer, self-confessed ignorant about appendicitis and its cause, it is possible the public will excuse us, in view of the fact that our head, Mr. C. W. Post, has made a lifetime study of food, food digestion and effects, and the conclusions are indorsed by many of the best medical authorities of the day.

Is it possible that we are at fault for suggesting, as a Father and Mother might, to one of the family who announced a pain in the side: "Stop using the food, greasy meats, gravies, mince pie, cheese, too much starchy food, etc., etc., which has not been digested, then when again ready for food use Grape-Nuts because it is easy of digestion?"

Or should the child be at once carted off to a hospital and cut?

We have known of many cases wherein the approaching signs of appendicitis have disappeared by the suggestion being followed.

No one better appreciates the value of a skilful physician when a person is in the awful throes of acute appendicitis, but "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Just plain old common sense is helpful even nowadays.

This trial demonstrated Grape-Nuts food is pure beyond question.

It is partly predigested.

Appendicitis generally has risen from undigested food.

It is not always necessary to operate.

It is best to stop all food.

When ready to begin feeding use a predigested food.

It is palatable and strong in Nourishment.

It will pay fine returns in health to quit the heavy breakfasts and lunches and use less food but select food certainly known to contain the elements nature requires to sustain the body. May we be permitted to suggest a breakfast of fruit, Grape-Nuts and cream, two soft boiled eggs, and some hot toast and cocoa, milk or Postum.

The question of whether Grape-Nuts does or does not contain the elements which nature requires for the nourishment of the brain, also of its purity, will be treated in later newspaper aticles.

Good food is impotant and its effect on the body is also important.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"I think" said a Duluth woman today" that the people who are showing the most of the Christmas spirit are the clerks in the stores. It has been necessary for me to do my shopping during a hurried and busy part of the day but the clerks have been most polite and courteous and I think they ought to have the credit. This funny business about the sales lady who won't pay any attention to you, may be all very funny but I for one have a very warm appreciation for the kindness and courtesy of the Duluth clerks."

That is one opinion and it is the one that everybody can have if they will make a little more effort for the Christmas good will that should characterize the season. Maybe oftener than not it is the customer who dawdles away time with "Now let me see's" when it is her business to know exactly, before she asks the attention of the clerk. Many customers forget that they are not the only person to be waited on during the course of the day and require too much individual attention from the hurried clerks. And then again nothing commands courtesy so much as courtesy so that if Duluth women will remember to shop politely as well as early, the ideal condition of things has arrived.

So many have spoken of the unusual grace and thoughtfulness of the Duluth clerks in serving the public that this column is glad to pass on the word of appreciation.

This week hundreds of Christmas bundles and Christmas letters will be prepared for the great day. The Duluth committee of the Anti-Tuberculosis society makes a special appeal to the women of Duluth to see that the Red Cross seals are affixed to every package and letter that goes through their hands. The committee has realized that it is the women who most of all have the arranging of the Christmas bundles and they want particularly that this great work be remembered by them. "A Million for Tuberculosis" is the motto of the national society; "Not one Christmas letter or bundle in Duluth without a Red Cross seal," is the motto of the Duluth committee. The manner in which the children of the city have shown their interest in the sale this year is wonderful. In one school 7,000 seals have already been sold and the returns are not all in as yet. In the schools of Duluth alone, 90,000 have been distributed.

MERRY CHRISTMAS · HAPPY NEW YEAR

Have you bought yours?

* * *

The Duluth shop windows alone are worthy of much attention. Those who can remember back, it seems but a few years, when three or four small establishments or even less represented Duluth's entire opportunity of getting in touch with the merchandise of the world, the present condition seems like a touch of fairyland. The brilliance of Superior street and the dazzling windows filled with almost anything and everything that the heart of man and especially the heart of woman could or should want, is due in large part to the enterprise of Duluth merchants. If there be any one in Duluth that the lure of Christmas has not touched a visit to the Duluth stores would surely cure his indifference. The stores are so well stocked and the stock is so attractively offered that shopping is a pleasure, and should be so regarded.

And do your Christmas shopping early.

"I. C. BUELL, ATTORNEY AT LAW," IS A MERE WOMAN—FIRST IN DULUTH BAR

"I. C. Buell, Attorney at Law," it reads on the door of 419 Lonsdale building, but the searcher in search of legal wisdom will have the surprise of his life if he opens the door expecting to meet the typical young attorney waiting for clients or the more experienced one also waiting for clients for in "I. C. Buell" Duluth has its first woman attorney.

Mrs. Buell has come to Duluth recently to practice law. She was admitted to the bar to practice in Minnesota and has been a practicing attorney in this state for four years. She has also been admitted to practice before the United States supreme court. Mrs. Buell has been graduated from the Minnesota school of law and from the St. Paul Law school. She has been the only woman attorney in the Twin Cities who has devoted her entire time to the profession. There are three other women lawyers but they combine their profession with other work.

"There is a prejudice, of course, against women in the profession," said Mrs. Buell today. "And in St. Paul it is very marked, in fact sometimes they're not quite courteous. I haven't found it so thus far in my week long residence in Duluth. Everyone has been quite delightful. And by the way I never saw, any place, so many men remove their hats in elevators in which there are women nor so many who hold the doors open for women. It's unusual, I think. I thought at first it must be some mistake, but it doesn't seem to be."

Mrs. Buell's father was a lawyer, her brother was a lawyer, and she cherished the idea of becoming one from her earliest years. "But I shouldn't want my son to become one," she said. "The law is too jealous a mistress. Graduation from a law school is the most positive commencement in the real sense of the word that I know. Study is everlasting and in the law you must not only know one thing but everything, if you would represent your client well. It is a never ending grind. I think there is easier work to be done."

MRS. I. C. BUELL.

In Mrs. Buell's first case she secured an acquittal for her client, whom she has since come to believe was as guilty as Charley Steele said his client was in "The Right of Way." "But I would have to believe in the integrity of my client or I couldn't go on with the case. The sense of confidence would have to be firm or I am sure I couldn't do my best," said Mrs. Buell.

And then the talk switched to hats.

Mrs. Buell has not yet tried a case before any of the Duluth courts, having used her time in getting adjusted to the new environment.

WHO'S HIS GIRL?

University Excited Over Kenneth Cant's Choice.

The Duluth friends of Kenneth Cant will be interested in the following item from the Minneapolis Journal:

"For three years, according to campus gossip, impartial in his regard for the fair sex, Kenneth Cant, member of Phi Kappa Psi and president of the Junior Ball association of the University of Minnesota, is now faced with the tremendous problem of choosing the girl who will lead the ball with him Feb. 21.

"Everything else is settled but that.

"Never in Mr. Cant's whole college career, or even before that, has he been so favored a guest. Sorority parties bid for him, fascinating co-eds smile at him across the class room; wherever he goes he is the veritable cynosure of all eyes, while all the girls hum in soft chorus:

"'For since he must choose some one, it might as well be me.'

"It is the all absorbing topic. Not a girl can point so much as to a photograph on his table, but everybody is sizing up the situation.

"Thus far, the Alpha Phi sorority heads the list of favorites, for Mr. Cant is proved to have attended two informals at the Alpha Phi house. He has been once each to the houses of Gamma Phi and Delta Gamma. He may have been elsewhere, but nobody is sure.

"Not a girl has yet been invited. Some one must be. If the news is not broken quickly, somebody is likely to die of suspense.

"The junior ball will be held at the Radisson hotel. The hotel management will take charge of the decoration, and many novel suggestions will be carried out. Supper will be served in the Chateau room. Tickets will sell for $7, a raise of $1 over last year, and two over the year before. The programs will be in the form of Japanese tapestries, and the monogram of each guest will be printed on the individual programs."

TALK ON TRAINING OF GIRLS FEATURE OF CIVIC BANQUET

Mrs. Fannie French Morse, superintendent of the Girls' Training School of Minnesota was the principal speaker at the Civic banquet, arranged by the Women's Council and held Saturday evening at the Spalding. Mrs. J. L. Washburn president of the Council presided and covers were laid for more than 100 Duluth men and women.

The work that Mrs. Morse has done in Minnesota has been watched with great interest especially by the club women of the state. In introducing Mrs. Morse who was heard for the first time in Duluth at Saturday's banquet, Mrs. Washburn spoke of the gratitude that Minnesota women felt for the act of the late Governor Johnson in using his influence in securing the separation of the boys' and girls' training school, and the securing of so fine a head for the girls' school as Mrs. Morse, who came from the East with years of most successful experience.

In her talk Mrs. Morse pointed out the progress that has been made in institutional work as being the greatest advance that is being made in educational work. "The time is passing," said the speaker, "when the institution is regarded as a means of punishment. Rather those who come under its care are there for education. The delinquent is no longer regarded as a criminal but as a victim of circumstance who deserves from the state all of the help and tender consideration that can be given in order to make up in part at least, what has been lacking in previous opportunity. The making of good citizens is the aim in institutional work, the developing of ability and usefulness, not the punishment for past deeds."

The world is facing a record making period, thought Mrs. Morse in this line of society's responsibility, and brotherhood is now the theme of effort. Individual study, a closer touch, the contact of personality are taking the place of the severe, impersonal and cold methods that the word institution usually evokes.

Lack of Real Home.

"The main resson for the need of a home for delinquent girls is the lack of a real home in the early part of their lives in nine-tenths of the cases coming to the state for care," said the speaker. "The effort in Minnesota will be to provide that home as nearly ideal as can be."

Mrs. Morse told of the plan which will be followed at Sauk Center, where the new school is now building. The cottage plan will be followed, and in each cottage twenty girls are to live. The living rooms and reception rooms will be for the girls for their family life. Each girl will have a room of her own, doing away with the old dormitory idea. The effort in discipline will be to impress upon the girls that results follow certain acts as inevitably as night follows day, and no one but the girl herself can save her. The consequences must be endured by the transgressor. The effort also will be to elevate the common things of life; to give her an ideal of life and conduct, and then teach her that she can realize it.

"This will cost a little more than old way," said Mrs. Morse in conclusion, "but can Minnesota afford anything less than the best in providing for the future of these unfortunate young beginners who will be citizens tomorrow?"

Mrs. Morse was heard with much interest. The other speakers of the evening dwelt on matters of more direct local interest. Mayor Cullum was the first speaker, and he talked of "The Commission Form of Government," which has received much attention of late. Courtenay Dinwiddie, new secretary of the Associated Charities, spoke of the society and its opportunity for helpfulness, and Mrs. Florence Lee, visiting nurse for the Anti-Tuberculosis society, told of her work. The last speaker for the evening was Watson S. Moore, who had as his subject "Some Municipal Needs."

Following the program of formal toasts Mrs. Washburn called on a few of the guests for informal talks. Among those who responded were Mrs. W. B. Woodbridge, Judge J. D. Ensign, E. A. Silberstein, E. W. Bohannon, R. E. Denfeld and J. L. Washburn.

Young Men and Maidens

By MISS EXPERIENCE

Pocket Money for Girls.

Only a girl knows what it is to be without money when all her friends have an ample allowance. Unless this girl has a sweet nature she is likely to grow embittered, envious or given to putting too much value on the power of coin. There are many instances where the lack of pocket money has made a "sponge" of a nice girl. She has not the funds to take her part in different gatherings, nor has she the courage to keep out of them. What is the result? Either she hints around until some generous friend "sets her up," or if the offers are spontaneous, she weakly allows herself to be treated until her sense of obligation is blunted and favors are taken as a right.

Blow Hot, Blow Cold.

Like many another lonely young man, W. T. has fallen in love with the young lady who ministers to his wants at his lodgings. But it seems that the said young lady is of a very peculiar disposition. Sometimes, as the song has it, she is merry and bright; at other times she is "funny" and standoffish, without any reason whatever. W. T. is "a sort of chap who can't stand this kind of thing," and he asks me what he ought to do.

Well, W. T., I don't supose it is any news to you to learn that women are strange kittle-cattle. "When they will, they will, you may depend on't; and when they won't, they won't, and there's an end on't." At the same time, if you are thinking of marriage—and I presume you are—it is only fair to warn you that strange dispositions are very difficult to live with; and if the young lady blows hot and cold, without any reason for such conduct, it is a fairly sure sign that she doesn't really love you.

Rule of Conduct.

In every relation of life we must bear and forbear, and try to have a good influence on all with whom we come in contact. We may not reach perfection, but we shall win the love of every one.

THE EVENING STORY

IN THE NICK OF TIME

By Sheila Macbean.

"I am very sorry, Mackenzie, but you yourself must se how impossible it is for me to keep you on. I must have a younger, stronger man to pull me—one who can take the hills a little quicker. I am sorry! No, don't give me any change—keep it!"

"Thank ye, mum!"

Humbly touching his shabby Scotch bonnet, Tam Mackenzie turned away, his gnarled, horny hands gripping the long handle of the bath-chair which had been his sole means of existence since, in company with half a dozen others, he had been dismissed by the cab proprietor in order to make room for a rank of smartly upholstered taxicabs, driven by men who were "younger and stronger."

Slowly and heavily he wended his way to the little two-room dwelling where the "auld woman" was waiting for him.

"Ye're late, Tam," she said, eyeing him anxiously. "I was feared for ye."

"With trembling hands he hung his bonnet on the nail behind the door, taking longer than usual about it that he might get his breath before he encountered her far-seeing gaze; then he turned towards her.

"Janet," he said slowly, "Missus Tryan is no' wanting me agen. I'm no quick enough at the hills. She gied me this for a gift. It will be a kind o' compensation she meant it for, I'm thinking."

In silence Janet Mackenzie locked at the five-shilling piece he had put upon the table.

"Ye'll no' be out the morrow, then," she said at length. "There's no orders for ye."

"I'll no' be going wi' the chair agen. Janet," was the dull rejoinder. "They'll no' have me now. I'm past my work—no' worth my shilling. It's my leg, Janet. I didna' feel it when I was wi' the cab; it's just the walking; I canna do it. It's yon auld wound I brocht hame wi' me from India. It's just that, Janet. But maybe I could be getting a crossing to tidy. I was a fine hand wi' the broom at the curling when I was a lad. Ye mind it, Janet? I had my broom wi' me the day I kissed ye under the auld rowan-tree abune the burn. Do ye mind it, lassie?"

"Ay, Tam; I'm minding it," was the low rejoinder; but Janet's eyes were absent. "Tam," she said suddenly, "we'll be having the bairn wi' us soon. It'll be a'richt then. He'll be seeing to it a' for us."

But Tam Mackenzie sat silent, his head resting on his hand. Year after year she had said the same words to him, bidding him take heart against the day when the bairn who had left them to seek the glittering shrine where Fortune blesses her pilgrims, should come back to them again. Whether he had ever reached his goal they never knew, but with the stubborn persistence characteristic of her Janet had refused to relinquish her hold on the stout cord of Hope.

Having thus spoken, she came to him and, bending, kissed his rough, grey hair.

"Hearten up a wee, Tam," she urged. "And just mind the kettle while I set the cloth."

Bravely she talked to him, bustling about the preparations for their frugal tea; but deep down in her breast her heart was aching for sorrow and for fear. The bath-chair had been the last barrier between them and want, and even the daily shillings had been inadequate to keep pace with the landlord's constant and impatient demands for an overdue rent. The five-shilling piece on the table would settle a week of it, but what was one week among five? And if they parted with it, where were they to get their daily bread, for the poor may not purchase even stale loaves on credit.

Setting down the cup of tea he had so manfully tried to empty, Tom Mackenzie rose to his feet.

"I'm thinking we'd best be taking down tho caird, Janet," he said simply. "It's no' richt deceiving folk."

Then, without waiting for her reply, he limped to the door, outside of which was nailed the notice bearing the information that within "A Man and Bath-Chair" might be hired.

The wind blew his grey hair in wisps across his furrowed brow, a chill drizzle swept by him as he stood there tugging doggedly at the rusty nails. With the card in his hand at last, he was about to re-enter the house when a rough voice accosted him, and turning he faced the sour countenance of the landlord, who knew no mercy.

"A word with you, Mackenzie," he said. "Look sharp, man! Lead the way indoors! It's raining!"

Lifting the latch, Tam Mackenzie entered, and, without troubling to remove his hat, the man followed him into the kitchen.

"Look here," he said roughly, "you have got to go. I can't afford to wait any longer for the rent!"

"What's that ye're saying, Mister Samuelson?"

Like an old war-horse at the sound of the bugle, Janet Mackenzie confronted him, her eyes flashing in her worn face.

"You canna afford to wait for sax weeks o' five shillings!" she cried scornfully. "You that's got your motey car and your fur coat an a'!" What will a year o' five shillings be tae ye?"

"That's exactly it, my good woman," was the cynical rejoinder. "If I had not taken care of the weekly five shillings due to me, I should have been minus the car and the fur coat. Every man for himself, you know. I have been extremely lenient and patient, but I have myself to think of, and this day week I will have you turned out—and I'll keep your rotten furniture into the bargain!"

"Would ye, then—would ye! If my son Jock was here, I'd like tae hear ye say sic' words to him. He'll be coming the morrow, or maybe the day after. He'll be showing ye the day tae treat honest folk that's hard put to it—and no blame o' their ain! Just you wait till my bairn comes, Maister Samuelson!"

"I have waited too long for this bairn of yours!" he said sharply. "It is not good enough. You must try something a little more substantial if you want to be believed. This day week—remember!"

The door slammed behind him, and for a moment not a sound broke the silence; then the card which had had its day slipped from Tam Mackenzie's fingers.

"Janet," he said hoarsely, "what way did you say that aboot the bairn? It wasna true! He's no' coming the morrow—nor the day after."

And Janet Mackenzie hung her head.

"I ken that, Tam," she muttered, "but I just had tae say it. It gied me strength tae stare him out. God forgi'e me! I'm a lying buddy."

For a moment he stared at her; then, stooping, he picked up the card, tearing it through the center, and casting the halves into the heart of the waning fire.

One by one the days of the week slipped by, and Janet scrubbed and scoured while Tam limped the streets seeking jobs that never came.

"It'll just be the union, lassie," he said slowly, as they sat togetner on the Friday evening. "It'll be a' richt yonder, and we'll be seeing ane anither the whiles."

His voice broke, and hastily he raised his hand, shading his blurred eyes; but Janet was not looking at him, her gaze being fixed on the old black-bound Bible lying on the chimney-piece.

"Tam," she said suddenly, "there's the Book, Tam. There's a' things in it—a' things wise, and a' things true, and a' things kind. Gi'e it into my hands, auld man. Maybe we'd be finding some guid advice—something that wud be telling us what to be doing. I mind weel the minister in the wee kirk where we were wed. I mind him telling us that we would never want for a friend in oor need gin we have the Book. Do you mind the words, Tam?"

Feverishly her toil-worn fingers turned the thin pages; the clock ticked loudly above them; somewhere down the street a chestnut-seller cried his wares, his voice drowned by the warning scream of a passing motor; and then the pages ceased to fluter, and Janet Mackenzie looked across the hearth.

"Tam," she said tremulously—"Tam, we maun ask, and we'll hae it given tae us. It's here in the Book, and it maun be true—it maun be best. It maun be what we're to do, for it's the word o' the Lord, and He kens a' things; come away, Tam!"

Slowly, painfully, the old man got down upon his knees, and together, in the faith of little children, they asked that it might be given them.

"Can anyone direct me to Tom Mackenzie's house?" The chattering group gathered in amazement at the tall, well-dressed stranger in the doorway.

"Tam Mackenzie?" repeated the man behind the counter. "First, turn tae the richt, and two doors doon; but ye'd best look sharp, or ye won't find him. Case of eviction, mister. Got behind wi' the rent, and then the auld chap lost his job—bath-chair man he waur but he weren't no good wi' his gameleg. So, ye be thinking o' that, mister, ye'd best gang tae Templeton's at the head o' the street."

The voluntary advice was lost on the stranger, who was running over the cobbles like a man racing for his life. At the sound of his approach, Janet Mackenzie rose from her chair, her hand on her husband's shoulder.

"Hearten a wee, Tam," she whispered, "It's a' richt. God kens what's best, auld man, and we'll be seeing ane anither whiles."

The door was on the latch. They had left it so sooner than be forced to open to the bailiff and his men.

Baring his head, the stranger stood upon the threshold. "Mither,"—the old familiar word broke from lips that had well-nigh forsaken the Scottish tongue—"mither, do ye no' remember me?"

For one tense moment she stood motionless, her eyes devouring every line of the face she had pictured so often; then with a low cry, her hands were stretched towards him.

"My bairn—my wee son Jock! Tam—Tam, it's a' richt! The guid God was hearing when we asket, and He's gie'd us—He's gie'd us the bairn. And I'm no 'a lying buddy, Tam—I'm no' that!"

Ministers of state, men of letters, soldiers, sailors, bishops, princes turned away in disappointment from the portals of the palatial hotel where Sir John Mackenzie's name was entered in the visitor's list. The famous explorer was unavoidably absent on a visit to his parents in the North.

ON THE IRON RANGES

HIBBING CLERK OFFERED HONOR

Assistant Superintendency of Swedish Army Stores Is Tendered Him.

Hibbing, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—From clerk in a mining office to the exalted position of assistant superintendent of the Swedish army stores is the promotion offered Nore Skjold.

Mr. Skjold, who is well known in mining circles here, was for some time on the clerical staff of the Oliver Mining company in Hibbing. During the strike, the company, appreciating his military knowledge, placed him in charge of all their defenses in the Burt and Sellers pits. He was born in Sweden and comes from one of the old aristocratic families of that country. After a good preliminary education he went to the University of Cambridge, England. He has had considerable military service, having served as an officer in the Swedish cavalry. In addition to this he also held a commission in the British army and served in the South African war, after which he returned to Canada with the rank of captain, in his own regiment. On his return he received a letter of congratulation from H. R. H. Prince Carl of Sweden. He says it has been a hard school here on the iron ranges, but the experience is well worth the price. He takes up his new duties during the first week of next month.

BIG CONTRACT FOR STRIPPING

Immense Amount of Over-Burden to Be Removed Near Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A stripping contract of considerable magnitude, that will closely affect Hibbing, will be let soon. This contract will call for the stripping of a property east of Hibbing, not much farther from the business section than the big Buffalo and Susquehanna strippings.

It is said that the total amount of overburden to be removed will be more than half of that contracted for on the Buffalo and Susquehanna strippings. This would make the new contract call for the removal of 4,000,000 yards or more.

As far as can be learned at this time the property to be stripped is not the Webb.

HIBBING COURT DEC. 19.

Large Number of Personal Injury Suits to Be Tried.

Hibbing, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—District court will open in Hibbing Dec. 19. Owing to a large number of civil cases on the docket, the session will probably be protracted. Only two cases are set for trial on the criminal calendar. Mike Rudelioke will be tried for shoting a Hibbing policeman. The accused was furiously riding up and down the street on horseback. The police endeavored to stop his wild career, and finally he barricaded himself in his cottage on the Columbia location, and it was only after a fierce struggle that he was taken prisoner.

The other criminal case grew out of a shooting affray in which the victim barely escaped with his life. The accused is R. E. Stoner. There are fifteen personal injury cases for trial. This week Judge Hughes is holding court in Two Harbors.

The election contest for the position of county attorney for Lake county will be thrashed out at this session. Judge Hughes has in addition a calendar of some fourteen cases which are set down for trial.

HIBBING LICENSE MATTER GOES OVER.

Hibbing, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—(The special meeting of the council called for the consideration of the revoking of the license held by M. Valerio was adjourned on Saturday evening until the regular meeting Tuesday night because of the absence of several members, the only trustees putting an appearance being Messrs. W. C. Barrett and F. S. Woolfan. The absence of President Wierick will, in all probability, cause the matter to be held over till the latter part of this week, as it is the feeling of the various members of the council that nothing should be done until his return with regard to the matter. The doctor is at Mount Clemens, Mich., on a vacation.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS IN NIGHT SCHOOL

Myers Public School, Near Chisholm, Being Fitted for Night Work.

Chisholm, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Warner, who has been a resident of Chisholm and vicinity for three years, left for Kansas City, Mo., his former home. While in Chisholm, Mr. Warner has been in the employ of different mining companies as a steam shoveler.

The Knights of Pythias lodge has chosen these officers: Chancellor commander, Leon A. Taylor; vice chancellor commander, D. C. Hackett; prelate, Stanley Schenk; master of work, Ed Rupp; keeper of records and seals, Herbert Stulberg; master of exchequer, W. M. Pratt; master of arms, Leonard Krause; inside guard, E. I. Casey; outside guard, Joseph F. Shellman; trustee for three years, Harry H. Austin. The members are planning on a grand ball in the near future.

Charles Twinquist, wanted on a charge of passing worthless checks and later arrested in Virginia, has been taken to the county jail in Duluth to await trial.

The Monroe office of the Oliver Iron Mining company is being altered and enlarged to make room for the clerks of the Leonard and Glen mines, who are to have their offices in the Monroe building.

The mine offices at the Leonard and Glen mines will be discontinued as such after the present contemplated change has been made.

Rev. Mr. Edstrom of the Swedish Lutheran church in Hibbing, preached in Tetzloff's hall Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Myers public school, graded, and located one mile east of Chisholm, has ben wired and fitted up with electrical fixtures for the accommodation of the men who are attending the night school in that location. The electricity is to be furnished from the Myers mine. After the electric lights are in the attendance of the night school will increase nearly one-half.

The Mesaba Range Power company has completed the installment of the new 350 horse power steam engine, since which time the lights of the village have greatly improved.

A new lighting and ventilating plant has been installed in the high school building.

Forty women friends of Mrs. George Howenstine met at her home on Tuesday afternoon to give her a farewell reception.

The Howenstines have sold their home in Chisholm to W. Holder of the Shenango, and are to make their future home in Proctor, Minn. Mrs. Howenstine was made the recipient of a handsome carving set.

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph Jerresatti, a peddler, who is alleged to have abandoned his wife and family some ten days ago, was apprehended in New York city through a telegram sent by Chief of Police Ellis Walsh to the police of New York. It was the intention of Jerresatti to sail for Servia, his native country, last Saturday, but he was detained by the New York police and is being held subject to advices from County Attorney Norton.

Chief Walsh has wired the New York authorities to ascertain if Jeresatti is willing to be brought back without the issuance of extradition papers. Jerresatti was accompanied by his eldest son. He is a cousin of the Jerresatti Bros., well known merchants of this city.

Nashwauk, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The contract for the removal of the over-burden from the Crosby mine has been completed by Jones Bros., of Cincinnati, and the contractors paid off the men preparatory to closing up for the winter. The equipment will be left at the mine for the winter, when it will be removed to other jobs that the contractors have taken under hand. The paying of the men was completed Saturday, when the local superintendent, John McCartney, left for his home in Ohio.

NO POLITICIANS ASKED QUESTIONS

Expected Heckling of Socialist Speaker at Virginia Did Not Develop.

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The invitation extended by local Socialists to politicians of other parties to be on hand in Socialist hall Saturday evening at the meeting of the Virginia locals and ask questions of the speakers was not accepted. There was no heckling of the speakers by members of the other parties.

The hall was crowded, many women being present.

Ralph Karngold, one of the most forceful Socialist speakers, was the principal speaker.

The hall was filled when J. W. Dailey, the chairman, made the opening address. He spoke briefly of local conditions and lauded woman suffrage, saying in advocacy of the latter, "We will never have clean politics and honest government until the women are given the right to vote."

He also assured the women that their presence was highly appreciated. He promised that in the near future a woman advocate of Socialism would deliver an address here.

In introducing Mr. Karngold, Mr. Dailey paid a compliment to him as one who had aided chiefly in bringing about the Socialist victory in both Milwaukee and Milwaukee county. Mr. Karngold spoke until nearly midnight, holding the attention of every one and being frequently applauded. A large amount of literature was distributed, fifty members of the Virginia locals pledging themselves to distribute 2,000 pieces of literature a month between now and the next city election. Mr. Karngold will return to Virginia again in January to speak on conditions from his viewpoint.

HIBBING IS HEALTHY.

Conditions Have Vastly Improved in the Range Community.

Hibbing, Minn., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.—Critics of local health conditions will have to cease their carping, according to the report of the city health officer, Dr. C. E. Prudden. Typhoid fever has been reduced to a minimum, only one death being reported from the dread disease since the end of October. That the general health of Hibbing is as good as could be wished for is shown by the fact that only one case of contagious disease was reported during November.

This entirely disproves any fancied danger from the city's water supply. The samples of water taken from the well and sent to the state laboratory were tested and found to be bacteriologically pure. This does not say that the water is chemically pure, as it has been shown to contain calcium carbolate, but this is not supposed to be in any way injurious, and has even been claimed to possess certain health-giving advantages.

No. 1 division easily defeated the other scouts both on the journey to and from the Troy mine. The No. 1 division made exceptionally good time on the return, making a short cut through the Fayal mine pit. The scouts wore banners furnished by the domestic department of the high school and carired flags and signs. A short halt was made at the Troy mine, where the scouts searched for Christmas trees and also inspected the woods there.

CONTINUED COLD

One could hardly imagine a more beautiful winter day than yesterday. Winter in the North does not mean high temperatures and slushy walks. It means clear, crisp, fresh air, with a bright, cold sun in the day time and a silver moon at night. Yesterday was ideal, except to the cold blooded. The highest temperature was 8 deg. Last night, the mercury dropped to 8 deg. below zero and the wind rattled the windows some. Today is cloudy and the weather man promises milder weather tonight and tomorrow.

Snow fell a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:45 and it will set at 4:19 this evening, giving eight hours and thirty-four minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"During the last forty-eight hours a high pressure condition of marked strength advanced its center from Montana to the Red river valley, causing zero temperatures over Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Western Wisconsin and Western Ontario during either Saturday night or Sunday night. Since Sunday morning, however, a low pressure area that developed over Alberta, has resulted in a sharp rise in temperature to above zero over that province and Alberta, and also in Montana and the Western Dakotas. This depression has also caused snow or rain over Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, California, Oregon and Idaho. A depression center Sunday morning to the northward of Lake Superior and which was then moving eastward, caused snow in the Lake region, New York and Pennsylvania. The easterly movement of the Alberta depression will result in milder and more or less threatening weather at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

WONDERED WHY.

Found the Answer Was "Coffee."

Many pale, sickly persons wonder for years why they have to suffer so, and eventually discover that the drug —caffeine—in coffee is the main cause of the trouble.

"I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. I never had much flesh and often wondered why I was always so pale, thin and weak.

"About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly take sufficient nourishment to sustain life.

"During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it.

"After awhile I came to the conclusion that coffee was hurting me, and decided to give it up and try Postum. I didn't like the taste of it at first, but when it was made right—boiled until dark and rich—I soon became very fond of it.

"In one week I began to feel better. I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, headache spells entirely gone.

"My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 148 pounds. I attribute my present health to the life-giving qualities of Postum."

New Commerce Court.

The commerce court is a court created in the amendment in the interstate commerce act passed in June last by this congress. The law provides for the appointment of five additional circuit judges by the president who are to constitute the court, and no two of whom shall be appointed from the same judicial circuit. The judges so appointed are to serve on the commerce court, and after being relieved from that service are to be assigned to work on the circuits as circuit judges.

The law requires the president to designate in the first appointments the term of years during which the judge appointed shall serve on the commerce court, and the judge designated to sit for five years on this court is to act as the presiding judge. Thereafter the court is to be composed of five judges to be designated by the supreme court from the circuit judges of the United States.

This court is thus composed of the present chairman of the interstate commerce commission, two United States district judges, one judge of the United States court of customs appeals who was formerly a United States district judge, and one judge from the appellate court of Illinois.

Disposition Among Circuits.

In the official nominations sent to the senate today the members of the new commerce court are designated as additional circuit judges. In carrying this out, Mr. Knapp is named as a judge for the Second, Mr. Archbald for the Third, Mr. Hunt for the Ninth, Mr. Carland for the Eighth and Mr. Mack for the Seventh judicial circuits.

Judge Carland of South Dakota, named as one of the new judges of the court of commerce, is a Democrat, having been appointed to the bench by President Cleveland. His appointment makes the complexion of the commerce court three Republicans and two Democrats.

Carland a Democrat.

President Taft hesitated between the appointment of Judge Carland and Judge Arthur Denison of Michigan. Last night the latter was thought to have been his final selection. To have appointed Judge Denison, however, would have resulted in making three circuit judges from Michigan, whereas the president was anxious for a more equitable distribution.

Judge Willis Van Devanter was born in Indiana and is 51 years old. He was a graduate of Asbury, now Depauw, university, and a graduate from the Cincinnati Law school of 1881. After three years of practice in Indiana he moved to Cheyenne, Wyo., where he was commissioned to revise the Wyoming statutes in 1886; city attorney 1887-1888; member territorial legislature and chairman of its judiciary committee, 1888; chief justice of the supreme court of Wyoming from 1889 by appointment while it was a territory, and by election after it became a state.

Resigned Wyoming Office.

He resigned from the Supreme court to resume the practice of law. In 1897 he was appointed assistant attorney general of the United States and assigned to the department of the interior. In February, 1903, he was appointed United States circuit judge of the Eighth judicial circuit. He was a professor of equity pleading and practice, and equity jurisprudence in Columbia university.

Judge Joseph Rucker Lamor is 53 years old, was born in Georgia, educated at the University of Georgia, the Washington and Lee university and at Bethany college. He was admitted to the bar in 1879 and practiced at Augusta. He was a member of the Georgia legislature for three years. He was a commissioner to codify the laws of Georgia in 1895. In 1903 he became an associate justice of the supreme ciurt of Georgia, where he served two and one-half years and then resigned. He is one of the leaders of the Southern bar.

No Sign of Opposition.

There was no evidence in the senate today that the nominations would meet with opposition. Members of the senate judiciary committee had received notice that the appointments were to be made and at the regular meeting of the committee no objections were raised in conversation by the members, which of course was purely informal. All of the court nominations were referred to the judiciary committee.

Advised Against Hughes.

The announcement that Justice White was to be the new chief justice caused some surprise because it had been generally understood for somtime that Justice Charles F. Hughes was slated for that high honor. In the last two or three days, however, it became known that a change in the head of the supreme court slate might be made.

Some of the president's closest advisors argued with him that Justice Hughes' experience at the bar had not been sufficient to warrant his promotion at this time to the highest judicial position in the country. They claim that Mr. Hughes' reputation as a lawyer had been gained principally in his conduct of two legislative investigations.

They agreed with the president that everything pointed to a most brilliant career on the bench for the former governor. At the same time they offered the argument that Justice Hughes was the youngest man on the bench and that his opportunity for promotion would come later when he would have had the advantage of the maturing experience of having served several years on the bench.

Hughes Taft's Favorite.

It is said the president sees in Mr. Hughes most of the qualities that he believes essential in a chief justice. Young, vigorous, possessing great executive ability and with progressive ideas, Mr. Hughes was looked upon as the man who could do much to bring about the reform in judicial proceedings in this country. Mr. Taft regards court reforms as the crying need of the United States. He had made strong representations on the subject in his message to congress and is hopeful that something substantial can be accomplished in the course of his administration.

The president has been careful in making his selections of judges, and he finally was impressed by the objection of inexperience of Justice Hughes, especially on the bench. Always coupled with the criticism of Mr. Hughes as a chief justice was the highest praise for the former governor as a man and as an associate justice. No appointment the president has made has caused more favorable comment.

Opposition Was Widespread.

The opposition to Mr. Hughes at this time on the ground of inexperience came not only from the president's advisers in Washington, but came from the bar and from the judges of the various courts. Justice Hughes already is very popular among the judges of the supreme court, and it is not believed they took any part in the arguments placed before the president.

Eliminating Justice Hughes and all suggestions made from outside the court, President Taft, it is said, turned naturally to Justice White. In doing so he disregarded all political considerations. Justice White is a Democrat and was born in Louisiana. He was appointed to the supreme court by Grover Cleveland and is 65 years old.

So far as Washington can recall, this is the first time that a chief justice of a political faith opposite to that of the administration has ever been appointed.

White Former Confederate.

The president has the highest regard for Justice White both as a man and as a jurist. As a member of the supreme court it has fallen to his lot to participate in some of the most famous cases in the history of the tribunal. Although a Confederate soldier and a Democrat, Justice White is said to hold probably the most clearly marked ideas of federalism of any of the supreme court justices. He was with the government in all of the so-called insular cases, involving the Philippines and other island possessions.

He rendered a minority opinion against the government contentions in the Northern Securities case and also was with the minority of the court in voting to sustain the constitutionality of the income tax law.

Justice White has been on the supreme court for sixteen years and is now the oldest justice in commission whose age is less than 70 years. He graduated from Georgetown university. In addition to practicing law in Louisiana, he was a sugar planter. He served in the Louisiana legislature as a senator, served for a number of years on the state supreme court and subsequently was elected to the United States senate. He was serving his first term in that body when President Cleveland appointed him to the supreme court.

Van Devanter and Oil Cases.

Judge Van Devanter participated in the now famous Standard Oil decision rendered in the Eighth circuit. Mr. Taft debated for some time as to the propriety of taking a judge from this circuit and elevating him to the supreme bench, where he must pass again upon the evidence in the Standard Oil cases.

Judge Van Devanter is regarded as a high authority in land cases. He served on the Wyoming supreme court for several years and for seven years was an assistant attorney general.

Judge Lamar of Georgia has personally been known to the president for several years. Mr. Taft early decided that one of the new associate justices should be a Democrat. Judge Lamar served two and a half years on the supreme court of Georgia and is now one of the leading members of the Southern bar. His appointment will bring the Democratic representation on the supreme court up to three members, the others being the new chief justice, Mr. White, and Justice Lurton of Tennessee.

THREE FROM THE WEST

Walker, Benbrook and Wells on Camp's All-American Team.

Expert Says New Rules Have Eliminated Many Undesirable Features.

CAMP'S ALL-AMERICAN ELEVEN

Ends—Kilpatrick, Yale; Wells, Michigan.
Tackles—McKay, Harvard; Walker, Minnesota.
Guards — Benbrook, Michigan; Fisher, Harvard.
Center—Cozens, Pennsylvania.
Quarterback — Sprackling, Brown.
Halfbacks — Wendell, Harvard; Pendleton, Princeton.
Fullback—Mercer, Pennsylvania.

Three Westerners won places on Walter Camp's All-American eleven, which appears in the current issue of Collier's Weekly, while several other members of Western teams won honorable mention, and the style of play of the leading Western elevens met with a deal of favorable comment. Benbrook of Michigan is placed at guard for the second time, Wells of Michigan awarded one of the end positions, while Walker of Minnesota is given one of the tackles.

Besides selecting his all-star eleven, Camp also comments on the season's play, the big games and the small number of injuries which resulted from the modifications made by the rules committee last year. Camp asserts that the elimination of the push and pull of the man with the ball did a lot toward lessening fatalities, and it also tended to open up the attack more by removing the assaults from the tackles

Weird Season.

Mr. Camp writes on the new rules: "A strange season indeed, and one of weird happenings. But in spite of all this, the play was consistently interesting and brought out at times some very good quality of work both in individual prowess and team tactics. Best of all, the pounding on the tackle, which had been the most serious feature of the season of 1909 was practically eliminated by the new rule forbidding pushing and pulling, and locked interference. This gave the man playing this formed star position a chance once more to bring out infinite possibilities of the place instead of merely standing up to be pounded to a jelly or made a chopping block of.

"I regard this as, by all means, the best feature introduced into the rules and I believe that all those who care for the eventual welfare of the sport will agree on this point. The difficulty surrounding it was that the officials urged (I have it from the board of officials) by coaches not to rule too harshly on this point, allowed a certain amount of pushing and pulling and holding to creep into the play, and hence gave an undue and unusual inducement to the infringement of the rules.

Officials Given Leeway.

"This brought about an anomaly in that the officials who were supposed to enforce the rules found every pressure exerted upon them to overlook occasional lapses. Such a state of affairs is the worst possible thing for any sport, because if the rules are not made to be enforced the rules must be wrong, and if the officials find that they are not backed up in strict rulings their authority will speedily cease and the game revert to a lower standard.

"Not only have these rules eliminating pushing and pulling been thoroughly successful whenever enforced and reduced to a minimum last year assaults on the tackles, thus going far toward lessening the danger of accident, but they have saved the rest of the team from that stupid, dazed condition that arose from this style of play. At the same time these rules have rendered the game far more a square sport in the sense that one man was made a target for the united assault of five men massed and going with such a cruel force as to make the play a really unfair factor. The feature of the rules should be preserved at all hazards, as well as the kindred one for bidding interlocking interference.

Cites Salvation of Game.

"Upon these rules depends the real salvation of the game from the two great objections of unfair and brutal play. Something more should be done, however, to render the task of officials less onerous and the comprehension of the average spectator more effective.

"It is rather a strange commentary upon the use of the forward pass that Yale and Michigan should each have won one of their most important contests of the year by means of this play, just as Yale won its main contest with one of these plays in the initial year of its introduction, while others, though using this play more frequently, usually lost rather than gained through the employment of the forward pass, just as Harvard did in its chief contest in 1909.

"The play is a treacherous one, and the occasions for its use are so dependent upon the immediate conditions surrounding it at the moment that it should be placed in a special category by every quarterback and captain.

"Chicago, probably its strongest advocate, has fared badly this season, although this may be traceable to lack of material. Pennsylvania, another of those who were credited with especially desiring its retention, has perfected a far more effective play against her opponents in the shape of a running onside kick. And Pennsylvania should have especial credit for this achievement in view of the fact that it takes harder and more conscientious work to perfect this play."

Michigan Surpassed Gophers.

In regard to the Gophers, Mr. Camp writes:

"In the Middle West Minnesota came from the first with a great rush. The shift plays of Dr. Williams, former Yale back, later used at New Haven, proved too much for Minnesota's opponents up to the time of the great game. In fact, it is probable that the early promise of the team, coupled with the unexpected weakness of the opponents on its schedule, cost Minnesota her important match with Michigan, for her team had never before been even headed.

"When Michigan checked her it was too new an experience, and Yost's men won with the forward passes at the end. Outside of Michigan and Minnesota, Illinois should have the credit for developing an exceedingly good team. Chicago dropped still further down, as must any team that has no backbone of attack outside the forward passes and tricks."

TOM MADDEN WILL REFEREE

Veteran Will Be Third Man at Hackenschmidt-Lehto Match.

Tom Madden, the veteran referee and one of the best posted men on ahtletics in general at the Head of the Lakes, will referee the Hackenschmidt-Lehto finsh match tomorrow evening. Tom Madden has been the third man on the canvas at some of the biggest and best matches ever held in this city.

Hackenschmidt will, if he arrives on schedule, reach Duluth early tomorrow morning. With his two trainers, who work with the Russian Lion on the road and in the training room, and his manager, Hack, will be quartered at the St. Louis hotel.

Letters from the Copper country, received at the Lyceum theater box office, state that a large number of wrestling followers are coming down from the district to see the big match. So intense is the interest in the Copper country, that four papers have subscribed to a wire service. A wire will be run into the Lyceum and bulletin service given of the match.

Before the main event of tomorrow evening, Mauritz Harris, the crack lightweight of Superior, and Joe Fish, one of the cleverest little wrestlers ever appearing at the Head of the Lakes, will wrestle. The semi-windup will be between Chris Person and Ole Johnson, the latter being the big man from across the bay.

This is one of the best cards ever arranged for a wrestling show in this city. The first preliminary will go on at 8:30. The first and second teams of the Central high school football squad will occupy the upper boxes as the guests of the management.

GOPHERS WANT TRAINING TABLE RE-ESTABLISHED.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 12.—Unless the Western conference accedes to certain demands of the University of Minnesota the Gophers may pull out of the "Big Eight." That is the ultimatum as sounded by Minnesota students.

The big thing on which the Minnesota people are kicking is the abolition of the training table in the conference schools. A movement is on foot among the students of the Maroon and Gold institution whereby they hope they can secure not only a training table but a trainer as well. The student body believes it has been slighted in the rulings prepared and passed by the conference, feeling that they have had no voice in the matter at all.

The students plan to hold several mass meetings in the near future at which their grievances will be voiced and plans formulated to be presented to the athletic board and the board of regents. The movement has reached such a stage at the university that already there is talk of dropping out of the conference unless the training table is granted.

It is pointed out that Michigan has the training table and has done well with it and the student body and its supporters can see no reason why the members of the conference should not be granted the same privilege. The Gophers plan to present their plea in the strongest sort of a way when the conference representatives meet in Minneapolis next June.

POWERS MAY BE OUSTED FROM EASTERN LEAGUE.

New York, Dec. 12.—Whether P. T. Powers, president of the Eastern league, will be re-elected to the chieftaincy of that organization, was the main question for decision by the Eastern league magnates at their annual meeting here today. The opposition to President Powers is said to have the support of five clubs—Toronto, Montreal, Buffalo, Baltimore and Newark. The candidate believed to have the backing of the organization is named Edward G. Barrow of Toronto, who managed the Montreal team last year.

Today's Eastern league meeting starts a series of important baseball gatherings in this city which will continue throughout the better part of the week. Magnates of the big leagues are already gathering for the annual meeting of the National league, which convenes tomorrow, while the American league's annual gathering will take place on Wednesday. No meeting of the national commission has been called, but its members may take advantage of their simultaneous presence here to hold a session.

PARRES SIGNS FOR BATTLE IN WISCONSIN.

Jack Parres, middleweight fighter, who has engaged in a number of hard fights in this section of the country, has signed articles to fight Bill Summers, a Wisconsin middleweight, ten rounds before one of the Wisconsin fight clubs.

Parres has been training for several weeks and states that he is in the best condition. He will fight Dec. 27.

FIRST GAMES FOR THE HERALD TROPHY.

Regular curling play for The Herald trophy will begin this evening. Rinks will be registered at the clubhouse. The season will be formally opened this evening by the play for the first trophy event, and from now until the big spiel there will be an immense amount of interest in the game.

Ski Riders Out.

Ski riders were out on the hill yesterday getting in shape for the meet here next month. There will be a meet in Minneapolis before the one here, and some of the crack riders will enter. The definite date of the national meet at Chippewa Falls has not been set. It is expected that a meeting of the directors of the association will be held in the near future and a series of dates arranged.

FOWNES AT HEAD OF LIST

Holder of Three Championships Leads Sixteen Best Golfers in Country.

W. J. Travis in Second Place—Harry G. Legg Is Tenth.

New York, Dec. 12.—W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburg, holder of the national Pennsylvania and Western Pennsylvania championships, heads the list of the best sixteen golfers prepared by H. L. Fitzpatrick, who has made a similar estimate annually since 1901. Fownes has not been beaten in a match except on his appearance at Pinehurst in April, when he lost to W. J. Travis and W. R. Tuckerman.

The former British-American champion W. J. Travis is in second place. As the winner of the North and South title and of many tournaments, he has played up to his best form. Those beaten in matches by Travis include Fownes, Evans, Herreshoff and Travers. The Western open champion, Charles Evans, Jr., runner-up in the Western and nationa lsemi-finals, is placed third and leads Fred Herreshoff, medalist in the national and Metropolitan amateur championship. Two Westerners get fifth and sixth places, Mason Phelps, Western amateur champion and Robert F. Hunter, inter-collegiate champion.

Byers Is Reinstated.

E. M. Byers, omitted last year for the only time, because he had withdrawn from the game on account of his brother's death, is again rated in view of his medal play in tournaments at Pittsburg and as a former amateur champion. H. Chandler Egan has played only in the national, for which, on account of the congested course, he did not qualify. The next day Egan did 73 at Braeburn on his first sight of the course.

Active players have been rated above him, but Egan is fourteenth and over T. M. Sherman, son of the vice president, who won three tournaments and was put out in the first round of the national, and Jerome D. Travis, former champion, who was strong in the early months of the season.

There are nine on the list who belong to clubs that are members of the Western as well as the United States Golf association. The other seven are Easterners. Albert Seckel, Chicago, is the most prominent of the players dropped from last year's list. To have rated him would have been a chronicle of defeats, and this is also true of D. F. Sawyer of Chicago. A junior of local fame, Gardner W. Whites, New York, just misses a rating, and will get in next year if his game keeps up.

The national sixteen follow:

1—W. C. Fownes, Jr., Pittsburg; 2—W. J. Travis, New York; 3—Charles Evans, Jr., Chicago; 4—Fred Herresnoff, New York; 5—Mason Phelps, Chicago; 6—R. F. Hunter, Chicago; 7—W. K. Wood, Chicago; 8—W. R. Tuckerman, Stockbridge, Mass., and Washington; 9—R. Gardner, Chicago; 10—Harry C. Legg, Minneapolis; 11—E. M. Byers, Pittsburg; 12—P. W. Whittemore, Boston; 13—F. S. Douglas, New York; 14—H. Chandler Egan, Chicago; 15—T. M. Sherman, Utica; 16—J. D. Travers, New York.

BASEBALL WEEK IN NEW YORK

National, American and Eastern Leagues to Hold Annual Meeting.

New York, Dec. 12.—This will be baseball week in New York. Within the next four days the club owners of three leagues, two of them major, will meet here in annual convention, elect officers, discuss amendments to the rules and map out their plans for 1911.

Two of the leagues—the National and the Eastern—will elect presidents. In the American Ban Johnson still has nineteen years to serve of a twenty-year term at $25,000 a year. Thus far there has been little talk of any opposition to "Tom" Lynch, president of the Nationals, but the friends of Edward G. Barrow of Toronto, who managed the Montreal team last year, will put him forward against "Pat" Powers for the leadership of the Eastern league.

DAVIDSON TAKES LAST RACE FROM BRYANT.

Harley Davidson, champion roller skater of the world, and perhaps the fastest and cleverest performer on the rollers that the country has yet produced, concluded his engagement in this city Saturday evening, winning his race with Frank Bryant, the Duluth youngster who has made such a good showing on the rollers. The race was skated in 2:32 3-5, and was very exciting all the way through.

Davidson possesses more speed than Bryant, but the little fellow has nothing to be ashamed of. He made a better showing than some of the flyers who have gained greater reputations the little Duluth kid.

While here Davidson showed that he is a master of both speed and fancy skating. There is probably no man in the country today whom this veteran of the ice blade, bicycle and rollers cannot defeat handily. His skating was a revelation to the followers of the game here.

Catholic Club Meeting.

A meeting of those interested in the completion of the organization of the Catholic club of the parochial school will be held this evening at Fourth street and Second avenue. The specifications for outfitting have been completed and it is expected that the contract for the work will be let this evening. The gymnasium will be modern in every detail.

Athletics Lose.

Havana, Dec. 12.—The Almendares nine defeated the Philadelphia Americans by a score of 2 to 1 yesterday.

Purdue Captain.

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 12.—Roy W. Tavey, left halfback on the 1910 'Varsity football team at Purdue, was elected captain of the 1911 eleven Sturday. Tavey is a junior. His home is in Ogden, Utah.

GOSSIP PICKED UP ALONG THE SPORTING HIGHWAY

Three Western Men on All-American Team — The Curling Season Opens With a Dash—The Training Table Wanted — Ball Players and the Footlights

(BY BRUCE.)

WALTER CAMP'S CHOOSING OF THREE WESTERN PLAYERS FOR his mythical All-American team, which, by the way, has come to be looked upon as the only true representative All-American team in as much as Mr. Camp is the only Eastern critic who comes West to see the teams in this section of the country perform, means more than ever that the Western teams are at last being recognized by the dean of the game and its most observing and discerning critic.

Followers of Minnesota football will be sorely disappointed over the fact that Johnny McGovern failed to get on the team. Sprackling of Brown may have outclassed the Minnesota wonder at that, as he was picked by practically every one of the Eastern critics who picked an All-Eastern eleven. McGovern's showing the present season has been sensational many times and consistent all of the time.

In the Michigan game the Yost cohorts were insturcted, it seems, to watch the stocky Irishman as the hungry hawk keeps an experienced weather eye on the ramblings of the fledgling. Likewise the Minnesota players were told to bear in mind the prowess of Magidsohn and you may remember that this backfield star of the Wolverines was not the player on the Yost brigade who did the most ground gaining. The failure of McGovern to gain may be answered in the failure of Magidsohn to penetrate the Minnesota line or skirt the ends.

Walker's recognition will prove somewhat of a balm to the wounded spirits of the Minnesota faithful. James has long been looked upon as the best tackle in the West. Both the present year and last season he outplayed his man in the Michigan game. The tackles of the other Western teams were not even able to give the Gopher giant a run for his money.

Not so much is known in these parts regarding the ability of Wells. He played a corking game against Pennsylvania and was one of the scintillating heroes in the Minnesota contest. When a player can show class in two such hard fought games as they were, he must have the goods on the shelf.

But behind the selection of the three Western players lies the bigger and broader fact that at last one Eastern critic has readjusted his glasses and can see beyond the reaches of the East. Mr. Camp has visited the West before, in fact he was an interested spectator at the Minnesota-Michigan game of 1902, but never has he become so well acquainted with our methods as he is at the present time.

Last season and the season before that, Mr. Camp made a trip over the West, became better informed upon the conditions of inter-university play, the methods of Western coaches and also obtained a personal line on some of the strongest players. Later he was afforded the opportunity of getting a true line on the ability of these players.

Sooner or later, if the play of the Western teams progress, the Eastern critic, no matter how narrow or prejudiced, will be forced to give the West the credit it has long been denied.

The fact that Camp has at last awakened to the patent fact that there are football players west of the Alleghenies, is encouraging, for it means that some of the smaller and more pompous writers on the game will rush to follow the lead of the oracle of the sport.

Never before in the history of football have three Western men been on the honor roll on any All-American team, especially upon Camp's, which has come to be loked upon as the real representative team of the whole country, doubly so when Camp is the only Eastern critic who pretends to look over the material outside of the Eastern territory.

Curling Starts With Great Enthusiasm.

NEVER BEFORE HAS THERE BEEN so much enthusiasm in this city regarding curling. The present season promises to be the best year that the ancient Scotch game has enjoyed at the Head of the Lakes. The reasons are manifold.

For one thing, the curling club is one of the liveliest organizations this city possesses, and has the right spirit of royal good fellowship, congeniality and progressiveness. Its members are men with broad ideas, and already the club is looking ahead with an eye on a larger opening for winter sports in this city, which will demand a larger club and even a broader program than the curling club has at the present time.

The organizing of a hockey team is the first move in the experiment of trying a grand winter sport in this city. Hockey in the past has not paid simply because Duluth has been hampered in the way of a rink. The members of the skating committee of the club propose to ascertain whether the people of Duluth want hockey, and if they do, the future may be expected to witness some great exhibitions of the great old game.

As for curling—well, there was never so much interest in the game as there is right at the present time. They are live men on that committee, and every one is working to make the spiel the present winter better in every detail than the bonspiel held in other seasons. From correspondence received from Winnipeg, some of the smaller Canadian cities, from St. Paul, Minneapolis and some of the other smaller American cities, there will be a larger number of curlers here the present winter than ever in the history of the game.

With the expectation of the large number of players, the local committeemen are going ahead with arrangements which will give the people of Duluth an opportunity to witness one of the greatest, largest and best bonspiels that have ever been held in the Northwest.

Sure, Let's Have the Training Table Back.

A MORNING TELEGRAPH STORY tells as how the walked-on and Williamized sad-eyed representatives of the University of Minnesota are asking that the training table be reinstalled. The appeal is made to the conference body, and the answer or subsequent action will be interesting.

This was one of the most highly illogical acts the conference ever performed. The dear professors, fresh from the botany room, their faces all aglow from the entrancing study of the Greek root, came to a meeting one day and declared with clappings of hands against the training table. Why? No one has ever been able to discover.

Perhaps they thought it was too professional, or that the boys ate too much for their little "Tummies." Most any one well informed on athletics will tell you that a man's diet is an elemental part of his success. Some able scientist with an eye to the epigram has stated that we are what we eat.

Now, this eating around the college restaurant is not always what it is painted in the school prospectus. Somewhat the food is constructed on the plan that a cheap article will go a long ways. It is, again, sometimes long on size but short on nutriment.

It is logical to suppose that a man eating a rational and scientific training diet would be more immune from injury than the man who is eating his meals at irregular hours and is eating food that may be just what he should not eat. The profs overlooked this bit of logic, for, my dear, despite a popular theory, professors are not always the most logical people in the world.

It was because of the ridiculous idea regarding the training table that the University of Michigan walked out of the conference. It was an insane, namby-pamby, foolish little whim, this abolishing of the college training table.

Now Minnesota is out for the re-establishment of the sane system of giving athletes nourishing diet. It is to be hoped that Minnesota will push this point through, insisting that the wishes of a great school like the university be granted in some small detail. The Gophers have been somewhat sat upon by the conference, and it is really time, Imogene, that their voice was raised to a higher and somewhat firmer pitch.

May Be Compelled to Shift the Seasons.

IF THIS MANIA AMONG BALL players for the stage continues, Bill, the season may have to be shifted. The season before last the Cubs were put out of the running because Joe Tinker did not report from theatrical work early enough to get into condition before the first quarter of the season. Already we hear of the statements of players who claim they will have to cut the training season to fill theatrical dates.

It is to laugh with a somewhat raucous guffaw. These ball players are allowed on the stage not because of inherent ability, but because they have hung their names in large letters in the glowing light of diamond doings. Therefore, when they talk of not reporting until late in the sprnig, until after the training trip, they heave a brick at the wall of logic. If they don't play, they can't get on the stage, and if they don't train properly early in the spring, they can't play their best game.

Let the dear boys pick up all the money that they can in the winter tim—but, boys, don't get crazy in the bean.

Lehto Is Breaking Into The White Spotlight.

ASIDE FROM THE NOTORIETY that Karl Lehto is achieving here at home, he is also getting the notices away from home. The Minneapolis Journal of yesterday, a paper, by the way, that is generally pretty well informed and also conservative, runs a large picture of the young Finn, and further states that he is considered a good opponent for Henry Ordemann.

It is only necessary to say at this time that the game has been kept clean in this city, that betting has not been allowed, that every wrestler entering a match here has been warned against faking, and that every effort has been made to give the public a run for its money. That says about all that is necessary.

PARK RIVER STUDENT WINNER IN ATHLETICS.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oscar Gullickson of Park River, N. D., star quarter of the University of North Dakota football team this year, has established an enviable record in North Dakota athletic circles by winning a letter on four teams, basketball, baseball, track and football, all in one season. Gullickson's work in all departments has been the very best, as may may be judged by the record that he has established.

Arrangements are being made at the university for holding the annual jubilee at which the formal presentation of the letters to the winning men will be made.

BRAZIL PUTS AN END TO MUTINY

Four Hundred Fighters and Spectators Are Killed or Wounded.

Rio Janeiro, Dec. 12.——The government troops are again in control of the garrison on Cobra island and the second mutiny of the naval forces has ended with a heavy casualty list, but in a way that probably will prevent further uprisings for some time to come.

The mutineers in the garrison, who composed a battalion of the marine corps, numbered about 600 men. Of these 200 were either killed or wounded. The others were taken prisoners by the destroyers while attempting to escape from the island during the night.

Two hundred citizens were either killed or wounded while watching the bombardment from the streets of the city or along the water front. Many government buildings were damaged, including the treasury, the foreign office and the departments of public works and telegraphs, all handsome structures.

Bombarded the Island.

The land batteries, two warships and several destroyers took part in the bombardment of the island, and twice during the engagement an armistice was allowed for the removal of the dead and wounded. Firing ceased entirely late in the evening, but no actual surrender of the rebels occurred, the commanders of the government forces deeming it the wiser course to await the coming of day.

The destroyers, however, were stationed within easy range of the island so as to prevent any attempt by the mutineers to escape. Toward midnight several boats put out and men could be seen swimming, evidently with the intention of reaching the main land. The destroyers bore down on them and made them prisoners.

HUNTING BEATS FOOTBALL.

Has Cost Thirteen Lives in Pennsylvania Alone.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 12.—Fatal hunting accidents in the state of Pennsylvania, with the season not yet ended, already equal the number of deaths in football in all forty-six states of the country this fall. The serious gunning accidents in Pennsylvania alone number nearly twice as many as all the football accidents in the United States.

This comparison of "sports that kill" is obtained from a careful compilation of all gunning accidents reported in Pennsylvania this fall and from a summary of football accidents widely published at the conclusion of the gridiron season. The record as obtainable, is:

Football in the United States, 1910, deaths 13; serious injuries 17.

Hunting in Pennslvania, 1910, deaths 13; serious injuries 31.

The list of gunning casualties shows a death or injury for almost every day in the season thus far. The victims are mainly boys under 21 years of age.

One peculiar accident was the death of a hunter by heart disease when a rabbit, which he thought he had shot dead, jumped just as he was about to pick it up. This victim was Albert Henne, aged 42, a school director of Dickson City, Pa.

SOLOIST MAKES GOOD IMPRESSION

Miss Marie Clark Is Favorably Received By Masonic Temple Audience.

The concert at the auditorium, Masonic temple, yesterday afternoon, was a perfectly enjoyable one throughout, the program well balanced and the music of a high order while simple and tuneful. The audience was very appreciative and generous with applause which stirred the performers up to the proper artistic pitch.

Miss Marie Clark, the soloist, made a very good impression and earned it by her talented rendition of the selections. The order of her pieces was reversed, so that Saint-Saens beautiful aria "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from the opera of "Samson and Delilah," introduced her to the audience which at once adopted her and insisted on an encore, to which she responded with Mrs. Beach's "The Year's at the Spring," which though short was excellently rendered and greatly appreciated. Her second number, also by Mrs. Beach, "Ah, Love, But a Day," brought out a call for an encore in C. B. Hawley's "In a Garden." Miss Clark's voice is a round, rich and full high mezzo-soprano, with good volume and well trained. All her pieces showed much care in rehearsals and an artistic conception with real feeling. She is a graduate of the Chicago Musical college, gained a gold medal for proficiency in her first year and the diamond medal at her graduation. Miss Clark had the benefit of the artistic and sympathetic accompaniment of Mrs. F. G. Bradbury, who added much to the general acceptability of the whole program. The explanations given by Mr. Custance made the program more interesting and understandable and were very much appreciated.

The organ selections gave many of the beautiful numbers from the opera of William Tell not heard in the well known Overture and Haydn's celebrated Surprise Symphony, No. 6, with its beautiful, simple, melodious themes and delightful arrangement pleased the entire audience, notwithstanding it was called a Symphony. Temple audiences do not shy any more at the word symphony or rhapsody, having learned that the most satisfying music is found under such names. The crash in the second movement was a real surprise although Mr. Custance called attention to it before the piece began.

The program was concluded with Godfrey's arrangement of old Irish melodies which struck a responsive chord in the music sense of the listeners and was very much enjoyed. There will be no concert on Christmas day, but the peculiar Christmas music will be given on New Year's day.

LET SHAREHOLDERS KNOW.

MacVeagh Says the Corporations Should Publish Condition.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The time has arrived, in the opinion of Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, when all concerns engaged in public business should take the public into their confidence to the extent of dealing frankly and fairly with their stockholders by revealing their true financial and physical conditions.

The secretary, discussing that feature of the president's annual message to congress regarding the necessity of reassuring the public as to the financial soundness of the country, said:

"Anything that will promote the confidence of the investigating public is a good thing for business institutions, I know of no other one thing which would tend more in this direction than for the corporations to deal frankly and fairly with their stockholders by revealing their actual financial and physical conditions.

New Business Methods.

"Shareholders have an unquestioned right to know how the company in which their money is invested is being conducted and how the business stands. There was a time, not long ago, when officers and directors of a corporation treated such organizations almost as their personal property. That day has passed. Now the demand is for fair dealing and open books. Legitimate corporations could have nothing to lose and probably much to gain, by following this policy and the public would soon become weary of investing their money in enterprises which were afraid or unwilling to do the same thing."

UNCLE SAM IN SECOND PLACE

England Alone Leads United States as a Naval Power.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The United States closes another year in second place among the world's naval powers. The great navy building race between Germany and Great Britain has not yet brought the former country up to the United States in the number of battleships afloat, but in ships projected and in the total number of war vessels of all kinds, Germany will crowd the United States to third place.

In armored cruisers, although the technical division made in the United States indicates Germany to have more than this country, the actual strength of the United States exceeds that of its European rival.

"Notwithstanding the continued hustling of Germany to overcome Great Britain's plan of a two-power navy, the United States is nearly abreast of Germany," says the report.

"In completed tonnage the United States is ahead of Germany. In battleships completed, both in number and displacement, the United States leads Germany. Including battleships completed, under construction and provided for, the number of each country is identical, while the United States exceeds Germany in total battleship tonnage.

CHANCE FOR COLLEGE MEN.

Nominations to Consular Jobs Soon to Be Made.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Another opportunity for college graduates to enter the consular service will be afforded on Jan. 30 and 31, and Feb. 1 next, when a nomination will be held at the state department of candidates for appointment as consular assistants or student interpreters. The consular assistants receive a salary of $1,000 per annum for the first three years, and thereafter $200 a year more until a maximum of $1,800 is reached. The student interpreters assigned to duty in China, Japan and Turkey receive a salary of $1,000 per annum with an allowance of $125 for tuition.

RECOVER $7,000 WORTH OF GOLD; ARREST SEVEN.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 12.—With the recovery of $7,000 worth of gold bars and the arrest of six men and one woman, United States secret service officials here think they have solved the mystery of the theft of $59,000 in gold bullion of the Humboldt in Alaskan waters on Sept. 11.

Those under arest are E. C. Smith and his wife, J. T. Woodson and his brother, G. M. Woodson, and three men whose names the police have not divulged.

Saws, files, rasps and other istruments used in preparing the gold for sale were found in the Smith's room and similar instruments with crucibles were found among the possessions of the Woodsons.

MILWAUKEE CANNOT COLLECT LICENSE FEE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 12.—The city of Milwaukee cannot recover the $187,500 claimed to be due as license fees from tht Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light company.

Circuit Judge W. J. Turner so decided in sustaining the demurrer brought by the defendant company to all the causes of action set up by the city. The court cited three points of law in rendering his decision. The case will be appealed to the supreme court.

HOSPITAL IS PLACED UNDER QUARANTINE

St. Mary's hospital has been quarantined by the city health department.

It has been expected for several days that this step would be taken. Diphtheria has been prevalent in St. Mary's for two or three weeks, and it has been claimed that patients taken to the hospital for treatment for other diseases, have contracted diphtheria after entering the institution.

The health department decided to take no more chances of other patients contracting the disease, and this morning ordered that no new patients be received.

The patients now undergoing treatment there will be discharged as soon as they become convalescent and after cultures have been taken by the department. Every trace of the scourge will be eradicated as soon as possible. The sisters are doing everything in their power to assist in the work.

A RAPID SALE OF TICKETS

About the quickest sale of tickets on record was made today at the office of the Great Northern railroad.

A foreigner came in and asked the price of tickets to Spokane, Wash. He was told that the fare was a few cents over $38.

"Be bee," came the short answer of the man, as he bolted for the door.

The officials called to him, as they did not care to see this business getting away.

In something like five minutes he was back and poured over $387 of real money on the ticket counter. "Ten tie for Spokane," he said and the tickets were sold without further comment.

Ticket men say that it is an extreme pleasure to do business with this expediency.

COMMERCE OF THE CHINESE EMPIRE

Will Be Subject of Free Lecture By Shanghai Resident.

Considerable interest is being taken in the approaching appearance in Duluth of Rev. Dr. Gilbert Reid, president of the International Institute of China, who will deliver a free lecture at the Commercial club Thursday night.

Dr. Reid was formerly a Presbyterian missionary in China. Realizing the great amount of good that could be accomplished by reaching the upper classes of the Chinese, he turned his attention to ways and means of interesting them in Christianity, with the result that he founded the institute of which he is now the head.

Dr. Reid is a friend of C. E. De Witt of Duluth. They were college classmates and since their early days have maintained their friendship, being frequently in touch with one another. Mr. De Witt naturally takes a lively interest in Dr. Reid's visit to Duluth and was more or less instrumental in causing the arrangements to be made for the lecture Thursday night. The public generally is invited to hear Dr. Reid, who will talk about the commercial possibilities of China, a subject on which he is particularly well qualified to speak.

Shanghai is the commercial capital of China and it is there that Dr. Reid is stationed. At the time of the anti-American boycott, Dr. Reid took a leading part in the protection of American interests, and he is well remembered by American business men having business there.

NEW CLUB HOLDS SKI TOURNAMENT

Nels Floan Wins First Prize With Jump of 85 Feet.

The first ski tournament of the current season was held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the recently organized Lincoln Park Ski club, the meeting taking place on the boulevard hill and being witnessed by a large crowd of people.

The first prize was won by Nels Floan with a jump of 85 feet, Olaf Vick jumping 83 feet and Harold Hanson making a mark of 80 feet. Had the hill been in better condition it is believed that even better records would have been hung up.

Now that the first meet of the club has been a success it is very probable that other meets will be pulled off by the club in the near future.

MORE THAN 100 DIETZ WITNESSES

State's Attorneys Think the Defense Will Get Continuance.

Hayward, Wis., Dec. 12.—The trial of John F. Dietz and Hattie and Leslie Dietz, on the charge of murdering Deputy Sheriff Oscar Harp on Oct. 8, last, which begins this afternoon, will revive the entire history of the six years conflict between Dietz and the authorities of Sawyer county.

This statement was made today by Frank B. Lamoreaux, assistant to the state's attorney, who is with County Attorney J. C. Davis in the prosecution. The states, say Mr. Lamoreaux, will have at least 125 witnesses, with a probability of not being able to dispose of more than four or five in a day.

All four attorneys are now in town. W. B. Rubin and Moritz Wittig, for Dietz, arrived this morning and immediately saw their client in the jail.

The opinion of a member of the prosecuton is that the defense will probably be able to obtain a further continuance to prepare their case. If not the examination of talesmen will commence at once.

NO SEATS.

Los Angeles Times: Col. John Jacob Astor has invented a steamer chair with vacuum cups at the end of the legs. Thus, without being screwed down, the new chair will keep its position in the wildest sea.

"There is a need for my invention," Said Col. Astor at Newport, "for a screwed-down chair is an unhandy contrivance, while a free chair, in rough weather, is so dangerous that it puts you rather in the position of the Norristown lunatic.

"A man was smoking and reading in the shade of the Norristown asylum when a lunatic looked over the wall and said:

"'Do you happen to have a piece of toast, sir?'

"'No,' the man answered.

"'What a pity!' The lunatic sighed and shook his head. 'What a great pity! And I'm so tired!'

"'Look here,' said the man impatiently, 'what the deuce do you want a piece of toast for?'

"'Why,' replied the lunatic, 'I'm a poached egg, you know, and I do so want to sit down.'"

A HAGLER.

Los Angeles Times: Edward W. Redfield, the noted painter, said at the Art club in Philadelphia, apropos of picture prices:

"I am glad there are not many buyers like an old farmer in Center Bridge.

"A very distinguished etcher, sketching in Center Bridge, made a study of the farmer's barn. The farmer happened to appear, and said he'd like to have the sketch.

"'Ef 'taint too dear,' he added cautiously.

"'Oh,' said the etcher, who makes $12,000 a year, 'I won't charge you anything for the sketch, but——'

"His eye lighted on the pig pen.

"'But I'll tell you what. You can give me one of those nice little pink sucking pigs there.'

"'Why, man,' said the farmer with a frown, 'do ye know what them pigs is worth? They're worth a dollar apiece.'"

HERE IS ONE OPPONENT OF THE COMMISSION PLAN

Fort Dodge Mayor Dislikes It But May Be Prejudiced.

Duluth Visitor Says Wasted Energy Is Feature of Old Plan.

The present mayor of Fort Dodge, Iowa, who was elected under the old system, is not an advocate of the commission form of government. Fort Dodge adopted the new plan Aug. 15 of this year and the first election will be held under it next April. The charter is drawn under the state law of Iowa. Fort Dodge is a city of 18,000 people.

The present mayor, S. J. Bammecatt, writes that there was no reason for a change to the commission form of government and the new system hasn't any merits, "beyond facilitating the keeping in office of a lot of political hacks that ought to be thrown out of office."

Continuing, the mayor writes: "It is an experiment. It facilitates graft. By manipulation, the 'ins' can stay in to the detriment of the people."

The mayor of Fort Dodge doesn't say whether he is 'one of the "ins" who expect to be out after the first election under the new system.

E. H. Lindrow of Raton, N. M., said today that he has been reading The Herald for the last few days and has taken the liveliest interest in the discussion of the commission form of government that is occupying the attention of the Zenith City. Mr. Lindrow reached the city today from St. Paul, which city, he said, is one that needs the commission form of government more than does any other city he has visited in the course of his rather extensive travels. The particular reason for this observation, he said, was the administration of the affairs of the board of public works in St. Paul. Mr. Lindrow gave it as his opinion that, while St. Paul's board of public works is manned by as efficient a corps as can be expected to land in such jobs under the beneficent dispensation of the political powers that be, the fact remains that wasted energy is more characteristic of the work of that department than results accomplished.

"It is just the same, in varying degrees, where ever one goes," said Mr. Lindrow. "I cite the case of St. Paul probably because that is the latest city I have visited. But conditions there impunged so distinctly upon my perception that I was particularly impressed. Waste energy is the distinctive quality of municipal government as we see it in America. Under the old system the aim seems to be to provide unprofitable outlet for effort, and under the commission form of government for cities the aim is to conserve and to use all the effort that is devoted to the administration of public affairs. It seems to me that this difference is enough to decide public opinion in favor of the commission plan.

"I have been in a number of cities where the commission system is in operation, and while it is true that I have not been convinced that the ideal system has been evolved, I do unhesitatingly say that the standard set by the commission form is one that has never been reached by even the best of municipal administrations in any city of which I have knowledge.

"There are features of the commission form that I personally do not like, but I realize arguments against my point of view are stronger than my prejudices. I believe in party organizations. It is my idea that you can't get the best results in our national government unless you have partisanship from stem to stern of the ship of state. Therefore, from the partisan point of view, I am convinced that the commission form of government is bad. But from the point of view of that imaginary individual, the patriot, the commission fom is all right.

"It seems to me that the question before Duluth is not whether the commission form of government is a good thing, but whether Duluth's population contains a majority of patriots.

"Of course, that may sound like sarcasm, but it isn't."

A BREEDER OF CONTESTS

Double-Barrelled System of Filing on Land Makes Trouble.

After Waiting for Weeks in Line, Settlers Have Legal Fight.

Proof that the filing and settlement plan of land openings is a breeder of contests, is being given again at the United States land office here.

After waiting for five or six weeks last spring for the opening of June 20, Miss Margaret Ryan and Albert Knuelius have had the priority of their rights questioned by William H. Smallwood, Jr., who claims settlement on 120 acres of land filed upon by Miss Ryan, and forty acres of the tract filed upon by Mr. Knuelius.

A hearing to determine the priority of rights opened this morning and the matter promises to be warmly contested by all parties concerned. Miss Ryan is represented by J. C. Herman Engel, former register of the land office. O. J. Larson and John Saari appear for Knuelius, and Mrs. Smallwood is represented by N. B. Thayer and W. E. Culkin.

Miss Ryan was third in line at the land office door when the land was opened for entry June 20. She filed on certain land in section 12, 50-19, her entry being timed at 9:04 a. m. Mr. Knuelius followed shortly after her and filed on land in section 14, 40-19, his filing being timed 9:08 a. m. Aug. 15, William H. Smallwood, Jr., offered an entry on portions of the same sections, alleging settlement June 20 at 9 a. m.

The hearing which began today was ordered to determine the priority of right to entry and a decision in the case will determine whether settlement takes precedence over filing in the matter of minutes at such land openings, where either filing or settlement is allowed.

LIQUIDATION IN COPPERS AT CLOSE

Values Weaken When Decision in Standard Oil Case Is Announced.

Coppers opened higher today and values advanced until the decision of the supreme court adversely to the Standard Oil company was announced. The decision was unexpected as the market had believed the case would be reargued. Selling became heavy, but support appeared and the market rallied for an instant. The market then slumped on continued liquidation.

The leading copper affected was Amalgamated as this stock would figure largely in any combination of copper companies. North Butte also eased off at the close, but some of the specialties retained their strength. The losses were not severe as the announcement of the decision came too late to prepare the way for much liquidation and traders generally were caught napping.

Rails were not strong, although some of the leaders closed higher. The weakness in Southern Pacific was due to a suit by the government against that road to recover oil lands in Southern California.

London ignored the strength of stocks on this side Saturday and today's quotations came over the pond lower. The announcement of the lowest unfilled orders in the history of the United States Steel corporation Saturday, the apparent contraction in nearly every line of business, the weak bank statement on Saturday and the several pending decisions in cases in which the Sherman anti-trust act is invoked apparently did not have any effect on today's market at the opening. A pronounced development was needed to bring the market to a realization of existing conditions and the market got it when the decision against the Standard Oil company was announced.

There is little change in the general market situation. It appears to be a between epochs stage a time of waiting for definition of economic affairs. The bulls think of the big crops, the great consuming power of the country, the world-wide ease in money and the desire for profitable trade and investment and hope that the United States will ride out the gale and solve its problems of 1910 as it has solved many in former years. Stocks certainly have had a thorough liquidation. There is no inverted pyramid in speculation and current prices make large and inviting yields if the railroads and industrial corporations can be relieved from drastic federal surgery applied at once.

The local market was dull in the forenoon, but in the afternoon it suddenly strengthened and many bids came into the market. Trading in the second session was active and increasing bids failed to bring out stocks, showing that the technical position of the market was stronger than appeared on the surface and that holders are dissatisfied with present prices, believing them to low. On this feature of the market there is no diversity of opinion among the public.

In this market Butte Ballaklava sold at $7.37½, Denn at $3.81¼, $3.87½ and then at $3.93¾, Red Warrior was stronger on favorable news from the mine and sold at $1.68¾ to $1.75 and then to $1.93¾, Shattuck sold at $23.50, $24., $24.25 and $24.62½, Butte & Superior at $7.37½, Butte & Superior, old, at 79c, 76c and 77c, Cliff advanced from $1.37½ bid to $1.87½ bid without attracting any stock.

Amalgamated sold at $64 to $63.50, $64.62½ to $63.62½. Butte Ballaklava in the East at $7.37½ to $7.50 to $7. Butte Coalition at $18 to $18.62½, Calumet & Arizona at $49.75 to $52 to $51.50, Greene at $7.12½ to $7.25, North Butte at $29.75 to $30 to $29.50, Superior & Pittsburg at $14 to $14.62½ to $14.37½.

Thompson, Toule & Co. say: The president of one of the leading producers tells us:

"I feel very optimistic on copper. The situation is certainly now at the best it has been for two years, for instead of having copper on hand we have in the place of copper only cash and bills receivable and we are all sold several months ahead. This is an ideal situation from the standpoint of the producer, even though the price is not as some would like.

"I fail to see any reason to anticipate any falling off in consumption, and as to the future price of the metal I prefer to rely upon the opinion of my selling agents, who have the handling of 500,000,000 pounds of copper per annum. They look for higher prices for the metal in the early part of the year. I believe there are good things being worked out in the copper trade, which will work for stability and better prices. This may not be in immediate line of consolidation, but more in the line of a community of interests in the selling of copper."

It has taken five years for the Old Dominion company to attain the prediction of President Douglas that the company would eventually secure a 9c cost. This was practically accomplished in September, however, when the cost of Old Dominion copper laid down in New York, including every charge, was 9.03c and October is expected to make as good a showing.

Even this 9c cost includes substantial "construction" charges and means that the Old Dominion company earned between $50,000 and $60,000 net for the month, which would indicate earnings of about $2 per share per annum, although it only received about 12½c for its copper for September upon a production from its own mines of less than 2,000,000 pounds.

These low costs and large earnings do not mean that Old Dominion stockholders will receive larger dividends immediately, but they do mean that by Jan. 1 the Old Dominion company will have no floating debt left, and will have in the neighborhod of $750,000 working capital. Old Dominion is about as closely held as any "copper" on the board, for about 170,000 shares are held by the Phelps-Dodge interests out of 300,000 shares, and the remaining stock is not in brokerage offices.

Walkers' copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper is firmer. Lake is 13 to 13⅓ cents and electrolytic is 12⅞ to 13 cents a pound. The price of the metal has held very strong throughout the recent period of declining copper share values.

This fact is mentioned because it is unusual. Heretofore every bad break in the coppers has been reflected sympathetically in the metal market. Just at present consumers both at home and abroad seem to feel that metal prices are more likely to advance than to decline, and they are buying to cover February and March requirements. The foreign demand for copper continues strong.

"The Copper Producers' statement issued yesterday, covering the month of November, showed a further decrease of 8,872,845 pounds in the American surplus. This, together with the decrease of 4,910,140 pounds in the foreign visible supply, makes the total reduction in the world's surplus during November 13,782,985 pounds. This is only slightly below the average decrease, about 15,000,000 pounds monthly, which has been going on since July 1.

"The November production and imports showed a considerable decrease as expected; but this was slightly more than balanced by a falling off of 7,012,180 pounds in domestic deliveries, and 762,596 pounds in exports. November was a thirty-day month, comparing with October's thirty-one days, this explaining in part the reduced figures all around.

"The continued decrease in the world's accumulated copper means higher metal prices in the not very distant future The surplus, which stood at over 401,000,000 pounds July 1 this year, had declined to 323,589,069 pounds Dec. 1. During the coming six months the shrinkage should be much more pronounced even than in the immediate past. The metal situation is improving as rapidly as could reasonably be expected."

A FORMOSAN WEDDING.

London Daily Graphic: "With full Formosan rites, including the public sacrifice of a pig, two inhabitants of the Formosa village at the White City were married on Saturday. The bridegroom was Sarongai Busabiree, a young man of 24, with the reputation of a mighty hunter among his fellow tribesmen, and the bride was Rugigasela, a maiden of 21.

At an early hour the village was garlanded with corn and leaves and the native occupants bedecked themselves with finery. In the afternoon the bride and bridegroom were temperarily separated from the other natives, who occupied the time in making a procession round the exhibition, carrying instruments of war and chanting weird songs. After this they assembled in an open hut in the center of the village and two sturdy men appeared carrying the pig, which was screaming lustily. It was killed instantly with a spear thrust through the heart and the carcass was singed over a fire of rushes, skinned and cut into small pieces. The pieces were placed in pots and set to boil over charcoal fires. Before this had happened the bridegroom had to fetch the bride. She offered resistance and wept a great deal, but seizing hold of her the lover placed her upon his back and carried her to the open hut, where all the company squatted round a table raised but two or three inches from the ground. Then the food was fetched, the pieces of semi-cooked food being handed round with chopsticks. The feast was interspersed with weird chanting. The chief theme was supplied by the words:

"We are now one; we love each other."

The proceedings lasted well into the evening. The bride preserved a most stolid demanor throughout, but the crowd of Europeans were hugely delighted and cheered and clapped enthusiastically.

PICTORIAL STAMPS.

A Collection Limited to Them Would Be Interesting.

A stamp dealer of long experience recently said to a young collector: "General collections and specialized ones are all very well in their way, but it takes a fortune to make either kind complete. If I were starting to collect now I should confine myself to pictorial and commemorative stamps.

"They are more attractive to look at, more interesting than the ordinary stamps to the average collector; they are comparatively cheap now, but the demand for many varieties indicates that they are going to be worth a good deal more."

Previous to 1892 there were few departures from the conventional types; portrait heads, coats of arms and symbolic figures furnished most of the designs. Two exceptions were the so-called "Sydney views" issued by New South Wales in 1850 and our own series of 1869.

These appear to be the direct forerunners of the pictoral stamps, says the Youth's Companion. Others were the famous Mulready envelopes of Great Britain bearing an allegorical design and the fish, animal and marine varieties of Newfoundland.

The 400th anniversary of the discovery of the New World by Columbus was observed by Nicaragua and San Salvador in 1892, by the United States and Porto Rico in 1893, by Trinidad in 1898 and by the Dominican republic in 1889.

Since then almost every country has commemorated some event of national importance or made familiar to the world some characteristic bit of scenery or illustrations of its industries and progress or of its flora and fauna by means of postage stamps. Hundreds of pictorial stamps have already been issued, and there will be many more. To secure them and to arrange them in some systematic order according to subjects rather than to countries offers a fascinating problem.

For example the historical stamps might form a group by themselves. The collector may follow the voyagings of Columbus in considerable detail. Scenes are depicted from the lives of Vasco da Gama in the Portuguese issue of 1898, of Cabot in the Newfoundland set of 1897, of Champlain and Cartier on the Quebec tercentennial stamps of 1908.

The United States has contributed, in addition to the Columbian pictures and other commemorative issues, the founding of Jamestown, portraits of Capt. John Smith and Pocahontas, the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Marquette on the Mississippi and Fremont on the Rocky mountains.

Commerce and industry might be the title of one group, anthropology and ethnology of another; natural history, with its numerous subdivisions, would occupy an important place, and sections might be devoted to architecture, geography and sport.

As illustrating the method of selection, take the 1902 pictorial issue of Guatemala: The 1c would be put under natural history, the 2c, and the 1 p. under history, the 5c, 6c, 20c, 50c 75c and 2 p. under architecture, and the 10c under geography.

This classification is offered merely as a suggestion, however. Every boy should work out his own scheme. He ought to have a blank album with interchangeable leaves of quadrille paper, and should rule spaces for the stamp. To make the collection effective he will find it necessary to familiarize himself with the contents of the regular stamp album and to keep himself informed of new issues.

Explanatory notes made from time to time with reference to the stamps would prove of interest and it would be a good plan to space the specimens far enough apart to allow room for writing under them.

In the course of time if a boy goes at the thing intelligently and systematically it is safe to say that he will have a collection that is not only a delight to the eye, but that is worth more and of greater satisfaction than any other form of stamp collection which he could have made with the same outlay of money.

A WANING SUGAR INDUSTRY.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: Any fear of competition with the sugar growers of British Guinana and the West Indies may be dismissed by the planters of Louisiana. So said Ernest W. Ludwig, an expert sugar chemist of Wellington, New Zealand, but more recently of Demerara.

Mr. Ludwig has just arrived, after a tour of the West Indies, where he looked over the sugar situation thoroughly, investigating sugar conditions, methods and prospects with an eye to settling down on some of the islands. After deliberation he decided to come to Louisiana, where he believes the greatest opportunities are to be found.

Mr. Ludwig is charmed with New Orleans and commented on the activity apparent in the streets.

"Is all America like this?" he asked. "It is so different from what one finds in England.

"Much of it I know comes from your sugar traffic, and of course that interests me directly. You people are so progressive. Even the little that I have been able to see of the means you employ to get results show wonderful advances over those methods one finds in many other sugar growing countries. In Guiana, for instance, they are behind the times woefully. One thing only they have there that you have not here, I mean the Hindu labor. It is amazing what the planters of Demerara have been able to accomplish by the aid of the coolie. The negro was tried, but he would not do the work. He will not stand the long hours, the steady and continuous labor that the coolie will. Also he demands more money for what he does. But with the Hindu, who has come into Guiana in great numbers, that is not the case. He improves the work and the work before long pays him back by improving him. The Hindu of the second, or at the most the third generation is an almost different race from his immigrant forefathers.

"But even with the introduction of the Hindu and the advantage he has been to the sugar planter there British Guinana is passing as a producer of sugar.

"The West Indies also from what I saw of them are in a bad way. In the Barbados, where I spent a couple of months, I found pretty much the same condition of things that exist in Guiana. The negro, with his innocence and his numerical superiority there, is killing any chances the islands might have of ultimately becoming a factor in the sugar production of the world. Of course I bar Cuba when I speak of the islands. She is in a class by herself.

"Certainly unless they adopt radically different means, copying the advanced methods of you Americans, there is no hope for them. Japan, however, is coming to the fore. In her Formosa colony she is trying to raise sugar and meeting with some success. In time I believe that she will accomplish much."

KEEP ON PLAYING.

Outing: Play is just as necessary to keep a grown man young and a middle-aged man from growing old as it is to make a child grow into man. Wordsworth's lines are as sound physiology as good poetry:

"My heart leaps up when I behold
The rainbow in the sky;
So was it when my life began,
So be it when I am a man,
Or let me die."

In childhood we play because we are young; in middle life we are young because we play, and if we keep it up we shall never know that we are old until we are one day suddenly dead. Yet the absurd idea had grown up, and Mrs. Grundy has adopted it with her usual fatuousness, that play is something undignified in a grown man and unbecoming in a lady. And this, unfortunately, is one of the rare instances where "thinking makes it so." After a man has practiced this belief in the uselessness of exercise for half a decade or so, and become fat and pompous and red-faced, or pale and slack-muscled and short-minded, then the contortions that he indulges in when he decides to unbend and try to play furnish considerable more entertainment to spectators than to himself.

ICH DIEN OR EICH DYN.

Lady's Pictorial: Which is accurate as the motto of the Prince of Wales—Ich Dien or Eich Dyn? The one is German and the other Welsh. The one means "I serve," the other "Behold the man," or "Behold your man." "Ich Dien" was the motto of John, king of Bohemia, whom the Black Prince slew at Crecy. "Eich Dyn" are the words supposed to have been used by Edward I, when presenting his infant son to the Welsh assembly at Carnarvon.

Welsh tradition has adhered naturally to the Welsh form. The other has been more popularly accepted. The coming investiture lends peculiar interest to a revival of an old controversy. Settlement must be left to the student of such matters; but it may be news to some readers that there is an alternative to the battlefield story.

THE NUMBER OF THE SLAIN.

Kansas City Times: Few persons in Smoke Ridge had ever seen an automobile, so when one of those "red devils" stopped for a few minutes in the isolated village the curious inhabitants gazed at the snorting demon with a mixture of fear and awe. The owner, who had entered the store to make a purchase, heard one rustic remark: "I'll bet it is a man-killer."

"Of course it is," assured the other, "look at that number on the back of the car. That shows how many persons it's run over. That's accordin' to law. Now, if that feller was to run over anybody here in Smoke Ridge, it would be our duty to telegraph that number—1284—to the next town ahead."

"And what would they do?" asked the auditors.

"Why, the perlice would stop him and change his number to 1285."

WHEAT DULL AND HIGHER

Unfavorable Reports From Argentina Cause a Firm Undertone.

News About a Standoff—Flaxseed Up—Crushers Are Purchasers.

Duluth Board of Trade, Dec. 12.—Wheat gained slightly today in a dull and featureless market. The session was a scalping affair in which the news was colorless. Unfavorable reports from abroad and a small amount of export business in durum wheat caused a firm surface to the general situation. December wheat gained ⅜c and May went up ⅛c. Cash wheat was 1½c over December, oats lost ¼c, rye and barley were unchanged and durum was unchanged.

Flaxseed closed higher, December gaining 4½c and May advancing 5c. Cash seed was on a December basis.

The flaxseed market was erratic, firming after the initial decline. The early weakness was overcome when buying from Northwestern crushers and an ocasional order from other crushers appeared. The purchases by crushers were more noticeable than on any day in the last week. Whatever may be the favorable position of Argentina flaxseed with respect to the Northwest the fact remains that the demand for Northwestern seed is just as apparent as ever. Attempts to beat down prices and remain aloof from the market may depress values but do not always result in the acquistion of seed.

The only strong situation in the flaxseed world is in the Northwest in this country and it is gradually succumbing to outside influences. However, a market for a season is not made in a day nor in a week and present fluctuations in a narrow market in which trading is small is no criterion of probable values in the distant future. Considerable flaxseed has been shipped to Chicago and Minneapolis lately and additional shipments will be made. It is likely that an Eastern crushing interest will take some seed out of this market by rail, also, before the Argentina new crop seed is available. A small lot was picked up today by this concern.

The foreign flaxseed and linseed oil situation is weak. Buyers are holding aloof, but it should not be forgotten that their needs are just as apparent as when prices were higher and that the supply of seed has not changed materially, so far as advance information is concerned. Buyers could figure with the same accuracy on supplies and demands when prices were higher as they can figure now. La Plata new crop seed for early shipment was offered at Antwerp today at $1.927. The market was weak and depressed.

Indicative of the soft situation in the foreign flaxseed markets, Argentine new crop seed for shipment by Jan. 15 was offered at seaboard in this country last Friday at $2.29 a bu, including net duty. Seed for shipment in the latter part of February or the fore part of March was offered at $2.19 a bu. On Saturday the price of new crop offerings for early shipment declined 6c to $2.23 and later shipments were offered at $2.16 a bu, a decline of 3c from the previous day. As the week closed Argentine pure seed was offered to arrive at Minneapolis in March or the fore part of April at $2.35.

The weakness in the foreign situation may be ascribed to the disposition of buyers to force cheaper offerings by remaining out of both the linseed oil and flaxseed markets abroad and the desire of Argentina sellers to dispose of their crop as advantageously as possible. The idea that they may hold the whip hand has apparently never occurred to Argentina sellers. Confronted by high prices, rapidly weakening, however, and a fairly large exportable surplus in sight they have concentrated their efforts on the selling end of the game. They have gone to every part of the world that must buy seed in their efforts to dispose of the crop. Instead of letting the buyer seek them, as a few have, they seem to have overlooked the fact of the world's shortage and have not done what American farmers are continually trying to do with the American wheat crop—hold for higher values.

In comparison with prices of two or three years ago present values are sky-high even taking into consideration the late decline. The European markets have been held up by orders for oil and seed from American buyers. The ability of Europe to curtail its consumption became quickly apparent and European buyers were holding aloof from the market while American buyers were running after every offer of seed and oil which to them seemed cheap in comparison with their experience with local markets. Then as the American markets became settled the American buyers began to take a more conservative view of the situation and they have adopted the attitude of their European competitors. In the last two weeks there has been an abrupt cessation of sales of spot or future oil by Europe to the United States. Those people who consume oil in Europe have steadfastly refused to buy until prices are cheaper. The high prices were possible, however, because America was taking all supplies of seed and oil as fast as they became available in European markets.

European oil prices have declined sharply and seed prices have trailed along. The decline in seed values has been more gradual, however, and the swiftness of the decline has not been as abrupt as the downturn in the prices of oil. Usually prices of flaxseed do not follow values of oil, the reverse being generally true, but in this instance the exception to the rule prevails.

Offerings from Buenos Ayres and Calcutta are cheaper and show the effect of pressure on the situation in consuming markets. New crop seed is being offered at slowly declining values and old crop seed has lost nearly all of the premium it formerly commanded as the result of conditions in this country of from 40 cents to 50 cents a bushel.

Wheat was dull and firm today. World's shipments were unexpectedly large, amounting to 13,2000,000 bu, compared with 11,568,000 bu last week. However, weather conditons in Northern Argentina were reported to be unfavorable on account of the fall of rain in territory where thrashing was in progress. Offers of New Baraso wheat were withdrawn. Advices from India were less favorable, it being reported that rain in the Punjab is needed and that locusts are causing some damage. Cables were up, although the continent was generally lower. Too much wet weather in France did not have any effect on the Paris market.

Duluth exporters sold some durum wheat that was in an advantageous position near seaboard. Durum is on an exportable basis, but there is mighty little available. Marsailles and Antwerp were bidding for durum in this market today.

The winter wheat movement was larger today than expected. Nebraska is shipping considerable hard winter wheat to the Northwest, chiefly to a leading milling concern which was a heavy purchaser in Nebraska some time ago.

The visible supply of wheat in the United States and Canada decreased 323,000 bu.

The Flour Situation.

There was no improvement in the flour trade last week. Indications of a change for the better are slight. A fair December was looked forward to by some interests but after canvassing the trade it is admitted that buyers are as unwilling as formerly to book contracts except for the small amounts absolutely needed and which are ordered for quick shipment. There are reports from the mills that shipping instructions on old contracts have been coming in more freely lately and in this respect there is some improvement to the general flour situation. The majority of traders are taking what flour is due them. Others are not so disposed and are asking for extensions on the plea that their own experiences have not been satisfactory in this particular.

Stocks in the hands of distributors are not large, but they are sufficient to meet current requirements which are neither urgent nor expanding. The wholesale market is feeling the depression in retail circles, which, according to some sources, is serious and indicates a falling off of consumption that is widespread and material. Consumers are buying a single bag where formerly larger quantities were purchased.

It is not surprising, therefore, that leading wholesale houses are not forcing business in flour, preferring that their customers should use up their credit in less expensive articles, thus making it "go further." Business in some staples is being pushed at the expense of flour, on account of the limited demand for the latter.

Mills have comparatively little business for long time business on their books and on this account there is hope that with the price question adjusted and the retail situation improved business may expand after the beginning of the new year. Even if buyers adhere to their policy of buying in small quanties for quick shipment there should be a volume of sales of fair size unless consumption shows a further pronounced reduction.

Buyers look for lower prices but owing to the cash wheat situation mills are hardly able to make attractive concessions. Unless there should be a material reduction in cash wheat premiums, of which there is no present indication, it is not likely that buyers' hopes will be realized in the near future. Minneapolis and other standard first patents at the close of the week were offered in wood at $5.40 to $5.75 a barrel. Plenty of good flour can be bought at $5.25 to $5.40 in sacks, and country mills are offering freely at $5.00 to $5.25 in jute. Kansas hard wheat patents are quoted at $4.75 to $5.25 in sacks. Prices for soft winter wheat are the same as a week ago and business is slow, the market being nominal.

The attitude of the mills is concisely expressed in the following from a Minneapolis authority: "The present price situation is, that as mills have a considerable amount of flour sold, they do not feel favorably toward any further decline in wheat prices. It may be assumed, therefore, that what influence they may have, sentimental or otherwise, will be used to sustain prices. A material decline from the present level would cause a great deal of disturbance, as buyers generally have a loss in flour they have bought, and under such conditions there is always more or less inclination among a certain class of buyers to cancel their orders. While some advance in prices might not particularly benefit the flour trade, it would have the effect of preventing demoralization."

MARKET GOSSIP

The Missouri December report as wired after the close Saturday by King makes the December condition of wheat 76.2, against 93 a year ago and 76 in July. Government placed the condition at 83 in December. Area sown 97.8 per cent of last year. Corn crop estimated at 252,000,000 bu; wheat, 25,000,000 bu. Government estimated corn crop at 272,000,000 bu and wheat 25,000,000 bu.

Chicago Tribune: Charles Sincere & Co.: "The president of perhaps the largest wheat distributing house to country millers in the Chicago trade gives our house this view: 'Never in twenty years will Chicago stocks of red wheat have to supply so large an interior milling demand as expected after Jan. 1, 1911. Wisconsin mills will be shut off in the Northwest; Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois millers are already asking about January wheat supplies. It is fortunate that Chicago has such liberal stocks of choice wheat and prices today lower than Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas City.'"

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool—World's shipments last week, 13,200,000 bu; previous week, 11,568,000 bu; last year, 9,648,000 zu. Corn—Last week 6,364,000 bu; previous week, 2,508,000 bu; last year, 3,129,000 bu.

The wheat market at the opening was quiet with values ⅛d lower. There was a disposition to sell, prompted by the larger world's shipments than expected, especially to the United Kingdom, and the weaker American cables. These factors, however, were offset by the less favorable reports from Argentina, a private report stating that rains were falling in the northern districts where harvesting is in progress and offerings of parcels of new Barasso wheat have been withdrawn. This cable caused pronounced support and large speculative buying and prices advanced ⅝@1⅛d with the principal support in May. Advices from India were less favorable and flood conditions continue in Southern France and Italy. At mid-day the market was strong and ⅝@1⅛d up from the opening and ½d to a 1d higher than Saturday. Corn was quite at the opening and unchanged later there was an advance of ⅛d on the firmer Plata and American offers and in sympathy with wheat.

Our Indian agent cables that wheat in the Punjaub is suffering for want of rain and also that locust is causing damage in parts. In the United Provinces germination is satisfactory.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Bullish on Adverse Weather for Foreign Crops.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—Rain spoiling the harvest in Argentina had a bullish effect today on wheat prices here. Floods in France and Italy took a similar hold on the market. Almost by way of paradox, absence of moisture throughout the Punjab district of India formed an argument for higher quotations, the basis in this case however, being prospective damage to the crop. Drouth conditions, too, over the American Southwest were becoming more serious according to some traders. Under such circumstances, the fact that world shipments were larger than expected cut little figure. The opening was ¼c to ½c higher. May started ¼c to ⅜c higher at 95⅝c to 95¾c, but reacted to 95½c.

Texas rains made support poor for a while, but unfavorable reports from Oklahoma and Kansas caused a rally. The close, however, was easy with May 95⅝c, a net gain of ¼c.

With farmers selling only on bulges and with shorts somewhat timid owing to possible congestion in the December option, corn was strong. Business, however, was light. The market opened ⅛@¼c to ⅝c up. May started with ⅛c to ¼@⅜c advance at 47⅝c to 47¾@47⅞c, falling back later to 47½@47⅝c.

Huge world's shipments led to a further decline, but the market later strengthened with wheat. The close, though, was easy with May at 47¼c, a net loss of ¼c.

Oats were influenced by the corn strength and by the short interest in December. May at the opening was a shade higher at 34⅜c but later reacted to 34⅛@34¼c.

All offerings in provisions were quickly absorbed, and the market rose sharply after a rather weak start. First sales were unchanged to 7½c lower with May at $18.15 for pork, $9.97½@10.00 for lard, and $9.65 to $9.70 for ribs.

Cotton Market.

New York, Dec. 12.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 9 to 12 points under realizing and local selling for a turn, inspired by disappointing cables, reports that the South was offering spot cotton freely at Liverpool and reports from Eastern mill centers, which claimed that buyers were refusing to meet any advance in goods. The market during the middle of the morning was active with prices up from the lowest at a net loss of 8 to 9 points, although the tone was still nervous and unsettled.

Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 15.05; middling gulf, 15.30. Sales, 12,503 bales.

Futures closed very steady. December, 14.76; January, 14.82; February, 14.93; March, 15.10; April, 15.16; May, 15.29; June, 15.27; July, 15.27; August, 14.94; October, 13.54.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Market Opened Lower, Recovered Losses, But Sold Off Again.

Brisk and Spirited Selling a Close, Which Was Weak.

New York, Dec. 12.—The heaviness of the Harriman issues was the most conspicuous feature at the opening of the stock market today. Union Pacific declined a full point in the early transactions with a loss of half a point in Southern Pacific. Chesapeake & Ohio declined a point and the leading industrial issues, such as United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting, were off substantial fractions. A few unimportant gains were recorded.

Additional fractional losses were scored, bringing a number of important stocks into the range of 1-point losses, such as Reading, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting. The market then seemed to have found a resting level and later hardened slowly, the principal stocks making up the greater part of their losses.

The November tonnage report of the United States Steel corporation, the suit of the federal government against the Southern Pacific Railway company and the failure of our bankers to secure any of the South African gold delivered at London, were used as excuses to depress prices, but the absence of any liquidation under this pressure caused the usual covering movement. A further rise in Lehigh Valley and the strength of other issues in this class was ascribed to last week's decision affecting the anthracite coal roads. By noon prices were ruling at about Saturday's closing. Colorado & Southern gained 2 points, Lehigh Valley 1¾ and Delaware and Hudson, National Lead and Pressed Steel Car 1. Bonds were easy.

The market closed weak. Another vigorous attack was made against the market and prices were forced down to the early low level or below, Union Pacific touching 168½. The selling was brisk and spirited and when it ended the list showed a little inclination to harden.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case, Alworth building.

MORE STRANGE FRUITS.

The New Yorker who expressed surprise at the new fruits he had run across in a trip through the West Indies and Central America only touched the fringe of the subject on which he was expatiating. The fruits he cited, while delicious and unfamiliar to stay-at-homes, are not in the true sense exotics, says the New York Sun.

It is a good bet that this returned traveler never even heard, for instance, of the Peruvian cherimoya, which those lucky enough to have eaten it say surpasses the strawberry, in that in addition to the strawberry flavor it conveys, to an imaginative mind, at all events, the hint of the cream also, and this is to the vivid palate a Peruvian compendium of strawberries and cream.

The Malayan countries form the garden of Eden for queer and little known fruits. Their very names sound as though Lewis Carroll had invented them as provender for his Jabberwock. How many Americans have ever heard of, let alone tasted, the bilimbing, the langsat, the luing, the mandaroit or the rambs, which last grows in bunches and reminds you of a very large and very sweet grape, although it is not a grape at all?

Then there is the jintawan, as large as a big pear and with its flesh encased in a thick india rubberish overcoat, the flesh itself firm and pleasantly acid. Also the tarippe, than which the breadfruit tree has no finer variety. Then too the Borneo fig, which Dr. Beccari describes as "bearing great bunches of fine red fruit," the only fig that is not sweet but relies on an entrancing tartness to win its way to favor.

In Borneo too is grown the guango, which has six or eight seeds "embedded in a sweet pulp," something like a pomegranate. It is a fruit that according to the doctor "all human beings like and some think exquisite."

King of all the Malayan fruits is the durien, or duryan, the pulp of which has an ineffable flavor, while the smell of its rind is intolerable to civilized nostrils. White men in countries where this fruit grows form durien clubs, so that they can feast on it and confine the smell to one roof.

Queer fruits with queer names that sound like jokes are not confined to the Malay archipelago. Something over sixty years ago the explorer Chapman wrote that in the territory beyond the great Kalihari desert he had found the bododo, and he characterized it as "almost too luscious for a white palate." Livingstone told of the maneko of Matabeleland and described it as "full of glutinous, woody fibre and about the size of a walnut." "Really excellent eating," he wound up. He also praised the marula of Zululand, which is like a green-gage, with a large stone and hardly any pulp but with a sweet liquid instead, "simply delicious."

WHY A CAT FALLS ON ITS FEET.

London Globe: A scientist has constructed an ingenious model to show why a cat in falling invariably alights on its feet. This model, roughly speaking, consists of a cardboard cylinder wherein are stuck four rods to serve for legs, together with a tail devised on similar principles. The object of the experiment is to show that a feline's peculiar faculty depends on the rotation of its tail with sufficient vigor.

This faculty is specially developed by climbing and leaping animals, such as members of the cat tribe, monkeys, squirrels, rats and most lemurs. As already stated, the tail plays an important part in the turning process. According to the investigator all tree inhabiting monkeys have long tails, and there is not the slightest doubt that these tails are of great aid to all climbers in enabling them to turn in the air. The tail also serves as a balancer, as evidenced in the case of a squirrel, which may be seen walking along a tightly stretched wire or string, swinging its tail from side to side much after the manner of a tight rope walker balancing himself with a pole.

COST OF COUNTRY FARE.

"Not long since," writes a farmer in the Metropolitan, "I lunched at a New York restaurant. It was not the most expensive place, but rather above the average in price. The menu card interested me as a new schedule of rates would hold a railroad president.

"As a farmer I produced food similar to that offered for sale and I knew what I was paid for it. A man likes to see what is tacked on to the thing which leaves his hand.

"Strawberries and cream were offered at 25 cents. I figured that a quart of our berries would make about four dishes. Two eggs served in various ways cost 30 cents. You paid 80 cents for half a chicken.

"Now my big family would feel poorly used if we served less than four quarts of berries. We could hardly keep good natured on four whole chickens. For berries and chickens alone, therefore, at these restaurant prices we spend $10.40 at a single meal.

"If we charge the prices printed on this card for the salads and vegetables and other things which make our meal we should have a cost of $15, or over $30 a day. Of course my family is a large one and all are blessed with good appetites.

"I can buy food cheaper at other city places, but if I takes the prices paid by at least 150,000 people in New York the daily bread for our family represents $30 or more."

What the Wax Angel Saw

A Christmas Sermonette

THERE was once a little wax angel with golden hair and a blue silk sash, who was taken gently from her bed of cotton in the attic every year for many, many years and poised on the green spire of the great fir tree in the library. Her outstretched arms seemed always to be scattering blessings on the happy circle in the glow of the Christmas candles.

She had looked down on the first Christmas of the wide-eyed first born; she had smiled her waxen smile at the boisterous joys of ten, the sentiments of sixteen and the worldliness of forty. Indeed, her blue glass eyes had beheld the seven stages of Yuletide rejoicing.

Now, one day it was noticed that the beautiful blue sash of the little wax angel was faded and grimy, that her pink cheeks were pale, her nose quite flattened and her left foot gone.

"We'll have to use something else for the tree this year," said mother. "The little wax angel is all worn out."

And the next day her flattened nose was buried in the rubbage heap.

Nobody would have believed it, but the wax angel was glad her tree-top days were over. Her arms were very tired scattering blessings that were reckoned by dollars and cents; she had often wished to close her eyes on the pretenses and petty calculations of Christmas giving; she had grown pale because of her long vigil over the mockery of the Christmas spirit.

She had seen greediness planted in young hearts by the thoughtless generosity of their doting elders. She had seen quick eyes search for hidden price marks, and, when found, she had beheld their owner's look of chagrin or satisfaction in reflecting upon the exchange of baubles that had been made. She had heard wives and daughters and sons accept complacently enthusiastic thanks for lavish gifts—thanks which the wax angel knew were due only to the father over there with the weary eyes and the limp purse.

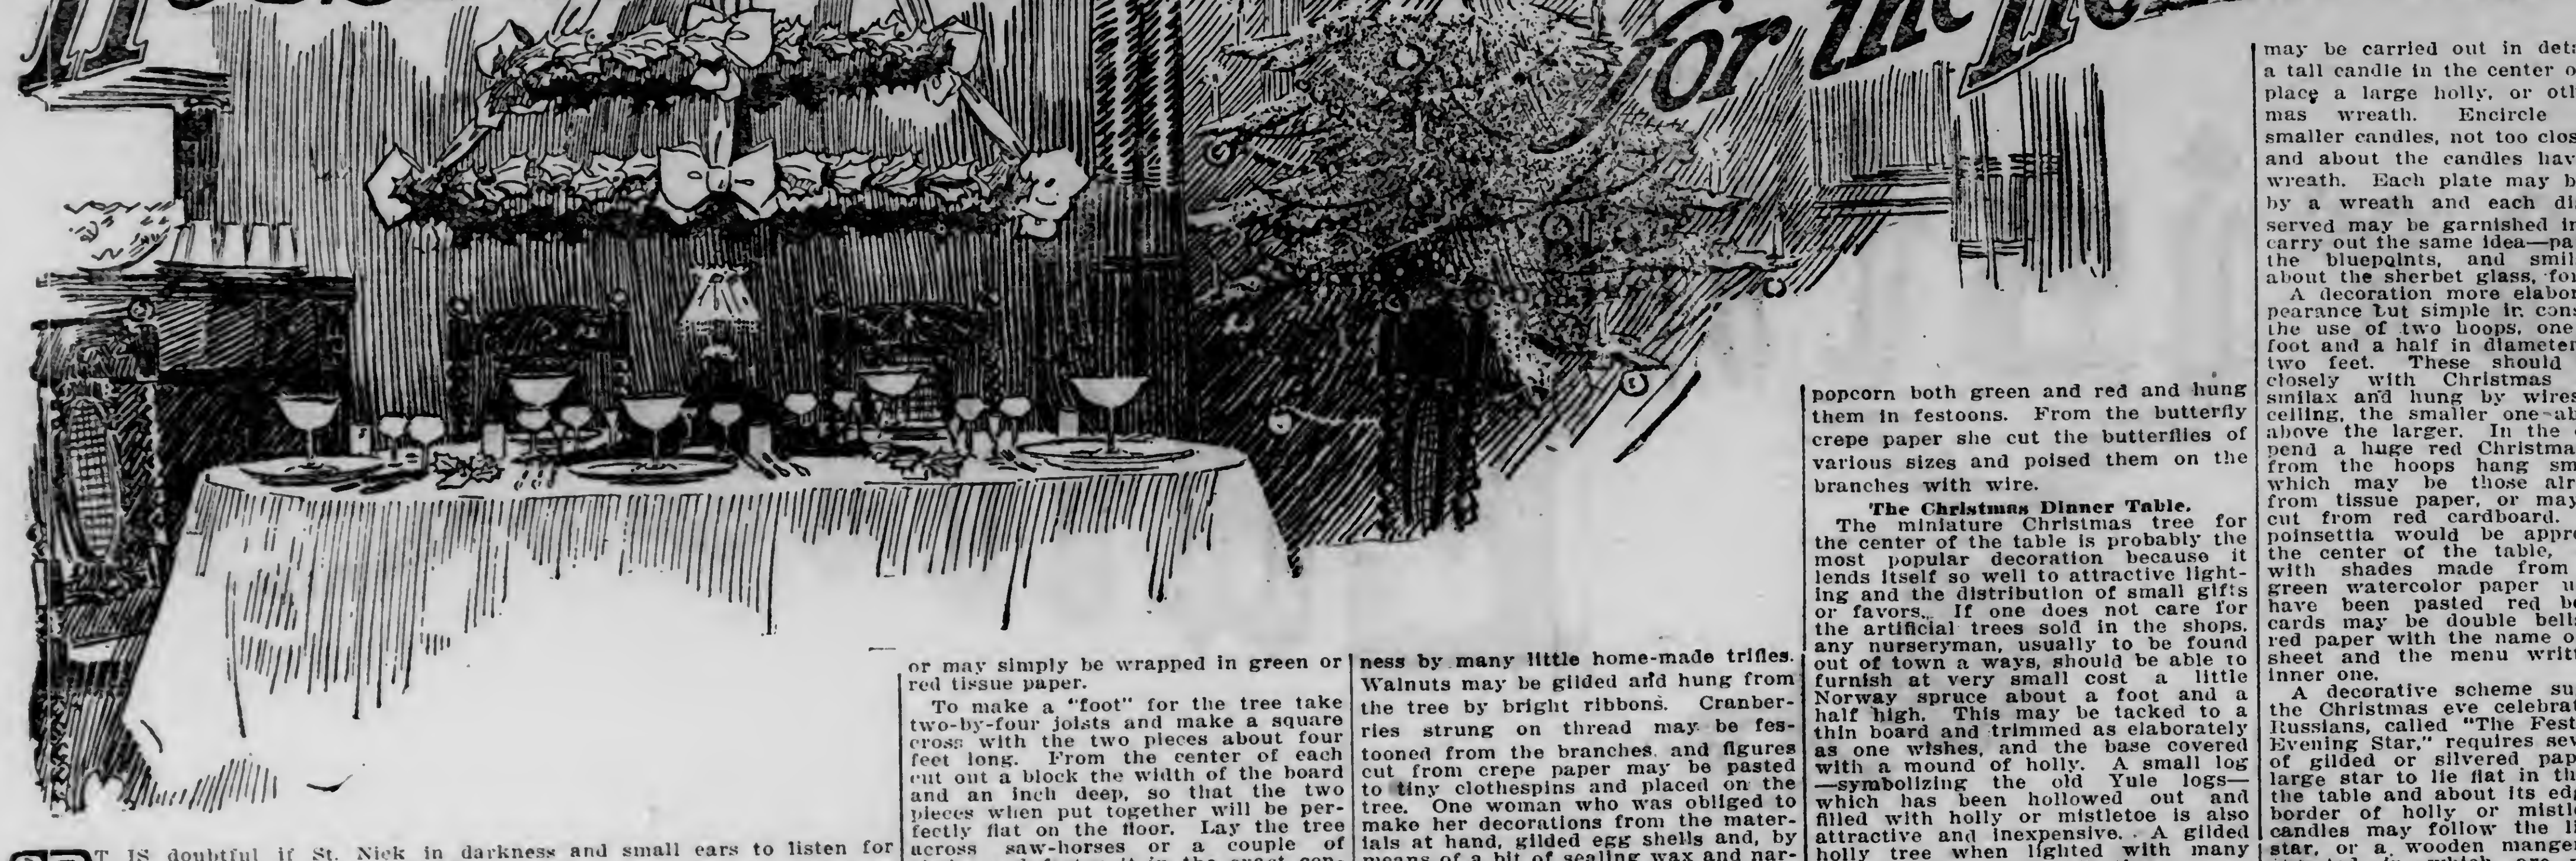
She knew, too, that the frenzied purchasing at the last minute, of that piece of real lace for the Rich Aunt had cost not only more than could be afforded, but it had cost also all the Christmas joy—meager enough—of the salesgirl who sold it. Its fussy, irritable selection had been the last straw at the end of many tired days. After the last sale the girl at the lace counter just crumpled up and lay on her bed all of that Christmas day and other days besides.

You see, it is given to little wax angels to see many things, hidden or unheeded by the best of us.

Suppose you resurrect the one that may have topped the Christmas tree of your youth—or perhaps only of your fancy. Let her unblinking eyes peer into your secret soul, and note if she finds there the real Christmas spirit, or the mockery thereof, that has paled her cheek and dimmed her blue glass eyes. Or perhaps it may have been a silvery star that glistened on your tree-top. Look if it has not been tarnished by your growing indifference to the good-will and kindness and other things for which it stands.

With a shining star, and all that it symbolizes, or an all-seeing little wax angel as your metnor, you will need no other Christmas sermon.

HOUSE & TABLE DECORATIONS for the HOLIDAYS



IT IS doubtful if St. Nick in all his travels ever beholds a dwelling in which no effort has been made to make festive the Yule-tide with the green of the leaf or the scarlet of the berry. Sometimes, when it is but a bit of faded ribbon or a tiny sprig of holly, the tender-hearted old fellow must be greatly touched.

In the household where there are big eyes to peer into the mysterious darkness and small ears to listen for the old saint's coming, the Christmas tree, of course, is the universal decoration. The home carpenter may have some difficulty in making a device to support a tree properly. One way is to use a stout packing box, and turning it on its side, nail cleats to hold the tree in place. On the opposite side of the box directly over the cleat inclosures a hole is then cut which is large enough to admit the butt of the tree. The box may be covered with cotton, sprinkled with mica, or may simply be wrapped in green or red tissue paper.

To make a "foot" for the tree take two-by-four joists and make a square cross with the two pieces about four feet long. From the center of each cut out a block the width of the board and an inch deep, so that the two pieces when put together will be perfectly flat on the floor. Lay the tree across saw-horses or a couple of chairs and fasten it in the exact center with long nails. Then stand the tree up and nail braces from the ends of the cross to the trunk of the tree at a distance of about two feet from the floor. Appropriate trees, in the order of their popularity, are the fir, spruce, hemlock and pine. The end of the tree should be painted over to keep the sap from running.

Besides the tinseled decorations for the tree that may be bought in the shops, one may add to its attractiveness by many little home-made trifles. Walnuts may be gilded and hung from the tree by bright ribbons. Cranberries strung on thread may be festooned from the branches, and figures cut from crepe paper may be pasted to tiny clothespins and placed on the tree. One woman who was obliged to make her decorations from the materials at hand, gilded egg shells and, by means of a bit of sealing wax and narrow ribbon, suspended them from the tree. She also dyed long strings of popcorn both green and red and hung them in festoons. From the butterfly crepe paper she cut the butterflies of various sizes and poised them on the branches with wire.

The Christmas Dinner Table.

The miniature Christmas tree for the center of the table is probably the most popular decoration because it lends itself so well to attractive lighting and the distribution of small gifts or favors. If one does not care for the artificial trees sold in the shops, any nurseryman, usually to be found out of town a ways, should be able to furnish at very small cost a little Norway spruce about a foot and a half high. This may be tacked to a thin board and trimmed as elaborately as one wishes, and the base covered with a mound of holly. A small log—symbolizing the old Yule logs—which has been hollowed out and filled with holly or mistletoe is also attractive and inexpensive. A gilded holly tree when lighted with many tiny candles is most effective.

The wreath idea in table decorating may be carried out in detail. About a tall candle in the center of the table place a large holly, or other Christmas wreath. Encircle this with smaller candles, not too close together, and about the candles have a larger wreath. Each plate may be encircled by a wreath and each dish that is served may be garnished in a way to carry out the same idea—parsley about the bluepoints, and smilax twined about the sherbet glass, for instance.

A decoration more elaborate in appearance but simple in construction is the use of two hoops, one perhaps a foot and a half in diameter, the other two feet. These should be wound closely with Christmas greens or smilax and hung by wires from the ceiling, the smaller one about a foot above the larger. In the center suspend a huge red Christmas bell, and from the hoops hang smaller bells which may be those already made from tissue paper, or may easily be cut from red cardboard. A scarlet poinsettia would be appropriate for the center of the table, or candles with shades made from white or green watercolor paper upon which have been pasted red bells. Place cards may be double bells cut from red paper with the name on the outer sheet and the menu written on the inner one.

A decorative scheme suggested by the Christmas eve celebration of the Russians, called "The Festival of the Evening Star," requires several sheets of gilded or silvered paper. Cut a large star to lie flat in the center of the table and about its edges make a border of holly or mistletoe. Tiny candles may follow the lines of the star, or a wooden manger be constructed in which are piled small gifts tied with ribbons that are carried to each place. The candle shades may be studded with little stars, and the place cards be cut in star shape.

For the small dining room with perhaps a dome swung from a single chain from the ceiling, ropes of cedar festooned from the molding to the center of the ceiling give a gala effect. The chain of the light should be wound with the cedar, and the glass covered with thin paper upon which fir trees cut from dark green paper have been pasted. Candles with shades fashioned in the same way add to the effect. For a center piece a great mound of snowballs, made from cotton sprinkled with diamond dust and containing some small gift, would be fitting.

A toy aeroplane, painted red or green, with the venerable Santa at the wheel, and the planes covered with drifted cotton snow which has formed irregular icicles depending from the edges, may seem a violation of the reindeer tradition, but it has the advantage of being quite new.

A Few Suggestions For the Children's Table.

Cover the table to within about a foot of the edge with white cotton sprinkled with mica dust, and outline the cotton with holly. Form a chimney in the center of bricks which are red candy boxes. Arrange the cotton about the top of the chimney like snow with bits of it hanging down, and place a figure of Santa Claus to look as though he were just emerging from the chimney. The children, at the conclusion of the dinner, may be given the candy boxes and the small gifts that Santa Clau's pack contains.

Gifts may also be secreted in a huge snowball made of pasteboard and covered with cotton, or each little article may be rolled in its own cotton snowball and the balls with white ribbons attached that lead to each place may be piled up about the figure of St. Nick in the center.

In place of "Dasher and Dancer and Prancer and Vixen" harness the beloved Teddy bears with scarlet ribbons to the sleigh that Santa drives over a mountainous snowheap in the center of the table. Or erect the North Pole—a mica sprinkled stick or rock candy—at the top of the glittering snowheap and place Teddy in a proud attitude of victory upon it.

RICH CHRISTMAS GIFTS TO DECORATE THE LADY

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. — The Christmas present problem is never simple, especially for the giver who has very little money to spend, but the solution should be less difficult than usual this year for those lucky mortals who need not confine their giving within the limitations imposed by a slender purse. The shops are full of delectable things, and so many of these are suited to feminine dress purposes that one is tempted to combine discussion of modes and of Christmas gifts.

Of course, mere man would be hopelessly at sea if he were turned loose among fluffy and frilly accessories of dress and told to select presents for the women on his Christmas list. Unless wife or sister leads him gently but firmly to milliner's, furrier's or dry goods shops and points out exactly what she wants him to buy for her he is much safer in a jewelry or leather goods establishment, or at a desk where he may write checks. But if a woman wants to give a dainty Christmas present to another woman, the shops are full of suggestions.

Only the things to wear properly belong to the province of this page, but there are so many pretty things to wear, from lingerie collars to imperial Russian sables, from satin slippers to diamond tiaras, things dainty enough to suit any fastidious woman at any price beyond a dollar or two, that of these alone a story may well be written.

The sables and tiaras may be left out of the discussion. Anyone who will or can buy such articles is likely to have definite ideas about the sort of thing she wants and does not need advice. But when the talk comes down to consideration of less ambitious furs and coiffure ornaments the average buyer is interested.

Fox Sets of All Kinds.

Furs are always an acceptable gift and while handsome furs are necessarily costly, this season is particularly rich in fur accessories of comparatively reasonable price. The fur neckpieces, for example, are not extravagantly expensive when combined with tapestry or satin or velvet, for only a small amount of fur is required. To be sure, many of theso are but a passing fad, but they make a charming complement to the costume and any woman who dresses smartly is fairly sure to be pleased with a set of this sort, provided it is becoming.

Fox furs of all kinds are popular this season and while some are enormously expensive, others are fairly moderate in price, as furs go. Many chic muffs are made up in combinations of chiffon, satin or braid. The white fox set in the sketch has a muff which is combined with chiffon and fox. The neckpiece is made of ono skin and falls just to the waistline. A turban to match completes the set, a large round affair, trimmed at the side with three tiny metal roses.

The 3-piece set in fur will be most favored as a Christmas gift by those whose purses will stand its cost.

Fox sets are in great favor this year, and many of the smartly dressed women one sees parading up and down Fifth avenue wear tailored street costumes of woolen material or velvet and large, fluffy scarfs and enormous muffs of fox, in the natural color, blue or pointed. A gift of one of these handsome fox sets would surely gladden any girl's heart.

Black lynx, while enormously expensive, is greatly worn this winter and is made up in most attractive shapes—wide flat scarfs or stoles and enormous flat, soft muffs.

While marabou is not new, very charming sets of light lined scarfs and muffs, with turbans to match, are being made up for evening wear.

Enchanting Neckwear.

As for the stocks, collars, jabots and rabats of lingerie, net and lace, never was such a bewilderingly pretty assortment of these things shown. There are high turned down collars of linen, hand-embroidered and inset with Irish or Cluny, or collars of Irish lace; there are shaped collars of hand-embroidered linen or collars of lace which fasten in the back, and a host of exquisite little stocks has been designed, graduating from the simple, close high collar or fine net, finished with a ruche at the top and a cravat at the bottom to elaborate affairs, hand-embroidered or trimmed in real lace and finished with dainty frills, jabots or plaitings.

Apropos of cravats, for an expensive gift one might wisely select some one of the pretty little cravats which are made separately for wear with the sheer yoke or collar. These come in various forms. Some are narrow folds of black silk or velvet fitting around the base of the collar and finished at the throat and at the ends with small flowers made of various shades of silk or narrow ribbon. Some of these are merely long bands and are to be drawn around the throat and knotted loosely either at the base of the throat in front or lower on the yoke.

There are many other attractive little cravats of loops and knots of some one of the various colored silk or velvet ribbon to be worn at the base of the throat among soft frills of lace.

A pair of pretty slippers for house wear or slippers for evening wear, with a buckle, rosette or bow, would be a practical Christmas gift. Party shoes, too, for carriage wear over slippers make Christmas gifts that are both ornamental and useful, and quaint little mules for bedroom use come in most attractive guise, made of delicate brocades, gold embroidered, in simpler form, etc.

And then there are the fur-lined motor shoes. These make another Christmas present worth having, and, though necessarily clumsy, since they are to be worn over ordinary boots and the fur adds to the bulk, they may be very attractive and will certainly be comfortable for winter motoring.

Pretties for the Hair.

Coiffure ornaments are always in order for gifts and this winter numbers of them are being made up for the Christmas trade. There are bandeaux and jeweled bands set off by aigrettes which are held by a flashing jeweled ornament. Soft shirred ribbon bands ornamented by ribbon roses are particularly popular.

The theater cap and breakfast caps and evening turbans and empire scarfs will all figure extensively among the gifts at this year's Christmas giving. There are also bewitching little nightcaps which are to be found in some of the importers' shops—cobwebby trifles of lingerie and lace hand embroidered and ribbon trimmed, which are not at all inexpensive but will make practical and dainty gifts.

Matinees in every degree of beauty and costliness are good Christmas gifts and many of the comparatively inexpensive models are wonderfully attractive. Most of the negligees of the Japanese kimono type, hand embroidered and in some of the delicate colors, make admirable gifts. Smart lingerie is always expensive, but makes most acceptable gifts, and there are to be found lovely models in nightrobes and petticoats, elaborately trimmed in baby Irish, fine hand tucking and hand embroidery.

Yuletide Proverbs.

The wise man begs to express much more than proverbial wishes that his entire clientele may enjoy the merriest of merry Christmas.

The universal spread of dolldom and drumdom is infinitely preferable to that of the doldrums.

Our early days will not, indeed, come back, yet is Christmas an Indian summer evening to the venerable, a reviving reminiscence of youth.

"The mirror of all courtesy" should be polished on Christmas day.

"A royal train, believe me," is the reindeer equipage of good old St. Nick.

His heart and hand both open and both free,
For what he has he gives, what things he shows,
Yet gives he not till judgment guide his bounty.

"Nature teaches beasts to know their friends," and why should they not share in the Christmas good will.

"Sweet mercy is nobility's true badge." Let us inwardly digest this truism with the Christmas cheer.

"Enough, with overmeasure," will probably characterize the Christmas possessions of a majority of us.

When does "Jocund day stand tiptoe on the misty mountain tops" if not on merry Christmas?

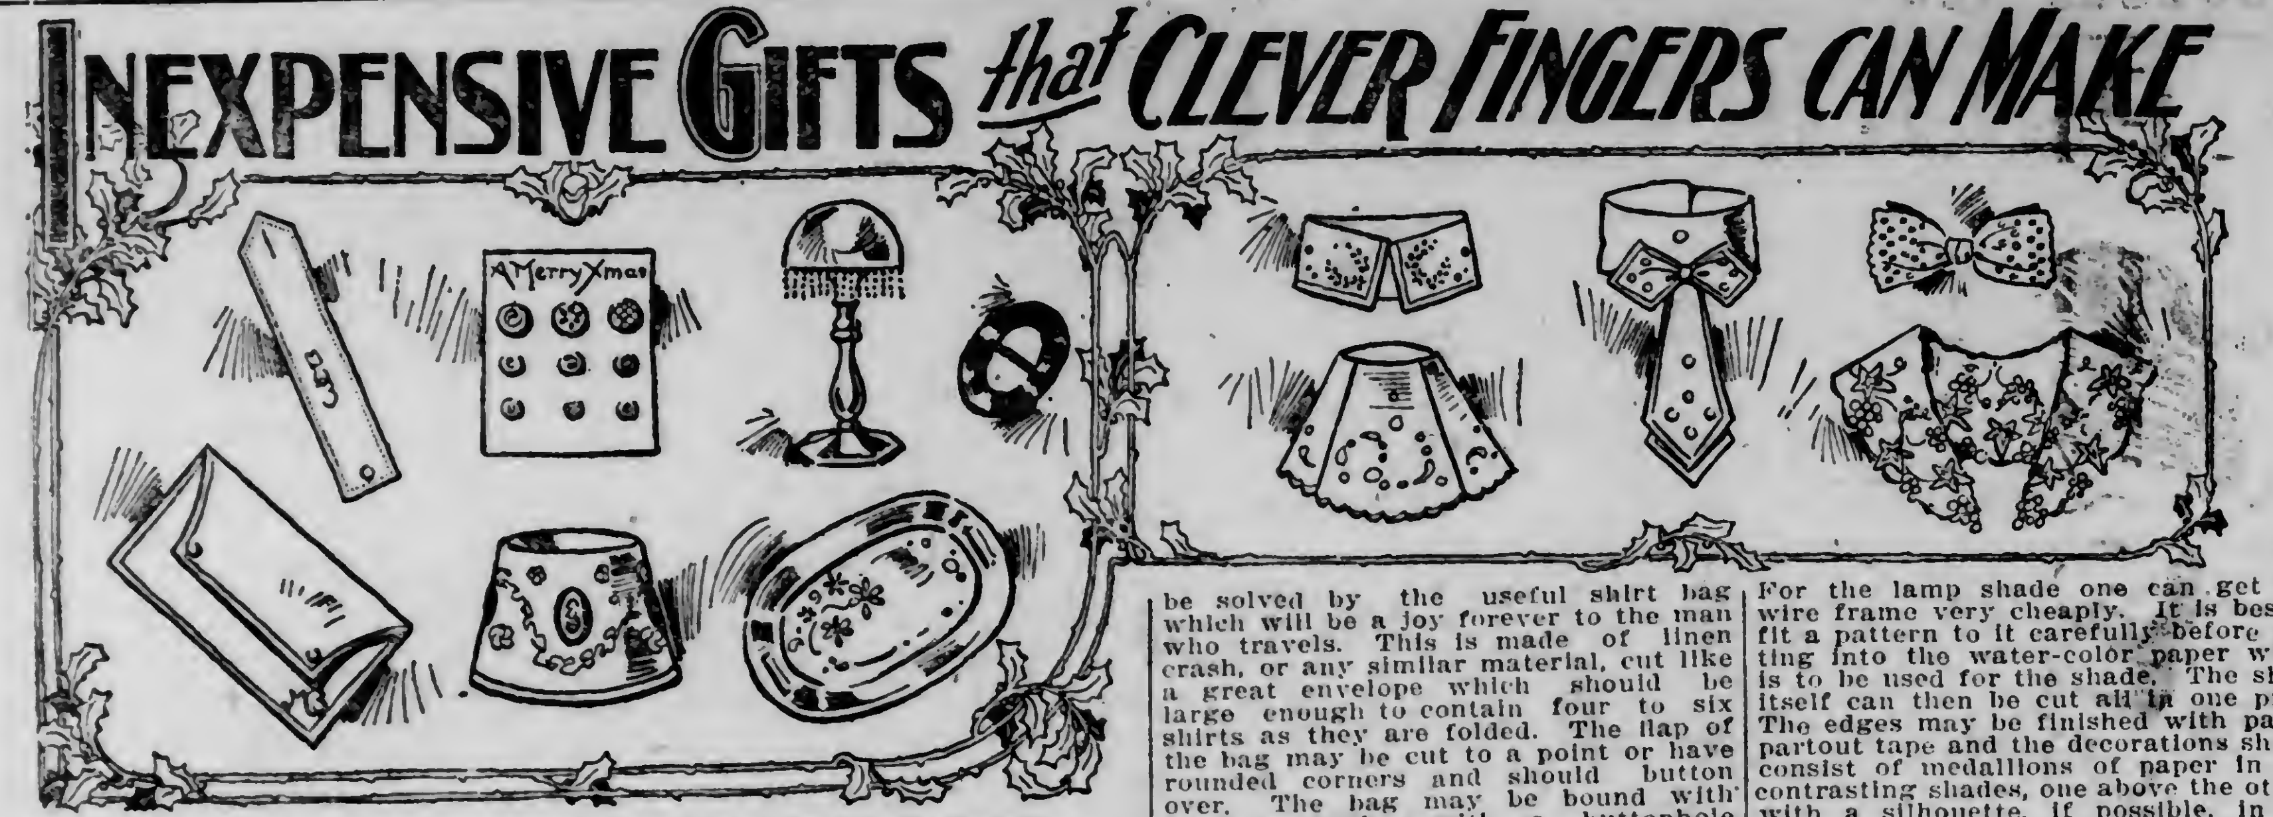
INEXPENSIVE GIFTS that CLEVER FINGERS CAN MAKE



THERE is often more of the real Christmas spirit—that will o' the wisp we prate about and rarely come upon—in the gift of a hemstitched pocket-handkerchief than in that of a cut glass berry bowl. Who has not felt a teary sort of warmth about the cockles of one's heart when the removal of dainty wrappings discloses a little gift, no matter how simple, that has been fashioned by the loving fingers of a friend? One pictures her sitting in the glow of the lamplight, perhaps, embroidering kindly thoughts into the bit of work she holds in her hands. One knows she has given many minutes of her busy life, which is like a gift of gold in these days of stress and hurry.

The wise woman will have turned to account the summer afternoons on the piazza and the results of her "pick-up" work will provide many simple little gifts. The woman whose pocketbook will not meet the demands of her generosity should be able to contrive many charming remembrances if she is willing to give a little time and utilize materials she may have at hand.

If one embroiders well there is no end to the useful gifts that may be made from a yard or so of linen. There are the linen napkin rings, which may be made of fine linen which should be folded double in a band about three inches wide, and long enough to encircle the napkin. On one end is the button and on the other, which is cut in a point, is the buttonhole. When these are embroidered with a monogram or a spray of flowers, starched stiff and buttoned over a dainty card the ymake a most acceptable gift.

An embroidered candle shade mounted on a wire frame, which has been covered with thin silk the color of the boudoir for which it is intended, would be appreciated by the woman who has the "washable" hobby.

An attractive tray may be made by having an embroidered centerpiece framed in a plain wood frame. The back should be covered with felt, and brass handles may be added to the frame if wished.

From linen crash may be made a neat covering for the contents of a suit-case, either bound about the edges with braid or finished with scallop embroidery and having a monogram in one corner. Then there is an infinite variety of bags which may be made from linen or crash or cretonne, from the delicately embroidered, lace-trimmed corset bag to the sturdy kitchen bag for string, or dust cloths, or clothespins.

A most inexpensive gift is crochet buttons. These may be all the same size or in assorted sizes. The wooden molds are first covered with white linene over cotton cloth, and then the crochet circle of the proper size fitted over them. They should be caught on to a dark green card which might have a Christmas greeting painted on in fancy lettering.

The jabot will be an appreciated gift again this season as its popularity has not seemed to wane in the least. These are most acceptable in any form, either having the tailored effect of hemstitching and tucks, primly scalloped edges and tiny buttons, or the fluffy, frilly charm of fine laces and dainty embroideries.

The baffling "man problem" may be solved by the useful shirt bag which will be a joy forever to the man who travels. This is made of linen crash, or any similar material, cut like a great envelope which should be large enough to contain four to six shirts as they are folded. The flap of the bag may be cut to a point or have rounded corners and should button over. The bag may be bound with braid or worked with a buttonhole stitch about the edge, and have a monogram in the corner.

The woman who likes to knit will enjoy making knitted reins for some child. These are made so as to slip over the neck of the child like a harness and if trimmed with numerous little bells will be a great delight. They may also be made from ribbon. The ribbon hoops for the baby, also with their tiny tinkling bells, may, quite as well, be covered with bright knitted yarn. Another gift for the baby is a chamois ball. This is made from pieces of chamois cut about the size and shape of the sections of an orange and crocheted together after the edges have been buttonholed. When this is stuffed with cotton it makes a soft, pretty ball.

Another gift for his small highness which his mother will also appreciate and his father will borrow when he has the toothache, is the tiny hot water bag which has been covered with a crocheted bag or one made of soft flannel.

A thoughtful little gift for the work bag is the scissors protector. Cover a cork with crochet of colored silk and crochet a chain by which it may be attached to the work bag. Then when the scissors are not in use the point may be stuck into the cork, instead of boring holes in the contents of the bag as they have a way of doing.

If one is anything of an artist, Christmas shopping is robbed of its terrors, for the things that may be made from hand-tinted silks or hand-decorated paper are legion. There are the delightful Empire shades for the bedroom lamp, and the smaller shades for the candle or electric drop-light. For the lamp shade one can get the wire frame very cheaply. It is best to fit a pattern to it carefully before cutting into the water-color paper which is to be used for the shade. The shade itself can then be cut all in one piece. The edges may be finished with passe-partout tape and the decorations should consist of medallions of paper in two contrasting shades, one above the other, with a silhouette, if possible, in the center, or a group of small figures cut from some old print. About the medallions should be painted delicate sprays of leaves, or if one is not able to paint, wreaths may be cut from wall papers of appropriate design.

More expensive and elaborate shades have thin silk shirred over the frames with a finish at the top and bottom of tiny roses made from ribbon. Another idea for the bedroom gift is the colonial pincushion. Buy one of the inexpensive glass candle sticks in colonial design. Cut a small square of cardboard, perhaps about four inches square, and cover one side neatly with cretonne. From a mound-like cushion of cotton on the other side and cover with cretonne. Then fasten the cushion on top of the candle stick by fine wires or thread and sew around the edges of the cushion about a two-inch fringe of white beads. You will have a most quaint, unique cushion.

Sets of heavy white envelopes in the corner of which have been pain' sprays or wreaths of blossoms may contain all sorts of "help around the house" such as rubber bands, labels for fruit jars or medicines, choice recipes, and also sachet powders, and a dozen or so dinner cards all decorated for use. For the school girl an envelope bearing the words "sweet sixteen" could contain sixteen tested recipes for candy.

Attractive buckles may be made from padded ovals or circles of cardboard covered with velvet or silk and having a simple design worked out in jet beads, or tiny jewels. A silk cord may be fastened through the center of the buckle and the buckle then threaded onto a soft ribbon or sash.

PLANT DECORATION IN CHRISTMAS FESTIVITIES

From "Nature and Science," in December St. Nicholas: No other holiday or special occasion is so closely and so widely connected with so broad a range of plant life as is Christmas. Easter is limited to the flowers, and Arbor day to the trees, but, more extensively than either, Christmas uses both trees and flowers, and adds to them the evergreen ferns, and also a lower form of plant life that is neither a fern nor a moss, but is known to the botanists as a "fern ally" or a "clubmoss,"—the trailing Christmas green (Lycopodium complanatum.)

It was pointed out in "Nature and Science" for July, 1900, that the variety of the club-mosses is closely associated with two important holidays. The plant is used for decorating at Christmas, and known as "ground-pine" or Christmas green, while a large quantity of the spores is used in colored fire and sky-rockets for Fourth of July celebrations.

For Christmas decorations we use many forms of plant life, even a parasite (that is, a plant that feeds on another) in the familiar mistletoe often brought from England, and our own false mistletoe (Phoradendron), less commonly seen.

The amount of plant material used in the form of Christmas trees is enormous, more than four millions being required in the United States each season. What this country uses equals that of England, Scotland and Wales combined, and is about 25 per cent greater than that of Germany. Taking into consideration, however, the population of the United States and of the other countries, the relative or per capita use of Christmas trees is undoubtedly less in this country than in Germany, and about the same as in England.

The question naturally arises, in view of this astonishing use of young trees, is it commendable when the need for the conservation of our forests is becoming so generally realized?

The forest service of the United States department of agriculture explains that the answer depends wholly on the method of cutting.

If improperly done, the effect is bad; if done in a scientific way, it is not only commendable, but is one of the best methods of promoting the cause of forestry. The United States forest service, therefore, urgent in its plea for preserving the forests, approves of the liberal use of evergreen trees in Christmas decorations. Ex-Forester Gifford Pinchot says:

"Yes, it is consistent and proper that the custom should be maintained. Trees are for use, and there is no other purpose to which they could be put which would contribute so much to the joy of man as their use by the children at this one great holiday of the year. The number of evergreen trees which are cut for this object each year is utterly insignificant when compared with the consumption for other purposes for which timber is demanded. Not more than 4,000,000 Christmas trees are used each year, one in every fourth family. If planted four feet apart they could be grown on less than 1,500 acres. This clearing of an area equal to a good-sized farm each Christmas should not be a subject of much worry when it is remembered that for lumber alone it is necessary to take timber from an area of more than 100,000 acres every day of the year.

"That the use of Christmas trees is perfectly in keeping with the welfare of the forest is fully proved by the practice in Germany. The cutting of small trees is there not considered in the least as a menace, but, on the contrary, as a means of improvement and as a source of revenue, and is therefore constantly encouraged. It is not by denying ourselves the wholesome pleasure of having a bit of nature in our homes at Christmas that we shall preserve our forests, but by learning how to use those forests wisely and properly."

MERRY CHRISTMAS

There is little doubt that the present thoughtless cropping every year of many young evergreens for Christmas trees has produced in many cases a bad effect on the future supply of these species. If the woodlands were under a proper forestry management, no harm would be done, for the yearly thinnings would satisfy even a greater market demand for Christmas trees than now exists. In Germany the greatest number of such trees come from the most carefully managed forests. The forester simply indicates to the dealer the stands which should be thinned, sees that his instructions are carried out, and the buyer himself does the rest and there is scarcely a hut in Germany without a Christmas tree.

The two or three hundred mature trees which one finds on an acre are only "the fittest" which have survived in the race for life that was begun by several thousand. One frequently finds in Maine and in the Adirondacks, which are the principal sources of supply for Christmas trees, as many as from 50,000 to 100,000 young seedlings on an acre. It is evident that only a small portion of these can reach maturity, the others being doomed to perish in the course of the development of the stand. It is necessary for the production of tall, clean timber that there should be, at the beginning, many trees to the acre, because only in this way are the lower branches shaded and killed, and trees forced to grow in height. In the course of nature, those trees die that lag behind in growth, they fall to the ground and rot, and often become breeding places for insects and fungi. Trees that have been left behind in the race do not, however, die at once; they often persist for years and frequently hamper the development of better ones. Especially on poor soil, where the growth is in general slow, and where no individual tree has strength enough to kill its neighbors and so get more light and growing space for itself, a state of stagnation and deterioration of the whole stand may take place. Many a balsam-fir or black-spruce swamp in Maine and in the Adirondacks is in just this condition. Man by interfering in the struggle, and by a timely thinning out of all loiterers, can hasten the development of the remaining trees, and at the same time find a useful service for those that are taken out. The application of forestry hinges, in many localities mainly on the possibility of finding a market for the small trees to pay for the cost of thinning them. The use of small evergreens at Christmas offers, therefore, the most favorable opportunity for the improvement of the forest.

For these good reasons, we need not worry over what, at first sight, seems a wicked waste of trees which, at Christmas, are used for only a short time and are then thrown away. We may rather feel that by buying such trees we are not only giving ourselves pleasure, but are actually helping the trees that remain in the forest.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

CAPTIVE airships which whiz around on a string are complete in every detail, and those made in celluloid are splendid toys that boys will be delighted to receive for Christmas presents. The popularity of electrical traction is reflected in the increased sales of electric trains and trams. The motor car and taxicab figure prominently on the shelves. These are provided with hooters, adjustable hoods, windows which can be lowered, glass screens, lamps and even the telltale taximeter itself.

Monkeys and bears on trapezes, which squeal and grunt continually, are new and are bound to cause endless fun. There are those which turn innumerable somersaults until the motive power gives out.

In the parlor and board game department new ideas are rampant. The old-fashioned Christmas tree may be superseded by the lucky pies, a big box full of prizes bearing numbers, which have to be drawn for.

The Always Popular Tool Chest.

There are few boys who are not "tickled to death" when Santa Claus leaves them a tool box, and now that manual training is taught in the schools most boys know how to use the tools intelligently. But they must be of the best quality to be of any practical value. And a watch! Well, the height of a boy's glory is reached when he gets a really truly timepiece. The popularity of the watch is well exemplified in one of Mr. Dooley's famous stories, in which the hero prayed for a watch as a Christmas gift, but, much to his disgust, received a hair chain that raveled.

Things a Boy Likes.

He likes a pair of hockey skates, footballs, an air rifle, college pennants, a desk, games, jack knives, tie clips, and if you want to delight his heart give him a silver pocket knife with his monogram on it. School and college pins and just now the monogram scarfpin may be what he'll want. Among more useful presents are to be found sweaters, school or dress suits. If the boy is interested in wireless telegraphy all kinds of batteries and appliances will help along the cause. Should you want a present for the small boy or for one of larger growth who belongs to a drum corps get him a really good drum and he'll be happy, but his parents probably will suffer. What difference? It's Christmas!

What a Girl Likes.

If she is a wee lassie who can just trundle a doll's carriage or is old enough to feel the real responsibility of a dollie as big as herself, she'll like nothing better than one of the up to date baby carts exactly like those a real baby takes her airing in. There is a new model put out for the Christmas trade and the cheapest of them sells for $3.50. The shape is the same at all prices, the difference being merely in the appointments of the carriage. Of course, the very wee girl will have an old fashioned model or a very tiny replica of this new variety.

Proud as Punch is the small girl when she wears her set of furs that Kris Kringle has brought her. This year there is a fascinating assortment of these sets, ranging all the way from ermine to the near ermine, which is just plain rabbit or cat, but pretty and dainty nevertheless. Chinchilla is an attractive pelt for young girls, and lately even the black furs have been considered smart for youthful wearers.

FOR BUSINESS GIRLS

THERE is no safer investment in the way of a Christmas present for any woman, young or old, than a scarf that may be used for afternoon and evening wear. Scarfs are the direct outcome of the vogue for tunics, fichus, berthas and draped skirts that have invaded the fashions this winter. One scarf can serve a number of purposes. It can be used as fichu on a house gown or worn as a shoulder cape under the evening cloak or adapted to serve as a headdress.

An Ivory Toilet Set.

"I've put my silver set away and now use the ivory toilet set Aunt Marion sent me last Christmas," was the very pertinent remark made recently by a girl who is successfully working her way to a good salary if not to fame. Yes, there are such comfort and smartness about the new ivory toilet sets that every girl is pleased with them. It is, however, much better to give one or two pieces at a time of the very best quality of ivory than to try to cover a larger field.

Pocket Writing Case.

Why not give her a stationary writing case? You can buy such a venience for $2.25 of fine, durable leather which holds a quire of paper, envelopes, fountain pen and stamps. Or a good print neatly framed to hang in her room is an acceptable gift, and even a calendar, if artistic, is not to be despised. But do be careful if you give her a book, and don't send an edition of Ibsen to the girl who loves the lightest kind of fiction, or vice versa. Handkerchiefs and gloves she'll flippantly dub as "commonplace," but she'll be grateful for the gift later on. Silk stockings are always winners in the gift line, and pretty combs for the hair, or an umbrella if it has a stunning handle.

Handy Powder Bag.

The stress and strain of the day's work never seem to make the business girl oblivious to the fact that her nose may be shiny and that a judicious bag of powder will add as much to her well being as the drop of oil given the rod of her typewriting machine. In other words, if you give the business girl a smart little powder bag, she will bless you as long as the vanity case lasts. She can conveniently dispose of the little bag in her pocket and surreptitiously give her nose a dab that will add to her satisfaction during the day.

The useful trifle is to be purchased at most department stores and comes in a Christmas box decorated with sprays of holly. There is a glass in one section, and in the other a pocket conceals a tiny chamois bag filled with powder. Small incisions have to be made in the chamois to allow for the outlet of the powder.

Child's Clothes Rack.

A useful and attractive gift for a child is a clothes rack which may be hung on the nursery wall.

A piece of wood twenty inches wide and five inches deep will do nicely for the foundation of the rack.

Cut a piece of white linen one inch larger than the board. Lay it on a table over a piece of blotting paper and fasten down with thumb tacks. Next transfer the design on the material by means of light blue carbon paper. Then tint the drawing with water color paints.

When the embroidery is finished place the material on the board and paste the edges on the back. Cover the edges with a piece of lining paper, tack on the ribbon and screw in the hooks.

WRAPPING OF PRESENTS.

Dainty Coverings That Render Gifts Half Again as Acceptable.

With the approach of the holiday season those who are thrifty and forehanded in the little matter of their gifts and the giving of them will buy a suitable box for each new present they select, or they will, upon collecting all their gifts together, measure and make a list of their sizes and then, upon some delightful afternoon or evening, will be in the pleasant business of decorating them.

They will be plain white to begin with, and they will no doubt be of varying shapes—square, round, oblong and even perhaps heart shaped or triangular—for the box of today is an interesting little article and the correct boxing and wrapping of gifts a science that renders the gift half again as acceptable.

The designs in holly and mistletoe are intended to be traced upon the box lids and touched with a quick dash of opaque water color. No art is required, but only a deft touch and neatness, besides the little pans of vermilion, green, black and white, which may be had in opaque paint, and a small camel's hair brush.

The round design, a conventional holly wreath, may be used on the round and the square box and even on one end of the oblong shape. Either of the smaller ones belongs to the smallest boxes of almost every shape, and they may aso be repeated upon the paper that wraps the box if this method of decoration is preferred to a spray of actual holly.

THE MISTLETOE BOUGH.

The mistletoe boughs and sprigs bring again to mind the superstitions regarding this curious parasite.

For many generations after the last Druid was dust the mistletoe had its votaries. The plant had almost every medicinal property, according to early physicians. It was believed to be a remedy for ills, physical, mental and sentimental. In pagan days it was dedicated to Olwen, the Celtic Venus, and through the ages the plant and the tender passion were rather intimately intwined. Kissing beneath it began so far back in history that no one has ever attempted to trace the custom to its youth.

The Druids, in common with almost all primitive men, had a deep reverence of the idea of the trinity—the number three. The white berries of the mistletoe are often found in groups of three, and this circumstance as well as the fact that the berries ripen at the sacred season, although they flower with apple blossoms and wild roses, must have impressed them. At all events, the white boughs were gathered near the end of the year and played an important part in the ceremonies of December.

The Druids did not regard all mistletoe with reverence, or at least they did not gather it in their ceremonies from any tree except the oak, which was their sacred tree. Now the mistletoe almost never grows on oak trees. In England, the continent of Europe and in America the pretty parasitic growth, the Viscum album of the botanists, is found growing on apple trees, willows, larches, sycamores, poplars, elms and many other trees, but very rarely on oak trees.

UNCLE SAM'S WORKERS BEAR CHRISTMAS BURDENS

Season of Hurry and Worry for the Postoffice Employes.

Duluthians Send Many Thousands of Dollars to Friends Abroad.

Christmas cheer is not for the employes of Uncle Sam in the postoffice department. They must give their best efforts for many hours on many days before Christmas that the gifts of love entrusted to them, may reach those to whom they are consigned. The American people have not yet all learned to shop early or mail early and in the week before Christmas the mails are increased to three or four times their normal size and the postoffice employes are buried under a flood of letters and packages. They must extricate themselves as best they can and to the satisfaction of the patrons of the service.

The carriers bear the major share of the burden. People figure on getting their gifts to their destination about Christmas day or the day before. Some of the more thoughtful mail their packages earlier and earn the gratitude of every postoffice employe who handles them. But the great majority of people are not so thoughtful and the two or three days before Christmas are days of arduous labor for the carriers. They are required to make two or three trips to go over their routes. On the day before Christmas and on Christmas day, some of them are required to call in the assistance of hourses and sleighs to bear their burdens. Christmas day, when others are resting, the carriers are trudging through snow-drifts delivering belated gifts. The same is true of the day after Christmas and it is not until two or three days after the holiday that the carrier can straighten up his weary back and offer thanks that Christmas comes but once a year.

Because he must walk through the drifts and bear his sack of letters and packages, the carrier's work is the most wearing, but the clerks get their full share of Christmas work. Every mail is greater in volume by three or four times than normal mail. The clerks are under a continual strain on Christmas before Christmas and after Christmas and, on Christmas day, they must work while others are enjoying the cheer of that day.

Applies to All Branches.

The Christmas rush applies to all branches of the postoffice service. The stamp and general delivery windows are open only certain hours and those in attendance do not get the heavy work of the clerks and carriers, but they are brought into constant contact with a stream of impatient, "fussy," unreasonable people out on their tour of holiday shopping and shipping. The general delivery and stamp clerk who doesn't lose his or her temper many times a day during the Christmas rush is a marvel of patience.

The money order and registry departments also get their share of the flood. Most small valuables sent at Christmas time go through the mails and are registered. During the week before Christmas, there is always a line of people in front of the registry window and the registry clerks are called upon to exercise the same brand of patience that the stamp window and general delivery clerks show, if they are not to be completely worn out by the strain.

Money Orders.

In Duluth especially, the money order business at Christmas time is heavy. Duluth is a center for a great number of people of foreign birth, who remember the people at home at Christmas time with gifts of money. Many thousands of dollars are sent to foreign countries from Duluth during December every year and the rush of foreign born people, some of them totally ignorant of English, is one of the hardest to handle in the postoffice work. The rush of foreign money orders is almost over now, as orders must be dispatched early if they are to arrive at their destinations before Christmas, but the native-born people, who are sending home money for Christmas, are now forming a rush that will continue up to Christmas day, so that the money order department will not fall into routine when the flood of foreign orders subsides.

The stamp window clerks have been relieved of a heavy burden in Duluth this year by the opening of an information and weighing window. The window was opened some weeks ago, but it is a little-known innovation and its real worth will come out during the Christmas season. Instead of asking the stamp clerk how long it will take to carry a package to Four Corner, N. H., or how much postage will be required for "this package of books without any writing," one will go to the information clerk and the clerks at the stamp windows will be required to do nothing but sell stamps. The innovation will facilitate the work of the office, for the great delay at the stamp windows in the past has been caused by the necessity of stamp clerks turning from their primary duties to weigh packages and answer questions. They will sell stamps this year and dispose o fpeople so rapidly that the vexatious delays in the line may be avoided.

Christmas at the White House

If rank imposes upon our presidents the obligation to celebrate the holidays in a manner to emphasize the best traditions of American domestic life, the families of the president and of the ex-president have more than met their obligations. Nowhere is Christmas a simpler expression of good will and merriment and the genuine sentiment of the season, than it is within the walls of the White House. Every Christmas, when Roosevelt was president, the doors opened wide at holiday time to welcome home from college the sons and daughters and their friends invited to spend the Yuletide at the gay social hub of the nation's capital, and the same dors have swung wide to admit the Taft brood and their many friends.

The Tafts look forward to the holidays with particular pleasure because often in the past circumstances did not permit of a complete family reunion at Christmas time. Sometimes it was the father who was absent, during the period when Taft was governor of the Philippines or engaged in his extensive travels; often it was one of the children, when they were attending widely separated schools in the United States. Then, too, the Tafts lived a great deal in hotels and rented houses, so that Christmas in the White House has the added joy of being, so to speak, under their own roof tree.

In a few days now the children will begin to return from college for two weeks of festivities. Robert, the eldest, will come from Yale, Miss Helen from Philadelphia, where she attends Bryn Mawr, and Charlie, the youngest of the family, from Connecticut, where he is a pupil in his uncle's school. If the Christmas jollifications assume any formal tone it is safe to say that "Cheerful Charlie," as he is called, may be counted upon to infuse enthusiasm and spontaneity into all proceedings. He is a great favorite about the executive mansion, but is quite unspoiled.

Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Taft's sister, who has been at the White House almost constantly during the present administration, will no doubt be one of the large family to sit down to Christmas dinner in the big dining room. The Taft family are noted for the strong ties of affection that exist among every branch of the family. The four brothers with their families have made it a point for many years to spend the summer vacations together at Murray Bay, on the St. Lawrence river, so that the Taft family will probably be represented by a large number at the Christmas festivities. Then there is the president's private secretary, who is always considered one of the home as well as of the official family. Monico Lopez Lare, the Filipino boy, who for about six years has been Mr. Taft's valet and general utility man, is sure to come in for his share of the holiday good will and cheer.

Full-fledged Christmas trees have not been used at the White House in recent years, though Quentin Roosevelt and Archie used to surprise the family with a miniature one they had trimmed on Christmas morning. The gifts are distributed in the large circular room or the room on the second floor, which is a sort of family sitting-room, and the cosiest room in the house.

Mrs. Taft is one woman in the country who need give no thought whatever to the holiday larder. From farmers, fruit growers, poultrymen, dairymen and bakers all over the country comes the best their stock affords. The president never knows who sends these things, but the secretary dispatches official thanks to the senders. Only one among the participants in the Christmas donation party is known. For forty years Henry Vose, who raises poultry in Rhode Island, has sent a prize Christmas turkey to the White House, and it is his bird that is served on that day. Some of the chestnut-fed gobblers have weighed as much as thirty-six pounds.

Christmas dinner is served on the Colonial china which Mrs. Roosevelt had made to order, decorated in gold. It was made from an exclusive design which is patented and copyrighted so that no other drumstick in the land will rest upon the same sort of gilt-edged dish.

CHRISTMAS A DREARY DAY FOR THE STRANGER IN A STRANGE CITY

Alone in a big city on Christmas day. No one but the stranger, far from home and friends, who is compelled to spend Christmas day in a city whose streets are unfamiliar and whose faces are the faces of strangers, can ever fully appreciate the full significance of being alone in a big city on that day of all days, Christmas day. If ever there was a day in the year when one does not want to be alone in a strange city, that day is Christmas.

The stranger awakes on Christmas morning with no fond recollections of a happy evening before spent 'round a family Christmas tree. Be the day dark and stormy or clear and cold, it is all the same to him, it takes on a gray hue that lasts the entire day. Mechanically he dresses as his thoughts turn backward to other and more happier Christmases. He hustles down stairs, thinking to find some respite from the weight which seems upon him. But on every hand old friends are greeting one another with a "Merry Christmas." He steps out into the fresh air only to hear more friends greet each other in merry salutation as they hurry along the street.

A Day Void of Cheer.

Breakfast over he sits himself down to read the day's news. On the front page, staring him in the face, is a big Christmas story telling of the joys of the day. Try as he will he cannot concentrate his thought on the page, his memory wings its flight back to other Christmas days. He strolls out into the open day hoping against hope to find something that will cheer him in his utter loneliness. But all he sees is the joy on other faces. Be he of the most philosophical turn of mind, ever ready to find joy in the happiness of others, he feels, nevertheless, a tugging at his heart strings as he finds himself left out of all the greetings.

The hours drag on till dinner time and he enters the cafe believing that the cheering music will take his thoughts away from his own loneliness. All about him is gaiety, dinner parties are reveling in keenest delight, friends greet friends with happiest salutation. The dinner is fine but somehow every mouthful seems to choke him and weary with the efforts to repress the sadness of his heart he leaves the dining room and wanders off to commune with himself and his own bitter thoughts. Exhausted, and the afternoon is half gone, he throws himself down only to dream of joyous scenes in which he can have no part. He awakes, a dull pain in his head, to find himself and more lonely than ever.

Goes to the Play Alone.

He thinks that perchance a play will divert his attention. He goes to the play—alone. The crowds come in jolly parties and every one seems merry. He wishes he hadn't come. Then the curtain goes up. The play is a comedy and he thinks with bitterness how illy the comedy jibes with his own feelings. Everything is out of tune. Nothing seems to please. Or mayhap the play is a tragedy. It fits better with his mood for he wishes he had not seen it for—well—he has the blues already and the tragedy has only served to make him feel worse.

The play over, he wanders home. He sees the happy throngs going to the cafes for the after theater lunches. He looks wistfully on and wishes he were one with them. But no, he is a stranger, he must be but a bystander.

At last, the long dreary day over, he sinks down to weary sleep vowing with his last waking thought that never again wil he spend Christmas alone in a strange city, no, not even if he has to go home on a freight train.

Duluth will have few such persons, for the hotels are generally deserted on Christmas day.

"YULETIDE" HAD ITS GENESIS AMONG EARLY HEATHEN RACES

Yuletide, which to us means Christmas time, is a term which had its genesis among the heathen dwellers of North Europe in the black ages before the light of Christianity had penetrated beyond the limits of Roman civilization. Wild Teutons who led primeval lives were the first men to use the word Yule. To them it had no Christian significance and meant nothing like Christmas, for they were all heathens. It was simply the name of a winter month, presumably January or December.

As the various branches of the Teutonic race scattered, each carried the word away. It is to be found in about the same form in the language of the Icelanders, of the Swiss, of the Danish, of the Goths and of the hardy Norsemen—that race whose leader is said to have come to the shores of America hundreds of years before Columbus landed at San Salvador.

Later the missionaries of the Christian religion reached and converted the scattered descendants of those mediaeval savages that first spoke the Teutonic tongue. They taught them the story of Christmas and in some Teutonic races the Christmas time became known as the Yuletide because the birthday of the Savior came during the winter period which the Teutons called Yule.

It was among the English and the Scandinavians that Christmas became known as Yule and it was in those nations that the ceremonies of the Yuletide were celebrated. One of those of particular interest was that of the Yule-log, which is practiced to this day. The Yule-log was a great timber placed on the open hearth as the foundation for a blazing, roaring, merry fire that was kindled each Christmas eve. Much ceremony and fun accompanied the placing of this log and the cheery occupation of watching it turn its glowing embers as the night before Christmas turned into Christmas day.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

The ORIGIN of some of our CHRISTMAS CUSTOMS

WE are apt, most of us, to observe the customs and traditions of the Yuletide with the feeling that they had their their birth with the first of the greatest festivals of Christendom. The Christmas tree, the gift giving, the candles, the holly and the mistletoe have become so identified with our celebration of Christmas that they seem as inherent and peculiar to it as the radiant points to the Star of the Nativity. And yet it is to antiquity and heathendom that we owe the customs we observe, the stock phrases we utter and even the mince pie, without which no dinner is complete. The Germans, the Scandinavians, the Jews, the Romans, the Goths and the Saxons have all contributed to make our Christian festival.

"Merry Christmas!" It is on our lips from the stroke of 12 that ends the vigil of Christmas eve until the last candle has burned out on Christmas night. If we think of it at all we accept "merry" as meaning lively, sprightly and gleesome and wonder a bit perhaps at its preference. As a matter of fact when the English first used the old Saxon word in this connection, spelling it "merrie," it meant simply pleasant and agreeable, but we cling to it in spite of its changed character.

The day before Christmas we bring into the house a great fir tree that is made the center of the festivities. It is an old German legend that has provided us with this pretty custom. Saint Wilfrid the tale runs, was one day cutting down one of the sacred oaks of the Druids. Presently a great wind seized it and it fell, split in four pieces. Behind it Saint Wilfrid saw a young fir tree standing staunch and unharmed, pointing a green spire to the heavens. He thereupon proclaimed it a holy tree and the tree of the Christ Child because its leaves were ever green and its majestic spire pointed heavenward. He asked the people to gather about it in their own homes, where it should shelter nothing but loving gifts.

On Christmas eve we illuminate the tree with many flickering candles—unless we prefer safety to sentiment, when we make use of the electric-lighted devices. One may choose among several picturesque accounts of the origin of this practice. In medieval times, when the forests seemed peopled with none but sacred trees, there was a tradition of particular holiness being invested in an illuminated tree. Then the ancient Jews held a feast of light about Christmas time in which candles were an important feature, so that their use may oddly enough have been thus adopted by the Christians. The huge yule candle signified the coming of the light into the world. The most beautiful idea is that our use of candles is derived from the fact that probably when Christ was born twinkling lights were burning in every house.

The holly and mistletoe indispensable for holiday decoration were originally identified with pagan festivals. There is a tradtion that holly is the bush in which Jehovah appeared to Moses. The mistletoe was an object of great veneration to the Druids, although only when it grew upon an oak tree. The propriety of kissing under the mistletoe is a relic of an old Scandinavian myth. It seems that Balder, the Apollo of the North, was hated by one Loki because "everything that springs from fire, air, earth and water" had given promise not to hurt the former handsome gentleman. Whoever it was had thus coerced all things of the earth and sea, had somehow neglected to mention the matter to the insignificant mistletoe. So Loki straightway made an arrow of mistletoe, and being an unprincipled chap induced blind Hoder to shoot Balder. Little good it did him, however, for the gods restored Balder to life at once and presented the mistletoe to the Goddess of Love to keep. Everyone who passed under it received a kiss to show that it was the emblem of love, and not death. The popularity of mistletoe was unabated for centuries, but one old writer says: "Mistletoe was abandoned in the Christmas decking of churches together with kissing at the services, because both were found to set the young ladies and young gentlemen a-reading of the marriage service."

And dear old Santa Claus, or Saint Nicholas, or Kris Kringle, as you prefer—what delightful myths from antiquity have presented him with his reindeers and his whiskers and pack of toys! The Scandinavian legend relates the coming of Odin, the winter god, who visited earth at the time of the Winter Solstice or Feast. Odin rode a white horse and preceded by wolves and ravens was supposed to lead an army of souls of children to whom he became a friend. Eventually he was said to bring the toys and gifts to the children on earth. We are satisfied now to tell the children that he comes down the chimney with his pack of gifts and disappears without being beheld by mortal eye. In a little Moravian village in Emaus, Pa., which is the ony place in this country where the custom is thus observed, St. Nicholas, or Peltznickel, is yearly impersonated by some villager, and visits every household on Christmas eve to distribute gifts.

The mince pie is a survival of the immense pies that the early Christians used to make in the form of a cradle or manger. After several centuries the pies were made smaller in size, but were still made to carry out the idea of the manger, in a sort of coffin shape.

HOLIDAY DECORATIONS

INDISPENSABLE for holiday decorations are the ornaments of glass and tinsel which are used not only to adorn trees, but to lend gayety to the aspect of dinner-tables and house interiors at Yuletide, and immense quantities of them are sold each season.

They all come from one place—the village of Lausha, in the Thuringian mountains, in Germany. That region is the veritable toyland—the real home of Santa Claus. Vast quantities of Christmas playthings, mostly of wood of papier-mache, are made there by the peasants, who do the work in their homes; and a rather curious feature of the industry is the way in which it is split up and specialized, one village turning out nothing but hobby-horses, another producing only Noah's Arks, and so on.

Thus it comes about that the population of Lausha devotes its attention mainly to the production of ornaments for Christmas trees—though it also manufactures enormous numbers of glass eyes. This little town turns out not only great numbers of such eyes for human beings, but also glass eyes for taxidermists' use, for dolls, and for toy animals. It is the world's principal center for this industry.

The chief object sought in the making of tree ornaments, of course, is glitter. Most of them are of glass, blown into fantastic and often beautiful shapes—various pigments and metals being employed to lend additional brilliancy.

The people of Lausha are all glass-blowers. They do the work in their homes, but the rough glass is provided by big dealers who contract for the purchase of the wares thus produced. Among other things, the workers turn out incalculable numbers of the familiar glass marbles so dear to every childish heart—these being made in moulds from long sticks of glass in which several colors are combined.

Unfortunately, glass-making is a very unhealthful occupation, and the people of Lausha literally give their lives for Santa Claus, few of them surviving long enough to reach old age.

Why Not These for the Girl?

A signet ring, bangle bracelet, sash and hair bow sets, postcard album, die stamped monogram stationery, hand bag, sewing set in fancy case, music folio and rolls, a stunning leather belt or sterling silver buckle, a dainty pendant and thin gold chain, wood burning outfit, a camera, silk petticoat, a pair of white kid party slippers, a silk rubberized raincoat, roller skates, doll house, white spangled fan, leather desk set, metal trimmed pincushion and jewel box combined.

DON'TS FOR CHRISTMAS

DON'T do up a parcel in such poor wrapping paper or in such a flimsy manner that the wrapper may be easily torn and separated from the contents.

Don't fail to put your name and address preceded by the word "from" on the upper left-hand corner of every piece of mail.

Don't fail to give full address—street and number (or box), town, city, county, and state of destiantion.

Don't forget that many of the drug stores in the residence districts are postal stations, where stamps and money orders are sold, mail is weighed, letters and packages are registered, and postal information given.

Don't mail a parcel without previously weighing it to ascertain the amount of postage required; printed matter, 1 cent for one ounce; merchandise, 1 cent for one ounce; limit, four pounds.

Don't place handkerchiefs, neckties, or other articles of merchandise in packages of printed matter, unless you prefer to pay the higher rate of postage on the whole.

Don't seal or wrap parcels in such a manner that their contents may not be easily examined, unless you desire to pay letter rates of postage.

Don't use 1-cent and 2-cent stamps for postage on heavy packages. Use the large denomiantions. It saves you trouble affixing them, and saves time and work in the postoffice.

Don't lay packages on the street letter boxes, for they may never reach the postoffice. Package boxes are provided at convenient places, with convenient collections.

Don't fail to register valuable letters and packages. The government insures their safe delivery, and the extra cost is 8 cents.

Don't mail sealed packages of merchandise to Canada and Mexico. The rates for unsealed packages to these countries are the same as in the United States, namely, 1 cent per ounce.

Don't mail parcels of merchandise to other countries without making special inquiry regarding the regulations governing parcels post.

Don't mail jewelry and coins to foreign countries. They are positively prohibited from the mails.

Don't forget to mail parcels early.

Don't expect the postoffice to transmit and deliver Christmas parcels within the same number of days or hours as at other times. Allowance of from one to three days' extra time should be made.

Not the Christmas Spirit.

"It isn't the presents—it's the spirit," said January Jones, the millionaire miner of Goldfield, apropos of Christmas. "I was in a jewelry shop last January, and something that took place there showed me that with too many of us the Christmas spirit is not the proper one. I was talking to the proprietor. One of the clerks stepped up excitedly, his eyes beaming with the hope of a big sale.

"'Say, boss,' he whispered, 'give me the key to the safe. There's a lady wants a solitaire just like the one she has on. She thinks it will be fun to have two rings alike.'

The proprietor did not bring forth the key. He only shook his head and said sadly:

"'Don't waste any time on her. The ring she has on is a Christmas present, and she only wants to find out what it cost.'"

RAPTURE AND TRAGEDY OF CHILDHOOD AT CHRISTMAS

"John" and "Clarice" Are Taken Through the Toy Department.

Grim Determination Avails Not Against Mother and the Clerks.

Some adorable French woman said or is reported to have said: "My childhood! That happy time when I suffered so."

The beauty of the rare remark becomes more wonderful as experience is added by the years but with the return of each Christmas comes again the consciousness of what childhood suffers at this happy time.

For those who object to such things, here is a promise that there follows no story about the lonely little one who wakes on Christmas morning and faces a temporary end of the world because Santa Claus had not come. Not so. The sorrow that is referred to is the annual visit of childhood to Toyland.

What exquisite delight!

What rapture!

What torture!

Would it not seem that heaven had opened before you when you looked down long avenues of bliss where within reaching distance on every side are the things that your soul has longed for? But is it bliss? It is not. On every side are ogres of human beings ready to pounce down and tear you away when you have only just discovered the thing for which you know that aeons before, you formed an affinity.

Surely one thinks here must be childhood's delight and then breaks in on one's ears in that admonishing tone peculiar only to mother:

"John! John, I say! You must let it go."

The Cars or Death.

John hugs to his 5-year-old chest a train of cars of which he has become fond. He says no word but grim determination shuts his teeth and from his eyes looks the spirit of "Rather than part with this, I die."

"John," says John's mother, "see the pretty lady wants you to put it up. That's a good boy. Maybe Santa will bring you one for Christmas."

John in five years has learned wisdom. For no ethereal promises of Santa will he part him from a real tangible train. He says no word but clasps it tighter to his bosom.

"Come, John," says John's mother. "That's a good boy. We must go now."

John moves not and persuasion having accomplished nothing, John's maternal parent ruthlessly tears the train from her son's arms.

And then John speaks. And as always after a prolonged silence he is listened to, not only by mother but by all the folks within hearing.

John lays his head back and opens his rosy young mouth and shuts his eyes in an ecstasy of preparation and roars. Rage, chagrin, disappointment, defeated ambition, all this and more is contained in John's roar when he roars. One long blast follows another, tears as large as lemon drops form and roll unheeded to the floor, where they are later gathered up by the scrub woman, and above and beyond all comes peal after peal of those wonderful roars.

In no way satisfied, John is at last dragged off, protestingly, while he voices his displeasure in voice that even Strauss in his moments of extreme cacophony would mark "forte."

Happy Childhood!

But surely in all this realm of what should be childish joy, some one is happy. Witness little Clarice on this side. She has with eyes shining with joy that has come to her destrided a bear, the most natural looking bear that might ever have come out of the wood to eat the children who made fun of Elijah. Sweet little Clarice is so very, very happy. That bear frightens her not at all and yet there is the thrill that something may happen any moment. Something does. Clarice is rudely dragged from the bear's back. She was not consulted. Just lifted down. Clarice protests. The corners of her mouth droop, her eyes grow larger, one lip trembles a bit. Was ever such beautiful preparation for an impending storm? One tear slides out. Her mouth corners droop lower and then gulping sobs and Clarice hides her head.

Happy childhood hours.

But is there no one happy in this fairland of happiness.

Indeed yes!

Down in one corner is a small girl who is chaperoning her smaller sister. No thought of touching anything occurs to them and no prospect of owning any of the things they see, happens to enter their minds. They are perfectly exquisitely happy just because there are such beautiful things in the world. They press their none too shapely noses flat against the show cases within which glitter a beauty they had not dreamed of. "Isn't it awful lovely?" inquires the smallest girl from the little one who is chaperoning here. And so Toyland brings happiness after all.

But true it is that in no place is Christmas more gorogeously and happily expressed than in the toy departments. Here are things designed only to bring joy and carefree happiness. In the toy department are no utility presents, thank goodness.

And by the way the toy department is like the circus. Folk you had no idea would do it, hurry around and borrow some one's child in order to have an excuse for going there to loiter and enjoy the things supposed to be reserved exclusively for childhood.

THE WREN BUSH.

An Old Custom Still Observed in Ireland at Christmas.

Among the many odd customs still observed in Ireland at Christmas few are more curious than the practice of carrying about "the wren bush" on St. Stephen's day, and antiquaries are puzzled to explain why the poor little "king of all birds" should be put to death on the festival of the first martyr, says Maud E. Sargent in Longman's Magazine.

The most probable explanation is that the wren was sacred to the Druids and was used by them in divination and other pagan rites at the festival of the winter solstice, which almost coincided with Christmas, and consequently the clergy urged their converts to destroy the birds which were associated with such unholy rites, just as St. Patrick's relentless destruction of the images of serpents, used in the ancient pagan worship of Ireland, gave rise to the legend that he

Gave the snakes and toads a twist
And banished them all forever!

This seems the more likely because "drean," the old Irish name for "wren," also means "a Druid," and old folk still call "Jenny" the "Druid bird" and say that she has the gift of prophecy and that those who can interpret her twitterings as she hovers about a house or flies from bush to bush can read the future. In the library of Trinity college, Dublin, there is a curious document describing how to interpret the notes of the wren.

Be Extremely Careful During the Christmas Rush in Boarding and Leaving Street Cars

Christmas is coming with its days and evenings of big rushes, great bundles and the accompanying risk in boarding and leaving street cars.

During the Holidays there will be many bundles carried by passengers, greatly increasing the danger in getting on and off the cars. We would especially caution the women and children, and urge them to exercise the greatest care while doing their shopping.

It is also imperative that shoppers shall be careful in crossing the streets, not only as regards the street cars, but all other vehicles. The number of autos, wagons and cars is much larger during the month of December, and the risk of accident is increased proportionately.

When the children are coming to town to do their Christmas shopping, give them an extra word of caution. It cannot do any harm and it may be the means of preventing an accident that will mar the entire holiday season for your home.

We caution all motormen and conductors to be particularly careful at this season of the year, and in every way we try to double our precautions for preventing accidents. It is, however, only possible to obtain the desired results by having the hearty co-operation of the public, and particularly the women and children.

The Christmas Derelicts

By Hene Mansfield.

HE had seen the mail leave the office, rather earlier than usual.—Kinney, the manager with his wife on one arm and his small son tugging impatiently at the other; Murdock laden with various awkward packages from one of which, through a break in the paper, a woolly lamb wagged a gleeful woolly tail; young Simpson each pocket bulging with a neat box tied with gold cord, and O'Connor had stopped at his desk a moment.

"See here, Barton, why can't you come out to the house to dinner? Help us fix up the tree for the kids—the madame would be delighted—"

He had cut him off almost sharply. "It's good of you, O'Connor. But I'm dining out this evening, thank you."

"Well, so long then, old fellow. A Merry Christmas to you!"

"Merry Christmas," he repeated politely.

He had heard O'Connor's big voice trumpet the same parting phrase to the elevator boy, and the boy's shrill, excited response came to him through the long hall.

"Mer' Christmus, Mr. O'Connor. Thank you, sir. Mer' Christmus to you. Mer' Christmus!"

Then he was quite alone in the office. Indeed, there seemed to have been a general early exodus from the building, to swell the throngs of eleventh-hour shoppers, or of those hurrying homeward to holly-wreathed gaiety. Only the rumble of the streets far below reached him, which seemed somehow to be pitched in a different key than on other days, and the occasional faint echo of a "Merry Christmas," as the elevators passed up and down.

Barton closed the office doors and a window which had been slightly open and set himself to posting the ledger. This unnecessary labor finished he sought diligently through the files for an unimportant letter that had been misplaced. Then he sharpened all the pencils in his desk to miraculous points, and mechanically tore off the top leaf of his calendar pad.

"December 25th." There it was again. There was no getting away from it, no matter what he did. All day they had dinned it in his ears. Tomorrow would be Christmas day. All the world would make a holiday—a holiday of family love and the thought of friends. And now it was Christmas Eve. Soon 1,000,000 tiny candles would be twinkling on the glittering boughs of fir and pine trees. Soon small stockings would be hung from mantle shelf and bed post, and small persons tucked all unwillingly into bed.

To Hiram Barton Christmas meant none of these things. It meant a solitary dinner on Christmas Eve at Henry's, a cafe not of the first order, where he was in the habit of dining. Ie meant walking slowly to his room after dinner past bright-lighted homes whose window wreaths seemed to grin at him mockingly; it meant waking on Christmas morning with only the desire to get the day over. The postman brought him no little gifts nor letters. Perhaps the landlady set a dish of fruit on his table. Perhaps she didn't.

Hiram Barton had no friends. It was not that he did not wish for friends,—it was that he did not know how to become a friend and that no one had ever had the patience to try to win his friendship. He was born incased in diffidence like a turtle in a shell. He had an unpleasant, frightened way of drawing back his head between his lean, stooped shoulders, at any friendly advances, so that no one ever noticed the glint of shy yearning in his pale eyes. Only once in his life had Hiram Barton asserted himself. That was when the rose-color ambitions of youth had seethed to the surface and he had left the farm. But the braggart assurance of the city paralyzed him. He was not stupid, but he grew to underestimate himself because others did.

In five years he returned to the farm for the funeral of his parents. He had hoped to renew some of the barefoot friendships of his childhood. But neither had the old friends the time to pierce his shell of diffidence. So he returned again to the bookkeeper's desk in the city, a friendless man.

"December 25th." Barton crushed the sheet in his hand, and threw it into the waste basket. Then he put on his overcoat and closed up the office. He slipped an envelope containing a bill into the expectant hand of the elevator boy.

"Thank you, Mr. Barton. I wish you a Merry Christmas, sir," the boy said formally, with no trace of the easy camaraderie with which he had thanked O'Connor.

Out on the street in the good-natured, hurrying throngs Barton was like a withered bit of wood borne along on a riotous wave of joyousness. At the corner, where the crwd was dense, the spire of a tall Christmas tree clutched in the arms of a big Irishman grazed his face and cocked his hat at an absurd angle. For a brief moment he had been drawn into the eddying spirit of the street. He straightened his hat and from habit drew back his head between his stooped shoulders.

"Loosen up, ye ould grouch! It's Christmas Ave! Ain't ye wise to ut?" remarked the Irishman, and strode on.

He paused at a brilliant shop window. A woman with a shawl over her head and a child stood near him.

"Oh, ma, don't I wisht 'at Ol' W'iskers 'ud bring me a doll like that there one!" cried the child.

Barton reached into his pocket, and turned to the woman shyly. "If-if-" he began.

"Come, Maggie, we must be gettin' home," said the woman taking the child's hand. And they passed on.

Barton took his usual seat at Henry's cafe at a table partially screened from view by a couple of dusty, artificial palms.

"Merry-Christmas-sir-soup?" inquired the waiter.

"Yes-and turkey-and-and-say, John, fix it up a little, will you—some holly or-or-"

"Yes, sir, I'll fix it up right for you," replied John, without enthusiasm.

Barton began almost to wish he had accepted O'Connor's invitation. But he knew that he would have been but a miserable spectator at a happ home festival. Too, O'Connor's boisterous efforts to put him at his ease troubled him.

Henry's was well filled. He hadn't thought it possible that so many should have no homes to dine in on Christmas Eve. He scanned the faces of the men and women at the tables about him. The men were for the most part flushed of face and loud of speech. Before them on the tables stood not only the bottles of cheap wine served with the table d'hote, but siphons and bottles of whisky to celebrate the occasion. Barton searched the place for the face of a woman whom he could imagine sitting up far into the night to dress a doll or fill a little stocking. There was not one among them.

Barton smiled grimly when the waiter brought in his turkey. At either end of the thick, dark slices of meat, he had placed sparse little sprigs of holly, quite berry-less and with broken leaves.

"Thank you, John," said Barton quietly.

As he was eating his desert he saw the nosegay woman come in with her basket of flowers on her arm. She had been coming every night for a long time. Barton had scarcely ever looked at her although sometimes when she sought out his table he bought a little boupuet from her, and taking it home put it in his toothbrush mug where it brightened up his room a bit until the landlady dumped it out. Tonight there was something about the woman that held his gaze. Beneath her small, neat hat her brown hair rippled back to a tight knot at the back of her head. And her face was the face of a woman who would sit up far into the night to dress a doll or fill a stocking.

"Merry Christmas, Rose-Anna!" "Merry Christmas, Rose-Anna!" Rose-Anna as the habitues of Henry's called her, responded quietly to the greetings. One maudlin celebrant asked her to join him in a toast to Christmas day. She smiled wearily and passed on.

Barton wondered if she would seek him out, behind the dusty palms. She passed his table without stopping, and he felt oddly disappointed. Then it may have been the dreary droop of his shoulders that she had noticed as she went by him, that brought her back. At any rate, she turned about and came back to lay a little nosegay on his table.

Barton's hand sought his pocket.

"O, that's all right," he said hastily. "This ain't no kind of a Christmas Eve, is it? she added, her eyes sweeping the crowded room, and returning to the limp scraps of holly on the turkey platter.

"It sure ain't," agreed Barton.

"I don't like to stick around here," the woman went on, as though she might simply be thinking aloud. "But they ain't much to cheer a body in a cold little hall bedroom. Ought to be candles and firesides and children on Christmas Eve, oughtn't they?" She looked down into Barton's pale eyes.

"They sure ought," he said heartily.

"Ain't you got anything — anything like that?"

"No, no, I have no family nor friends." He admitted simply to this kindly woman what had never passed his lips before.

"Me, neither," she replied. "Got no relations, and I ain't much of a hand to make friends. Kinda lonesome, times like this, ain't it?" She was covering over her basket carefully before going out into the frosty air.

It was then that all the loneliness of Hiram Barton's life seethed to the surface, as once before his youthful ambitions had done when he left the farm. All his longings for understanding, and a home and a mate had been lashed into an acute pain by the joys of the season around him. Perhaps it was the cheap wine that had made him a little giddy—perhaps it was the haze of cigar smoke that softened the plain features of Rose-Anna — but it seemed to him that in her face was the fulfillment of these things.

"I wish," said Hiram Barton firmly, "I wish that you would marry me tonight. 'Twouldn't be so lonely — and we could have a Christmas."

Rose-Anna fingered the covering of her basket for a minute. Then she looked down into Barton's shy, anxious face.

"P'rhaps I might," she said simply.

The head waiter was ushering a man to the only seat left unoccupied in the cafe—the one opposite Barton, there behind the palms. Barton arose and put his coat on hurriedly.

"Come," he said softly to Rose-Anna. And together they went out into the festive street. Together they sought the office of the marriage license clerk. They picked their way through the throngs, speaking little to each other, although occasionally Barton seized the woman's arm as though he were afraid she was a wraith. Luck was with them. The clerk was at his desk, working late at some statistics he was preparing for the coming year. He made out a license for Hiram Barton, aged 42, not married before, and Anna Hagan, aged 43, also unmarried.

As, later, they stood on the steps of the home of the justice of the peace before entering, Barton took from Rose-Anna's basket that he still carried, the little nosegays that remained and tied them into one bouquet. From his pocket he took a bill and thrusting it awkwardly into the center of it handed the bouquet to Anna.

"For-for the bride," he stammered. "And-and you won't need the basket any more—Anna," he added as he put it down in the corner of the porch. Rose-Anna had never dreamed that such chivalry existed.

After they were married they set out to buy a bit of Christmas cheer that should brighten up Barton's plain room. Gradually the constraint which had seized them both gave way to a delightful sense of companionship. Gradually the spirit of youth in them was revivified to meet the spirit of joy about them. Barton insisted upon buying a little Christmas tree and all the glittering appurtenances thereto. He hung holly wreaths on his arms, and stuffed his pockets with candles and nuts and little articles that Rose-Anna's eye had seemed to rest upon admiringly.

"I'd like to be buying you a surprise for tomorrow, Hiram," said Anna timidly, "if you'll just go and leave me for a minute."

"And I've just been wondering how I was going to get a surprise for you!" cried Barton excitedly. So they separated with gerat formality, to meet again soon in the great crowd of shoppers with unconcealed delight that their dream was not yet dissipated.

It was very late when they finished the decoration of Barton's room. They set up the Christmas tree on the table, with its ink-spotted spread, between the windows. They hung one wreath across the corner of the tarnished frame of the "Death of Lincoln." Anna put her bridal bouquet in the wash bowl in the hope that the wilted flowers might revive, and rearranged the furniture to her liking. The two surprise gifts they placed under the boughs of the little tree to await the light of Christmas day.

Barton glanced about the transformed room that was eloquent of Christmas cheeriness. His wife's hat hung on a hook beside his—her worn coat was thrown over the chair where he was wont to sit alone at night.

"It's home, Anna," he said brokenly.

"Home, Hiram," she repeated thankfully. A clock some where in the house struck midnight. "And a Merry Christmas to you!"

"A Merry Christmas!" he echoed happily.

SHOP EARLY, SAY POLICE

Some Advice for Christmas Shoppers From Chief of Police.

City Free of Professional Crooks But Crowds Offer Temptations.

Even the police say "Shop early."

They declare that it is the best insurance against being robbed or losing valuables which the public can possibly get. The crushes in which crooks work aro avoided, and the opportunities of the pickpocket and the thief are largely eliminated.

Chief Troyer, asked if any special measures were being taken for the Christmas season, said that the people can protect themselves much better than any one else by the use of forethought, but stated also that special efforts were being made to guard against pickpockets.

Here are some of the don'ts which he suggests might be born in mind by Christmas shopprs:

Don't carry a purse loose in the hand.

Don't carry large sums of money on the person.

Don't mingle with the crowds.

Don't fill your arms with as many bundles as can be carried.

Don't wait until late at night before making purchases.

Don't carry valuable jewelry on the person, whether for personal adornment or intended for gifts.

The stores and the streets are the stamping grounds of crooks during the rush of the holiday season. There they find an excellent field for plying their nefarious vocations. The bigger the crowds the better they like it, as it is exceedingly easy to pick a pocket or grab a purse in a dense throng, and it is about as easy to escape undetected. It is almost impossible to ascertain the identity of the thief under those circumstances.

Duluth is fortunately free of professional crooks of this kind. But the best regulated cities are subject to robberies at this time of year. Amateurs are strongly tempted to try their hand at the game, and others, possibly pressed by want, are driven to crime to secure money.

The big stores are putting on extra people. Both men and women are employed to be on the different floors day and night to be on the lookout for suspicious persons who might have designs upon the customers as well as upon the stocks. Some of them have special police powers and can make arrests without calling in an officer of the regular police force. Those who have not this authority are provided with special facilities for getting into communication with the police. It would take but a very short time for a policemtn to be summoned in cases of this kind. The police are instructed to be specially alert, but it is not thought likely that many, if any, extra policemen will be put on by the city authorities.

MISTLETOE BECOMING OBSOLETE AS A FIRST AID TO OSCULATION

The mistletoe bough! What memories cluster round the mistletoe bough! It is the emblem of the tenderest passion which man has known. It was the shrine of a simple pagan people who never knew and could not understand the grace, beauty and symmetry of a nature that was to them the emblem of an unseen and unknown Divinity.

A parasite in itself, the mistletoe bough through all the ages since time began has been the source of story and of song. Superstition, reverence and love, each in its own succeeding age, have clustered about the green leaf and the white berry of the mistletoe bough.

From the time when the last Druid had crumbled away to dust, down to the present age, the mistletoe bough has had its votaries. The physicians of the Far East held it to be a plant of great medical properties. Even then it was believed to be the cure-all for mental, physical and sentimental ills. In these modern days, when the simple beauty of accepted reverence for things not understood seems a lost art, the mistletoe bough is no longer the cure-all for mental and physical ills, and only by a little law of custom observed, now here and now there, is it a cure-all for sentimental ills.

Dedicated to Olwen.

In the pagan days the mistletoe bough was dedicated to Olwen, the Celtic Venus, and through all the ages the parasite and man's tenderest passion were intertwined one with the other. Kissing beneath the mistletoe bough began so far back in the dark ages that modern man has never tried to trace its history.

The Druids, like all primitive man, had a deep and abiding reverence in the Trinity, and the mistletoe bough, with its trinity of white berries, was to them an emblem of some Deity. This, coupled with the fact that the berries ripen in the sacred season, although the boughs blossom in apple blooming time, impressed these pagan people, and when they approached the mistletoe bough reverently in the home they did so in a spirit of reverence and devotion.

In the old days the mistletoe was found growing on the sacred oak, and this, too, may have had much to do with the pagan's reverence for the bough.

Kissing Practice Obsolete.

Today the mistletoe is found growing on apple, elm, sycamore and many other trees, but seldom, if ever, on the oak. This is true in America, Europe and England. It has lost much of its sacred character, and when used now is used merely as part and parcel of the general scheme of decoration. Often at some Christmas party a mistletoe bough will be hung alluringly, and watchful swains will wait to catch the idol of their hearts standing unconcerned beneath its bough. Then, under the old law of custom, he claims a kiss from the ruby lips he sings of in his dreams.

But today even this custom is practically obsolete. It prevailed to some extent in the days of our forefathers in America.

But through all time to come the poet and the songster will tell of the mistletoe bough as the emblem of man's tenderest passion.

HOLIDAY HINTS for the HOUSE KEEPER

The Christmas Dinner.

THE housekeeper will find it a great help and a needed reminder if she will write down carefully her menu for the Christmas dinner, no matter how simple it is to be. Everything that it is possible to prepare the day before should be in readiness, so that mother's Christmas may not mean a day in a hot kitchen, penetrated occasionally by the sounds of merry-making in the house, in which she may not join. Below are a few simple menus which may prove helpful:

Celery Soup. Wafers.
Roast Chicken or Turkey, Cranberry Jelly.
Baked Sweet Potatoes. Cold Slaw
Plum Pudding. Coffee.
Fruit. Nuts.

Sardine Canapes.
Deviled Oysters. Wafers.

The oysters, if possible should be obtained at the last moment from the fish market and served on chipped ice. The crabmeat, vegetables and pimentos for the salad are canned.

The Fowl and His Stuffing.

All the particularly delectable old-fashioned dishes that our gradfathers fattened on seemed to have been declared particularly indigestible. The moist—often soggy—stuffing, made of bread crumbs, sage and onions, which used always to swell the sides of the Christmas turkey is very near the top of the list of deadly indigestibles. One toothsome substitute which is well liked is made of a mixture of mashed potatoes and sausage meat. For a ten-pound turkey are required three pints of hot mashed potatoes seasoned with finely minced parsley, celery, onion and peper; one pint of sausage meat seasoned with sage and two eggs, which should be beaten thoroughly and mixed with the other ingredients. The turkey may then be filled and roasted. An attractive way of serving it is to have ready large boiled onions with a shallow well in the top filled with cooked sausage, which may be placed around the turkey on the platter. Just before sending to the table a little brandy is poured over each one and ignited, making a most festal dish.

Walnut Stuffing.—To one quart of fresh bread crumbs add one cup of English walnuts which have been cut into small pieces, one tablespoonful of salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper. Melt two-thirds of a cup of butter in two-thirds of a cup of hot milk and combine with the crumbs. Mix thoroughly and fill the turkey at once, allowing room for the stuffing to swell.

Turkish Stuffing.—For this is required one cup of rice, one dozen French chestnuts, quarter pound currants, one-half cup butter, two ounces of almonds, and a quarter of a teaspoonful each of salt paprika and ground cinnamon. Wash the rice and cook until half done in boiling salted water; drain and add the other ingredients. The chestnuts, of course, will have been cooked and cut in small pieces, and the almonds blanched and chopped.

Nut and Potato Stuffing for Goose.—Mix together the following: Two cups of hot mashed potato, one teaspoonful of onion juice, one-half cup sliced walnut meats, one-quarter teaspoonful each of paprika and salt, four tablespoonfuls thick cream, one tablespoonful of butter and the yolk of two eggs. A teaspoonful of sweet herbs may be added if desired.

Chestnut Stuffing.—Boil and mash one quart of chestnuts. Add a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, one-half teaspoonful each of chopped onion, salt and pepper, and one tablespoonful of butter. Bind with an egg.

THE CHILDREN WILL LIKE THESE HOLIDAY COOKIES.

English Honey Cookies.—Take two quarts of sifted flour and crumb into it three tablespoonfuls of softened butter. Add half a cup of molasses, one pint of strained honey and half a cup of water—hot. Add, at the last, one and a half teaspoonfuls of soda. Beat well together for a few minutes and bake in a quick oven.

Pfeffer Nusse (Pepper Nuts).—For these delightful little cakes is required two and two-thirds cups brown sugar, three tablespoonfuls butter, four eggs, two and one-half cups of flour, one and one-half teaspoons of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon allspice, three-quarters teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-quarter teaspoon each of white pepper and salt, one cup chopped almonds, one-half cup mixed, equal parts, citron, orange and lemon, chopped fine.

Cream the butter, add beaten eggs and sugar, then add fruit and spices and last of all the flour. With buttered hands shape into balls the size of a hickory nut, and bake on buttered paper that has been laid on a tin sheet. They should come out of the oven a delicate brown.

Chocolate Fruit Cookies.—Take one cup butter, one-half cup sugar, two tablespoons melted chocolate, one extra tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon boiling water, one egg, well beaten, one-half cup chopped pecan nuts, one-half cup seeded and shredded raisins, one and one-eighth cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder. Cream the butter with butter creamer, add sugar gradually; add the chocolate melted with the tablespoon of sugar and boiling water, cook one minute and add to first mixture, add egg well beaten, nut meats and raisins, dredged with one-eighth cup flour. Sift remaining flour with baking powder, add to mixture; beat thoroughly and chill. Drop mixture on buttered sheets an inch and a half apart. Bake in moderate oven fifteen minutes.

HOME MADE CHRISTMAS CANDIES

Old-Fashioned Butter Scotch—Put one pound of granulated sugar and a small teacupful of water in a three-pint porcelain-lined saucepan, and set over a blue flame. Stir the mixture until the sugar is completely dissolved, then place a wooden cover over it and let boil for a few minutes. Remove the cover and watch carefully. When the syrup is quite thick and the color has changed from a water white to a dark straw color the candy is done. Take it from the stove and stir in two tablespoonfuls of butter that has been softened, but not melted, also six or eight drops oil of lemon; set back on the stove for a few seconds and then pour the mixture thinly over oiled sheets of tin. Before it hardens mark it in squares or diamonds. Add a pinch of cream of tartar to the mixture when it begins boiling.

Chocolate Fudge—Melt one-quarter cup of butter. Mix together in a separate dish one cup of white sugar, one cup of brown sugar, one quarter cup of molasses and one-half cup of cream. Add this to the butter, and after it has been brought to a boil, continue boiling for two and one-half minutes, stirring rapidly. Then add two squares of chocolate which has been scraped fine. Boil this five minutes, stirring it first rapidly and then more slowly. After taking from the fire add one and one-half teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Then stir constantly until the mass thickens. Pour into buttered pan and set in a cool place.

Hickory-nut Taffy—Boil two pints of maple sugar and a half pint of water until it becomes brittle by dropping in cold water. Just before pouring out add a tablespoon of vinegar. The hickory nuts should be cut in halves and a buttered pan lined with them. The taffy is then poured over them, and cut into squares before cooling.

Chocolate Pop Corn Balls—These specially prepared popcorn balls will prove a popular substitute for the candy that is usually indulged in too freely by the children at Christmas time. Take one and one-half cups of sugar, one-third of a cup of glucose, two-thirds of a cup of water, one-third of a cup of molasses, three tablespoonfuls of butter, three squares of chocolate, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract, and about four quarts of popped corn, well salted. Set the sugar, water and glucose over the fire, stir until the sugar is melted, then, after wiping down the sides of the saucepan to the edge of the mixture, let it boil three or four minutes, with a cover on. Then remove the cover and let cook without stirring until it will harden in water. Add the molasses and butter and stir constantly until brittle in water. Remove from the fire and when it has ceased bubbling add the chocolate which has been melted, and the vanilla. Stir until the chocolate is thoroughly mixed, and then pour onto the popcorn and roll into small balls. The corn should be slightly warm.

"MERRY CHRISTMAS"

CHRISTMAS BERRIES.

Where the Holly Grows and How to Find the Best.

The old-fashioned Christmas greens were rosemary, ivy and bay, but in the 2,000 tons of wreathing and decorating material which it is estimated that we now use every year there is a much greater variety. Best loved of all is the glossy, red-berried holly. "Holm" was the old English name for it, and it is thought to be identical with the "greenwood tree" of British ballads and of Robin Hood fame. On our side of the Atlantic the American holly (Ilex opaca) is found from Maine, where it grows as a shrub, to North and South Carolina, where it lifts a symmetrical cone of dark, shining leaves set with scarlet berry clusters along a beautiful trunk of gray and silver to the height of seventy or eighty feet.

Delaware and Maryland are usually credited with furnishing the best grades of holly to Christmas markets, but their "Three X" brand, as seen after shipment to Northern cities, is not so finely berried as the Carolina holly, plentiful in the region around Asheville. In America there are three distinct grades of holly. Trees that stand on dry, barren, hillsides, as a rule, are heavily laden with thick, knoblike clusters of berries, but their leaves are likely to be small, yellowish and imperfect. Follow some little stream to a sheltered, sunny glade where a holly trunk gleams white, and there you will find leaves large, dark and perfect, with a thick scarlet fruitage lighting the shadows evenly all over the tree.

"SHOP EARLY" MOVEMENT IS SHOWING RESULTS

Duluthians Responding Freely to the Oft Repeated Advice.

Merchants Expect Christmas Eve Rush to Be Greatly Moderated.

At last Duluth shoppers are responding to the constantly reiterated "Shop Early" and the people who for several years have urged this movement are beginning to be encouraged at least so far as Duluth is concerned. Time was, but a few precious years ago, too, when every one held back until Dec. 23 or maybe Christmas eve, and then everyone rushed to the buisest store and revelled in the confusion and excitement, taking no heed of the weariness of the overworked clerks.

The result was that everybody got the worst of it. Clerks were tired, shoppers received less attention than they needed, the stock was overhauled and mussed, and then eventually people became aware of these drawbacks and they said, "What Ho!" or the 1910 equivalent of that expression "We will shop early." And lo, it came to pass.

"Something has certainly got the people going," said a Superior street merchant today. "They are doing their shopping earlier this year than ever before. The constant dripping of the last few years of 'shop early' has worn away the stone that the public had tied around its own neck and I think we can look forward from now on to happier Christmas seasons."

Certainly the Duluth merchants did their share to make the early shoppers happy. The biggest and finest stock ever carried in Duluth has been on display for the forehanded folks who helped themselves and others by doing their shopping early in the month. The beautiful things that have been spread out for the temptation and pleasure of Duluth people are almost endless. But the early shopper is getting the best.

The new regime is making every one happy. The shop girl is elated and with good reason. Unwearied and interested she can help the early shopper who probably "doesn't know exactly what she wants" and the late shopper cannot expect such attention in the last hurried days.

The movement toward early shopping which was started nationally by the public spirited band of women, the National Consumers' league, and which has been supported by pulpit and press and by local club women and pushed along merrily by the big stores in their advertisements, is bearing fine fruit this year, and early shopping has really become early.

Pass through the aisles of any one of Duluth's big stores and you will find the Christmas shopper. Many are making reservations to be delivered later. Others are helping along by carrying their own bundles home and having the added excitement of keeping them hidden until Christmas, from the prying eyes of the rest of the family.

Not only is the early shopping movement taking hold, but women who are so placed as to make it possible, are doing their shopping in the early morning hours, adding to their own comfort and the gratitude of the proprietors and salespeople.

The stores are devoting more space to urging the early shopping than ever before, and the lists for "Father," "Mother" and "Cousin" are plentiful in their suggestions.

A Christmas Game.

The "chest" may be arranged in any way that will hide one of the players. The game is based on the old poem, "Mistletoe Bough:"

The mistletoe hung in the castle hall.
The holly branch shone on the old oak wall.
The baron's retainers were blithe and gay
A-keeping the Christmas holiday.

The "retainers" all form a ring about the "lover," who is blindfolded. The retainers sing:

Here we are so blithe and gay,
Keeping our Christmas holiday.
One will hide in the chest hereby,
To guess who it is you must surely try.

With that one of the "retainers" runs and hides in the improvised chest. The "lover" is led to it and he may ask questions of the hidden one, who may reply by "Yes" or "No," disguising the voice. By these answers the "lover" must tell who the retainer is. If he fails he must try again. When he succeeds, the hidden person becomes the lover.

AMERICAN EXCHANGE NATIONAL BANK

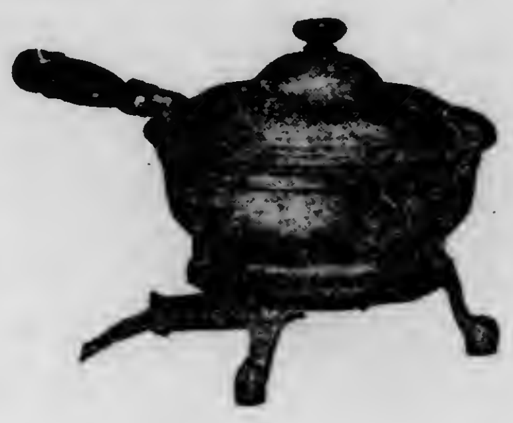
Let's Talk Over This Christmas Gift-Making Proposition NOW!

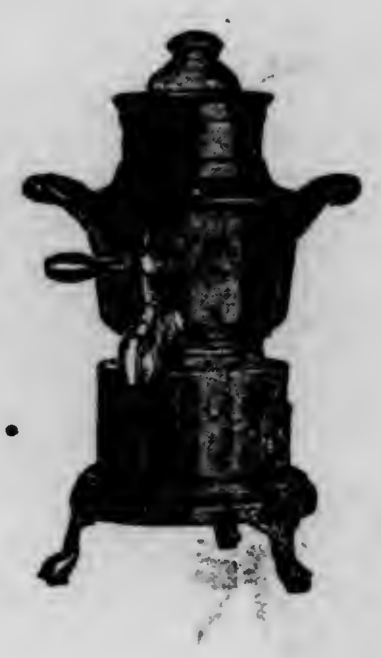
Put yourself in the place of the people you are going to give things to! What do you want? Do you pine for a necktie or a box of handkerchiefs, a box of the kind of cigars you don't smoke, or a prettily bound book of verse? Not so you could notice it! You want something you can use—something that will make life easier or pleasanter to you! And so do your friends! You don't know what they want and can use? Well, if they have electricity in their homes, here are some things you can be dead sure they want—because they can use 'em!

Chafing Dishes



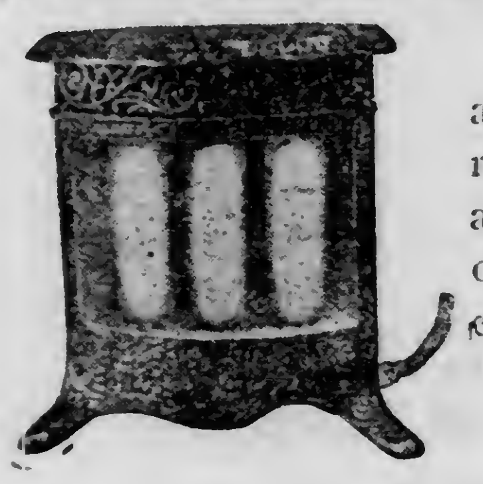
Uniform heat under perfect control makes an electric chafing dish the most certain and satisfactory of all cooking machines. We have them in many different styles and at different prices to suit all purses. A gift that will please any one.

Percolators



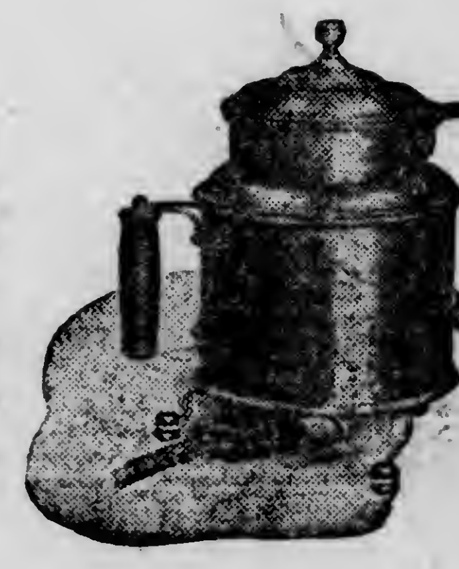
The illustration shows another style of percolator, handsomely finished, an ornament to any table. One of these will make a most acceptable gift to the housewife who takes a particular pride in the appearance of her table.

Luminous Radiators



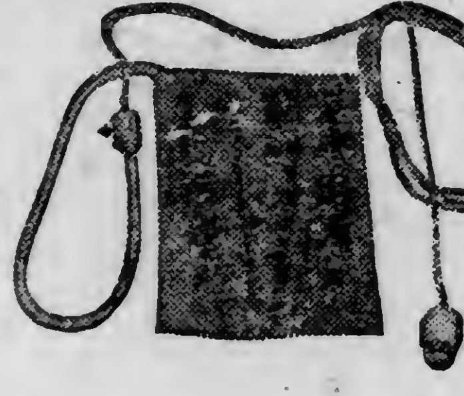
A portable radiator, invaluable in the nursery or sleeping room. Produces heat immediately when the switch is turned on. A beautiful and not too expensive gift.

Glue Pots



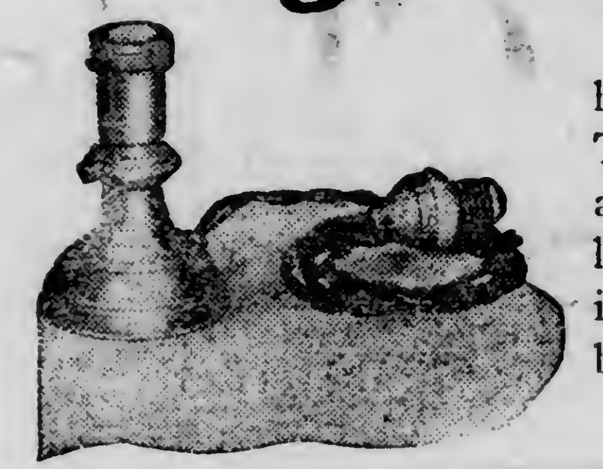
Made of aluminum to which the glue does not adhere. The radiating surface is so arranged that while the glue is always kept hot, the final temperature of the walls and bottom of the pot never exceeds 180 degs. Fahrenheit.

Heating Pads



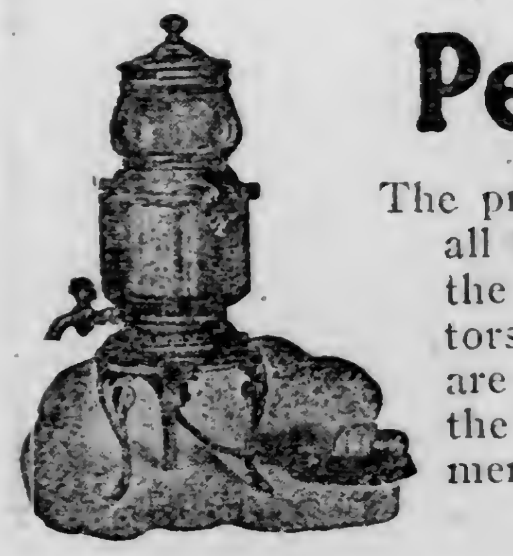
Take the place of a hot water bag, but admits of the Regulation of the Temperature. The very thing for these cold nights, no danger of leaks. An acceptable gift for any one.

Cigar Lighters



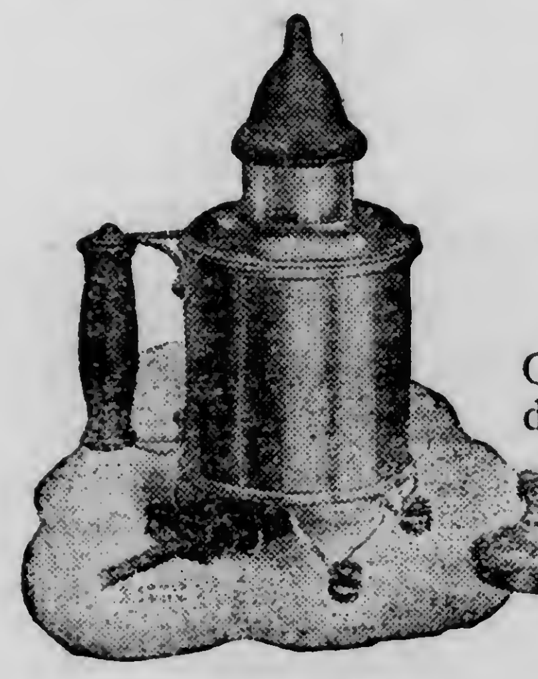
Just what he wants on his desk or smoking table. The cost of operation is about 1 cent for 1,000 lights, while nothing handier, cleaner or safer could be imagined.

Percolators



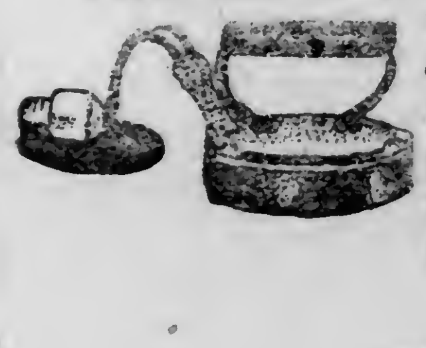
The process of percolation extracts all the strength and aroma from the coffee bean. These percolators are attractively designed and are always ready for use. Turn the switch and percolation commences.

Water Heaters



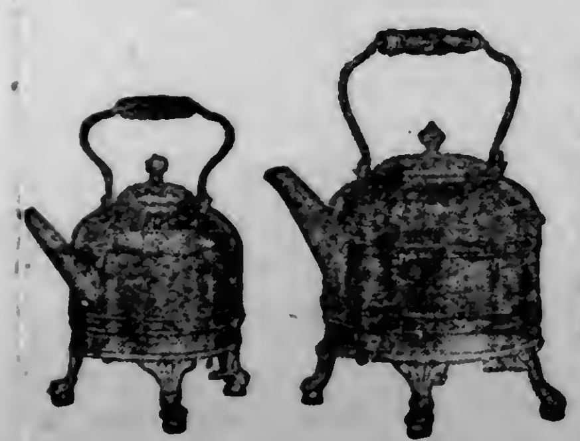
One of these water heaters will do away with the necessity of keeping a smoky fire going just to keep a few pints of water hot. Clean and always ready; they are not injured even by being allowed to boil dry!

Flat Irons



Three and six-pound irons, for light household work and for laundry work. Give one of these irons to your friend and you may be sure of being pleasantly remembered time and time again when the hot weather comes around again, particularly.

Tea Kettles



In one of these kettles water can be kept boiling for an indefinite time with the expenditure of very little current as the heat can be adjusted. In two sizes.

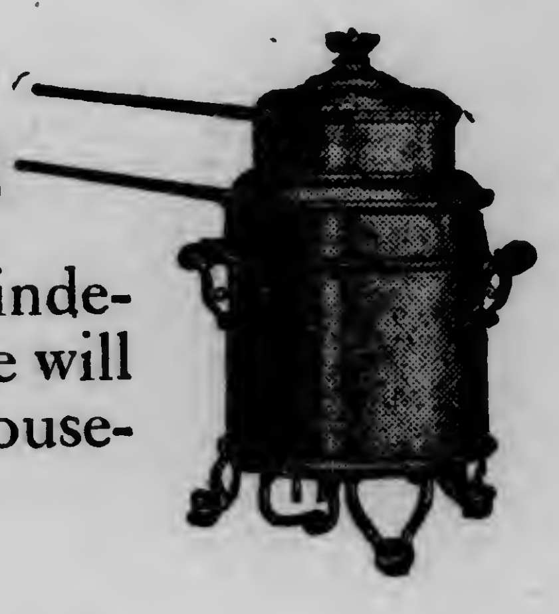
Electricity in the Home

Homes that are wired for electricity have every electrical household appliance at their command, including the few mentioned above. Every woman would be glad to receive electrical utensils, for they make her work easier and much more pleasant. They do the work quickly, thus saving time. They are so much more cleanly, that many of them, as toasters, percolators, etc., can be used right on the dining room table. The electric service also opens the way to the use of electric Vacuum Cleaners. All the drudgery of cleaning house is done away with by their use.

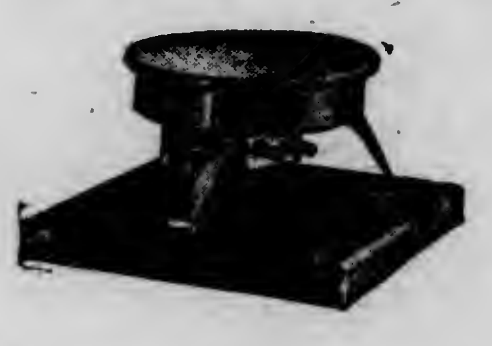
Men should get these modern appliances for use in their homes. They give wives and mothers much more time to enjoy other things of life, whereas, by the old way, they are oftimes so fatigued they cannot enjoy anything.

Make it an Electrical Christmas this year. We can show you why it would pay.

Combination Cookers



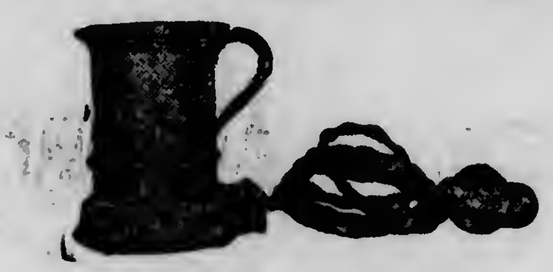
Made in four sizes, equipped with indestructible quartz enamel unit; one of these will make a most acceptable present to any housewife. Priced according to size.



Stoves

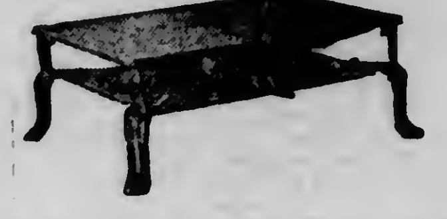
Can be used with ordinary dishes, are always available, and are CLEAN. Made in three sizes in cast iron, two larger sizes may be regulated for three heats.

Shaving Cups



A splendid gift for any man. Ornamental aluminum base, spun on enamel cup. A great boon to the self-shaver. Hot water just when and where you want it—ALWAYS hot.

Grids and Broilers



Both are similar in design except that the broiler has a corrugated surface. Cakes or steaks can be cooked to a nicety with one of these convenient electric devices without the necessity of standing over a hot fire.

To Merchants:

You know there's really nothing that attracts the crowd like light, bright light, and lots of it! Your show-windows and sales-floors may not be lighted as brilliantly and as economically as they can be lighted, anyway it will pay you to inquire into the cost and light-power of the brightest and cheapest incandescent lamp on the market—

"TUNGSTEN"

"The bright light, the white light—
It makes the gloom decamp,
That rapid-selling, sales-compelling,
Cheaper Tungsten Lamp!"

HOW DULUTH WILL CARE FOR ITS POOR, CHRISTMAS DAY

Charitable Societies Will See That Everyone Has Christmas Dinner.

Work Much Better Systematized This Year Than Ever Before.

Duluth's poor will receive more and better help this Christmas than in any former years, when the charitable societies worked under greater handicaps.

This year the supplies will be delievered after a carefully planned campaign has been laid out, and the families visited both before and after Christmas.

When a name comes in, the condition of the family is investigated. If the family is worthy of help, it is helped. If one family needs more than another family, it gets more. If it needs but little assistance, it gets that.

Last year and for several other years there was some complaint as to the manner of helping the poor families. It was stated that each received a certain portion, whether they were in abject poverty or only needed but a little help. This year all that is being changed. The committee in charge of the work all over the city are trying to estimate the needs and give each case individual attention.

It is probable that this plan will work out well as the Associated Charities and other charitable institutions have been working on the lists since Thanksgiving day. More time has been spent in visiting the families and signing up the need than during any year that charitable work has been going on in Duluth.

This is the fisrt year that Duluth has had a central society or clearing house to help in the work. The Associated Charities has been a big help to the societies, both at Thanksgiving and at Christmas this year. They check all the lists so that two societies will not help the same family and they also visit and size up the condition of the families whose names has been handed to them. The Associated Charities is simply on the job so that there may be more system to the work and less confusion when the real task of giving out the dinners and other help comes.

Coming to Duluth at the time of year when the work of this kind was the hardest, Mr. Dinwiddie, the new secretary of the central organization, has done a great deal to simplify and regulate the work so that every one would receive help in the proportion to his need.

Work Is Widespread.

The work is going on all over the city. The church societies are busy packing their Christmas boxes and barrels. Their lists have in a great many instances been checked at the central organization, and they are sending clothes and other needful necessities of life where the people are badly in want. It is said that the churches are doing more in this line this year than ever before. At one church the goods have been coming in for two weeks and it is expected that it will take the women of the church every afternoon this week to pack the clothes in boxes and barrels ready for their delivery on the day before Christmas.

It is not that Duluth has a greater proportion of unfortunate families than ever before, but many of them have been found who would not tell of their true condition to representatives who visited them in other years. This shows where there was need of a central organization for investigation purposes. Duluth now has that central organization and it is doing a fine work and filling a long felt want. Mr. Dinwiddie, Mrs. Lee and their assistants are very busy people these days and their work is being appreciated by the other societies which are furnishing the dinners, the clothes and the other Christmas needs of the more unfortunate people.

Need Children's Clothes.

The work of the humane society goes on all during the year, but the officers are busier than ever this Christmas. There are a great number of little boys and girls who need shoes and stockings and it is keeping the society busy supplying them. The clothes have not come into this office this year as freely as they did in other years and it keeps Mr. Fifer busy calling upon different ones who have given liberally when the society was pressed. Many calls are being made on the society from people on the range, but it seems to have all it can attend to in the city just at this time.

The old saying about one half of the world knows nothing about how the other half lives, has been proven over and over in the last two weeks, while the investigating has been going on. Next door to people of moderate circumstance have been found many who are in dire want. No idea that this was the case was entertained by the more fortunate people next door. Often times even the name of the poor family would be unknown. When told of the circumstances, the more fortunate family would be surprised and in a great many instances asked to be allowed to help the unfortunates discovered in their neighborhood. This takes the burden of the charitable societies and as they have plenty to do, they are usually glad to turn the particular family over to some one else.

Army Pots on Street.

The Salvation Army pots are already on the streets. The money contributed to these pots goes to purchase Christmas dinners for poor families. Last year the Army furnished nearly 200 dinners. This year it has not quite so many names on its list, but expects to have before Christmas as they keep coming in each day.

The dinners given by the Salvation Army would grace any table and the money that is thrown into the pots is probably made to go further than any other money that is contributed for charity.

At the present time there are five pots at the different corners along Superior street. More will be added as Christmas approaches and the number of shoppers increases.

At the headquarters of all the societies there is a real Christmas spirit. Duluth people give liberally to any good cause, and no trouble is anticipated in getting money in plenty to care for the city's poor in the best possible way.

CHRISTMAS DAY ALONG DULUTH'S HISTORIC BOWERY

Hundreds of Men Flock Here for Sole Purpose of Celebrating.

Intoxication the Aim of Many on Most Sacred of Holidays.

There are hundreds of men in this city to whom the coming of Christmas means little save that it is a holiday and a day given over to the seeking of amusement, diversion or such cheer as men without ties of home and family often seek.

The transient laborer, the man who labors in the woods in the winter, in the harvest fields in the summer, with the railroad or on the Great Lakes or the docks, is often without home ties, sometimes has not seen his home for years, and therefore Christmas finds him without excuse or opportunity of fulfilling the true and ancient spirit of the day.

Christmas on the Bowery and among the transcient inhabitants of Lake avenue and Michigan street, has usually been a rude satire on the true customs of the day, as the meaning of the day has come down from long years of custom.

Annually hundreds of men flock in for Christmas. They come from the lumber camps, and from sections of the surrounding country where industry has herded men together for the performance of daily labor. These men come to Duluth for the purpose of finding amusement, riotous amusement in some instances, for a man without home, without relatives near, has little opportunity, even if inclination grasped him strongly by the heart and called, for the commemoration of a day that in its original meaning was a day of sacred thanksgiving; a day laid aside among all the other days of the year for love and the offering of the gifts of love.

Bowery On Christmas.

Take a walk down the Bowery on Christmas morning, down Lake avenue or down the Michigan street row of saloons, and you will get a grim idea of the kind of Christmas that is provided for the transient laborer; the man who seeks his pleasure here and there.

They make a splurge. In thirst emporiums wher lutefisk, cheese and crackers are the usual pillars to the husky appetite, they clean up the remnants of the go as you please lunch, and replace it with a course menu that would be adequate for an average man's dinner.

The saloon that puts up the best dinner very naturally and also very logically, when you know the appetite of the man from the woods, the mines or the docks, draws the biggest trade. Figuring on profit and loss for the day, the wise dispenser of liquid beverage has arrived at the conclusion that it pays to put up a corking good lunch, often hire a one or two-man orchestra and bank on keeping a steady trade during the day.

This year Christmas comes on Sunday, and that fact is going to cut into the saloon trade and also deprive the floating population of a many-sided amusement feature. To the working man without home or relatives, who comes here the present Christmas to celebrate his holiday, there will be shut off the usual features.

True it is that the Bethel and other charitable organizations throughout the city have provided entertainment for the homeless laborer; and yet, it is a trite and true fact, that on the majority of Christmas days you will find the saloons the only place where scores of the roaming nomads of industry care to make free.

In the past the saloons have provided handsomely for their patrons and for the patrons that have come and spent the one day. There was Tom and Jerry, which is a national Christmas drink. There was music and there was also dancing among the men, and singing, for the word singing has come to cover a multitude of sounds and almost sins.

To be frank, there are many who come to spend Christmas here with one great thought consuming them and that thought is to "get pickled, plastered, or spiflicated," is the right and proper celebration of the day.

Christmas On Sunday.

But Christmas is coming on Sunday, the day when the elbow joint is supposed to rest and lie at ease. What will the several hundreds of men who usually flock in during the few days before Christmas do?

That is a question. It has been a problem, too. Where will they go and what will they do? These two questions assume large importance to the man who seeks pleasure and often forgetfulness on the day when the people of the earth are supposed to give thanks to the memory of a day when the Savior was given unto the world.

Did you ever stop to realize how many men live in the cheaper lodging houses of this city? The West Superior street district is filled with lodging and boarding houses of the cheaper class, as is Lake avenue and West First street, down in the incline district.

Here are the places where many a poor soul will spend his Christmas with the scant cheer provided. In many cases these lodging house are inhabited by foreigners. They "rush the can" and play some of the queer cards games that they have learned in their native land, for these men are clannish to that degree where they often have little conception of the customs of this country.

Many of these men spend Christmas in their rough abodes, taking such pleasure as they can afford; sometimes one grand and glorious jubilee on peculiar smelling and tasting liquor, and at other times their celebration consists of a feed where they partake of all the dishes that they have learned to relish at home, far across the blue Atlantic.

Christmas in these modern days is mostly of opportunity. The true significance of the day has been in many instances overlooked. Therefore men and women celebrate the day as they have the opportunity. In the case of the poor foreigner, who makes up a large part of the floating labor of this country, the opportunity often is confined to the four walls of his small room; again, often to the celebration that is planned by the owner of the boarding house.

It is small wonder that these men seek that artificial and made-to-order enthusiasm that comes stealing on one through the fumes of the liquor glass. It is not to be wondered at in the least. There is mirth, joy perhaps, for the moment, merriment and riotous pleasure to be found in the saloon for this nomadic class of men.

There are saloons where the foreign class hang out; there are others that cater to the men of the camps, where time checks are eagerly honored, and often money advanced on the promise of an old customer, who has made good on former touches. When Christmas comes the present season, the closing of the saloon will be a real grievance to some of these men.

There are the restaurants to be remembered. Many of the restaurants where you get something for the advertised price of 15 cents, are run by Chinamen. These restaurants carefully calculate the Christmas trade. They raise the price and expand the menu, and here are many Christmas dinners eaten.

Many of these men possess no imagination. The quality of the ethical is missing. The material makes the sum and substance of life for them. Were they possessed of a keen and vivid imagination, they would suffer. Therefore, they look for the material on a day that commemorates the greatest spiritual and religious event in the history of the birth of man or nations, and they are happy, as joy goes, and are satisfied in their own way.

After Christmas.

Said the Christmas tree by the old back fence
To the one just over the way:
"It seems to me it is hard to be
Out here in the cold today.
Last week I stood in a brilliant room,
With children dancing by,
And beautiful candles warmed me through."
Said the other tree, "So did I."

Said the Christmas tree by the old back fence
To the one just over the way;
"I wish out there on the mountain side
They only had let me stay.
My roots were strong, I was warm and green,
While the merry snow flew by,
But now I am trembling, old and weak."
Said the other tree, "So am I."

Said the Christmas tree by the old back fence
To the one just over the way:
"A little boy threw a rock at me
As he passed along today.
And last week, up by a beautiful doll,
A sled was hanging high
For that bad little boy. I'm tired to death."
Said the other tree, "So am I."

Said the Christmas tree by the old back fence
To the one just over the way
"A little girl that I gave a ring
Came by, and I heard her say,
'You ugly old tree, who cares for you!'
And she made up a face so wry
I wouldn't believe folks could so forget."
Said the other tree, "Nor would I."

Said the Christmas tree by the old back fence
To the one just over the way:
"It's hard to die so far from home,
But I guess we've had our day,
And the children maybe in years to come
Will think of us with a sigh
And the joy it gave. I am reconciled."
Said the other tree. "So am I."

Making Appropriate Gifts.

The year just closing has been so prosperous that the spirit of philanthropy will find very large expression in the giving of Christmas cheer at home and abroad, writes Cyrus P. Jones in Success. The trans-Atlantic mails are already burdened with the money letters sent from America to "the old folks at home."

Next to the gifts which brighten the home of the American citizen, those given to worthy charity are important to consider. Too many people give indiscriminately. They mean well, but so did the committee which sent $20,000 worth of fireworks to the Irish famine sufferers.

Still others give something of no value whatever. An instance of this was made manifest at a public gathering in New York, where one of the speakers called attention to the sufferers from a prolonged strike and suggested the advisability of giving them something. One of the sympathetic audience got up and said, "I move that we give them three cheers!" Let us select our gifts with reference to their appropriateness and utility.

NO CHEAP RATES THIS CHRISTMAS

Those Planning Holiday Jaunt Must Pay Straight Two-Cent Fare.

Holiday travelers this year will have to pay the regular railroad rates in Minnesota and all two-cent territory.

That is the information given out by the railroads for the benefit of those who are planning a Christmas or New Year's trip. The railroad fare will be just the same as it is every day in the year—2 cents a mile.

Holiday rates were abandoned when the 2-cent fare became effective. Regular rates prevailed last Christmas and also on Thanksgiving. The railroad men say the 2-cent fare is equivalent to the reduced rates formerly given under the 3-cent fare.

Missouri probably will be the only state in the Middle West which gets a reduced holiday rate. It probably will be a fare and a third for the round trip. As the regular rate there is three cents a mile this is equivalent to the 2-cent rate in Minnesota.

WHERE TOYS COME FROM

Germany Was Formerly the Chief Center of Production.

United States Now Competing in Metal Toys at Least.

Where do the Christmas toys come from? is the question often asked by those who have passed the age of thinking about the big Santa Claus factory in the far North. In spite of the fact that its products occupy the attention of the public for only a few weeks each year, the toy industry is among the greatest in the land. Up until a short time ago Germany led all other countries in the production of Christmas delights, but the United States is fast coming into its own in the matter of toy manufacture. The great factories in this country are proving to be too great a competition for the peasants of the foreign countries. There is an exception to this rule, however, in the wooden animals, the weird-looking occupants of Noah's ark and other strange forms of the animal kingdom. No machine has been constructed that can duplicate the menageries as whittled out by the poorer classes of Germany and other foreign countries.

Taught From Childhood.

The peasant children are taught to make toys from the time they are able to walk. They commence by making little rolling pins or some such simple contrivance. It is a life work with them and they follow it the whole year round. Representatives of wholesale houses come around at certain periods of the year and buy their products. The toys they make are the best that can be procured because they take so much pains with them, yet they are bought at ridiculously low prices. A full barnyard set, with an array of half a dozen different varieties of animals, will net the maker about 4 cents. It can be purchased in Duluth for perhaps 25 cents.

The more substantial articles, such as wash sets, furniture, hobby horses, etc., are nearly all made in the United States. Nearly all the metal toys are also made in this country. That is because the factories here are equal, if not superior, to the German factories, and there is no duty to pay on them.

The Question of Duty.

The question of duty brings out another point in the toy industry. The German children receive much finer presents for Christmas than their cousins, the American "kiddies," and all because the import duty is so high. It practically prohibits the very finest toy products from being sold in this country, and it goes without saying that the best there is, is made in Germany, the birthland of toys.

The next question is, where do all the brilliant ideas come from which result in a marvelous array of strictly new toys each year? It is true that the factories employ designers who devote their entire time to designing new toys. But the more radical ones come from geniuses in different parts of the country who work out new ideas and have them patented. The manufacturers keep a tab on the new patents that are taken out and if they run across an item that appeals to them, the inventor has already made a fortune.

Take, for instance, the new baseball game that is making such a hit this year. The idea originated in the mind of a young man by the name of Crawford some three years ago. A manufacturing concern took it up but did not make a go of it. The young inventor figured out that the failure was due to the fact that the balls did not curve as in a regular game. He overcome that difficulty, made a contract with a new company and is now reaping the reward from his brilliant idea.

Dolls are made in nearly every country on the globe. The Parisian dolls are perhaps the most famous, for they are made at the center of the world's fashions. In this country they are duplicating babies' faces in making dolls. A child's photograph is transmitted onto a special kind of cloth, much as an impression is made on a camera film. The picture on the cloth is then retouched, filled out with sawdust or other form of packing, and the doll is as lifelike as can possibly be made.

TWO AUTHORS INSPIRED ALIKE.

Travel and Exploration: Sir Arthur Conan Doyle once walked over the Gemmi. He was much impressed by the desolate appearance of the lonely looking Schwarenbach inn. Here, it seemed to him, was an ideal scene in which a novelist might locate a story of mystery and crime.

He proceeded to invent a story of mystery and crime suitable to the creepy environment. It was a story of a murder, the murder of a long lost son just home from the wars, by his own father, the needy innkeeper, who did not recognize him until after the deed was done, but had resolved to kill and rob the first lonely stranger who passed that way with money in his pocket.

"The very thing," thought Sir Arthur, and he went down the hill cheerfully revolving the morbid conception in his mind. Then a strange thing happened.

After dinner, in the hotel at Leukerbad, he picked up a volume of Maupassant's short stories, and he found that the French author had not only been to the Schwarenbach inn before him but had actually located there a story practically identical with the one which he himself had just devised.

When Your Hair Is Dull and Dusty

(From the Montreal Tribune.)

"Washing the head requires time, exposes one to catching cold, and when all is done it is a question if you have helped the appearance of your hair Too much moisture injures the hair.

"On the other hand, a dry shampoo requires only a few minutes. The powder is sprinkled on the head, then brushed thoroughly through the hair. That is all there is to it. It takes out all the dust, oil and dandruff and leaves the scalp rested, cool and refreshed.

"The best dry shampoo powder is a mixture of four ounces of orris root with four ounces of therox. Therox is a natural hair grower and makes the hair glossy, brilliant and fluffy. Use this dry shampoo once a week, and if your hair is inclined to be harsh, dry or faded it soon will become soft, lustrous and silky."

WILL PLAY SANTA CLAUS

"Good Fellow" Receives Many Replies to His Christmas Appeal.

Duluthians Anxious to Give Poor Children a Real Christmas.

"If your 'Good Fellow' stunt is a fake, count me out," said a letter to The Herald, "but if it is on the square, count me in. I'll be glad to give a Christmas to three or four kids. Send along the names."

On the back of this letter, which was turned over to "Good Fellow," the names of some children were written and the letter was mailed to the writer. Others will be treated in a similar fashion this week by "Good Fellow," so that the writers will know to whom they will play Santa Claus in plenty of time to make whatever purchases may be necessary.

The Herald got this letter today from "Good Fellow:"

"Dear Herald: Thanks for the space you gave me for my letter of last week. From the number of replies I got to my appeal for full Christmas stockings, there will be considerable joy spread around this town without everybody knowing who is playing Santa Claus.

"If any 'Good Fellows' want to provide a Christmas for some little folk who may not be remembered by old Kris Kringle, they can have the opportunity by writing to me in the care of your paper. Nobody will know about their charitable ministrations, unless they care to spread the news about themsevles. No real 'Good Fellow' would boast about what he was doing, anyway, so I guess there'll be no publicity.

"Any more Santa Clauses, Good Fellows?"

"Good Fellow" told The Herald that he received a letter from a well-known Duluth man who said he would play Santa Claus to half a dozen youngsters. He said the Duluthian wrote that Christmas had never brought a Santa Claus to him because there was nobody to help Santa Claus shop. "I never had a Christmas when I would have enjoyed it most," wrote the Duluthian, "and I do not want any boy to go through the same experience if I can be the means of his avoiding it."

DATE-GROWING IN AMERICA.

Los Angeles Herald: The date industry in California promises to become a great factor in the fruit markets of the world, for it has been proved that the conditions in the Coachella valley are more favorable for the development of the date of first quality than of any other country where the date is grown. It has also been demonstrated that a much larger percentage of first quality dates can be produced from the seed than in the Saharan oases.

In planting the date seed plant in rows thirty feet apart, placing the seed about eighteen inches apart in the row, thus planting about 1,000 seed to the acre. During the first few years any kind of crop can be cultivated between the rows. When the palm is 3 years old it begins to blossom. At this time the process of thinning begins and the male plants can be taken up and sent to the city to be planted as ornamental trees.

From this time until after the fifth year the thinning and rearranging in rows must be properly attended to, and according to the best authority, growers may expect at least 100 plants of the best quality of dates out of the 1,000 seeds planted to the acre, and as plants should be at least thirty feet apart each way when 12 or 15 years of age, they will have fifty good plants to the acre to dispose of; but when one considers the profit to be derived from the first offshoots which may be expected from a 5-year-old plant, one will be tempted to leave the plants fifteen feet in the row for a few years at least.

A conservative estimate places an average of four offshoots to the plants 5 years old and an average of one offshoot to the plant a year for the next five years. The offshoot always bears fruit identical with the parent tree. In this way the parties who plant the first seedling orchards will be in line to reap a rich harvest for their surplus offshoots, for the imported offshoots will be very expensive for several years to come. After transporting the offshoots on the backs of camels across the burning sands of Sahara desert to the ocean liner, lying upon the docks at both ends of the line, then transported by rail to the indicated farms, the plants will certainly be considerably weakened and will require a year of tender nursing.

MERRY XMAS & HAPPY NEW YEAR

"CENTRAL" MUST BE SERIOUS.

The young women who want to be telephone operators and are admitted on probation into the school of instruction of the New York Telephone company get $5 a week while learning the business. Formerly they got $3, says the New York Sun.

The increase was made because it was desired to attract a class of young women from the country who are well equipped for the business in every respect and who can manage to live on $5 a week while learning, whereas eking out an existence on $3 a week was impossible to some of them.

The telephone system is more complex now than formerly and the public is more exacting. More than 4,500 women are employed at the fifty-five centrals of this city and year by year an effort is made to make the operators more efficient.

As a result of late only 5 per cent of the applicants at the school have been accepted and some of those admitted are discharged after a week's instruction, not having come up to the standard in alertness or general intelligence or dignity of deportment.

On the last score the management is very particular these days. The manifestly frivolous young person has no chance at all of being kept very long at the telephone school.

"There was a time," said an official of the company, "when telephone girls, whether they merited it or not, were not classed with the serious, hard workers of the community. Rather they were a synonym for trifling, unbusinesslike behavior. That day is past.

"Today recruits to the service must have not only a fair education, considerable intelligence and a wide awake, alert manner, but they must show a first class aptitude for attending strictly to business in business hours.

"The country girl is bound to make good as a general thing. She is deadly in earnest, her manners are good and what she may lack in alertness at first is more than offset by her dogged perseverance.

"There are New York girls who conceive the idea of taking up telephone work who make a splendid impression at first by their intelligence and alertness, but who haven't perseverance enough to go through the school, nor patience enough to master the complexities of the work.

"About 20 per cent of the telephone girls employed at our centrals drop out every year, some to get married, a good many to fill better positions with other business concerns and some to move to other cities."

The greater number of operators needed and the greater care given to the service increases, it was learned, the number of supervisors at centrals, thereby giving more chances to girls seeking promotion. Supervisors get $15 a week.

Girls ambitious to get beyond the $10 wage, which with a few exceptions is the maximum paid to women operators at the centrals, look for and usually find employment at private switchboards in conjunction with some clerical work. A young woman who has spent three years or so in a telephone exchange is a pretty good all around business person, business men find.

THE POETS.

Chicago News: "I saw your advertisement in the public prints offering steady employment to a competent man to do chores and take care of your horses," said the long-haired individual, "and, although I am fitted by education and temperament for a higher occupation, I am compelled, by the pressure of adversity, to present myself as an applicant for the position. Not that such work is degrading—far from it! You recall the words of the poet Gray, 'Let not ambition mock their useful toil——'"

"The poet Gray be hanged!" interrupted the prominent citizen. "Do you know anything about horses?"

"No man in the United States knows more. I am familiar with the history of every celebrated steed from Bucephalus down to the wild charger of the Ukraine that bore Mazeppa on its back, 'with its long, hard gallop, which can tire the hound's deep hate and hunter's fire,' as the poet Byron says. I am familiar with all varieties of horses from the massive animals of Belgium and Normandy to the fleet-footed coursers of the Bedouins.

"Ah, those Arab steeds! How fully one can sympathize with the poet when he cried: 'My beautiful, my beautiful, that standest meekly by, with proudly arched and glossy neck and dark and fiery eye!' It is a far cry from that tender sentiment to the passionate demand of King Richard: A horse! A horse! My kingdom for a horse!'"

"What sort of freak are you, anyhow? Do you really want a job, or are you giving free lessons in elocution?"

"I have explained my errand. I am driven to seeking menial employment by unmerciful disaster, which has followed fast and followed faster, as the poet says. Hands that the rod of empire might have swayed now seek a chance to wield a hoe or spade, if I may be permitted to paraphrase Gray, a poet whose merits are not properly recognized. It is true that his claim to immortality rests upon one poem—but what a poem! Yet he is not alone in this distinction. The poet Wolfe, who wrote "The Burial of Sir John Moore,' produced nothing else of consequence. Collins wrote sundry eclogues which were meritorious, but his fame rests upon the noble poem beginning: 'How sleep the brave who sink to rest by all their country's wishes blest.' There were many others who, like the angels of wind and of fire, 'sang but one short hymn and expired with the song's irresistible stress,' as the poet phrases it, or who, like Israfel——"

"For heaven's sake, are you wound up for eight days? Can you wash buggies? Do you know the front end of a harness?"

"Sir, I can do anything that man has done. Although created for higher spheres, I have done much manual labor. 'None better knew to guide the plow or wield the rattling flail,' as the poet says. 'I wrought full well in the burning sun and smoked my pipe when the day was done,' to quote a humbler bard, whose songs, however unpretentious, have touched many hearts. I cannot say that I am fond of labor requiring muscular exertion. As Father Ryan says, 'My feet are weary and my hands are tired, my soul distressed; and I desire what I have long desired, rest—only rest.'

"But one cannot rest in this world. A man may claim to be captain of his soul, as the poet says, but he is not captain of his stomach. That gross organ makes imperative demands which must be obeyed, and so I must find work of some sort. If not in the sanctuary, then in the stable. For what says the poet? 'Tricked by vile insidious chances, beaten down by circumstances——'"

"You take the biscuit—also the bakery," said the citizen. "Try your hand at washing that buggy!"

LUCINDA'S EXPERIENCES.

New York Sun: "Girls," said Lucinda, "I certainly did have an extraordinary experience this morning in a Madison avenue car. Crowded, this car was, full of people, but it seemed not quite so full at the middle, and so I worked my way there, gently; the best I could.

"Standing about a third of the way down the car on the right was a woman who was holding on to a strap and facing outward, so that her back was toward me as I worked along past her. She was about the same height as I, and when I passed her my hat caught on hers and it seemed to cling there for a minute, but then it got free and I passed on, to reach up for a strap myself when I had got just beyond her, and then what do you think?

"When I raised my arm up to reach for the strap, there, lying on the top of my arm was a hatpin, a hatpin from the hat of the woman I had just passed! When my hat caught in her hat it caught under the head of that pin and drew it out and snapped it forward just so that it lodged on my arm.

"Well, I handed the hatpin back to her and she smiled and I smiled and that's all there was to it; but really, now, wasn't that extraordinary?"

PIGEONS THRIVES ON MUSIC.

Chicago Tribune: Here's a pigeon that loves piano music. The bird is known as Blue Eye and hangs around the fire station at the corner of Washington street and Michigan avenue. Several weeks ago a boy shied a stick at Blue Eye and broke his wing. Jim Galvin gathered up the wounded bird and converted a portion of the station sitting room into a bird hospital ward.

In this same sitting room is a piano and when nothing else is done Tom Scanlon pounds it for the benefit of the other inmates of the station. As convalescence progressed Blue Eye was discontented unless some one helped him up on top of the instrument, where he would strut back and forth marching in time with the melody.

Later the bird recovered and one day flew away. The next evening Scanlon was seated at the piano playing his star piece, "The Fifth Nocturne," by Leybach. The melody had been flowing out of the window toward the lake no more than five minutes when in on the breeze came Blue Eye. He alighted on the piano and remained until the music ceased. This performance has been repeated several times since.

A GOOD JOB.

Los Angeles Times: Jacob H. Schiff, at a dinner on the yacht Ramona condemned a concern that had gone up.

"Straight business methods are the only ones," he said. "There is a moral in the receiver story.

"A man, you know, said one day to a little boy:

"'Well, Tommy, what are you going to be when you grow up?'

"'A receiver, sir,' Tommy answered promptly. 'Ever since pa's been a receiver we've had champagne for dinner and two automobiles.'"

WALK SIXTY MILES IN THE BITTER COLD, AND WITHOUT FOOD

Woodsmen Forced to Tramp Back From Dibell Siding.

Arrive Completely Exhausted, One With Feet and Hands Frozen.

Walked Day and Night to Keep From Freezing to Death.

Thinly clad and minus his cap, which he claims was stolen from him in the lumber camp to which he alleges he was sent under misrepresentation, Joe Zareck, a Russian Pole, reached Duluth this morning after walking over sixty miles to the city.

His ears, face, hands and feet were frozen from exposure to the bitter cold. Since Sunday morning he asserts that he has been without food or shelter, walking and running to keep from being frozen to death.

On the way he says he crawled into a haystack beside the road half dead from want of food and sleep, but he got so cold that he had to keep moving. With the mercury down below zero he spent two nights and two days on the road, without rest except for the two hours in the haystack in a bleak field.

Zareck claims that he was sent out to work for Hagstrom Bros.' camp, seven miles from Dibell Siding, on the D. M. & N. railroad. He explained through an interpreter, to Walter F. Dacey, prosecuting city attorney, when brought to his office at the city hall today, that he had shipped to the camp under the impression that he would be put to work swamping. When he got there he alleges that he was told that he would have to cut ties at so much

NEARLY $1,000,000 FROM STATE TAX

Estimate Is Made of Next Year's Receipts Under Auto Law.

Albany, N. Y. Dec. 13.—Receipts aggregating $750,000, it is expected, will be realized next year from the operation of the so-called Callan automobile law, providing for the licensing of chauffeurs and the registration of motor vehicles. This estimate is based on the receipts from the new law for the first six months of its operation this year. All licenses this year expire on Jan. 31.

During the six months the new law has been in operation this year, 63,000 owners and 1,200 manufacturers registered their cars with the secretary of state, while 27,000 chauffeurs were licensed the total receipts aggregating $325,000.

GIVEN LIFE TERM; BEGS TO BE HUNG

Eighteen-Year-Old Michigan Murderer Dreads Prison Life.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Dec. 13.—When 18-year-old George Bloohas, convicted of the murder of Eftimias Stergiouslas here last summer, was sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment in Marquette prison, he begged the officers to hang him. He said he would rather die than face the prospect of spending the rest of his days behind the bars. Bloohas confessed he dropped a boulder on the head of his victim while the latter was asleep.

ARGUE LE BLANC MURDER CASE

Girl's Attorney Turns Bitter Invective on Glover's Widow.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 13.—The trial of Hattie Le Blanc for the murder of Clarence F. Glover opened today with the greatest crowd yet in attendance endeavoring to obtain admission to the Middlesex county superior court room. Lawyers from all over the state filled the witness seats and benches reserved for spectators as well as the bar enclosure. Attorney Johnson, the defense's counsel, expected to finish his plea before lunch adjournment.

In his opening remarks yesterday Mr. Johnson devoted the principal part of his efforts in support of his claim that the defendant was an innocent child. The speaker made Mrs. Glover the target for bitterest invective. He said that the little girl was brought from the province solely for "white slave" traffic, and then turning to Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, who induced her to leave her home, Mr. Johnson denounced the widow as a vampire and recited Kipling's poem to emphasize his point.

RETURNS TO POST OF DIRECTOR OF MINT

Washington, Dec. 13.—Two years ago George E. Roberts resigned the post of director of the mint to go into banking. Recently his successor was promoted to be assistant secretary of the treasury and Mr. Roberts was persuaded to return to the mint bureau.

PUT LID ON CANDY SHOPS

Indian Bureau Agents Stop the Sale of Malt Extract.

Last Towns on the Cuyuna Range Are Made Dry.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—United States Deputy T. E. Brents, having charge of Minnesota Indian territory and operating under W. E. Johnson, and H. E. Coggeshall and James M. Quinn on Monday closed two malt shops at Ironton, one saloon and two malt shops and a confectionery store at Cuyuna. They were accompanied on this trip by Sheriff Reid of Crow Wing county. The confectionery store had been handling malt extract. All goods were ordered shipped out and are being boxed and shipped by the proprietors of the places closed.

In the vicinity of Ironton a resort was raided and closed.

This morning the deputies closed one saloon at Crosby operating in the Spalding hotel and two malt shops. At Deerwood four malt shops were closed and a drug store was raided. All goods are being boxed and shipped away.

Cuyuna Range Dry.

These four towns constitute the Cuyuna iron range towns, and with the closing of these the entire district covered by the treaty of 1855 is now dry. Deputies Brents and Coggeshall leave tonight for Bemidji. Deputy Quinn remains in Brainerd. The brewery at Brainerd is continuing business.

CLAIM FRAUD IN COOPER'S TRIAL

Attorneys for State Are Not Allowed to File Their Petition.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 13.—A petition asking that the Davidson county criminal court declare illegal and void the proceedings by which Robin J. Cooper, charged with the murder of Senator Edward Ward Carmack, was dismissed, was filed this morning by all the attorneys who represented the state in the trial, in which Robin J. Cooper and his father, Duncan B. Cooper, were convicted, and by Sam C. Carmack, brother of Senator E. W. Carmack.

It charges that the effort to acquit the defendant was a fraud upon the state, done without the knowledge of any lawyer representing the state and without conference with any witnesses for the state.

After hearing the petition Judge A. B. Neil refused to allow the petition to be filed. The next move to be made will be to take the case before the supreme court on a writ of certiorari.

PUSH WORK ON WARSHIPS

Utah Will Be Ready for Launching in About Three Months.

Florida Will Be Completed in Another Half Year.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Each of the four great dreadnoughts being built for the United States navy progressed about 3 per cent toward the finishing point during the month of November. At this rate the battleship Utah will be complete in about three months and her sister ship, the Florida, in about six months. The Utah is being built by the New York Shipbuilding company and is 92.3 per cent completed, while the Florida, at the New York navy yard, is 83.65 per cent finished. The navy department has announced that it will require an appropriation of about $600,000 more than the $6,000,000 originally authorized in order to complete the Florida.

Wyoming and Arkansas.

The sitser ships, Wyoming and Arkansas, both of which are being built by private contract, are 46.3 and 52.8 per cent completed, respectively.

The torpedo boat destroyer, Sterett, is practically complete and will be delivered to the government within a few days. She has already reached her acceptance trial and the navy department today issued orders that she be placed in commission at the Boston navy yard as soon as practicable after her delivery by the contractors.

McCall Ready for Service.

The torpedo boat destroyer McCall will shortly be ready for naval service. She went through her acceptance trial on Saturday but the official report of the event had not been received by the department. Nearly all of the torpedo boat destroyers are in an advanced stage of completion.

The submarine torpedo boat Barracuda, which is 75 per cent completed, heads the list of that class of vessels so far as the advancement of work is concerned.

ROOSEVELT IS TO CUT LOOSE

Will Speak "as the Spirit Moves" at New Haven Banquet.

Governor-Elect Baldwin Is Not Expected to Attend.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 13.—The coming here this evening of Col. Theodore Roosevelt to be the guest and only speaker at the chamber of commerce banquet in the Yale dining hall, gives promise of ranking among the notable occasions which have marked the progress of the chamber in the affairs of the city. A year ago Mr. Taft was the guest, and in his speech advanced the idea of old age pensions. This subject later received much attention from him in his message to congress.

"As The Spirit Moves."

The subject on which Mr. Roosevelt will talk this evening will be of his own selection, and as he has stated in a letter just received here that he "will speak as the spirit moves," anticipations run high that he will deal vigorously with recent happenings in politics and national affairs.

President I. M. Ullman of the chamber will preside. A place is reserved for Governor-elect Simeon E. Baldwin, but his attendance is not looked for. President Hadley of Yale will be a guest but will not speak.

SEEK MEXICAN IN MURDER CASE

Clew Is Obtained in Death of Nathan B. Hyde in Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—The authorities of Cincinnati, St. Louis and Louisville were today asked to co-operate with the Chicago police in a search for Matthias Emil, a Mexican cornet player who the police think may have knowledge of the murder of Nathan B. Hyde, 76 years old. The victim of the crime was beaten to death with a crowbar in his rooming house last night, apparently while writing a letter at the dictation of the slayer.

According to the police the motive was robbery. The Mexican, who had a room at the place, was said by other lodgers to have been seen pacing the hall outside Hyde's door shortly before the discovery of the body. Emil when looked for later, could not be found.

Hyde was at one time United States commissioner for the Southern district of Wisconsin. His grandfather was a governor of the state of Massachusetts.

The coalition aggregate is made up thus: Liberals, 193; Nationalists, 58; Independent Nationalists, 9; Labor members, 36.

ASSASSIN TAKES POISON IN PRISON

Sasonoff and Five Others Kill Themselves in Russian Bastile.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 13.—The report that M. Sasonoff, who on July 28, 1904, assassinated Minister of the Interior Von Plevhe, had died in the prison at Zarantui, was officially confirmed today. He is said to have committed suicide. Recently rumors that Sasonoff had been fatally injured by a flogging were in circulation.

According to the governor of the prison the officers discovered a plot to release the political prisoners en masse. A large sum of money had been collected, of which $250 had been smuggled to Sasonoff. The authorities thereupon reinforced the prison guards and stopped all communication between the convicts and the outer world. They also ordered corporal punishment of two convicts.

As a protest against these measures three of the prisoners severed the arteries in their wrists and three others, including Sasonoff, took fatal doses of morphine.

THREE HOMESTEADERS ARE KILLED BY GAS.

Winnipeg, Dec. 13.—Don Burriall, P. Thon and John Hornby, homesteaders, who lived together in a shack twelve miles north of Luseland, Sask., were found dead in their shack today. They had been asphyxiated by coal gas from a stove, the drafts of which had been closed when they retired last night.

Formal announcement of his selection was made today.

The new president is a son of Bishop John Heyl Vincent, the founder of the Chautauqua institution. He is 46 years old and is regarded as one of the most effective orators in the country. He has been engaged in educational work for twenty years.

Negotiations Kept Quiet.

Negotiations between Dr. Vincent and the Minnesota board of regents have been carried on quietly.

The only other candidate for the position was Dr. A. R. Hill of the University of Missouri, but when it became known that Dr. Hill would not accept the offer the regents began quietly looking around for another. The fact

This is a net increase of $11,435 over the previous two years, as an increase of approximately $70,000 in the amount asked for the support of the schools is nearly offset by a decrease of about $60,000 in the amount asked for new buildings, repairs and special purposes.

CLAPP MAY NOT DIE OF WOUND

Wife Says She Shot Him in Struggle Over Revolver.

Philadelphia, Dec. 13.—Although he is still in a serious condition, hospital physicians say that Herbert Mason Clapp, the clubman and grandson of Mason, the "shoe blacking king," will probably recover from the bullet wound he received yesterday.

Mrs. Marie Clapp, his wife, who was arrested by the police after a statement made by the wounded husband that she shot him, was released on $2,500 bail late last night. Mrs Clapp spent the night at her father's home and today returned to her apartments, where the shooting occurred. She maintains the shooting was accidental. Mrs. Clapp admitted that she and her husband were struggling for the possession of a revolver at the time he was shot. One bullet went wild, smashing a mirror, but the other entered the man's mouth, emerging near the left ear.

Clapp is 38 years old and his wife is 23.

Much Before Public.

Clapp has had a career which has frequently brought him before the public. He inherited much money from Mason. Four years ago his wife divorced him in New York, securing yearly alimony of $3,500 and the custody of their child. Shortly after the divorce Clapp married Marie Leakell of this city. In August, 1908, they went to Texas, where Mrs. Clapp left her husband. She went to New York and Clapp followed her there, causing her arrest. The case was dismissed and they were temporarily reconciled.

FALLING OFF IN TRAVEL

Passenger Business Is Quiet at the Head of the Lakes.

What has become of the passenger business of the Duluth railroads? That is what passenger agents of the local roads are asking, as well as the traveling passenger agents who make the city. As far as is known at the present time the business has disappeared for the time being.

Until after Thanksgiving the passenger business on the Duluth roads was very heavy. Since the passing into history of the turkey day, the business has dropped off, until at the present time there is hardly any in sight.

The holiday layoff of the commercial traveling public is the cause, according to the railroads, and after the first of the year there will be an increase that will bring the traffic back to the normal status.

There are a number of passenger men here today, and they all state that as far as passenger business in this district at the present time is concerned, there is little in sight. Harry Lewis, assistant general passenger agent of the Soo is here, as is Bob Haase, Northwestern passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio. "Billy" Mitsch, traveling passenger of the Chicago Great Western is also in the city, vainly searching for business that does not at present time seem to be in sight.

Commercial Men Called In.

Most of the large commercial houses have taken their men off the road for the annual inventory, or are calling them in; while the Eastern commercial men are off the road by the present time or are on their way home. As a railroad man said today, "The public is not in the market for railroad tickets."

Not for a long time has the passenger business been as quiet as it is the present time. However, passenger men say that they have a large number of reservations for Christmas travel. At the present time the passenger employes, those who sell tickets at least, are having a comparatively easy time.

Rates were announced today for Christmas travel that may have the affect of stimulating the present dull passenger travel. These rates apply from Duluth to various points in Canada and are announced by the Omaha, the Duluth South Shore & Atlantic, and the Soo. The tickets will go on sale Saturday and will be good for a return trip until Jan. 15.

Rates For Christmas.

The tickets of the Omaha are sold via Chicago and the Grand Trunk from Chicago on. The South Shore and the Soo will take the more direct line to Canadian points. The round trip fare is approximately one fare and a third. The Christmas excursion rates are made only in 3-cent territories, for it has been generally agreed among the railroads not to cut regular rates in the straight 2-cent passenger territory.

Passenger men here are of the opinion that general travel will show a heavy increase after the first of the year. Christmas affects travel as it does other things, and after Christmas a heavy pickup on the St. Paul-Duluth travel is looked for as well as on the travel between Chicago and Duluth.

RUNAWAY CAUSED BY SNOWBALLS

Boys throwing snowballs caused a serious runaway accident on Third avenue west this afternoon. As a result M. Levine, a fish peddler living at 19½ Second alley east, is in St. Luke's hospital and it is feared he is seriously injured internally.

Levine was driving his horse down Third avenue when the boys threw snowballs, hitting horse and driver. The horse ran down the avenue and collided with a pole at the corner of Third avenue and Second street. Levine was thrown to the ground and he was unconscious when picked up. He was hurried to the hospital and an examination disclosed no broken bones. It is feared he is internally injured, however.

ARGUE DULUTH LUMBER TAXES

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A hearing was held this morning before State Auditor Iverson on the question of taxation on timber removed from Beltrami, Koochiching and Aitkin counties by Duluth lumber companies.

The counties contend that as the lumber was cut in their jurisdiction they should levy and collect the taxes. Duluth contends that as long as the companies are located there the city is entitled to the taxes. E. J. Bradley, president of the Duluth Logging company, appeared for the companies.

No decision was given this morning.

FIGHT CONTINUANCE OF THE DIETZ CASE.

Hayward, Wis., Dec. 13.—The application of the attorneys for John, Hattie and Leslie Dietz, charged with murdering Deputy Sheriff Oscar Harp, for a continuance of the case was strenuously resisted by the state's attorneys today. The state's counsel will offer no objection to the application of the defense to have their witnesses summoned at the expense of Sawyer county.

"HACK" ARRIVES IN THE CITY

"I want to meet Gotch and the sooner the match is made the better I will be satisfied."

These were the words of George Hackenschmidt, the famous Russian wrestler, as he reached his room in the St. Louis at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The Lion came up from Minneapolis this morning. Last night at the Auditorium in Minneapolis the Russian Lion tossed five men in thirty-six minutes.

He threw the five wrestlers in less than the stipulated time and made a wonderful impression in the Mill City, according to Jack Curley, the sport impressario, who is here with the Lion.

"They never made a man like him," said Curley this afternoon. "I have seen them all and this fellow is the most wonderful athlete that I have ever seen. He is the strongest man in the world and he is surprising students of physical culture by his wonderful muscular development."

"Hack" is short and in citizen's colthes does not look the powerful athlete that he is. When he strips his wonderful muscles seem herculean in their proportions. He is pleasant and affable and is genial of countenance. Hackenschmidt speaks several languages, is well read, has traveled in every country in the world and is always ready to chat with new found friends.

The big Russian and his party are quartered at the St. Louis.

A TRIPLE RUNAWAY

There was a spectacular triple runaway on Garfield avenue this afternoon. A dray horse started the trouble by violating all precedents of his class and running away. A collision with a milk wagon took the top off the wagon and started the team on a mad dash. The milk wagon collided with a horse attached to a cutter and that horse also ran away, running through the Alger-Smith mill and, after passing through rows of machinery, coming out on the other side of the mill with the cutter still attached. Nobody was injured.

There was also a runaway on Nineteenth avenue west this afternoon, a horse attached to a cutter getting beyond the control of the driver. The driver was not injured.

ENGINEERS' ULTIMATUM GIVEN TO RAILROADS.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' ultimatum of higher wages or a strike was delivered yesterday to the Railroad Managers' association by President Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood. He advised the employers that the recent vote had been 97.5 per cent in favor of a strike if the demands were not granted.

During the negotiations previous to the strike vote the engineers' demands approximated an increase of 27 per cent of the present wage; the employers agreed to 10 per cent raise and the engineers receded to a 17 per cent increase basis.

FARM SCHOOLS GET $1,300,000

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of regents of the state university at its meeting today appropriated $1,300,000 for the use of the agricultural college and stations at St. Anthony Park, Crookston, Morris and Grand Rapids.

Of this sum about $1,100,000 will be used at the college proper. Among the projects for which it will be spent are $165,000 for an engineering building; $200,000 for dormitories to accommodate 200 students, $100,000 for the enlargement of the drill hall and gymnasium, $68,000 for the enlargement of the dining hall, $10,000 for the enlargement of the domestic science building, $14,700 for the enlargement of the power plant, $50,000 in general improvements, $100,000 for additional instructors, $50,000 for general agricultural extension work, $200,000 for special appropriations and about $15,000 in miscellaneous items, with $2,000 for an architect to submit a plan for rearranging the buildings.

About $1,500,000 was asked for by Dean Woods and $200,000 was sliced off. These appropriations are to serve the farm school and stations during the years 1911 and 1912.

In an inventory submitted by Accountant Sprague the personal property of the university, including books, supplies, machinery, etc., was listed at a value of $1,566,650.27.

Leaves St. Cloud School.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Karl Mathie, resident director of the St. Cloud normal school, has given his resigntaion to Governor Eberhart. It will be accepted, as Mr. Mathie will soon move to Wausau, Wis., where he has extensive paper milling interests.

Two applicants for his place are already in the field—C. L. Atwood, president of the Security National bank of St. Cloud, and J. E. Jenks, an attorney of that place. A delegation waited on the governor today to indorse Mr. Atwood.

"SKY PILOT" TO GIVE LECTURE

Frank E. Higgins Will Speak at the First Presbyterian Church.

Frank E. Higgins, the sky pilot, will speak Thursday evening at the First Presbyterian church. The lecture will be free and will begin at 7:45.

The announcement that Mr. Higgins will speak here should be enough to bring out a large crowd, as Mr. Higgins has not appeared before a Duluth audience in more than a year.

Mr. Higgins is one of the most interesting characters in Northern Minnesota. He has been identified with its history for a number of years past and he is undoubtedly better acquainted with the Minnesota lumberjack than any other person.

For years he did nothing but make rounds of the camps. There each evening he held religious services. He and his dog team and the little organ were welcome visitors at any and all the camps.

Higgins has had many interesting experiences in camp with which he illustrates his lectures.

NOTES OF BOYS' DEPARTMENT

Wednesday evening at 6.15 the Sunday club, music, social, entertainment, and Boy Scouts committees will meet for dinner and arrange the program for the Christmas vacation.

The committee will plan a program of outdoor and indoor activities that will last throughout the entire vacation. On Thursday evening the Bible, study, membership, outing, and athletic committees will meet for dinner to arrange their part of the program.

The entertainment committee has secured Leo French for an evening of fun. Friday, Dec. 16, at 8 o'clock, Mr. French will give a program including impersonations, ventriloquist stunts and imitations, whistling, character sketches, bird notes, and dialect sketches. The entertainment is one of the popular Friday nights at the club. Refreshments are served in the Dutch kitchen at the close of the entertainment.

Saturday evening at 8 o'clock Dr. Winfield Hall of Chicago will talk to the older boys on sexual hygiene. This meeting will be open to boys 15 years and over. All the boys in the city of that age and over are invited. Monday morning Dr. Hall will speak to the high school boys. Monday afternoon a meeting will be arranged for the grammar school boys. Dr. Hall is a leading authority on this topic. His subject for the older boys will be "From Youth to Manhood," and to the younger boys "The Secret of Manhood."

Frenchman Is Wounded.

Paris, Dec. 13.—The French charge d'affaires at Rio Janeiro cabled the foreign office today that a French merchant, M. Francfort, a borther of the French consular agent at Curitiba, Brazil, was wounded during the recent bombardment of the city by the naval mutineers.

ESSAY CONTEST WILL CLOSE FRIDAY

Supt. R. E. Denfeld has announced that the school contest for the sale of the Red Cross seals will be closed Friday of this week at the same time as the essay contest will be closed. The schools have been very busy competing in the sale of the little seals and during these few remaining days there will be renewed efforts. Every boy and girl in Duluth is determined that his or her school will do the very best of which it is capable and it is thought that a great many thousand seals will be disposed of. But the boys and girls are especially asked to notice that the contest will close this week instead of continuing until Dec. 23 as was first planned. The prize to the school that sells the most seals will be $10.

"The Uses of the Red Cross Seal" will be the subject about which the essays are to be written. They also must be completed and handed to the teachers by Friday of this week.

"I think that the sale of seals at this time has reached 100,000 in Duluth," said E. A. Silberstein today. "And when you consider that that is 47,000 more than was sold during all of last season in this city, it would seem that Duluth is anxious to do its share in this work. Fifty-five per cent of the money goes to local work, another large per cent is set aside for state work and a small amount of the money is used for national educational purposes. During the three weeks remaining until Christmas we expect a sale of many thousand more."

The Red Cross seals are for sale everywhere and the people who are onw writing Christmas letters and sending Christmas bundles are urged to remember to affix the seals.

In all of the department stores of the city yesterday the sales people wore the Red Cross arm band on their sleeves and this touch of color called attention of the buying public most forcibly to the little stickers. The proprietors and the salespeople are entering most heartily into the plan to help and the arm bands will be worn until the holidays are over.

SPECIAL OFFER!

INJURED MAN IS IDENTIFIED

Friends Believe Isanti County Farmer Attempted to Commit Suicide.

Andrew Anderson, who was picked up near Eighth avenue west and Superior street by the police several days ago and taken to St. Luke's hospital, is a farmer of Isanti county, according to two neighbors who came to the police station this morning looking for him. The police thought that he had fallen over the embankment along the railroad tracks in that vicinity after trying to climb the fence. His friends declare that he never drinks, but they said that he might have tried to kill himself. They were unable to state any reason why he might want to end his life, but they explained that his mind has been slightly unbalanced.

He came to Duluth to make some purchases. His goods arrived all right, but his family and neighbors became nervous when he failed to put in an appearance. They came to Duluth this morning to locate him, finding him in the hospital in serious shape. He had a bad cut on the head and his body was bruised in numerous places. It is expected that he will recover.

CREDITORS ARE AFTER PATENT

George Decker Is Claimed to Have Rights Worth $15,000.

Claiming that the conveyance of his rights in a car loading apparatus patent to George W. Decker to his wife was made to defraud his creditors, the P. H. & F. M. Roots company has filed suit in United States court against Decker, his wife and the Clyde Iron Works to have the conveyance set aside and a contract between Mrs. Decker and the Clyde Iron Works nullified.

The plaintiff charges in the complaint that Decker became indebted to the company in 1900 for $14,000, of which $6,000 had been paid on July 3, 1907. It is alleged that during 1907 Decker gave two promissory notes for the balance, but has never taken up the notes.

The company alleges that the patent on the car loading apparatus was granted to Decker in 1900, and in 1904 he conveyed his rights to his wife. Mrs. Decker made a contract with the Clyde Iron Works for the manufacture of the apparatus and it is alleged the royalties are paid to Decker. The company alleges the patent is worth $15,000 and that it should be sold to pay the claim it holds against Decker.

"Dead"—Comes to Life.

Mason City, Ia., Dec. 13.—D. C. Gardner, a farmer of Dodge Center, Minn., fell while running to catch a train here and remained unconscious over an hour. For a time it was thought he was dead and he was taken to an undertaker's. His head struck against a stone.

Uphill Work

It is uphill work to try to squeeze all the Christmas shopping into the last week.

It is uphill work to have to give more costly things than you feel you can afford, because you cannot find the right things at moderate prices.

It is uphill work in the average store—finding the unique thing that does credit to your individuality and delights the cultured friend.

It is uphill work running to half a dozen stores and then not finding what you like.

May we suggest that you make it easy for yourself by beginning at once and beginning at Silberstein & Bondy Co.—

the store that is rich in suggestions for unique gifts that cannot be found elsewhere.

Christmas Furs

It is bad policy to deceive oneself into believing that one knows furs.

However, an expert knowledge of furs is not necessary when one is sure of the dependability of the store.

We could tell about hundreds of fur coats and sets of furs—but mere descriptions do not suffice.

Look at the Russian Pony Coat in our window markt $57.50, that sells regularly at $75.

Moderate prices are the perpetual rule of S. & B. furs, making it unnecessary to have perpetual "Sales" in order to dispose of them.

PLAYING FOR ESTERLY CUP

Curlers Assigned for Second Trophy Event---Squad Style Prevails.

Hurst Event Into Semi-Finals "Kid Rink" Meets Defeat.

A drawing has been made in the Esterly event at the West Duluth curling rink, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Bristol street, and last evening the first games were played. Olson took Method into camp, 10 to 5, and Zauft out curled Holland, 16 to 7.

In the Esterly event, the games will be played in squad style. There are three squads as follows:

Squad one—Method, Wade's "Kids," Macauley, Olson and Scott.

Squad two—Zauft, Strand, Holland and Buckley.

Squad three—Wade, Evered, Iltis and Keyes.

The usual handicaps will prevail and the rinks taking part in the affair have been classified into five classes. A, B, C, D and E. A rink in Class E is allowed a handicap of four points when matched against a Class A rink; a Class D rink, three points; Class C, two points, and Class B, one point.

The following is the classification of the rinks entered: Class A—Wade, Evered, Iltis, Keyes, Zauft and Macauley. Class B—Method, Olson, Scott and Holland. Class C—Wade's "Kids." Class D—Strand. Class E—Buckley.

In the Hurst event, Wade's "Kids" last evening met their first defeat this season, when Macauley teased them along to a 13 to 12 defeat. The play was exciting up to the last head, when the Macauleyites broke the spell and put one over. This put Macauley into the semi-finals with Keyes.

Keyes and Maculey will play tomorrow evening and the winner will met Wade in the finals. The event will probably be brought to a close this week. This evening three games will be played in the Esterly event. Wade will meet Iltis, Evered will clash with Keyes and Olson will furnish the opposition for Zauft.

The curlers are gratified with the early start that they had this season and interest in the sport seems to be growing among the West Duluthians. This evening there will be music for the skaters at the rink.

REPORTS OF RANGE ROADS

Missabe Handled More and Iron Range Less Ore Than in 1909.

Hull-Rust at Hibbing Establishes New Record for Year's Output.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern in the season recently ended, transported 13,609,155 tons of iron ore from the Mesaba range to Duluth. The Duluth & Iron Range carried 8,271,169 tons from the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges to the docks at Two Harbors. Last year the Missabe carried 13,470,503 tons and the Duluth & Iron Range transported 9,192,127 tons.

The big Hull-Rust of the United States Steel corporation at Hibbing was, as usual, the biggest shipper. The Hull and the Rust broke all previous records and established a new one for the most ore ever produced in one year by any iron property. The Fayal and the Adams of the United States Steel corporation at Eveleth were the second and third largest shippers, respectively.

A feature of the season was the heavy output of ore from the lands under lease from the Great Northern Ore company by the United States Steel corporation. This territory known as the Hill lands, is on the Western Mesaba. The Canisteo, which will be the biggest open pit mine in the world some day, the Holman, Hill and the Walker, shipped heavily. Last year the Holman was a large producer and the Canisteo sent out a small amount of ore.

For the first time in many years a new producer appeared on the Vermilion range. The Section 30 property, known as the Shagawa mine, was placed on a shipping basis after many years of exploration and development.

Following is a list of the shippers for 1910, with comparisons for 1909:

that Dr. Vincent was under consideration was not generally known until the announcement was made today.

Last Saturday Dr. Vincent came to St. Paul and met the regents and was entertained at dinner by the members of the board. It was then that he accepted the presidency. Following this meeting he returned to Chicago to await the formal announcement of the regents.

Dr. Vincent will assume charge of the university April 1, when Dr. Cyrus Northrop will retire.

Dr. Vincent is a Yale graduate of the class of 1885. In 1888 he became vice president of the Chautauqua in that institution; fellow of sociology in the University of Chicago from 1892 to 1894; assistant in sociology in 1894-95; instructor in 1895-96, and assistant professor from 1896 to 1900.

Given Doctor's Degree.

In 1896 he received from the University of Chicago the degree of doctor of philosophy. In 1907 he was chosen president of the Chautauqua institution. In the same year Dr. Vincent was made dean of the faculties of arts, literature and science in the University of Chicago, the position which he has held up to the present time.

Dr. Vincent has been prominent as a writer on sociological subjects, and in collaboration with Prof. A. W. Small in 1895 published "An Introduction to the Study of Society." In 1896 he issued "The Social Mind in Education."

Rheumatism is a blood disease. It can be cured only by ridding the blood of extraneous matter. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures it, as it does other blood diseases. "The necessity for a good blood purifier," writes W. G. Skinner, Wakefield, Mass., "was first impressed on me when I took Hood's Sarsaparilla for a severe attack of rheumatism. As soon as I began to take this medicine, I felt better and in a short time I was entirely cured, and have been in good condition ever since."

MONEY FOR THE NORMALS

only $2,250 a year for the two years, while the last legislature provided $115,000 for the two years, in which was included $65,000 for a dormitory and $50,000 for a new wing to the main building.

The only business transacted by the board outside of approving the budget was to sanction the contract for the proposed new wing to the school at Duluth, the cost of which will be $50,000.

Funds To Other Schools.

For the Winona Normal an increase from $39,500 to $49,750 per year is asked for support, a net increase for the two years of $20,500.

For the Mankato school an increase from $44,500 to $53,200 per year for support is asked, a net increase for the two years of $17,400.

A request of the St. Cloud school for $100,000 for a new dormitory was turned down by the board, but $50,000 was allowed for a model school building and $13,500 for an addition to the grounds. The total asked for special purposes is $80,360, while two years ago it was $13,400.

The budget increases the support fund of the Moorhead school from $45,500 to $50,500 for next year and $51,500 the following year, a net increase of $11,000.

FIVE SQUADS OF POLICE IN RAIDS

Only One Alleged Blindpigger Caught in District Under Suspicion.

Simultaneous raids were made by five squads of police last evening between 6 and 7 o'clock, with the net result that Dan Smolcich was arrested on a charge of running a blindpig. Two cases of beer were found in his place, at 721 West Superior street.

The raids were made for the purpose of running down suspected blindpiggers. The police activities were confined to the territory bounded by Sixth and Seventh avenues west and along First street, and First alley and Superior street. Smolcich will be tried tomorrow morning.

WALK SIXTY MILES IN THE BITTER COLD, AND WITHOUT FOOD

each. This he claims he is unable to do. His ticket states that he is to do piece work, but being unable to read English, he asserts that he didn't know this, and wouldn't have gone if he had. He says that he paid the agent $1 for the job and paid his own railroad fare, amounting to $1.15.

Worked for Supper.

Getting to the camp at supper time he stated that he had to unload a large load of hay before he could get anything to eat. Then he alleges that he and the three men with him had to sleep on the stable floor.

In the morning after breakfast he says that the foreman asked him for pay. Without a cent he asserts that he was unable to comply with the request, and that the foreman thereupon took his cap away from him, following it up by kicking him out of the camp. Frank Baker, who was with him, and who also appeared at the city attorney's office this forenoon, managed to save his cap, he says, by running away, although several men in the camp gave chase.

The other two also took to their heels, but up to noon they had not reached the city. Bareheaded Zareck set out for Duluth. He and Baker were able to outwalk the others and left them behind after they had traveled several miles. As far as they know they are still somewhere on the road between the camp and Duluth, probably in a serious predicament, none of the men having enough money to purchase a railroad ticket, having spent about the last of their money to get the jobs at Hagstrom Bros.' place.

This is the second experience which Zareck has had. He came to Duluth a week ago Monday after having worked at another company's camp four days, being discharged by the foreman, according to his story. He had a few dollars and this went for board for the few days he was there and to getting the last job, which resulted so disastrously to himself. His feet were so badly frozen that it is thought part of them, at least, will have to be amputated. They were still black and swollen this morning and he had not had the services of a physician. The interpreter who was with Zareck and Baker said that Zareck has a hospital ticket and that he will go to the hospital. He was in pitiful shape, the tears running from his eyes in spite of himself, because of the pain he was suffering.

Prosecutor Dacey will investigate the case thoroughly along with other complaints of a similar nature which have been made to him. He has announced that in convictions for serious violations of the employment ordinance he will ask the municipal court to impose jail sentences without the option of a fine.

FARM LABORER TURNS BANDIT

Shoots South Dakota Man and Barricades Himself in House.

Yankton, S. D., Dec. 13.—Daniel Courtney, a prominent farmer near Yankton, was shot and probably fatally wounded last night by George Rossteuscher, a discharged farm hand, who then barricaded himself in an upper room of the Courtney home. Rossteuscher allowed no one to approach the house this morning except a priest who is attending Courtney.

Sheriff Hickey is at the head of a large posse which now surrounds the house. Threats of lynching are made if Rossteuscher is taken alive.

Mrs. Courtney, an 8-year-old son and 15-year-old adopted daughter still are in the house.

UNCLE SAM WILL PLANT MORE TREES

Forest Reserve's Permanent Bounds Are Practically Determined.

Washington, Dec. 13.—As many new trees will be planted under the direction of the forest service on the national forests of the country during the present fiscal year as were set out during the last five years combined, said Associate Forester Potter today. This is the beginning of a plan to increase as much as possible each year the number set out.

The eliminations of certain areas from national forests, because after inspection they have been more valuable for agriculture than for forestry, and the additions to the reserves of certain parts of the public domain considered more adaptable for forestry purposes, which have been made by President Taft, practically have been completed, it is said, and some idea may now be obtained of what will be the permanent bounds of the reserves.

FIREMEN SAVE BLOOMER GIRLS

Physical Culture Pupils Have to Be Rescued From Chicago Fire.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Fifty young women, attired in regulation gymnasium bloomers and sailor blouses, were rescued from the roof of a burning building today at 311-313 Wabash avenue, where they were engaged in gymnasium drill in the school of physical education and expression.

The girls were afraid to descend to the street and the instructors rushed them to the roof, whence, frightened and screaming, they were carried down the fire escapes by firemen. Several of the more daring clambered down alone. None were injured and they sought seclusion in a neighboring office building, where they were supplied with more complete covering.

The damage was estimated at $100,000, chiefly to the building, to the Derby Desk company and the O. W. Richardson Carpet & Rug company. Crossed electric wires are believed to have started the fire.

TALK ABOUT THE TARIFF BOARD

Senators Authorize Aldrich to Pick Committee on That Subject.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The senate committee on finance today considered the various suggestions presented to congress in connection with demands for a modification of the law creating the tariff board. As the session today was the first held this winter, the members of the committee had had no opportunity for an exchange of views.

Several senators expressed their belief that a permanent tariff commission should be authorized and that the membership should be larger than the existing tariff board, which comprises three members. It was the sense of the meeting that some action should be taken during the present session, and Chairman Aldrich was authorized to name a sub-committee to consider the whole subject.

STUDENT INJURED IN WRESTLING, IS BETTER.

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 13.—Harold C. Warren of Swathmore, Pa., the student in the junior class of Princeton university whose spine was injured in a wrestling bout last Friday, shows slight improvement today. He is still in a serious condition. The lower portion of his body remains paralyzed, but the sense of feeling has returned in a very slight degree.

NEW BRIDGE ON TEXAS BORDER IS OPENED.

Brownsville, Tex., Dec. 13.—The international railroad bridge connecting Brownsville, Tex., and Matamoras, Mex., was officially opened to traffic yesterday. The bridge has been completed for several months and has been used for the transportation of freight. For some reason, however, it has been kept closed to pedestrians and vehicles. The ferry boat which has been in operation between the two cities for a half century will be discontinued with the new year.

YANKEE SHIPS RIDE OUT STORM

French Cruiser Is Driven Ashore in the Brest Harbor.

Brest, France, Dec. 13.—A violent storm accompanied by thunder and lightning raged over the harbor today. The visiting American battleships, the Minnesota, Idaho, Mississippi and Vermont, held firm by their anchors, but the French armored cruiser Edgar Quinet parted her chains and was driven on the beach. She was floated later by the tugs and apparently had sustained no damage.

MRS. CHRISTOPHER GETS THIRTY DAYS

Lawyer Who Told Her to Withhold Evidence Also Sentenced.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Aileen Christopher, the government's star witness in the prosecution of the alleged brick trust, today was sentenced to serve thirty days in the county jail for contempt of court in refusing to produce certain information before the federal grand jury. Her attorney, John A. Brown, was sentenced to seventy days' imprisonment for his part in the same refusal.

"NIGHT RIDERS" ARE NOT GUILTY

Kentucky Jury Returns Verdict in Trial of Four.

Eddysville, Ky., Dec. 13.—The jury trying the "Night Rider" cases today returned a verdict of not guilty as to Bart Creekmur, Alonzo Gray, Jim Bozart and Bryan Hawkins.

The men were charged with being accessory to the murder of Axiom Cooper, a witness for the state, in the cases growing out of the Night Rider outrages two years ago. The jury had been out since yesterday afternoon.

CHINESE PROTEST IS OVERRULED

Examination of Immigrants and Lancing of Ears Approved.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 13.—Secretary Nagel, as head of the immigration service of the country, has overruled the protest of the Chinese consul at San Francisco against the mode of examining Chinese immigrants at the station on Angel island. The consul had complained that his countrymen were humiliated by the practice of lancing their ears at night to ascertain from the condition of the blood whether they were suffering from filariasis. Secretary Nagel justifies Dr. W. M. Glover, the medical inspector, in this course, finding that he acted upon common sense and good judgment.

The consul had also charged that there was discrimination against Chinese and in favor of other races in the examinations at Angel island, but the secretary finds the charges unfounded.

Doctors Said He Would Die

A Friends Advice Saves Life.

I wish to speak of the wonderful cure that I have received from your noted Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder cure. Last summer I was taken with severe pains in my back and sides. I could not breathe without difficulty and was nearly wild with the desire to urinate. Was compelled to do so every ten minutes with passage of pure blood with the urine. I tried all the different doctors from far and near, but they said it was no use to doctor as I would die anyway. I was at the end of my rope and was so miserable with pain and the thought that I must die that words cannot tell how I felt. One day a friend told me of the wonderful help she had received from Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. She gave me one of your pamphlets which I read and determined to try Swamp-Root. After taking half a bottle I felt better. Have now taken ten bottles and am well as I ever was, thanks to Swamp-Root. I wish to tell all suffering people that have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is the best medicine on the market.

All persons doubting this statement can write to me and I will answer them directly.

Yours very truly,
CLYDE F. CAMERER,

"Have you ever seen him rehearse? If you have not, make it a part of your life's work to get that opportunity, and once you have watched him, you will want to again. He makes every character actually exist before you. if the actors and actresses whom he rehearses would retain one-tenth of the benefit he gives them at his rehearsals, they would be immeasurably better in every instance. It is immaterial whether he is whipping a farce like "Baby Mine" into shape or directing the dress rehearsal of Robert Mantell's Shakespearean company. In each case, he is the absolute master of every character in the play and he is en rapport with everything that is going."

"Baby Mine" will be in Superior tonight, and will open an engagement of four nights in Duluth, Thursday.

FOUGHT FIVE YEARS FOR RECOGNITION

It took Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Connelly, who are appearing at the Orpheum this week in an artistic little sketch called "Sweethearts," five years to convince vaudeville managers and booking agents that their sketch was worthy of presentation on first-class "time" and would be a success as a vaudeville attraction.

The sketch is by Sir W. S. Gilbert, who was responsible in part for the famous Gilbert and Sullivan operas of a generation ago. Mrs. Connelly is a grandniece of Sir W. S. Gilbert, and she and her husband kept their faith in the sketch, in spite of many discouragements. For five years they played the "small time" with the sketch, without an adequate setting for it. They were unable to secure steady bookings for it, even on the small time, owing to the expense of presenting the act, and during those five lean years played odd weeks in the smaller cities. Finally the real merit of the sketch was recognized by the Orpheum booking offices, and it was given an adequate presentation. It has proved a genuine hit over the circuit.

MRS. ERWIN CONNELLY. In the Vaudeville Sketch, "Sweethearts" at the Orpheum.

"We had many chances to play comedy sketches or go into stock," said Mrs. Connelly yesterday, "but we held out for our sketch, and I am glad we did."

NEW MOVING PICTURE FILMS.

The new programs at the Odeum and Lyric theaters are causing much favorable comment this week.

At the Odeum theater an attractive moving picture bill has been arranged. "A Child's Stratagem" is a dramatic offering that is replete with human interest. "Arms and the Woman" is a dramatic offering that is full of action. "Jackfoot and Slim Jim" is a humorous film. Miss Maddox is singing "My Hero."

At the Lyric theater the "Maid of Niagara" is a dramatic film of intense action, "Popular Turns" is a funny film and "Hank and Lank" is a humorous film that is one of the best obtained by the Lyric in some time. "Greater Love" is a strong dramatic film. M. S. Mistachkin is singing "Lou."

"A JAY CIRCUS," BIG COMEDY HIT.

"A Jay Circus," which is the headliner at the Empress this week, is one of the biggest comedy hits in vaudeville. A number of "supers" are required to present the act, in addition to the regular company, and it is one big, rough-and-tumble laugh from start to finsh. It is probably causing more uproarious laughter than any act which has ever played the Empress.

Take Care!

Remember that when your kidneys are affected, your life is in danger. M. Mayer, Rochester, N. Y., says: "My trouble started with a sharp shooting pain over my back which grew worse daily. I felt sluggish and tired, my kidney action was irregular and infrequent. I started using Foley Kidney Pills. Each dose seemed to put new life and strength into me, and now I am completely cured and feel better and stronger than for years" Sold by all druggists.

$13.33 a Year for an Overcoat

There is such a difference between overcoats and overcoats! Buy a cheap sweatshop-made coat such as is usually sold at "sales" early in the season and you'll be a sorry looking spectacle before you've worn it six weeks. Buy a $40 Stein-Bloch overcoat at the Columbia and if half-ways taken care of, it'll look aristocratic for three seasons. At that rate your overcoat costs you $13.33 a season, although it may need a dry cleaning and a new velvet collar in the third year. As was said in the heretofore, quality alone determines what is a true bargain.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

There are some people in Duluth who would like to play Santa Claus to the poor farm. This is in no wise a discussion of whether there are cockroaches there or not, or whether food and drink and a place to sleep are all that the unfortunates there are entitled to at the expense of the county, but simply a matter of providing some real pleasure for folks who don't have any too much.

Take yourself for instance. If you had failed miserably in the first effort of existence—providing care for yourself—and through misfortune or weakness in your character that you could not overcome had become a charge on cold, indifferent charity, how would you like to wake up Christmas morning to hear the strains of "Every Little Movement?"

If you had lost interest in life, if hope had deserted you, and according to tradition there is only one place where hope is left behind, don't you think you would have a momentary thrill of interest if—as quite a surprise—the "Merry Widow" waltz should float unexpectedly on the surrounding air?

Maybe you who are reading have heard the "Merry Widow" and "Every Little Movement' until you are surfeited and feel it might be a cruelty to send them to the poor farm, but think of an existence of day after day without the meeting of a real friend or encountering an individual who had a positive interest in you just because you were you: think of receiving no stimulus from outside interest, music or books or pictures, unexpected trips, the meeting of a few friends, being invited out to dinner, the privilege of working,—think now what would your life be with all of these things eliminated. And then think how would the coming of a phonograph appeal to you. Wouldn't it be an event?

It surely would at the poor farm. Part of the old folks there will wonder at the mechanical wonder of it. If the numbers are selected properly they should bring untold pleasure. As a hint to the committee it is suggested that "There's no Place Like Home" be not included.

But the details are not quite settled yet. There is no money to buy the phonograph nor has anyone donated one, after becoming a bit weary of it in his own home. Miss Jean Poirier is especially anxious that Duluth send this gift to the poor farm. If you are suffering from ennui in which owning a phonograph plays a part, Miss Poirier will be glad to receive it. She will arrange to have it called for and delivered if some one will but send word to her at the courthouse. If others would like to contribute money for the phonograph and the records she will receive the contributions and arrange to have the phonograph bought and the records selected. There are plenty of people in Duluth who have no Christmas "list" and a few dollars could easily be spared for this great pleasure for an entire year and longer.

If twenty people who read this article, and that is almost a negligible part of The Herald's circulation, should telephone Miss Poirier that they would enjoy contributing $5 for this cause, the phonograph would be provided for and the sum total of the world's happiness added to materially.

Do it—along with your Christmas shopping and buying your Red Cross seals—now.

There is another little matter, as long as they are being fixed up for the season.

In Duluth there are a number of children who are attending school through the generosity of individuals. They are going because of labor scholarships. It is like this. A family may be struggling along not able to make ends meet. They can exist and manage all except maybe $5 for rent. So they decide that one of the children must leave school to earn that sum. They apply for the permit to Miss Poirier of the state labor commission, and the need is apparent, but it is a lifelong loss if the child leaves school, so through the generosity of Duluth people or organizations a scholarship is given the family. It is just the amount of their imperative need on condition that the child be kept in school.

There are at present ten scholarships and Miss Poirier has on her list three other children who must leave school unless three more are provided. The effect is most beneficial. The child is impressed with the value that the world places on education when people are willing to pay for allowing him to remain in school. The teacher's attention is called to the condition and she exerts herself especially to have the pupil do his best. The family is also impressed with the value that education has in the world and they take fresh interest. When the boy or girl who has been helped, gets older he or she is most likely to make efforts to keep younger brothers and sisters in school.

The King's Daughters of the city are paying a scholarship, one club of three young men contributes to one scholarship, feeling the value of the work, other individuals maintain single scholarships.

Three more are needed. Miss Poirier will be glad to explain in detail the special needs. The scholarships range from $1 to $3 a week during the school year. Providing for one of these would be a delightful way of observing Christmas.

"EDWIN OLAF"

Is the First to Be Baptized at Y. W. C. A.

The first christening ever held at the local Young Women's Christian association took place last evening when Edwin Olaf Kjelsten received the name which he will wear throughout his life. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Stenberg, pastor of the Norwegian Danish church and forty of the young women residents in the building were guests.

Little Edwin Olaf, who behaved himself as if he knew the peculiar honor that was his in receiving his name in the halls sacred to young women, is the son of Mrs. Tillie Kjelsten, who came to Duluth at the time of the recent forest fires. Her husband died three months previous to the time of the fires and with that disaster her home at Baudette was completely destroyed. She was left without a relative in America. She came to the Y. M. C. A. and assisted in the kitchen work. Three weeks ago Mrs. Kjelsten went to St. Luke's hospital and there Edwin Olaf was born. He is doing much to cheer his widowed mother and they are to be together, for the young mother has secured work where she may have her baby son with her.

The mother was so grateful for the help that had been given her at the Y. W. C. A. during the trying time since her home was burned and she was so alone in a big country, that she wanted her little son christened at the association before she left. The matter was arranged and the christening party was the nicest ever.

THE KITCHEN

Australian Oatmeal Pie.

Boil two tablesponful of oatmeal in one and a half pints of water till it jellies on a plate. Take a tin of Australian mutton, turn its contents into a plate, scrape off the fat and cut the meat into slices. Chop two well boiled onions, two sage leaves and some parsley together and season all highly with pepper and salt. Line the pie dish with the oatmeal, lay on slices of the meat which have been previously dipped into good thick gravy. Scatter the seasoning over the meat, then put another layer of oatmeal, and so on till it is used. Cover the dish with some thin short crust, and bake till the pastry is thoroughly cooked.

Having skinned the tomatoes, boil them in the vinegar until they are cooked, then stir into it all the other ingredients and boil the whole for half an hour. When it is cool bottle it and it is ready for use.

Stick edges well with a little milk. Bake in a moderate oven till a nice golden brown. This lemon tart is both rich and cheap.

THE EVENING STORY

"THE HERRING"

By J. Nideroest.

"Really, Vladimir Auchelevitch, you must put some restraint upon your men. The prison has become the talk of the town. The papers openly hint at deeds of great brutality, and even the 'Novoie Vremia' has taken up the matter. I cannot go out without hearing it whispered abroad. Besides, you forget, we live in Christian Russia and not in heathen Persia."

"It is easy enough for you to talk," the governor retorted to his wife. "We must have confessions, and these revolutionary vermin are such stubborn brutes. Unless some force is used they will not talk. However," he continued after a moment's reflection, "your are right in a way. Things have been a bit lively here, and I'll see what can be done."

Kardoff, the governor's chief assistant, could not see the force in the argument. He firmly believed in the persuasive power of nagaika and screw to loosen the tongues of his obstinate wards.

"Herrings, thirst, pepper eyes," he muttered to himself as he left the chief. "Bah, I set my faith upon our old ways. There is no secret on earth which they won't reveal. However, he has his orders and needs must obey."

* * * * *

In the small cell of the citadel a prisoner raised himself pitifully from his plank bed. His limbs were aching, his head swam. Yet after awhile he would dimly recall the events of the last twenty-four hours; how he was dragged from his bed, how the police searched his room and found the papers. He recollected the blows he had been dealt by the brutal gendarmes, and the jolting of the cart over the pavements, then his arrival in this cell. He was so hungry.

He buried his face in his hands, when the door flew open and Kardoff, accompanied by a warder, appeared on the threshhold.

"Well, prisoner are you ready for your supper?" the former inquired. "Just tell me the names of your friends and I'll promise you a meal which would be placed before any nobleman.

The prisoner made no reply, but turned his head against the wall. Kardoff's mouth was distorted in a mischievous grin. "All right, your excellency, just as you like. You may fast a little longer," and with a mocking laugh he went away, banging the door behind him.

The prisoner sat down, exhausted. For three days he had tasted nothing but water. He knew he would die—and he was only 17.

In the evening Kardoff appeared once more.

"My pretty bird," he commenced, "you're a stubborn customer; but we cannot allow you to starve. You must, however, be content with plain fare. Here, give him his supper."

The warden put down a dish containing a herring and a chunk of dry bread. The prisoner fell on it like a hungry wolf. The herring, it was true, was terribly salty, and the bread was dry, but yet it was food.

Kardoff watched him with gleaming eyes as he licked the bones, and then withdrew once more.

The prisoner sat down contented. the food had revived him, he already felt stronger. Now he was prepared for his tormentors. He would not betray his associate.

After a while he felt thirsty, and went towards the window recess to have a drink of water.

The jar had disappeared!

"A drink! A drink! For mercy's sake one drop of water!"

As the night advanced his thirst became more unbearable. His throat was dry and sore, and his tongue stuck to his palate.

As last he fell into a restless sleep, dreaming that he rested in the shade of a tree by the edge of a clear, bright brook, whose cooling waters refreshed his burning lips. But alas, it was an illusion, from which he awoke to the awful reality of his agonized thirst. His throat seemed to be on fire.

At eventide Kardoff came. He did not enter the cell, but looked through the trap in the door.

"Water!" the prisoner cried.

"Confess, and you shall drink."

"No!"

He leaped towards the door, but the trap was already closed, and as he walked off Kardoff chuckled. "A capital idea, indeed; and so artistic, too. Who would have thought it? But there, we live in a Christian country and not in heathen Persia!"

The prisoner shook with fever heat. His agony had become unbearable. He knocked and knocked, and feebly whispered "Water!" But all was silence around him.

In his despair, he climbed to the window and pressed his tongue against the cold iron bars. The rough bars lacerated his lips and tongue, and he greedily swallowed the blood that flowed from the wounds.

It was the third day since his meal. Kardoff cautiously opened the door. Behind him stood a warden carrying a bottle of beer. It was uncorked and the froth trickled down the side of the glass.

"Now, then, prisoner, if you confess, you will have this beer, and as much more as you like. Who is your accomplice?"

The prisoner looked at it with greedy eyes. Then with a sob he muttered:

"I will not!"

"Just as you like." To the warden, "Take that beer away!"

The warden obeyed. Now he crossed the threshold—now he had disappeared round the corner.

The prisoner utered a cry of despair, and then, as if automatically, his lips moved:

"Vladimir — Feodorovitch — Matlakoff—"

The next moment he had the beer to his lips. It was cool; it was refreshing; every drop seemed to bring new life into his body. But with his strength returned the consciousness of his deed.

He went on drinking, but the last drop of beer was mingled with his tears.

He had betrayed his friend in the frenzy to save his own life—and the glass fell to the ground with a crash.

"Well, now," the governor said to the gleeful Kardoff, "you see that it worked, and, besides, it is ever so much more civilized. Indeed, indeed, we live in Christian Russia and not in heathen Persia! Don't you forget that, my friend."

Growing Old.

By ALVA ARMSTRONG.

Why do some women grow old and others keep the secret of perpetual youth? Here is one answer.

One reason why the average woman wears out, grows plain before her husband, is that, through a mistaken idea of duty, she lays out for herself, at the beginning of her married life, a scheme or plan of duty and employment for her time, every hour filled with work, with rare and short periods of relaxation.

This she follows religiously for years, feeling that she has done her duty, because every household event occurs regularly and on time, while she soon becomes merely a machine, a thing without life of itself or volition. She settles into a rut, and goes round and round on the same track everlastingly.

Can a women keep brightness, originality of thought or speech, or even mere prettiness, with such a life? And without those things how can she keep her husband and growing children full of loving admiration, which is the strong chain by which she can bind them to her? How bright and jolly the neighbor's wife seems when she calls.

In nine cases out of ten it is because the surroundings and talk of your home are variety to her, and arouse her to originality and brightness of speech.

Cultivate a broad attitude towards the world and its people. Let your interests be far reaching and there will be renewed vigor when it comes to solve the problems of the home.

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the metallic cough of croup, bringing dread to the household. Careful mothers keep Foley's Honey and Tar in the house and give it at the first sign of danger. It contains no opiates. Sold by all druggists.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA

Scientists are now agreed that the eczema germs are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis, but in the inner skin. Hence, a penetrating liquid is required, not an outward salve that clogs the pores.

We recommend to all eczema patients the standard prescription Oil of Wintergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. D. Prescription. Atrial bottle of this D. D. D. Prescription, at only 25 cents, will instantly relieve the itch. We have sold and recommended this remedy for years, and know of wonderful cures from its use. We recommend it to our patrons.

FAIR

The fair, crisp, winter weather continues and the devotees of outdoor sports rejoice. A bright moon shone out of a clear sky last night, and the temperature was not so low, the low mark being 6 deg. Continued fair weather is promised by the prophet on the hill.

Mild, cloudy weather was Duluth's portion a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:46 and it will set at 4:19 this evening, giving eight hours and thirty-three minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The disturbance overlying Northern Alberta has caused much warmer weather over the greater portion of the Northwest. The zero temperature conditions has advanced to Northeastern Ontario. The Red river valley high pressure has moved its center to Illinois and has resulted in colder weather over Gulf and Atlantic states, the line of freezing temperature extending southward to including Alabama, Northern Georgia and South Carolina. Light snow fell over portions of the lake region and rain or snow over the Southwest in connection with low pressure areas centered off the North Atlantic coast and over Lower California respectively. Indications favor moderate temperature and generally fair weather at the Head of the Lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Wisconsin—Fair tonight and probably Wednesday; rising temperature.

MERCER CAN NOT ATTEND

Two Members of Commission on Employers' Liability Are Coming.

Will Address Open Meeting Under Auspices of Builders' Exchanges.

H. V. Mercer, a member of the commission appointed by Governor Johnson two years ago to study employers' liability and workingmen's compensation acts, will not be in Duluth tomorrow, but George M. Gillett and W. E. McEwen, the other two members of the commission, will address the open meeting to be held at the Commercial club tomorrow evening under the auspices of the State Association of Builders' Exchanges.

The meeting at the Commercial club will be the feature of the annual meeting of the State Association of Builders' Exchanges, which will be held in Duluth tomorrow. As employers, the members of the association are interested in the subject of employers' liability and workingmen's compensation. They have arranged the meeting and are anxious that as many Duluth employers and employes as can crowd into the assembly room of the club attend to hear the addresses of two of the three men in Minnesota best qualified to speak on the subject.

The member of the commission have spent two years studying the methods in European countries and the different states having acts on employers' liability and workingmen's compensation. Mr. Gillett headed the Employers' association of Minnesota for a number of years and Mr. McEwen has been labor commissioner of the state and secretary of the State Federation of Labor, so that both have an intimate knowledge of industrial conditions in the state. The commission will, at the coming session of the legislature, make its report and will probably submit a draft of a proposed law on the subject, so that their utterances tomorrow night, based on their findings after two years' investigation, should be interesting.

The meeting of the Association of Builders' Exchanges will open at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the rooms of the Duluth Builders' exchange in the Lyceum building. The business of the meeting will be largely routine in its nature and the principal subject for discussion is expected to be that of legislation at the next session of the legislature as it affects employers in the building trades.

Delegates are expected from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Stillwater, Faribault and other cities of the state, while a number of members of the Duluth exchange will attend the meeting.

GRAND MARAIS HOSPITAL BUSY

About Twenty Patients in Institution at the Present Time.

Grand Marais, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are many patients in the Grand Marais hospital. There has been an average of twenty patients there for the past six weeks. A few days ago a man was brought from the Alger-Smith camp suffering from pneumonia and died shortly after reaching the hospital. Peter Miller is still at the hospital where he has been almost constantly since September. He has tuberculosis and is in a critical condition.

D. B. McAlpine and family have decided to move to Western Canada and will leave probably about the middle of January. Mr. McAlpine has served the county for the past six years as county attorney.

A committee from the Commercial club waited on the village council recently to impress them with the desirability of installing a street scale in the village. The council instructed the committee on streets to order a 6-ton scale at once.

PETITION FOR DITCHES.

Steps Taken for Reclaiming Much Land in Roseau County.

Roseau, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first steps have been taken toward constructing an extensive road and drainage system in the territory lying north of the Great Northern railroad between Warroad and Roseau lake. Two petitions are in circulation, one in the Mud Creek region and the other in the Warroad section. This important work has been delayed until the western and central part of Roseau county could be surveyed and suitable arrangements made for building roads and providing for outlet of surface water. The country between Warroad and Roseau lake is rich in fertile land and well adapted to grain and stock raising. Because of an impassable tract lying south of this valuable land no attempt has been made to develop the country thus far, although several tracts have been proved up.

HILL GOES TO COAST.

Railway Magnate to Look Into Oregon Railroad Situation.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—James J. Hill, accompanied by George B. Harris, chairman of the board of directors of the Burlington, Chicago; W. B. Dean of St. Paul, W. H. Dinwoody and E. C. Cook of Minneapolis, left by special train for the West Monday afternoon on a ten days' tour. It is said that the trip has no special significance other than that Mr. Hill will investigate conditions throughout the territory adjoining his line and look into certain matters in connection with the construction of invading lines in Oregon.

Mr. Hill will visit nearly all the important cities on the North Pacific coast. It will be a personal trip, in that he will not be called on to deliver any addresses. While it is not expected that he will traverse much of Oregon, traveling over the Oregon Trunk line, the Hill extension from Clark, Or., south toward California, he will spend a day or two at Portland, Or., and take up some matters in connection with the work under way. John F. Stevens, president of the Hill steam and electric roads on the Pacific coast, will meet him en route and discuss important subjects in regard to the invasion of Oregon.

IS THINNESS EMBARRASSING

Undoubtedly It Is to Many a Maiden and Youth—While Even Those Well Along in Years Prefer Well Rounded Figures.

Prescription Increases Weight.

A scrawny, gangling youth or maiden is almost invariably slighted, overlooked or ridiculed in any social gathering. There is something about a plump or well proportioned figure which attracts not only friendship, but love and adulation as well.

People with a proper amount of flesh are favored in all walks of life, while the thin are unblessed, unwelcome and frequently miserable for life. The difference lies in the power of the digestive functions and the ability of the blood and nerves to absorb and distribute over the body the nutrition extracted from tho food eaten.

The thin person is abnormal and lacks the power to absorb and retain the flesh and fat elements which the gastric juices in the stomach and intestines should extract or separate from all kinds of food and drink.

A recent accidental discovery has proven that tincture cadomene when blended with certain other drugs, will add from one to three pounds of flesh per week during treatment, while the general health and strength also improves wonderfully.

Get in a half pint bottle, three ounces of essence of pepsin and three ounces of syrup of rhubarb; then add one ounce compound essence cardiol; shake and let stand two hours; then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound, (not cardamom). Shake well and take a teaspoonful before and after meals, drinking plenty of water between meals and when retiring.

DIX PLANS TO KEEP REPUBLICAN ON JOB.

New York, Dec. 13.—Governor-elect John A. Dix has decided to reappoint Gen. William Verbeck, a Republican as adjutant- general. A number of Democrats have been seeking the place. Mr. Dix said:

"The state appropriates $1,500,000 a year for its military establishment, and it is of the utmost importance that we have a man at its head who will see that this money is expended to the best advantage. I have given a great deal of attention to this appointment and have come to the conclusion that Gen. Verbeck should continue this work."

Capt. John F. O'Ryan of the First light battery of New York, was mentioned as a candidate for the office and it was said he had the support of Tammany Hall.

DICKINSON ELKS TO CONSTRUCT FINE TEMPLE.

Dickinson, N. D., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dickinson Elks will spend about $50,000 in the construction of their new temple, plans for which are already under way. The building will be three stories above the basement. The contract for the erection of the structure will be let early next spring and the work is to be completed before the fall months arrive.

WORLD CONFERENCE ON OPIUM NEXT MAY.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The state department has announced successful completion of long continued negotiations looking to the gathering of an international conference with the object of suppressing the opium traffic. With one exception, all of the nations addressed on this subject have agreed to the conference, and word came from The Hague that May 30 next had been unanimously accepted as the date and The Hague as the place for the conference.

The nations which have accepted the invitation besides the United States are China, Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Persia, Portugal, Russia and Siam. Austria-Hungary declined for lack of commercial interest in the opium traffic, but expressed a willingness to abide by any reasonable regulations adopted by the conference.

MRS. WHITELAW REID GETS $250,000 CASH.

San Francisco, Dec. 13.—In a distribution of part of the estate of the late D. O. Mills, ordered in the superior court, Ogden Mills and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, wife of the American ambassador to Great Britain, were given $250,000 each in cash.

KILLS STEPFATHER TO PROTECT MOTHER.

Spartanburg, S. C., Dec. 13.—While protecting his mother from an attack from his stepfather, James Chambers shot and killed Corry Palmer near this city. Husband and wife were quarreling when the son walked in and attempted to quiet them. Palmer, it is claimed, was in the act of striking his wife when Chambers fired.

RUSSIAN RESTRICTIONS ON JEWS ARE LIGHTENED.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 13.—An imperial order has been issued confirming a resolution recently adopted by the cabinet permitting Jewish merchants of the first guild to reside in the city and province of Moscow.

Emperor Nicholas on Nov. 1 approved the opening up of new sections for the residences of Jews. Heretofore legal residence of Jews had been restricted to that section of the Polish provinces and the Ukraine determined by the original Jewish segregation law and known as "The Pale." The new sections embraced twelve districts in the provinces of Vitebsk, Volhyna, Mohilev, Poltava and Kheron, and the town of Yekaterinodar.

It Is Possible to Reduce Flesh Without Dieting or Exercise

It is not only posible, but being done everywhere. Exercise, unless carefully superintended by a physician and expert Athletic Director, may easily do a deal of harm to the great overburdened fleshy body. The untutored fat man and woman determined to get thin are only too likely to overstrain their fat encumbered muscles by their awkward, ill-advised gymnastics, and so cause nerve and muscle troubles that may develop into something for worse than a little too much flesh. Same way with dieting. Starvation is certainly effective if kept up long and faithfully enough, but it is almost certain in injure the nutritive process and so weaken the patient constitutionally, while it is abominable torture, of course, especially to a good-natured, high-living, fleshy man or woman.

Fortunately neither dieting nor exercising are required or desirable if one uses the right remedy for reducing fat, and strange to say, the remedy is a simple, wholesome home mixture, the ingredients of which are obtainable at any drug store for a few cents. This mixture is as follows: ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 3½ ozs. Peppermint Water, and the proper amount to take is one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. This mixture takes the fat off rapidly but naturally, so that no wrinkles are formed and no harm is done to the stomach, as is so frequently the case with "Patent" or "secret" advertised remedies.

ADMITS BIGAMY BUT CANNOT BE PUNISHED.

New York, Dec. 13.—Although Charles W. Harrer is a bigamist and admits it, he can neither be freed from either wife, nor punished for his offense. Harrer was taken into court on a charge of bigamy, and admitted that although he married Jennie Green in Newark, N. J., in 1893, he took Edna Cooper as his wife in New York in 1904.

His confession was useless as testimony unless corroborated by another witness. The first wife could not be found and the second wife has disappeared since last week, when she was in court in an action to annul her marriage. Harrer was accordingly set free.

A divorce was refused the second wife on the ground that she knew that Harrer had a wife when she married him.

LOW WATER MENACE TO BRAINERD'S SAFETY.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 13.—The water in the Mississippi river is at an abnormally low stage and in case of a big fire the city would soon run out of a supply. The crib in the river is surrounded by a 5-foot wall of rock through which the water seeps very slowly, so slowly in fact that it would never flow strong enough for a sudden heavy demand as in case of a fire. The water and light board advises people not to waste water or it may have to install a system of meters. The shortage of water coming to soon after Johnson's dry order makes the city gasp for breath.

Thousands More Methodists.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—The entire membership of the Methodist Episcopal church increased 36,047 last year, according to a statement made to the Chicago Methodist Ministerial association by Rev. David G. Downey, corresponding secretary of the board of Sunday schools.

A REGAL HEAD

How often do we hear or see this expression used in describing a beautiful woman!

Denude that head of its hair and instead of a queenly, royal bearing we have a fright. The hair makes all the difference. To have that glorious abundance of radiant hair which always crowns "a regal head," one should use Newbro's Herpicide.

Herpicide represents the last word in scientific hair culture. It destroys the dandruff germ, checks falling hair and corrects generally, disease of the hair and scalp.

The positive results and its delicate but refreshing odor recommends Newbro's Herpicide to ladies of refinement everywhere.

MEANS DELAY IN RATE DECISIONS

Taft's Appointments Break Up Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, Dec. 13.—A perplexing, if not serious, situation is regarded as having arisen out of the change in the personnel of the interstate commerce commission made by President Taft's appointments yesterday. The two new commissioners proposed, C. C. McChord of Kentucky and B. M. Meyer of Wisconsin—named in succession to Commissioner Cockrell and Chairman Knapp, respectively, have heard none of the testimony in the important rate cases recently heard by the commission.

The cases have been set down for argument on Jan. 9, 1911. By that time the court of commerce will be in process of organization and Chairman Knapp, if confirmed by the senate, will have retired from the commission. Commissioner Cockrell's term presumably will expire on the 31st inst., although his commission appears to extend the term until Jan. 12.

May Extend Order.

In any event, two of the commissioners who have studied the rate cases and have heard the testimony at the hearings will have retired from the commission before the arguments are completed. It is the opinion among officers of the commission that it probably will be necessary further to postpone the effective date of the commission's order in the rate cases so as to afford the incoming commissioners opportunity to examine the testimony.

The proposed advance in rates were suspended until Feb. 1, 1911. The changes in the personnel of the commission make it almost certain that no determination of the important proceedings can be had by that time.

Clements Next Chairman.

Commissioner Judson C. Clements, Democrat, of Georgia, will be chosen as chairman of the interstate commerce commission. He is the senior member and every precedent points to his selection. The commission elects its own chairman.

THIRTY KILLED IN THE MINE

One Is Rescuer Who Gave Up Oxygen Helmet to Another.

Fernie, B. C., Dec. 13.—All the bodies of the miners killed in the Bellevue explosion last Friday evening have been recovered. Thirty men lost their lives. All were employes of the West Canadian collieries, except Fred Aulderson, fire boss at the Hosmer mine, who sacrificed his life by giving his oxygen helmet to a companion who was about to succumb to after-damp.

PAYS THREE TIMES FOR HER $8,000 NECKLACE.

New York, Dec. 13.—A pearl necklace worth $8,000 has cost Mrs. Ada F. C. Adriance of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., more than $25,000 because she attempted to smuggle it into the country on her return from Europe last August. The terms of the settlement in the case are announced by Collector William Loeb.

Mrs. Theodore P. Shonts, wife of the president of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, from whom jewels worth $30,900 were taken when she arrived from Europe last week, was too ill to appear for a hearing.

A Simple Safeguard For Mothers.
Mrs. D. Gilkeson, 326 Ingles avenue, Youngstown, Ohio, gained wisdom by experience. "My little girl had a severe cold and coughed almost continuously. My sister recommended Foley's Honey and Tar. The first dose I gave her relieved the inflammation in her throat and after using only one bottle her throat and lungs were entirely free from inflammation. Since then I always keep a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar in the house. Accept no substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

"HANK" BOYLE LEADS BUCKET BRIGADE.

Michael Henry (Hank) Boyle, formerly a star member of the Central high school football team, is a hero down at Dartmouth university, where he is attending school.

The Zenith City lad broke into a burning college building and with other undergraduates checked a fire which for a time looked as though it would spread to the other buildings.

Boyle was not injured. His home is at 224 Fourteenth avenue east.

He was the leader of the amateur bucket brigade. The boys held the flames in check until the department came.

KEEPING A LINE ON WASHINGTON DOINGS

Miller's Tax Bill Passed.

The house of representatives has passed an inheritance tax bill for the District of Columbia. The measure was introduced by Representative Miller of Minesota. It provides that all collateral inheritances amounting to more than $3,000 be taxed 5 per cent, while the direct inheritances up to $10,000 be exempt; those from this amount up to $50,000 be taxed 1 per cent; those from this up to $200,000 2½ per cent, and those above $200,000 be made to pay 5 per cent.

Naval Militia Bill.

The general board of the naval militia has practically perfected a bill governing the militia organization, which will be presented to congress. The bill will be drawn along the lines of the Dick bill, which controls the organization of the army militia with changes necessary to meet the requirements of the navy.

Clark Stock Going Up.

Several state delegations formally have indorsed Champ Clark of Missouri for the speakership of the next house and his friends now claim that his nomination will be unanimous. The Virginia delegation is among the more conspicuous of those that are holding aloof by reason of the attitude taken by Mr. Hay, who is for Mr. Clark if he will pledge himself to the naming of a committee on committees. Mr. Henry of Texas, who was at one time a prospective candidate for the speakership, has formally withdrawn from the fight. The Democrats of Kentucky, Missouri, Illinois, Georgia, Arkansas and Tennessee already have so far pledged themselves for the Missourian.

Pay For Militia.

Service pay for members of the national guard is provided in a bill introduced by Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania. All men in the ranks who attend forty-eight drills during the year, or such equivalent duty as is prescribed, are to be entitled to 25 per cent of the pay of a man in the regular army. No allowance will be made when less than twenty drills have been attended, and between that number and forty-eight the pay is to be proportionate to the 25 per cent.

All officers below the rank of general officers are to have 15 per cent of the pay that goes to a regular army officer of like rank. General officers are to receive 5 per cent of the pay of like grades in the regular army.

No militiamen can secure the allowance during the first year of his enlistment, unless he makes a record score with the arm used in his branch of the service.

The pension appropriation bill, carrying $153,688,000, has been ordered reported to the house by the appropriations committee. The amount is identical with the estimates submitted by the interior department and about $2,000,000 less than appropriations for the current fiscal year.

The bill probably will be passed tomorrow.

Permanent Tariff Commission.

The start of the fight for a permanent tariff commission began in the senate when Senator Beveridge asked what action the finance committee proposed to take upon his tariff commission bill. Whether the fight develops will depend upon the action of the finance committee, of which Senator Aldrich is chairman. The latter said in reply to Senator Beveridge's questions that the committee will report out a tariff commission bill satisfactory to Mr. Beveridge while the latter and Senator Aldrich are still members of the senate. The terms of both men expire March 3. Upon this assurance the Indiana senator did not press the commission issue further.

Revision By Sections.

Senator Cummins of Iowa, will again offer his resolution for a change of senate and house rules to permit the revision of the tariff by sections.

MAY AMEND NEW YORK LAW AS TO INSANITY.

New York, Dec. 13.—Dr. William A. White, superintendent of the government hospital for the insane at Washington, D. C., told the New York Society of Medical jurisprudence last night that the discharge of lunatics in habeas corpus proceedings by juries composed of laymen was a disgrace to society and modern civilization.

"I have seen many patients discharged by a layman jury," he added, "who are in every respect insane, while at the same time others, perfectly sane, were committed."

John Brooks Leavitt, a New York attorney, said there should be a law similar to that in England, which provides that the insane criminal shall be committed "until his majesty's pleasure to release him shall be made known." Then he added, "his majesty's pleasure is never made known."

A committee was appointed to investigate the advisability of recommending such a law.

FIREMAN HOOKED TO DEATH BY MAIL CRANE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 13.—Fred Dessatcher, a fireman on the Chicago & Northwestern road, was accidentally killed near South Milwaukee yesterday.

His train was running at a high rate of speed and he happened to look out of the cab window to get a view of the track. The hook of the mail crane of a passing mail train caught him by the neck and dragged him from the cab, death resulting from his neck being broken.

THE COMMISSION PLAN.

No. 25.—Duluth's Opportunity.

A month ago The Herald started its discussion of the commission form of city government, with a view to enlisting public interest in a study of the plan and to bringing about official action looking toward the preparation of a new system of government for this city.

Both of these objects have been accomplished.

The community, which was ready for it, has entered eagerly upon a discussion of the proposed change.

The city charter commission, upon which devolves the work of studying the many varieties of the commission plan now in use and the preparation of a system that seems applicable to the peculiar needs of Duluth, has begun its task.

Practically no opposition to the plan has appeared publicly. Discussion, in public and private, has been almost unanimously favorable. The Herald has published a series of interviews with citizens in all parts of the community, men from every walk of life and from every profession, business and calling; and all but one or two of these interviews have favored the plan warmly.

The Herald will continue to publish such matter touching upon the commission form as comes to its hand. It has made an elaborate inquiry among the cities now using the commission plan. Many of the results of this inquiry have been published, and more will be published from time to time.

Aside from this, however, The Herald's duty in the matter is done, for the present. The information it has secured will be turned over to the charter commission, which is making an independent study of the subject that can be depended upon to be thorough and exhaustive.

The commission will take plenty of time for its investigation, and will not fix upon a plan for submission to the people until a most careful study has been made. When its work is done, and a new charter is submitted to the people, the real contest will come—a contest against opponents of the plan, both open and secret, and a contest against the natural public lassitude which must be overcome before any radical change of this sort can be made. To this contest The Herald pledges its best efforts.

Duluth, in the opinion of The Herald, needs the commission plan, and should adopt it after giving it such thorough study that the chance of mistake in details will be practically eliminated. It is the duty of every citizen to study the subject as thoroughly as he can, and to make up his mind about it before the time for action at the ballot box arrives.

It must not be supposed, because there has thus far been but one voice on the subject, that there will be no opposition to the adoption of the commission form of city government in Duluth. There will be opposition. If there isn't, it will be the first case on record where the commisson form was adopted without very strong opposition. But if the public-spirited citizens of Duluth continue to advocate the plan as heartily as they are advocating it now, opposition will be overcome and Duluth will face the future now broadening before it, equipped with a system of government that will enable it to make the utmost of the splendid opportunities that are unfolding.

STOCKHOLDER AND CORPORATION.

Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh says that the affairs of the large corporations should be carried on in the full light of publicity, not only in the interest of the public, but in the interest of the stockholders.

Wise and timely thought! Truly, here is a Daniel come to judgment.

As most large corporations have been carried on in recent years, the public has been treated as a lamb to be sheared, and the stockholder's position has been but little better.

One of the greatest needs of the country is publicity of corporation affairs, and a need hardly less important is that of greater democracy in the management of corporations.

Just who is this public, which corporations have treated with such contempt? Just who are these stockholders who have been given so little heed by the arrogant managers of the corporations?

The public is the creator of the corporation, and its master. The stockholders are the owners of the physical property of the corporation.

Surely the corporations owe something to their creators and masters. Surely they owe something to their owners. Yet as they have been operated in recent years, neither the stockholders nor the public have been given even courteous treatment.

Said Secretary MacVeagh in an interview: "Anything that will promote the confidence of the investing public is a good thing for business institutions. I know of no other one thing which would tend more in this direction than for the corporations to deal frankly and fairly with their stockholders by revealing their actual financial and physical conditions. Shareholders have an unquestioned right to know how the company in which their money is invested is being conducted, and how the business stands. There was a time, not long ago, when officers and directors of a corporation treated such organization almost as their personal property. That day has passed. Now the demand is for fair dealing and open books.

"Legitimate corporations could have nothing to lose and probably much to gain by following this policy, and the public would soon become wary of investing their money in enterprises which were afraid or unwilling to do the same thing."

This is sound business sense and sound public policy. Arbitrary power has always been ruinous alike to those who ruled and those who were ruled. Centering absolute and unchecked power in the hands of corporation managers has led to a horde of evils that afflicted the public and the stockholders alike. Many a fat fortune has been built up by corporation directors at the expense of corporation stockholders and the public, and it has been made possible only by the fact that the average corporation is a thorough autocracy with stockholders and public locked on the outside.

The United States Steel corporation, with its voluntary reports to stockholders and public, has set an example in this respect which all corporations should follow, and which they should be forced by law to follow if they will not do so voluntarily.

LETTING EVERYBODY HELP.

Whoever invented the Red Cross Christmas seal idea—may glory crown his name—did a feat that was marvelously ingenious. It lets everybody help in the splendid fight against tuberculosis; and that it is not only good for the fight—it is good for everybody who participates.

It is the easiest possible way to co-operate in a campaign that is going to lift from the highways of humanity the menace and the doom of consumption.

The Red Cross Christmas seals cost only a cent apiece, and everybody can afford to add that much to the cost of each of their Christmas gifts and to the cost of sending Christmas letters. It is but a few cents from each person, yet in the aggregate, judging from the way the sales of stamps are going, a large sum will be raised for the benefit of the local anti-tuberculosis organization.

The seals are to be had anywhere—literally anywhere. Almost every place of business sells them—and buys and uses them, too, for scarcely a letter comes from a local business house that is not adorned with the green and red of the Christmas seal. The children in the public schools are selling them, at home and in the neighborhood. There is little excuse for anybody's not buying, for everybody has plenty of chances to buy.

If you haven't done so already, lay in a stock of Red Cross Christmas seals and put one on every holiday letter and package. You will be contributing thus to a noble cause, and the stamps you send out will carry the suggestion of health for humanity.

THE EASE OF ISSUING BONDS.

The average city government spends all it can get out of the taxpayers by direct taxation, and when it gets all it can hope for that way it resorts to the easy method of issuing bonds.

This makes it easy for those who are handling the city's finances, but if it is carried too far it builds up trouble for the future; for these bonds have to be met and paid some time, and in the meantime interest and sinking funds keep adding to the tax rate.

Duluth probably has issued no bonds that were not absolutely necessary; though it is to be hoped that when the commission form of government is adopted, it will be possible under the new system to get the desired results out of regular revenues, and that the resort to bond issues will be less frequent. That has been one of the most important results of the plan in other cities.

In the Open Court last evening a communication was published from Charles R. Haines, a well known local citizen, who touched pointedly on this subject of bond issues as affecting the credit of the city and its tax rate. What he said should be considered carefully by every taxpayer and every public spirited citizen.

There isn't the slightest doubt that bond issuing is so easy that there always is danger that a city will overdo it, and many cities have overdone it to their bitter cost. No bond issue should be made or proposed without the absolute assurance that it is necessary, or without a thorough realization that interest on the bonds issued must be met and that they must be paid at maturity.

There is a very serious question whether, in view of the fact that recent bond issues have been sold with some difficulty, and that the large bonded indebtedness of the city makes it impossible to dispose of them at low rates of interest, it is wise to talk of a bond issue for a municipal electric lighting plant. Certainly it is unwise unless the need of such a plant is thoroughly established. An issue of bonds that is authorized, even though it may not be issued, has an inevitable bearing on the credit of a community when it comes to issuing bonds that are actually needed; for the fact that it is authorized compels bond buyers to assume that it may be issued and offered for sale any time.

Issuing public bonds isn't a business that should be entered into with blithe disregard of the future day of reckoning that inevitably must arrive. It is a business that should receive the most thoughtful care and the most thorough study.

THE SPOTLESSNESS OF LORIMER.

The sub-committee appointed by the senate committee on privileges and elections to look into those rumors from Illinois that Senator Lorimer had gained his seat by bribery has decided on its report.

It will report back to the main committee its belief that the charges against Lorimer have not been sustained.

Though half a dozen men, more or less, have confessed that they were paid for their votes for Lorimer; though the shame of it has dragged several of these venal lawmakers into the gutters of disgrace; though there isn't a man, woman or child in Illinois or the country that does not believe that the Illinois legislature was buried in dishonest dollars at the time of Lorimer's election; though the whole affair smells to heaven; still this committee finds the charges not sustained.

We should hate, if we were an offender against the law, to leave behind in our lawbreaking a trail so stupidly plain that a political investigating committee would discover it and admit its discovery.

CHIEF JUSTICE WHITE.

If the selection of Judges Van Devanter and Lamar as associate justices of the supreme court is as wise as the selection of Justice White for chief justice of that body, President Taft is emerging with credit from the mighty responsibility that has rested upon him. The appointment of Judge Van Devanter will hardly be pleasing to those who hope to see the government lose its case against the oil and tobacco trusts, because he joined in the decision in the lower court dissolving the Standard Oil company as being a persistent violator of the Sherman anti-trust law. Justice White is a broad-guaged jurist, and was one of the minority that held the income tax law to be constitutional.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

ROLE OF INFORMER NOT A PLEASANT ONE.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In a recent issue of your valuable paper, in the Open Court column, I read the article of the gentleman who told of the condition in a certain district where vice flourished and liquor was sold quite openly.

In a later issue a party pointed out that the informer of those conditions should go before the authorities and lay the case before them so that proper action could be taken. Now, then, it does not always happen that a person can make an open complaint. Some times conditions might be so, and honorable at that, that he can't divulge his name in connection with such matters, even if it is his desire to do something for the betterment of humanity. I know of a case where a Mrs. A. complained to the health department in a certain town about the neighbor's garbage, and a well-founded complaint at that. The neighbor was told by the health inspector that Mrs. A. complained, etc., and maybe you think there wasn't much trouble for poor Mrs. A. Let me ask, isn't it silly to believe that the police department, with all their secret service, does not know of existing conditions; and isn't it still more silly to believe that they can't stop it if they want to, as well as they can stop other lesser crimes from being committed? I have followed your very interesting arguments on the commission plan, and in connection with above, think that it would take politics out of the city government, and then, and not until then, a policeman can do his duty without fear of losing his job; for then, and not until then, will he know his soul is his own.

ONE WHO BELIEVES IN LAW ENFORCEMENT.

Duluth, Dec. 11.

"Give Us More."

The world has gone mad, on a joy-rider's race,
On an effort to keep up the wildest pace,
Mad with money, and mad with sin,
"Faster!" "Oh Faster!" "More noise," "more din!"

The world is crazed for "more of strife,"
"Of greed," "of tension," and "more of life,"
Straining and pushing in effort to climb,
Living all night to have "more of time."

Digging under the ground, building up in the air,
Diving down in the depths, living everywhere,
Oppressing the weak, the dumb and the old,
We use them, abuse them, to have "more of gold."

We challenge the sun, with his glorious light,
Ape the birds on the wing in their airy flight,
We capture earth's creatures from out of the wild,
And train them to mind, as a wee, tiny child.

"Give us more of the devil," and "more of hell,"
For as long as we live we're going to live well;
And at last when we're forced to go under the sod,
Will our final demand be—"more of God?"

—C.

Lee's Justification.

Gamaliel Bradford, Jr., in the Atlantic: It will at once be asked, why, then, did Lee leave the Union? Because Virginia left it, and he felt that Virginia was his country. And I cannot see how any citizen of the old colonial states, with all the memories and traditions of his forefathers in his heart and all the local attachments and fellowships that constitute home, can fail even now to sympathize with such an attitude. "No consideration on earth could induce me to act a part, however gratifying to me, which could be construed into faithlessness to this Commonwealth," wrote Lee's father to Madison; and at another time he expressed himself still more strongly: "Virginia is my country; her I will obey, however lamentable the fate to which it may subject me." Longstreet, in describing his own decision, tells us that "a number of officers of the post called to persuade me to remain in the Union service. Captain Gibbs, of the Mounted Rifles, was the principal talker, and after a long and pleasant discussion, I asked him what course he would pursue if his state should pass ordinances of secession and call him to its defense. He confessed that he would obey the call." Finally, if one may quote one's own feeling as perhaps representative of many, I do not hesitate to say that in the certainly most improbable, but perhaps not wholly impossible, contingency of a future sectional separation in the country, however much I might disapprove of such separation and its causes, I should myself be first, last, and always a son and subject of New England and of Massachusetts.

Names For Love-Songs.

Collier's: There is monotony in the naming of love-songs. Why not novel titles such as these?

"I Love You."
"I Love You, Dear."
"I Love You Dearly."
"I Love You, Dearie."
"Dearie, I Love You."
"Dearie, I Love You Dearly."
"I Love But You."
"I Love You, But—"
"I Love You So."
"Because I Love You So."
"Love Me, for I Love You."
"Love Me, and I Own the Earth."
"I Shall Love You till the Sea Dries Up."

The foregoing list is tossed to the busy composers to use without royalty to us.

A Clinic For Industrial Diseases.

"When Florence Nightingale and Henri Dunant saw the battlefields strewn with dead and wounded, they gave a moment to thought, and then passed on to the world an idea which grew into that beneficent organization known as the Red Cross. Since that time, wherever men might be injured in the activities of war the means for quick relief have been supplied. During that same half century, however, the industrial field with its activities of peace has extended and grown more mechanical, until it now maims more men than war ever did. In the United States 30,000 wage-earners are killed by industrial accidents every year, and 500,000 more are seriously injured." says John B. Andrews of the American Association for Labor Legislation, in the Survey. "There are probably not less than 13,000,000 cases of sickness each year among those engaged in industrial employments. The money loss each year (for those who find dollars more impressive than lives) is calculated by these conservative experts as nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars. At least one-fourth of this painful incapacity for work and consequent economic loss, we are told, can be prevented.

We need an institution that will correlate the experience of our scattered little groups of hygienists and enable more medical men to direct their attention to the problems of industrial hygiene. We need for the purpose a special laboratory and hospital to accelerate progress in the study of the causes and prevention of industrial diseases. With such an institution, phosphorous poisoning would quickly disappear from our match industry as a matter of scientific common sense. The long list of poisons affecting scores of different occupations would gradually be shortened. Conditions which lower vitality, lessen efficiency and invite disease, would quickly be improved to the advantage of manufacturer and wage-earner.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

A Bas Le Sox.

Grand Rapids Herald Review: Any one who has ever lived in Northern Minnesota and Itasca county especially would know that living in a camp is practically the same as living outdoors. Barring the presence of a few pairs of woolen socks, suspended from the walls, we are willing to take affidavit to the fact that Itasca county camps are sanitary.

Just a Bit of Pessimism.

Carlton Vidette: In an Eastern city not long since a man was indicted, tried and sentenced to the penitentiary for a long period of years in the short space of two hours. It is almost needless to say that he was a poor man. If the offender had been a rich man it is not likely such expedition would have been shown.

E. Smith's Will Do.

Ada Herald: It is the customary thing for applicants for appointive positions to be given out in a political way to secure the indorsement of the chairman of the county committee. We wonder if Preuss received the O. K. of Chairman Froshaug of the Norman county committee. How about it, Arnt?

What Might Have Been.

Princeton Union: They are talking of abolishing the governor's staff in Connecticut. We know of a fellow who, had he been afforded the opportunity, would have abolished the staff in this state six years ago.

This Should Hold Them.

Winona Independent: Leading railroads of Iowa and Illinois are said to be planning a concerted attack on the 2-cent fare laws of those states. It's a 2 to 1 shot that if the railroads do succeed in having the law declared unconstitutional, confiscatory, or something else equally bad, that they won't return to the 3-cent fare. Their earnings are larger with the 2-cent fare, and they know it.

Poor Old Peary!

Preston Times: If Cook lied, Peary is probably also a liar and both are mere adventurers and notoriety seekers. Who cares for the North Pole, anyway?

But Who is the Calf?

St. Cloud Times: Bemidji is greatly interested in a report that J. Pierpont Morgan is to pass through that city, and a banquet in his honor is talked of; why? Is this not a proposition to "worship the golden calf."

Another Fletcher Argument.

Rochester Post and Record: Be a little careful when you eat oysters. A chap in Chicago while enjoying an oyster stew bit a hard substance which proved to be a pearl, for which he was offered $800. So masticate oysters well before deglutition, and a pearl may be the reward.

Henry George in Congress.

Louis F. Post, Editor of the Public, in The Survey: Henry George, Jr., is "the son of his father" in every sense but one. He is not dependent upon his father's name for his own career.

His father's ideals, however, and his father's life work, are his own ideals and the work of his own life. Not as a servile imitator, but as one of those men in all parts of the world who have seen the star his father saw, he has carved a career for himself as a world leader in spreading the gospel of liberty and brotherhood, industrial as well as political. His object, as it was his father's and is that all his father's followers, is to abolish the exploitation of labor; and to this end his energies are concentrated upon the abolition of privilege.

That is what one might call Henry George's congressional platform if one had the right to speak for him. To abolish the exploitation of labor, privilege must be abolished. Every part of privilege abolished is thus far toward its total destruction. Customs tariffs are our bulwarks of privilege, nationally. Consequently, every bit of congressional legislation destructive to the tariff wall is a deadly blow at the privileged, and therefore a champion's shot for the workers.

So might one expect Henry George, Jr., in congress, to co-operate his own powers with the powers of the largest numbers moving in his general direction, for securing the highest degree of free trade presently possible. And in addition to congressional issues rising out of the tariff question, one might expect him to be aligned with the congressional forces that support the Pinchot movement for conservation of natural resources; for in the privileges which that movement assails, the very heart's core of all privilege lurks.

Ambition.

Jerome K. Jerome: Is it, forsooth, wrong to be ambitious? Are the men wrong who, with bent back and sweating brow cut the smooth road over which humanity marches forward, who use the talents their master has intrusted to them for toiling, while others play?

Of course, they are seeking their own record. Man is not given that godlike unselfishness that thinks only of others' good. But in working for themselves they are working for us all. We are so bound together that no man can labor for himself alone. Each blow he strikes in his own behalf helps to mold the universe. The stream in struggling onward turns the mill wheel; the coral insect fashioning its tiny cells joins continents; and the ambitious man, building a pedestal for himself leaves a monument to posterity. Alexander and Caesar fought for their own ends, but in doing so they put a belt of civilization half around the earth. Stephenson, to win a fortune, invented the steam engine, and Shakespeare wrote his plays to keep a comfortable home for Mrs. Shakespeare and the children.

Contented, unambitious people are all very well in their way. They form a neat, useful background for great portraits to be painted against, and they make a respectable audience for the active spirits to play before. I have not a word to say against them so long as they keep quiet. But they should not go strutting about, crying out that they are the true models for the whole species.

If you are foolish enough to be contented, don't show it, but grumble with the rest; and if you can do with a little, ask for a great deal. Because, if you don't, you won't get anything. In this world it is necessary to adopt the principle pursued by the plaintiff in an action for damages and to demand ten times more than you are ready to accept. If you can feel satisfied with a hundred, begin by insisting on a thousand; if you start by suggesting a hundred you will only get ten.

What a terribly dull affair, too, life must be for contented people. They never know the excitement of expectation nor the stern delight of accomplished effort, such as stir the pulse of the man who has objects and hopes and plans. To the ambitious man life is a brilliant game—a game that calls forth all his tact and energy and nerve—a game to be won, in the long run, by the quick eye and the steady hand, and yet having sufficient chance about its working out to give it all the glorious zest of uncertainty. He exults in it, as the strong swimmer in the heavy billows, as the athlete in the wrestle, as the soldier in battle. And if he be defeated, he wins the grim joy of fighting; if he loses the race he, at least, has had a run. Better to work and fail than to sleep one's life away.

An Old Record.

From "The Rules of the Game" by Stewart Edward White: Bob began to chop above and below the wrinkle in the bark. After ten minutes' careful work, he laid aside a thick slab of wood. The inner surface of this was shiny with pitch. The space from which it had peeled had filmed over the old blaze, protecting it against the new wood and bark which had gradually grown over it. Thus, although the original blaze had been buried six inches in the living white pine wood, nevertheless the letter was as clear and sharp as when it had been carved fifty years before. Furthermore, the same lettering, only reversed and in relief, showed on the thick slab that Bob had peeled away. So the tree had preserved the record in its heart.

MUNICIPAL BEAUTY PAYS.

Frederick C. Howe in December Hampton's: Dusseldorf has been planned by expert architects and landscape gardeners who make a profession of city planning. Nothing has been left to chance. The individual property owner is no more permitted to spoil the harmony of the whole than an incompetent workman would be permitted to wreck an expensive machine.

Streets, squares, parks, gardens, playgrounds, all have their place in the scheme of the city architect, while in the designing of private and public work, open spaces and street corners, lamp posts and street signs, the skill of the artist has been joined with that of the builder and the engineer. Everything is orderly, symmetrical and beautiful.

In America a man may do as he wills with his land. He may erect a dirty factory in the midst of a residence district. He may put up a 20-story skyscraper or a miserable tax earner. He may lay out mean and narrow streets and use the section for anything that suits his fancy. And the law protects him in his lawlessness.

Dusseldorf is planned in detail for fifty years to come. Upon the maps in the city hall one can see the location of future streets, boulevards, parks, open spaces, sites for public buildings and schoolhouses, all located in anticipation of the city's growth. The streets are wide and spacious; a large amount of land is dedicated to public use.

Certain sections of the city are set aside for mills and factories, while neighboring property is reserved for workingmen's dwellings. In other sections the land is devoted to villas or expensive apartments. Everywhere, even in the heart of the city, the height of buildings is limited, usually to the width of the street. The area which may be built upon is also fixed and must not exceed from three-fifths to three-fourths of the lot area. Thus, neither the slum nor the tenement can reappear as in the older sections of the city.

The city says to the factory owner: "You must build your mills in the outskirts, and so located that the prevailing winds will carry the smoke away from the city. And wherever you build you must not offend your neighbors with smoke, dirt and noise. You must provide your factories with baths so that your employes can keep themselves clean. Your buildings must also be equipped with the latest and best safety appliances."

Far from injuring the landowner, these regulations protect him; they increase the value of his property and safeguard him from the get-rich-quick speculator, who divides his property into cheap lots and paves and sewers his streets with worthless material, which in a few years' time must be rebuilt by the city. At the same time the gardens, open spaces and playgrounds add to the value of the land and yield a return to the owner as well as to the community. From every point of view municipal beauty is one of the best of city investments. It not only increases the value of neighboring land, but lures population to the city as a place of residence.

Dusseldorf has developed a system of municipal harbors and docks that are marvels of convenience. The cost of the improvement was $4,500,000. In ten years' time this investment has increased the river trade by 300 per cent, while the cost of the harbor is being paid by the dues and rentals from its use. Dusseldorf was not a natural harbor. The water front, which extends for miles along the Rhine, was low-lying land. The bank opposite the city was covered with shacks and huts, which were torn down and the land developed into a beautiful parkway several miles in extent. The city side was reclaimed from the river and confined with stone embankments. A wide esplanade was constructed, upon which several great public buildings as well as a splendid exposition building have been erected. In the latter, annual exhibitions of art are held.

Farther up the river a system of docks was constructed, with powerful cranes and devices which handle all kinds of freight at an insignificant cost. Crossing the river is a beautiful bridge upon which hundreds of thousands of dollars were expended—merely to make it beautiful. The remarkable thing about this undertaking is the way business is made to harmonize with art and beauty. The use of the river front for recreation is not impaired by the docks and railway tracks.

The Brave Stranger.

New York Sun: There was a story about the late Governor John A. Johnson, a true story we are sure, that endeared him even to his political opponents. He was hurrying incognito along a platform in a railroad station to catch a train when a tremendous hubbub in the Swedish tongue fixed him in his tracks; an unfriended and ignorant old emigrant woman was trying to retain her hold on a horsehair trunk which a baggageman had laid rude hands upon. She wept, gesticulated and railed, but could not understand that robbery and sacrilege were not intended. She wanted to go to Sauk Centre or some such place, and her soul was centered in the resolution to carry her trunk aboard the nearest train. The governor incognito intervened, had her baggage checked, put her in the right coach, hat in hand, asked her how the folk were at home, and wished her Godspeed, while she cried her delight. Then he disappeared, but had lost his train.

It was just like John A. Johnson, of course, but with due reverence to the memory of a very human man, they have a citizen of Iowa who risked more than the loss of a train to befriend a woman, an aged woman too. The story is quickly told (Des Moines date:

"When a spare, tall man in a slouch hat and an ulster, the collar of which concealed his features, volunteered at midnight to enter a burning building to bring out a trunk in which an aged woman said lay possessions priceless to her, the firemen tried to restrain him. But he evaded them, and regardless of danger plunged into the smoke and flame which poured from the open door. The crowd waited for what seemed to them nearly an hour for him to reappear, and the apprehension of the firemen that he had perished grew into conviction, when he emerged dragging the trunk after him."

The hour in the burning building, as the time seemed, had made awful ravages on the stranger's person and clothing. His face was black as if he had emerged from Pluto's realm, all the fine lineaments obscured by smoke. His hat was crumpled, his ulster scorched. His hair gave out a pungent burnt odor. He was pale and unsteady in his gait. He staggered past the trembling fireman and vanished. Only one man in the vast breathless crowd recognized the brave stranger; that man was Deputy Auditor of State Joseph F. Wall. He reports that the savior of the trunk and its priceless contents was no other than that Hon. B. F. Carroll, governor of the state.

And yet Col. Lafayette Young thinks that he can be elected senator by the legislature.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Lots of people are good for lack of the chance not to be.

A woman would rather be loved than honored, and a man enriched.

The fun of trading horses is that if you get cheated so did the other fellow.

Everybody would like to be good if there was any cheerful company to keep it in.

A man would rather go to the dentist than go shopping with his wife, and she would rather scrub the floor than listen to his ideas on politics.

Grief In Pine City.

Prine Poker: The force in the Poker office are in mouring. They sit in sackcloth and ashes and refuse to be comforted and all because we have lost the most important adjunct in any well regulated sanctum—the office cat. He was a dark complected, unusually large feline of the male persuasion, and answered to the call of "Pluto." His duties were light, but his responsibilities were many. In an evil moment he listened to the tempter, and answered the "call of the wild."

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Judge: Tommy—May I ask a question, papa?

Father—Certainly, my son.

Tommy—Well, when the president of the United States goes into office does he take out letters of administration?

Louisville Courier-Journal: "It took the suffragette parade four hours to pass a given point."

"Thousands in line, eh?"

"No, only a few hundred, but they all wore hobble skirts."

Life: "Maudie spends her whole life in a motor."

"Like a lily of the field, isn't she?"

"H'm, not exactly! True, she toils not, but she spins."

Cleveland Leader: May—What do you mean by saying that Maude is "more or less pretty?"

Tom—Well, she's more pretty than most girls, but less pretty than you.

Fliegende Blaetter: Drummer—Will you be mine? All my life I will worship you from February until April, and from August until December. The rest of the time I am on the road.

New York Sun: Diogenes was looking for an honest man.

"You don't have to look, you only have to listen!" we cried.

Following our advice, he heard the only one proclaim himself.

Tit-Bits: The canny Scot wandered into the pharmacy.

"I'm wanting threepenn'orth o' laudanum," he announced.

"What for?" asked the chemist, suspiciously.

"For twopence," responded the Scot at once.

Philadelphia Record: Laugh and the world laughs with you, unless you happen to be laughing at your own jokes.

Cleveland Leader: "So you are going to take him for better or worse?"

"No—I'm going to take him for more or less."

Washington Herald: "Why do you look so subdued and humble?"

"I've just been to call on my wife's folks."

When Bendigo Jones Was 21.

Kansas City Journal: Tom Botkin, assistant secretary of state, makes frequent trips to Arkansas and always has a lot of fine stories of that country. The other day a number of persons were talking of the fine fall weather in Kansas. "It is great," said Botkin, "but in Arkansas they have real weather. You know the kids down there don't wear anything but slips until they are grown."

He related that he stopped at a certain town and walking out on the street noticed a tremendous commotion. People were running this and that way and were very much excited. Soon they all began to make for the river and it wasn't long until most of the town was out, hurrying in that direction.

Botkin stopped one of the citizens and said: "Stranger, there must be something going on down there, some trouble of some kind. Perhaps they are lynching a colored man or a revenue officer?"

"Naw," replied the native slowly. "Naw, I guess there hain't no trouble. I reckon there hain't none. Old Zeb Jones' son, Bendigo, has just turned 21 years and they're tryin' to put some clothes on him."

The First Socialist Congressman.

John Spargo in The Survey: For the first time in the history of the nation a Socialist has been elected to congress. Not a near-Socialist, mind you, nor a Socialist who avoided the name, nor one who uses a compound title in which the word "Socialist" is qualified and modified.

No, Victor Berger, the man elected, is a real Socialist. He wears the red flag as an emblem of his faith and his party. He is a member of the national executive committee of the Socialist party, and was one of its eight elected delegates to the International Socialist congress at Copenhagen recently. In short, he is a thoroughly representative Socialist. When he takes his seat in congress he will be the representative of the actual Socialist movement.

So there will be a third party in congress, a tiny minority of one, with one vote in a total of 392. It will not be an insignificant minority, however, but one to be reckoned with. Those disposed to sneer at this minority party of one may be reminded of the old fable: "Only one," sneered the mouse at the lioness fondly licking her cub. "Yes, only one, but that one a lion," answered the mother. The Socialists will have only one representative in congress—but that one will be Victor Berger, a lion.

STUBBS DENOUNCES RATE INCREASE AS ILLEGAL ACT

Scathing Attack on Trusts and Railroads By Kansas Governor.

Courts Are Criticized for Failure to Punish the Individuals.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey and Governor W. R. Stubbs of Kansas were the principal speakers at the annual banquet of the Illinois Manufacturers' association last night.

Mr. Wilson said business had been much exploited in this country's recent period of extraordinary railway expansion, with too little regard for the permanent interests of society.

Governor Stubbs took up the subject of railway freight rates and the relations of rates to the welfare of the people at large.

Governor Stubbs made a sensational attack upon railroads and trusts.

Rate Advance Illegal.

He declared that "the advanced freight rates demanded by the railroads were agreed to by the combined railroads and are therefore clearly in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law," and were unjustifiable.

The speaker condemned the judge who fines corporations for violations of law and "discharges the officers who get the money and are the real criminals in the case." He asserted that "the relation of the federal government of unlawful commercial institutions organized for spoils and plunder, is one of the most humiliating and disgraceful chapters in American history."

"The Exact Truth."

Governor Stubbs said, in part:

"Let us have the courage to tell the exact truth about unwholesome commercial conditions that have grown up during the last score of years. Anything short of a plain, accurate statement of facts concerning the iron grip which monopolies, trusts and illegal combinations now hold on the commerce of our country, means either moral prostitution or personal cowardice.

"Every student of public affairs and every public official charged with the enforcement of law, knows that the alliance between professional politicians, corporation lawyers and the financial and commercial interests which are concerned in shaping state and federal legislation to serve their own special interests, is a menace to the welfare and life of our republic.

Packing House Trust.

"It is well known for instance, that within reasonable limits the packing house trust exercises arbitrary power to fix the purchase price of cattle, hogs and other livestock, and determine with accuracy the amount of profit which they will take as their share of the transaction. It is well known that the packing house trust was formed and is being operated in open and flagrant violation of moral and statutory laws."

The speaker said that the methods employed by the giant masters of finance who have destroyed the natural laws of supply and demand throughout the nation are in open and flagrant violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, the plain provisions of our Federal Constitution, the common laws of our land, and all moral obligations imposed upon respectable citizens.

Trust in Wall Street.

"In this connection, the transportation question is perhaps the most important issue before the American people today. The Wall street financiers, through a 'community of interest' scheme, have by indirect methods formed what practically amounts to a gigantic railroad trust, which controls the rates and policies of the most important railroad systems in the United States.

"There is a well established principle of law which prohibits a man from doing indirectly that which the law forbids him to do directly. If penalties ar provided by law for doing an act, the same penalties should attach when that act is accomplished by indirect means.

Men "Above the Law."

"The Northern Securities company, which was organized to consolidate the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington railways, all competing lines, was declared illegal by the federal supreme court. James J. Hill, J. Pierpont Morgan and their associates proved themselves to be above the law and higher than the courts by proceeding immediately to destroy competition in railroad rates throughout the Northwestern states by indirectly doing what the supreme court had decided was unlawful for the Northern Securities Company to do.

"The railroad is a government agency, and is therefore supposed to be subject to law. It is a creature of government, but the creature has grown to such proportions of wealth and political power that provisions of law and decrees of courts have proved ineffective in so far as they were intended to exercise direct control over the operation of these commercial giants.

"In 1898 the dividends paid by the railroads of the United States amounted to $97,000,000. In 1908 these dividends amounted to $386,000,000, an increase of 400 per cent in ten years.

Earnings of Railroads.

"In 1909 the railroads earned $93,000,000 more net revenue than they did in 1908, and for the first five months of 1910 have earned $33,000,000 more net revenue than they did in the five corresponding months of the previous year.

"These figures prove that there is no reasonable basis upon which the railroads can demand an advance in freight rates. Upon the contrary, they prove conclusively that railroad rates are already too high. And yet, practically all the railroads in the United States have formed a gigantic combintion to increase freight rates, which the shippers who have investigated the matter claim will ultimately increase the cost of freight transportation.

"The advanced freight rates demanded by the railroads, and now being considered by the interstate commerce commission were agreed to by the combined railroads of the United States, and are, therefore, clearly in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Against Public Policy.

"I submit to you, gentlemen, the proposition that it is unwise and contrary to sound public policy for the federal government to permit these railroads openly and flagrantly to violate the anti-trust law by combining for the purpose of advancing freight rates, and through their unlawful acts enormously to increase the cost of transportation to the American people.

"If the railroads are thus permitted to violate the federal laws with impunity, in broad day light, and thereby increase their profits millions of dollars per annum, what incentive has any citizen to respect the law, when he can increase his income by breaking it?

Tribute and Extortion.

"The amount of tax money collected by the British empire from the American colonists, without representation, probably would not amount to 1 per cent of the tribute and extortion which the consuming American public are now compelled to pay to illegal combinations, trusts and monopolies every year. The honor, manhood and moral character of our republic are involved in the relation of the federal government to this monstrous condition, which offends every sense of justice, decency and morality.

"We have passed beyond the stage where self-respecting public officials can barter and dicker and compromise with law breakers, rich or poor, high or low, great or small, on the theory that the rigid enforcement of law, without fear or favor, will injure business.

Humiliating and Disgraceful.

"The relation of the federal government to these unlawful commercial institutions organized for purposes of spoils and plunder is one of the most humiliating and disgraceful chapters in American history. The plain duty and task set for this generation is to establish once and forever the supremacy of law and its power to control organized corporations, firms or individuals who directly or indirectly form combinations in restraint of trade, and thereby destroy free competition and equal opportunity in the commerce of the nation.

"The Sherman anti-trust law provides that a combination in restraint of trade is a crime punishable by fine or imprisonment or both. The judge on the bench who insists on holding the corporation responsible for violation of law, and, not being able to send the corporation to prison, assesses a fine against it as punishment for robbing the pubic of thousands of millions of dollars, through illegal combinations in restraint of trade, and discharges the officers who get the money and are the real criminals in the case, is wholly unfit to occupy so responsible a public office.

Criticizing the Courts.

"I do not in any sense share the opinion sometimes expressed that the official acts of a judge are too sacred to be criticised. No citizen of this republic occupies a more honorable or desirable position than a just judge who honors his office. But there is no more disreputable citizen than the unjust judge who brings discredit and disgrace to the office that should be held sacred and used solely for the purpose of meting out justice to all kinds and classes of persons.

"A judge belonging to the last named class is and ought to be a proper subject for public criticism, and he ought to be publicly branded, so that he could be forever after identified."

Opposed Life Judgeship.

Governor Stubbs strongly opposed appointment of or election of judges for a life term; urged an income tax law; a mandatory law providing a prison sentence for persons or officers of corporations who are responsible for unlawful combinations in restraint of trade and also providing a receiver shall operate such corporations until assurance is given that they will obey the law.

"When congress enacts these laws and they are rigidly enforced," he said, "extortion, injustice and commercial cruelty of monopolies will be placed on the same basis as other crimes and will be no more respectable in the community."

The speaker favored the development of the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers, and declared that "the American people are being robbed every year of enough money by unlawful combinations, trusts and monopolies to build this entire work."

WONDERFUL CURE OF SORE HANDS

Skin Peeled and Flesh Got Hard and Broke—Blood Flowed in Fifty Places—"Single Box of Cuticura Ended Suffering."

"About eleven years ago I was troubled with sore hands, so sore that when I would put them in water the pain would very nearly set me crazy, the skin would peel off and the flesh would get hard and break. There would be blood flowing from at least fifty places on each hand. Words could never tell tho suffering I endured for three years. I tried everything that I was told to use for fully three years, but could get no relief. I tried at least eight different doctors, but none of them seemed to do me any good, as my hands were as bad when I got through doctoring as when I first began. I also tried many remedies, but none of them ever did me one cent's worth of good. I was discouraged and heartsore. I would feel so bad mornings when I got up, to think I had to go to work and stand the pain for ten hours, and I often felt like giving up my position.

"Before I started to work mornings I would have to wrap every finger up separately, so as to try and keep them soft and then wear gloves over the rags to keep the grease from getting on my work. At night I would have to wear gloves in bed. In fact, I had to wear gloves all the time. After doctoring for three years, and spending much money, a single box of Cuticura Ointment ended all my sufferings. It's been eight years since I used any and I don't know what sore hands are now, and never lost a day's work while using Cuticura Ointment. Thomas A. Clancy, 310 N. Montgomery St., Trenton, N. J., Nov. 11, 1909."

A single set of Cuticura Soap and Ointment is often sufficient, rendering it the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, U.S.A.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 13.—A steamship line between New Orleans and Rio Janeiro, subsidized by the Brazilian government, now seems assured as a result of conferences between the agricultural commissioner of Brazil and business men of this city, St. Louis and Kansas City. The New Orleans Progressive union appropriated $1,000 to pay the expenses of a special representative from this city to Brazil to look after the interests of New Orleans in the movement.

HELEN BOYLE LOSES HER APPEAL TO HIGH COURT.

Philadelphia, Dec. 13.—The state superior court has affirmed the conviction of Helen Boyle, who is serving twenty-five years in the Western Pennsylvania penitentiary for the part she played in the sensational kidnaping of Billy Whitla at Sharon, Pa. The woman had appealed to the higher court for a new trial.

NO TORT FOR MAN TO BEAT HIS WIFE.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Husbands in the District of Columbia are not liable to suits for damages for assault and battery on their wives, according to a decision by the supreme court of the United States.

In 1908, Jessie Thompson sued her husband in the local courts for $70,000 damages for alleged assault and battery. Charles N. Thompson, the husband, as a defense, set up the family relation. The court of appeals of the District of Columbia in holding that the wife could not sue the husband for a tort, such as assault and battery, said that neither the common law nor the code of the District authorized such a suit.

Justice Day in announcing the opinion of the supreme court dwelt upon the same objections to the suit as were advanced by the lower court. Justices Harlan, Holmes and Hughes dissented.

JUDGE FACES QUESTION

Whether or Not a Goose Can Suffer Mental Anguish.

Asheville, N. C., Dec. 13. — Has a goose feelings? If so, where are they located, or not located?

These are questions which are puzzling Justice Gudger in arriving at conclusions of fact and law in a goose case presented for his consideration by a warrant sworn out by officers of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

In Joe Grieger's barnyard an agent of the S. P. C. A. discovered a goose whose webbed feet were nailed to a board, as one step in the process to make its liver become pate de foie gras.

A meeting of the society was held to consider the case, and President Collins who had been in conference with physicians, encyclopedias, lawyers, humanitarians and others insisted that in addition to the bodily injury there was also the question of mental anguish to be considered.

Accordingly the society voted to hale the goose's owner to court, to decide a goose's rights.

WHO WANTS "TEDDY?"

Lion Cub Must Leave Happy Home Aboard Naval Collier.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 13. — Because Uncle Sam will not permit him to keep the beast on board ship, Capt. W. R. Worley of the naval collier Cyclone, has a cute little lion he wants to give to somebody. The lion is the pet of the captain and entire crew of the Cyclone.

The little beast runs all over the ship and plays with the men like a kitten would. Capt. Worley says he got the lion in Rio Janeiro some months ago, and hates very much to part with it.

"I want to find a good home for 'Teddy,'" he said. "He has had a good home on the Cyclone and I don't think he would exchange it for his old habitation in the jungles."

"Teddy" weighs 150 pounds and is a handsome specimen of the king of beasts.

Preserves Natural Color of the Hair

(From Woman's National Magazine.)

"Any woman can postpone for years the time when her hair becomes thin and gray. It is a mistake to shampoo frequently with soap and water, as that tends to make the scalp scaly and hard and the hair dull and faded.

"The hair will respond quickly to the proper home treatment. Put in a fruit jar four ounces of orris root and four ounces of therox. Shake until well mixed. Once or twice a week sprinkle a little of this powder on the head and brush it thoroughly through the hair.

"This dry shampoo removes dirt, dust and dandruff from the scalp and leaves the hair fresh, sweet and clean. The therox helps to grow beautiful hair and preserves its natural color."

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

GOOD FUEL IS RESULT

North Dakota State Lignite Experimental Station Solves Tough Problem.

Hits on Successful Plan for Driving Out Moisture in Making Briquettes.

Hebron, N. D., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three tons of mine run lignite, as shown by tests conducted at the state lignite coal mining experimental station here, are enough to make one ton of briquettes possessing the same heating value that one ton of the best anthracite coal possesses. The briquetting work is progressing very satisfactorily here, the results being most successful.

The process used in briquetting lignite, drive off the gas which can be used for heating, lighting and power, and then briquette the coke left after driving off the gas. These briquettes furnish a fuel that burns as steadily as anthracite coal and which will withstand weathering and handling.

Moisture Big Drawback.

The process by which the plan was evolved has required a great deal of work. Lignite contains from 30 to 40 per cent moisture. On drying it cracks, slacks and ultimately becomes a fine, practically useless powder. Undried the shipper must pay freight on too much water, and the purchaser must receive too much water which requires a part of the fuel value of the coal to dry in burning. Lignite contains two classes of fuel, a very light gas and a heavier substance like powdered coke or charcoal. To kindle the latter a good deal of heat is required just as in kindling a hard coal fire. As a general thing when lignite is thrown on the fire the light gases dispel and a large part being lost up the flue. The small per cent that does burn flashes above the coal and fails to produce enough heat to thoroughly and rapidly ignite the coke-like substance which the drying and the loss of gases have produced by a powder which clogs the draft.

In driving out this moisture the station has solved one of the big problems connected with the successful briquetting of lignite, and hence the adoption of the method of briquetting now in force at the experimental station.

HELPED TO BUILD FIRST SOO CANAL

Edward C. Hungerford, Pioneer of Lake Superior Region, Called.

Marquette, Mich., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Little mention was made in the press a few days ago of the death of Edward C. Hungerford at Chester, Conn. aged 83, yet his passing removed one who figured prominently in the pioneer development of the Lake Superior region. He heard "the call of the wild" and was attracted to northern shores in the early 50's. He was associated with Charles T. Harvey in the construction of the first Soo canal and had charge of the lands granted for the promotion of that enterprise. In that connection he underwent some actually perilous experience on land and water.

In 1857 he became local manager of the Pioneer Iron company, when the furnace at Negaunee was built and operated by L. D. Harvey of this vicinity, and Stephen R. Gay, who died a comparatively short time afterwards, after building and running the Collinsville furnace on the site of the present light and power station. At this time the Negaunee furnace was operated by a company, among the stockholders in which were Ezra Corning of New York, Governor Fairbanks of Vermont, and Horatio Seymour of New York.

In 1862 Mr. Hungerford returned to his home in Connecticut and in 1867 he organized the Deer Lake Iron company, personally superintended the construction of an iron furnace at Deer Lake, near Ishpeming, and for a time its operation, leaving it in charge of the late C. H. Hall for a time, afterward superintendent of the Lake Superior Iron company. Among Mr. Hungerford's other associates were H. H. Stafford, now of Newton, Mass., and B. W. Wright and George P. Cummings of this city.

SUNDAY CLOSING MAKES MANDAN'S SATURDAYS LIVELY

Mandan, N. D., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mandan is getting used to observing its Sunday closing orders and is doing so in good grace now. One of the unexpected results of the closing order has been the creation of Saturday as the big business day of the week, as the knowledge that everything will be closed Sunday drives the city's buying public to the markets, and every line of business is affected, even to the cigar and confectionary stores as these are also closed on the Sabbath.

HAS OPPOSITION.

North Dakota State Hotel Inspector Has Rival for Job.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The present state hotel inspector, A. M. Anderson of Fargo, is said to have opposition for re-appointment in W. O'Gorman of Grand Forks, who has the support of the Grand Forks Council, U. C. T. The commercial travelers organization was largely responsible for the passage of the hotel inspection bill.

For some time there has been more or less discussion of the probabilities of a repeal of the law by the approaching assembly.

Travelers of the state are practically unanimous in their support of the present law, contending that since it has been in operation, four years, there has been a very marked improvement in the conditions in the small country town hotel, and it is to bring these up to a proper standard that the bill was primarily intended for.

ALFALFA EASILY RAISED.

North Dakota Professor Urges Its Culture in That State.

Denbigh, N. D., Dec. 13.—That it is merely a matter of a little extra care on the start in getting alfalfa and clover to grow luxuriantly in North Dakota is the contention of Prof. Hoverstad, who talked on the subject at the farmers' institute here.

Supt. Hoverstad, in discussing clover and alfalfa called attention to the fact that these crops are such good soil improvers that they take nitrogen from the air and put it into the soil in a form that the plant can use by means of the germs that live on the roots in the nodules. That one crop of clover will add to the soil enough of this element to supply five crops of wheat with all they will need. To get the clover to do this soil improving it must have the germs and they are not always present in the soil. When they are not they can be introduced by sowing some soil on the land that has been taken from a field that has grown clover successfully. Adding manure will also help the germs; will encourage them. For introducing germs for alfalfa take the soil from a field that is growing alfalfa successfully. The growing of clover and alfalfa will also add organic matter to the soil and thus lessen drifting.

With the permission of clement weather, work on the laterals of the big Aitkin county work will then be completed and operations will be discontinued until the spring.

Winona — It is understood that the committee recently appointed by the board of trade to confer with Bishop P. R. Heffron and to assist him in the selection of a site for his proposed Catholic boys' college, has negotiated with the owner of a desirable 160-acre piece of property just at the outskirts of the city.

Moorhead—Mayor W. H. Davy has secured a deed, at a very advantageous price, for lot 22, block 4, Burns' addition to the city of Moorhead, being the lot adjacent to that upon which the new city well is being drilled. The well is within six or seven feet of the line and it is to the advantage of the city to acquire this property.

Deerwood—Burt Lough lost his fine pet wolf, aged about 2 years. A man riding along the road with a team and wagon spied the wolf in the yard and shot the animal, carring the carcas away.

Winona — Ferdinand Hornetischek, proprietor of the Burmeyster hotel here, is mysteriously missing and there is the greatest anxiety among his relatives. He left the hotel Friday night for a lodge meeting and is known to have attended, but none has been found who saw him after he left the lodge room.

IS WHISKEY DRINKING A SIN?

Where Does the Blame Lie When the Husband Wrecks His Home?

Many claim that the hard drinker can stop drinking if he chooses; that his willingness to continue the habit and spend money which his family sorely needs for the comforts and, perhaps, the very necessaries of life is nothing but pure selfishness; that in doing so he deliberately chooses what he considers to be his own pleasure and places it above the needs of his family. While there may be some truth in this belief, yet without question the hard drinker is in many cases an absolute slave to his habit and if he is to be set free from the habit must receive assistance from without. The wives and sisters and mothers of such men are ordinarily the ones upon whom the responsibility lies for saving the drinker from this habit.

The White Ribbon Remedy put up by the White Ribbon Remedy Co., of Boston, is honestly made by honest people who desire to help the families that are being injured by drink. That they are succeeding is proven by letters breathing heartfelt gratitude of loved ones of men who have been saved by the White Ribbon Remedy. One such woman writes:

"Dear Sirs:—As I feel I owe you a debt of gratitude I can never pay thought I would drop you a few lines and tell you what your medicine has done for my husband. He has not touched a drop of anything to drink in over a year. My home is like a heaven on earth since that awful curse has been removed and I feel that I can never thank you for your kindness in being so prompt in sending the medicine. Husband took it willingly and is more than proud to think he can go to town and not want to visit the hotels and saloons. When I think of the years I lived with a drunkard when so little would have stopped it, I cannot help but feel that I cannot thank you for what you have done for me."

Without question the makers of this Remedy deserve the gratitude not merely of the families helped, but of the community at large, for the work they are doing.

The White Ribbon Remedy is odorless, tasteless, contains absolutely no habit-forming drugs, may be administered secretly if desired, and has proven its efficacy so many times that those who earnestly desire to win the drinker from the alcohol habit may begin treatment with confidence that excelent results will follow.

White Ribbon Remedy costs $1.00 per box, or 6 boxes for $5.00; and may be obtained of all the Hegeman & Co. stores, New York city, or direct from the White Ribbon Remedy Co., Boston, Mass.

ROUGH TIME ON ATLANTIC

Duluth Boy on U. S. S. Georgia Tells of Trip of Fleet.

Aerial Bridge and Great Artificial Harbor at Brest, France.

A Duluth boy, who is a sailor on the U. S. S. Georgia, the flagship of the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, now in European waters, writes to The Herald from Brest, France, giving his impressions of the trip across the ocean. He writes:

"Nov. 3 the ships of the fleet headed eastward, bound for Europe. The weather was fair on the first day, but on the evening of Nov. 4 the wind rose out of the northeast and a wintry gale it was. By dawn of Nov. 5 the sea was running high. At 3:30 a. m. the U. S. S. New Hampshire lost a man overboard. Life boats and life buoys were lowered and the searchlight played on the sea. The life boat's crew faced death in the turbulent waters in their vain attempt to save the life of their shipmate. He was not sighted from the time he was washed overboard, so the search was abandoned.

"As the day grew on the wind increased its fury, lashing the sea into waves mountain high. One cannot imagine the sensation it causes unless he has gone through it himself. Although I have seen many a gale, I never saw the equal to that one. The great ships were tossed like corks on the angry ocean. One minute the Nebraska could be seen riding a wave and the next minute all that was visible was her masts. The sea broke ove rour bow in sheets and the waves spent their strength against the windlass house and the turrets. All the boys in blue were feeding their last meal to the fish. All day the fleet of Uncle Sam's pride labored in the sea and the oncoming night saw the storm at its worst.

"The morning of Nov. 6 showed no drop in the wind and no tables were lowered, as it was impossible to keep them still long enough to set the dishes on them, for most of the mess gear was broken up the previous day in just such an attempt. All that we could do was to take a corn bill sandwich in one hand and wrap the free arm around a stanchion. The sea was breaking in the gun ports that had not been properly fastened and the deck had four inches of water on it most of the time.

"Nov. 7 the wind fell and we had a heavy rain which calmed the sea a little, but we had to eat in the same manner as on the previous day. Nov. 10 the wind shifted to the southwest and drove the heavy swells into submission. There were no white caps at that time—just a dead sea rolling.

"Sunday, Nov. 13, the fleet split up, each division steering for its destined port, our port being Brest. We entered the bay of Biscay, the graveyard of the Atlantic, and on the night of Nov. 14 we struck a typhoon. It was off our stern and only rolled the ship, but a bad roll is not very pleasant when one is hungry, and we sat down to eat on the deck. At 2:20 a. m. we sighted Landsend lighthouse and were soon moored to a buoy off Brest. The entrance to the Brest roads is a narrow, rocky channel, walled in by high cliffs on both sides. These cliffs are all fortified, making it almost impossible for a ship to enter in time of war. The scenery is beautiful along the channel, with here and there a little stone farm house above the base of the cliff.

Fine Harbor at Brest.

"As we entered the harbor, the great stone wall of the city could be seen and at the foot of the hill on which Brest is situated, we could see the old stone fortified castle in which Napoleon first gathered his forces together. It looked as staunch as it could have been in those days.

"The harbor is artificial, consisting of a great sea wall on two sides and 400 men o' war could ride at anchor in it at once. But among all the harbors I have seen in my service, not one can equal the harbor of Duluth for protection from heavy seas.

"The city of Brest is built on two hills and only half of it can be seen from the harbor. The buildings are all made of stone, and are from five to six stories high. Here and there, the spire of an old cathedral rises in defiance to the wind and storms which so frequently visit this coast. The streets of the city are narrow and the sidewalks about three feet wide, forcing the busy pedestrians to take to the middle of the street. All vehicles, whether motor-driven or drawn by a horse, have a horn like an automobile in America. Buggies are scarce, a two-wheeled cart or gig being used. The street cars are small, seating about ten inside and eight on top. Bar maids are the rule here and respectable young girls think no more of such occupation than an American girl would think of working in an office.

"It is customary to give a tip here for every service and 2 cents in our money is a liberal tip for the bar maids.

Aerial Bridge.

"There is an aerial bridge here, although it is not constructed quite after the style of Duluth's famous bridge. I have often heard that there are only two aerial bridges in the world, one at Duluth and one in France. If so, I have been on both of them.

"Brest has a population of about 9,500, the industries being wine-making, wooden shoe manufacturing and fishing."

HE SLEEPS IN HIS CLOTHES

British Writer, Believed to Be Surgeon, Advances Novel Idea.

New York, Dec. 13.—A London cablegram to the New York Herald says: "Why should we all undress and take off our clothes every night with the consequent redressing in the morning?"

The question is raised by "Lawrence Beesley," which is said to be the pen name of a physician who, in his capacity of ship's surgeon and also on pleasure journeys has traveled over a considerable part of the globe. He himself does not believe in undressing.

"I have lived on board ship in the tropics," he writes, "in Canada and in the desert of Arabia, and I say this, that I have been as healthy and as fit, and infinitely more satisfied with life under conditions which practically compelled me to sleep in my clothes, minus boots, coat and collar."

Dr. "Beesley" does not believe in undressing these cold winter nights and risking catching cold by getting under cold sheets, with the prospect of a bath in the morning.

"I have now quite given up undressing at night before going to sleep. Try it. Sleep in your underclothes—flannel shirt and socks—have two hot baths a week and save hours per annum and oceans of bad language. I am speaking as a medical man of twenty years' experience.

"I believe many chills are caught by the sudden change from thick, warm flannels to thin pajamas and ice cold sheets, which is the general custom in England. I am further of the opinion that it is not to the benefit of the individual to open the pores of the skin by constant bathing, or to close them suddenly by rapid changes of surface temperature in a climate such as that of England."

TWO WOMEN KILLED.

Man and Girl Badly Injured in Gasoline Explosion.

S. Louis, Mo., Dec. 13.—Two women are dead and a young girl and a man probably fatally injured as the result of a gasoline explosion in the home of Frank Waser. The dead are Mrs. Waser and her sister, Mrs. Tenney Harris, 18 years old. Waser and his wife's older sister, Miss Mary Harris, 16, are in a hospital badly burned.

Mrs. Waser was filling a gasoline stove and had neglected to turn off one of the burners, which was lighted. The husband, despite his burns, rushed to a nearby store for help, his clothing blazing as he ran.

PLANS THREE NEW PARKS

Park Board Recommends That Council Take Steps for Extending System.

Fixing of Salaries Postponed—More Exits for the Armory.

Recommendation for three new parks and playgrounds were made to the city council last night by the park board. The board also desires to make additions to other parks in the city, to widen the boulevard and to acquire property for the Snively boulevard.

A lengthy communication, accompanied by blue prints of the desired property, was sent to the council last evening, and was referred to a committee for investigation. The acquisitions are in line with the improvement and extension policy of the park board.

The board wants to secure five acres on Duluth Heights, about fifteen acres at Woodland and the block at West Third street and Tenth avenue, which has been suggested by the Fifth Ward Hillside Improvement association. They will be used as parks and playgrounds.

The park board also wants some more property at the entrance to Fairmont park, some small pieces on either side of Lincoln park, some additions at Lester park and Chester park. The committee to which the matter was referred will likely report in about two weeks.

Action upon the fixing of salaries for the coming year was postponed until next Monday night. The finance committee recommended raises of $5 a month for the firemen and $2.50 a month for the policemen.

The Federated Trades assembly sent in a communication commending the council for its action relative to securing an enabling act from the next legislature which will make it possible for the city to bond itself so as to be able to take over the electric light plant. The assembly said that they will call upon the representatives to urge this action upon them.

President Frank Jordan appointed Aldermen Shartel, Hector, Moore, Wharton and McDonnell as a legislative committee. They will work with the city attorney in drawing a draft of the proposed enabling act, and also make suggestions for other legislation which may be needed by the city.

Petitions were received for sanitary sewers in Tacony street between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-ninth avenues: Fifty-fifth alley between Elinor street and Grand avenue; Fifty-fourth alley between Ramsey and Wadena streets. The city engineer was directed to prepare estimates of the cost of a sewer system in the vicinity of Eighth street between Thirty-seventh and Forty-third avenues west.

A resolution was passed calling for a report on the feasibility of putting two more entrances and exits in the Armory. It has been claimed that there are not enough exits in case of a panic of any kind in the large hall.

* * *

Assessor Scott reported that he had awarded the contracts for 100,500 cards for his new card system to J. J. Le Tourneau for $445, and to the Christie Lithographing company for the card cases for $275. This cost was under the estimates. The cards and cases will be used in making a thorough revaluation of the city.

* * *

The Duluth Telephone company was granted an extension of time until June 1 to complete its underground work in Fifth avenue west between the harbor and First street. The avenue will be improved with a "white way."

Liquor Sold to Middies.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 13.—Announcement is made at the office of Supt. Bowyer of the naval academy that a board of officers had been appointed to investigate reports of sale of liquor to midshipmen, particularly in the case of a midshipman reported to have come out of a resort here intoxicated. The board is composed of Commander L. M. Nulton and Lieutenants F. H. Pettet and G. W. Steele.

Mississippi Is Icebound.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 13.—The Mississippi river is .4 of a foot below zero, the low water mark of 1863, which is now used by the government here as the lowest point on the river guage. The weather bureau expects the river to continue to fall.

But once before, in January, 1900, when the guage was minus 2.6 feet, has the river been as low. Ice forming on sandbars in the upper river is holding back the water.

LEHTO WILL MEET PERSON

Finnish Champion Will Take on Duluth Man After Hackenschmidt.

Says He Was Not to Blame for Cancelling Former Match.

Insinuations that Karl Lehto was afraid of Chris Person and that he ran out of a match in the Copper country, have been met by the acceptance yesterday afternoon of the challenge of Person by the young Finn.

According to the statement of Lehto yesterday, he has never been afraid of Person, and the failure of the match to go through in the Copper country was no fault of his.

After the match with George Hackenschmidt this evening Lehto will start training for the contest with Person. All along Lehto has been confident of his ability to beat Person, and now that the men are matched there will be a great amount of interest aroused in the meeting of two men who have occupied the wrestling limelight in the Northwest for the past year.

Lehto yesterday voluntarily offered to wrestle Person. Personally Lehto has never objected to a meeting with Person, for he is confident of his ability to beat the Duluth grappler. He wanted to wrestle in the Copper country and was ready to go on, and it was no fault of his that the match was called off.

Lehto will rest for a few days after the match this evening and will then wrestle enough to keep in good condition for the Person match. He is in the best shape of his career right at the present time, having trained conscientiously for Hackenschmidt. Therefore he will merely have to keep in condition for the Person go.

The following telegram from Jack Herman, one of the best known athletic promoters in the country, a man who has established a name for fairness in every part of the country, is ample unto itself and needs no further comment:

"Sporting Editor, Herald,
"Duluth, Minn.:

"Deny emphatically for me any report of fake matches. Since Zbyszko has been in America under my direction and I believe since he has been wrestling at any time, he has never been party to any pre-arranged affair in his matches nor has he been accused of such tactics, and he never will be, while under my management. The very fact of his continued success on the mat should be convincing proof of his honesty of purpose in seeking continued recognition as the world's leading challenger for the championship now held by Gotch.

"No man has ever attained the proud position Zbyszko now holds in sport, without having his enemies and detractors and Zbyszko has never failed to develop a few of both. Many thanks for your kindness in informing me promptly of a report which undenied might have worked me considerable injury. "J. H. HERMAN."

FAST FIGHT IN PEORIA GOES TEN ROUNDS TO DRAW.

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 13.—Kid Farmer of Peoria and Harry Donahue of Pekin, Ill., fought ten fast rounds to a draw last night before the Coast Athletic club. Both pressed the game from start to finish, but neither could gain any material advantage. The fight was one of the fiercest and fastest seen in Peoria this season.

Minnesota May Secure Return of Training Table—Major League Meetings—A Letter From the Orator—Wolgast Replies to Critics.

(BY BRUCE.)

THERE IS SOME FAINT RAY OF hope in the demand of the students of the University of Minnesota for the return of the training table. Glancing behind the hedge fence of the first hue and outcry for the proper diet for football men, one may see the eventful loop for the return of Michigan to the conference fold.

One of the many very good reasons why Michigan left the somewhat narrow minded conference, was because of the insistence upon the abolition of the training table. As Michigan has always had a very highly paid trainer, and this man presumably believed in earning his salary by having the members of the squad in the very best of condition, Keene Fitzpatrick, retired trainer of Michigan and one of the very best men in this country, objected strenuously to the cutting out of the training table, and in this very wise objection he was sustained by the students and athletic council of the school.

The conference wants Michigan back in the fold. There are a few men among even the college professors who are wise enough to see that the conference is going to be weakened without Michigan, and that football generally is going to be made more uninteresting in the West without the annual Michigan-Minnesota game, which same, boys, has been the big roundup of the West, these few years back.

At last the students of Minnesota have raised a kick and it is only to be hoped that the kick will be long enough and hard enough to reach the result the students desire. Perhaps Michigan will not come back. The athletic authorities have expressed no desire to join the body they left of their own sweet will; but with the ban on the training table removed, thus conceding something to the viewpoint of Michigan, there is the chance that the differences between the Wolverines and the little professors might be patched up.

The legitimate field of Michigan is naturally in the West, though there are reasons to believe the Wolverines will have little trouble scheduling good games in the East. However, the fact remains that a Western team should play games with teams in its own territory, and this Michigan might be glad to do—when the leaders of the college conference recover their sanity.

What an Expert Says Regarding a Certain Match.

HERE IS WHAT EDDIE SMITH, the sporting editor of the Chicago American, one of the big referees of the country and an expert on wrestling, has to say on the Hackenschmidt-Westergaard wrestling match, which was decided in Chicago last week:

"The Russian Lion didn't have to uncover more than his massive shape and about three tricks last night to dump Jess Westergaard, the big Iowa Swede, into what should go down in wrestling history as an entirely honorable defeat. The battle waged for 1 hour and 13 minutes before Hackenschmidt was given the verdict.

"It went that long because Westergaard put up about the grandest article of defensive work ever seen on a mat here, and fully duplicated his brilliant work against Zbyszko last season in the bout in which he was so badly hurt, and all but put out of business entirely. But for the Iowan's marvelous gameness and stamina, 'Hack' would have let the crowd get away at least a half hour earlier than he did. The 'Lion' was the aggressor almost constantly, and only now and then took the under position for the purpose of husbanding his own strength a bit and to wipe his streaming face on the canvas of the mat. This done he would resume the offensive and set even a harder pace than before.

"The first bout went 1 hour and 2 minutes odd, and was one of the most vigorous battles ever decided in the coliseum ring, the crowd being kept in a tumult almost from the very start. Not in months have we seen a couple of heavyweights who set and then maintained such a savage clip for sixty minutes as this pair. It was a case of dash and bore in on both sides right from the call of time, and although 'Hack' never was in danger and as a matter of fact, was never to one shoulder, Westergaard's work was so brilliant and he attacked so consistently and with such seeming effect that the crowd fairly screamed its approval of his work."

Two Majors Will Meet During the Present Week.

FROM THE ADVANCE DOPE THAT has been gathered by the baseball writers of the country, there will be little of the excitement that threatened a real live baseball war at the meeting of the National league a year ago. The dope says an amendment to the constitution which will make the office of president tenable for three years and a lot of trades among the magnates.

There seems to be the opinion that Thomas Lynch, once known as the king of umpires, and now president of the National league, will be re-elected and his term made for three years, instead of the customary term of one year that the older league has found it very hard to get away from.

Not since the halcyon days of Uncle Nick Young, who was in a way the Ban Johnson of his time, only a milder sort of perennial ruler, has the National seen fit to cling with loving kindness to one man. Harry Pulliam stayed in office some few terms, 'tis true, but poor Pulliam's life was made such a burden that many are inclined to believe that is was the petty details of small warfare that drove him to a suicide's grave.

How well has the American league prospered under the rigid rule of Ban Johnson! And how well, too, have the magnates of the league appreciated the ability and baseball brains of Ban. He receives something like $25,000 per merry annum and has the presidency for life.

Prosperity and success ever did have a long and eager line of followers. It may be that the directors of the older organization are going to take the success of the American league to heart, the annual petty politics regarding the election of a president, and make Tom Lynch head of the league for the next three years. Many baseball followers are of the opinion that this move will give the magnates more time to think of the real needs of the league, as in the past the politics of baseball has exacted much valuable time of the club owners.

It does not look at this time as if John M. Ward will try to break into the league politics, and with the best men behind the re-election of Lynch, baseball men hope there will be smooth sailing at the meeting Tuesday.

The American leaguers will hold forth Wednesday. Both of the league meetings will be held in New York, and for the time being that city can imagine that it is on a par with Chicago, which is the best baseball center in the country.

A Letter From the Famed Irish Orator.

FROM CLEVELAND DARBY O'Brien, the celebrated wit and poet and the leader of the White Sox brigade, writes that things are looking lovely. As to the signing of players, the harp is rather quiet, but drops the information that at the present time he has an option upon several very good men. "After the holidays we are going to get busy and get together the best ball team that has represented Duluth for a long time," states the orator. Here is hoping that the words of the genial soul are borne out. We want one, deed we do, as many of us hope that whatever league this town will be in, it will be a faster league than the Minny of last season, and that is not meant in the least to convey the impression that the Minnesota-Wisconsin league was not fast last year.

If given a free hand there is little doubt but that Darby can get the men. At the close of the present season we had the nucleus of a very strong team. There should be changes and there no doubt will be. As yet we do not know what changes in the local baseball map the coming season will bring forth. We are hoping for the best and are also believing that the White Sox are going to be strong, no matter what league they are herded in.

Adolph Wolgast Replies To Cries of the Critics.

"STUNG," SAYS WOLGAST—WAIT A minute—"stung to the last degree by my critics, I will now come forth and say a few words," and he does. He says he will fight and that Moran will be the first boy he will encounter.

Many are all-fired glad that the German youth is going to tackle some of the best of the boys of the class. If confessed confidence is an asset for a fighter, this man from the wilds of Cadillac has the so-called brain hop on the rest of the bunch.

Did you ever see a champion who was modest; if you have heard of one, report him to the vaudeville people, for there are none at the present time in captivity.

Wolgast only thinks that he could have beaten Nelson, had he been in Moran's shoes, in five rounds, and that he will have little trouble with the Briton when they tie up. There are a lot of people who do not share the confidence of the good citizen of Cadillac; yet the difference of opinion stuff makes the houses large.

NELSON'S MASTER IS AFTER AD WOLGAST

OWEN MORAN.

Owen Moran, the conquerer of "Bat" Nelson, is an Englishman and his ambition is to take the lightweight title back to England. Moran knocked out the Dane in the eleventh round of what was scheduled to be a 20-round contest at San Francisco. Moran is now in the East filling some theatrical engagement. He has posted a forfeit to meet Ad. Wolgast for the championship title. Moran is well known in America. He has fought a great many battles and among the men he has met are Attell and Tommy Murphy.

PAT POWERS LOSES HIS GRIP

President of Eastern League for Eighteen Years Succeeded By Barrows.

New York, Dec. 13.—The Eastern league of professional baseball clubs met in annual session yesterday at the Hotel Victoria, ousted "Pat" Powers of Jersey City from the presidency which he had held for eighteen years, and elected Edward G. Barrow of Toronto, recently manager of the Montreal club, to the position.

For the first time in the history of the Eastern league, its session was attended and closely watched by the club owners of the two major leagues. The national agreement expires with the close of the next season and there is expectation that the Eastern, now in a prosperous condition, will demand recognition as a major league, ranking with the American and National.

LYNCH WILL HOLD OFFICE

President of National League Not Likely to Be Ousted This Year.

Magnates of Three Leagues in New York for Annual Meetings.

New York, Dec. 13.—While the Eastern league was finishing up its routine business today the magnates of the National baseball league were assembling for their annual meeting. President John T. Brush of the New York club was the only club president who was not expected to attend the meeting of the older major organization, but other officials of the club were on hand to look after the interests of the organization. The question of the league presidency this year as last, is the primary one for the magnates to settle. No such long-drawn-out combat as that of last year is looked for, however. While it was admitted that opposition to President Thomas J. Lynch of New Britain, might develop, there seemed little doubt before the meeting opened today that he would be chosen to succeed himself.

Lynch Sure of Election.

He was apparently assured of the votes of the New York, Pittsburg, Cincinnati and Boston clubs, with that of Philadelphia a probability. The support of four clubs would suffice for his retention, as the amended constitution of the league provides that in the case of a deadlock the incumbent holds over.

Talk in connection with all kinds of proposed deals for players was flying about today, but up to the time for the magnates to assemble there were no definite announcements in this connection. While the National league representatives were gathing a number of American league men arriving for the American league's annual meeting tomorrow, joined the big company of baseballists now in the city.

Players Are Sold.

In addition to the club owners, a number of prominent National league managers are on the ground, among them Clarke of Pittsburg, Bresnahan of St. Louis and Lake of Boston. Bresnahan sold Pitchers Johnny Lush and Bob Harmon and Catcher Phelps to the Toronto club late last night and will, it is said, get rid of Victor Willis before the meeting ends.

The Waterbury, Conn., league and Troy, N. Y., clubs, which are on the market, have not as yet been sold. It is understood Jesse Tannehill will buy the Waterbury club, while it is known that Charles Dooley and Larry Shafley have an option on the Troy club. John McMahon, who, in his day was one of the greatest pitchers in the National league, is here to apply to President Lynch for a place on the staff of umpires.

CUPID PINS FRANK GOTCH.

Humboldt, Iowa, Dec. 13.—Frank Gotch, champion wrestler of the world, is going to get married. This has been hearlded abroad many times before, but this time, according to local parties, who claim to know, an actual date for the wedding has been named, together with the name of the bride, who will be Miss Gladys Oestrich of Humboldt, daughter of R. F. Oestrich, a capitalist and highly respected financier. The date of the wedding will be Jan. 11, 1911. Only relatives and immediate friends will witness the ceremony.

BOWLERS WILL MEET IN ST. PAUL

Preparations for Annual Tourney of International Bowling Association.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 13.—Preparations are going ahead for the International Bowling association tournament to be held in St. Paul Feb. 11 to 23. The growth of the organization in the last year assures the attendance of at least 50 per cent more teams than were present and participated in the last "Looie" meeting.

If certain suggestions that have been made are carried out there will be some desirable prizes for women in this tournament. Bowling is growing more popular every day with the fair sex, and reports received by R. F. Malone, president of the organization, show that the number of women bowlers in the International's territory is fast increasing.

Within the last few weeks St Paul women, well known in the city's social circles, have organized a Flower league. The league gets its name from each club being named after a flower. This league's games, however, are rolled under the rules of the American Bowling Congress, but the members are eligible to membership in the International as well. Thus far in the season the contest has been very close between the Morning Glories and the Sun Flowers. The other teams, named according to their standing as last published are Forget-Me-Nots, Nasturtiums, Daisies, Golden Rods, Dahlias and Moccasins. Prominent in the affairs of the league are Mesdames A. O. Wilson, G. C. Knispel, Nicholas Drexel, Arthur Martin and William S. Wright and Misses Leitner and Kiess. Mrs. Wilson's high score of 171 is considered excellent for a woman who has been playing the game no longer than one.

St. Paul has 2,500 bowlers, and as a center for this great winter sport is second only to one or two other cities, each of which has a larger population than the Minnesota capital. Most of these bowlers are members of the International and will help in making the coming tournament the most successful ever held. The Minneapolis bowlers will co-operate with St. Paul in the arrangements. It is assured that there will be teams here from Chicago and other Illinois cities; Milwaukee, Superior and other Wisconsin bowling centers; Indianapolis and cities in Indiana; Dayton, Ohio, and cities in the East; Vancouver, Winnipeg and other Canadian cities; Duluth and the northern part of Minnesota; Fargo, Grand Forks and the cities of North Dakota where bowling is popular; Aberdeen and Watertown, S. D.; Des Moines, Sioux City, Dubuque, Waterloo and Marshall, Iowa; Omaha, St. Joseph, Kansas City, Council Bluffs and St. Louis. Cities and towns adjacent to those mentioned are expected to be well represented.

The International Bowling association was organized Jan. 17, 1909, there being a strong demand for a permanent and independent organization in the portions of the United States and Canada between the Great Lakes and the Rocky mountains.

The association now consists of more than twenty leagues, each having six to thirty clubs, and each club having five men, which gives an idea of the number of persons who will enter the tournament.

DULUTH WINS ANOTHER GAME

Detroit Defeated By Score of 3 to 2 in Well-Played Contest.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth Northern hockey team last night again defeated the Detroit hockey players, the second game going to the visitors by the score of 3 to 2. The contest was close and well contested all the way from whistle to whistle, the aggressiveness of the Duluth boys being the feature of the game.

Winters and Fenton proved the bright particular stars of the visiting aggregation. The dashing, aggressive play of Winters, who outclasses any player ever seen in a Detroit rink, and the remarkable goal guarding of Fenton, featured the play of the Northerners. By his speed and cleverness Winters eluded the defense of the local team time after time.

Fenton's goal guarding was the best ever seen on a Detroit rink. He blocked with remarkable intuition as to where the local shooters sent the puck, and several times spoiled almost certain scores for the locals by blocking with body and arms.

Cummings at cover point also played a fast and consistent game for the visitors. Cummings is one of the hardest men to stop who has played in Detroit for a number of seasons. The visitors made a good impression here, as they are not only very strong, but also have the possibilities of developing a very much stronger team.

The lineup:

Duluth.	Position.	Detroit.
Fenton	g	Kline
Winters	p	Ross
Cummings	c.p	Billings
McKenzie	l.w	Mitchell
Steinbeck	r	Black
Jones	c	Davis
Bartlett	r.w	Pietti

Summary: Goals—Jones (2), Cummings, Pietti, Black. Penalties—Mitchell (2), Bartlett (2), McKenzie, Cummings. Stops—Fenton (7), Kline (7). Referee—Foley. Umpire—Ferrill. Timekeeper—Neilly. Time of periods—20 minutes.

COACH STAGG A STANDPATTER

Midway Coach Would Give Present Football Rules Another Year's Trial.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago has joined the "standpatters." He is holding out for a continuation of the "safe and sane" football rules, and will urge another trial for the 1910 statutes at the coming meeting of the national intercollegiate experts.

The Maroon coach looks for a comparatively calm football winter, inasmuch as the college authorities seem satisfied with the gain in safety achieved by the rules during the past year. He will in all probability advocate the retention of the majority of the newer features of the game at the meeting of the Intercollegiate Athletic association of the United States to be held Dec. 29 in New York.

As a member of the old rules committee and a permanent member of the changing committee of fourteen, Coach Stagg's opinions should count heavily for the West. That his ideas and those of the conference district generally will do much to keep the anti-injury rules in the statute book is the belief at the Midway.

PLAY BEGINS IN HERALD EVENT

West Wins From McGilvray and Catterson Defeats Herald Rink.

Play for The Duluth Herald trophy was begun last night at the curling club. Two match games were played during the evening, as well as a number of practice games. For so early in the season the play was unusually good.

Tom McGilvray's rink was defeated by C. F. West's quartet, the score being 14 to 9 in favor of "Tom's" opponents. The West rink worked hard for victory, the enthusiastic sweeping of Frank Crassweller having much to do with the victory thing. "Collie" Naughton also worked industriously with the sweep. West's rink showed good form, and this contest proved one of the best contested and most exciting played at the rink since curling has begun the present season.

"Doc" Catterson's rink defeated the Herald rink by the score of 10 to 6. Play in this contest was close all the way and it was an interesting contest up to the last head.

Curling is on with mid season enthusiasm and the members of the club have started what looks like the best season in the history of the sport, here at the Head of the Lakes. There was a good "gallery" last night, and enthusiasm over the two regular match games ran high.

RUSSIAN LION AT THE LYCEUM

George Hackenschmidt Will Meet Karl Lehto in Finish Match.

George Hackenschmidt, the famous "Russian Lion," will make his first appearance in this part of the country this evening, meeting Karl Lehto, the young Finnish champion, in a finish match at the Lyceum theater.

Hackenschmidt comes to Duluth with the prestige of a wonderful career behind him. His one object in coming to this country, is a match with Frank A. Gotch, the only man in the world who has ever gained a decision over the wonderful Russian.

The wrestling of the big Russian has proved a sensation wherever he has appeared. He is faster, according to newspaper accounts of his work, than he was when he wrestled the famous contest with Gotch. Hackenschmidt has learned a lot about catch as catch can since the memorable contest with Gotch, and should he meet the American the present season a contest that will be the greatest struggle between modern athletes, should result.

While the famous Russian Lion is ntaurally the star attraction of the big bill, two other bouts will be staged that should prove interesting. Person will meet Ole Johnson, the big heavyweight from across the bay, and Mauritz Harris, who has held the lightweight championship of the Head of the Lakes for a number of years, will meet Joe Fish, the crack little wrestler from this city.

Indications point to a large attendance from out of town, as there has been a brisk demand for tickets. The first preliminary will start at 8:30.

Shortly after his appearance in Duluth Hackenschmidt will meet Henry Ordemann of Minneapolis, generally recognized as the American champion, in a match which will probably result in the elimination of Ordemann from the list of possibilities for the world's title.

At the present time Hackenscmidt is the logical champion, until Gotch comes out of retirement. Hackenschmidt is the champion wrestler of Europe, and has thrown the greatest the Old World has produced.

PHIL BROCK WINS EASILY FROM GOODMAN.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 13.—Phil Brook of Cleveland had an easy victory over Danny Goodman of Chicago in a ten-round bout here last night. Goodman was clearly outclassed, but covered so well that Brock was not able to hurt him.

John White of Chicago nearly knocked out Tommy Kilbane of Cleveland in the tenth round of the semi-final.

Tommy Gavigan of Cleveland won over Rube Mace of Detroit in five rounds.

PICTURES FAVOR NELSON.

Fight Films Show Referee Counted Only Nine Over Battler.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 13.—Moving pictures of the recent fight between Owen Moran and Battling Nelson will not settle the argument as to whether or not the Dane was counted out. Nelson insists he was not, and will make it part of his stock in trade that he was watching the count and could have been on his feet.

It doesn't matter that every newspaper critic at the ringside and others who were following closely what was happening heard Referee Benny Selig say "Nine; you're out," the Dane will stand by his guns. It was hoped the pictures themselves would settle the controversy; that they would show the referee tolling off the count. The first exhibition of the pictures in California was held today, and still the controversy can go ahead.

"When you come to that eleventh round," shouted Jimmy Coffroth to the operator, "turn slowly, so we can watch for a knockout."

So slowly that it was possible to watch everything that happened, the last round was reeled off. As Nelson went down the last time a small group of spectators counted with Selig, timing themselves with a wave of the referee's arm.

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine," that was all there was to it. Testify as reporters can, that Selig went the full limit, the moving pictures show his arm went back and forth only nine times. For some reason Selig must have dropped his hand to his side when he had counted the ninth second, and then with no motion to indicate what was happening, shouted in the Dane's ear, "You're out!"

It gives Nelson a chance to argue, and he will be heard from one ocean to the other.

The films are excellent and have plenty of action with a spectacular ending. The lack of sun the day of the bout has produced pictures that are without the shadows that work injury to most affairs of this kind, and the figures are unusually distinct.

Adams Will Bowl.

Tonight at the Grand alleys the bowling season of the Adams Bowling league will be formally inaugurated. The secretary's team will play the treasurer's. A good contest is expected.

You Must Read This If You Want the Benefit.

How to Get Rid of Your Constipation---Trial Free

It is too long a story to tell of all the different methods resorted to for the cure of constipation, ranging, as they do, from massage to stomach pads and from simple salts to powerful cathartics. It is only after a person has tried these makeshift methods that he begins to realize how futile they are.

Waste no further time on them but try a scientific preparation, one that has some basis in reason and fact, and then watch results. The remedy for the intelligent, who are striving for permanent not temporary results, and do not want their intestines nearly strangled by the average violent cathartic, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which has been on the market for so many years that its stability is assured.

Any druggist will sell you a bottle—it is a liquid remedy and not a pill—at fifty cents and one dollar, but if you hesitate about buying, even in spite of numberless testimonials, then write Dr. Caldwell for a free sample bottle, which he will gladly send you on receipt of your name and address. Thousands of persons have recovered the perfect use of their stomach and bowel muscles by first being introduced to Syrup Pepsin in the form of a free sample bottle, sent direct to the home. Mr. J. A. Vernon of Oklahoma City, and Mrs. S. E. Snyder of Canton, Ill., both used it for stubborn constipation of many years' standing and now publicly report cures. You will never find anything better for constipation, liver trouble, sick headache, biliousness, indigestion and similar complaints.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

RANGE JUDGES MEET WEDNESDAY

Men Who Preside Over Petty Courts Want a Larger Field.

Eveleth, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Interest centers about the meeting of the Range Association of Municipal Judges to be held here tomorrow in the office of Judge Prince, the president.

Among the members of the organization expected to be present are Judge E. M. Freeman of Chisholm; Judge T. Carey of Virginia; Judge Jury of Ely; Judge Thomas M. Brady of Hibbing; Judge Vivian Prince of Eveleth; Judge Sawyer of Tower.

A report from the committee that is drafting a bill to increase the jurisdiction of state municipal courts from $500 to $1,000, is expected, as the meeting is also to decide whether it would be advisable to send a committee to St. Paul next month to confer with the judiciary committee of the state legislature so as to secure favorable action on the bill.

The establishment of a range juvenile court will also be among the prominent subjects discussed, as much interest is being taken in that proposition by the judges and residents of the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges.

RENIELLE SENT TO REFORMATORY

Man Who Caused Death of John Anderson of Keewatin Gets Off Easily.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Heeding the request of the jury for clemency in the case of Joe Renielle convicted of manslaughter in causing the death of John Anderson of Keewatin, Judge Stanton gave the convicted young man a reformatory sentence.

Renielli disputed with John Anderson and a friend of the latter named Johnson over the right-of-way along a Keewatin sidewalk and in the mixup Renielle pulled a gun and shot at Johnson hitting and fatally wounding Anderson. The youth of Renielle, who is only 19, combined with the showing at the trial that all were more or less intoxicated, furnished the extenuating circumstances that brought about a reformatory sentence.

Liquor Law Violation Trials.

Cases as announced in the order in which they will be moved by the state for trial include several violations of the liquor law, the Merrilli assault case, and the Nobles poisoning cases. The number of witnesses in the Nobles case will be large and some sensational developments are promised by County Attorney Price, it is understood.

Before leaving Grand Rapids, Judge McClenahan ordered certain cases resubmitted to the next grand jury, including the Kiley assault case. The defendant was bound over to the last grand jury on a charge of assault with intent to kill made by J. S. Cole, a real estate dealer here.

SHELL LAKE MAN LOSES HIS LIFE

George Reid, Rainy Lake Brakeman, Is Killed in Virginia Yards.

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—George S. Reid, a brakeman on the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad, was run over by the cars while switching in the local yards yesterday, and killed. He was pushed fifteen feet along the rail before the wheels finally ran over him, crushing his body across the abdomen. Reid was taken to the hospital. He lived about one and one-half hours after the accident, during which time he remained conscious with the exception of about ten minutes before he died, and was able to converse with friends and tell them how the accident happened.

Reid was about 23 years of age, single, and had been employed by the railroad company here the past year and a half. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, the local lodge taking charge of the remains. His father, Hugh Reid, is employed here by the Duluth & Rainy Lake company, and the family home is at Shell Lake, Wis., where the body was shipped today for burial. Besides the father, the deceased leaves a mother and one brother, the latter two arriving from Shell Lake last night to accompany the remains home. Joseph O'Leary, an uncle, and Jack and Ray O'Leary, cousins of young Reid, and William Hanstock and J. H. Condon, representing the railroad boys here, also accompanied the body to Shell Lake. Young Reid was popular among his many acquaintances.

HIBBING PUPILS PLAN PROGRAMS

Children Will Have Closing Exercises in Keeping With the Day.

Hibbing, Minn., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hibibng high will have a fine program at the close of the term on Dec. 16. Probably the most elaborate work attempted will be by the two literary societies of the high. The Alexander Literary society, named after the principal of the school professor, Alexander, will have a well assorted program. The first item will be called for about 2 o'clock, and it will probably be two hours later before the last vote of thanks is passed. Music, debates, literary numbers, speeches and stories will take the bulk of the time, and some very good numbers are promised. Especially in the musical portion will the work be of a high standard, as the many members are greatly gifted both in the matter of voice and instrumental genius.

More than 400 will take part in the Christmas exercises at the Jefferson building Dec. 16 at 2 o'clock. The children vary in ages from 8 to 12 years. Among the most important numbers on the program are Dicken's "Christmas Carol" and they range from "Luther Christmas Carol" to James Whitcombe Riley and Eugene Field.

The program of exercices in the Washington building cover the work of the term completed. Story, song and poem will be given by the tots, who range in ages from 5 to 9 years. Every room in the building will have a Christmas tree, and many pretty presents have been prepared for the great day, both the presents and the decorations having been made by the children themselves. More than 650 children and twenty teachers will take part in the program at this school. Part of the work will be done in the class rooms, but later the whole of the lower floor scholars will combine and have thier dancing and childish games together, the aim in this case being to inculcate the principle of unity into the children's minds. In the upper floors lack of space prevents this and and the classes will remain in their respective rooms.

The Washington school will close for the term Friday following the closing exercises held in the building from 1:30 until 2:30.

The boys of the Gopher Literary society will put on a varied program, but the chief items will be the debates and introductory speeches. Their program will be what they term a "magazine program," and will contain some very fine numbers, both in speeches and songs. The work of the society has been steadily improving ever since it was originated by Principal Alexander.

MAN WHO HELPED MINNESOTA IS DEAD

Dr. J. M. Wheat, Who Prevented Loss of Mineral Lands, Passes Away.

Dr. J. M. Wheat, well known as a former member of both houses of the Minnesota legislature, died at Redlands, Cal., Nov. 27. Word of his death has just been received by friends. Dr. Wheat was a member of the Minnesota house of representatives from 1875 to 1877, and for the following ten years was a member of the state senate. While a member of the latter body, Dr. Wheat introduced and secured the passage of a bill forbidding the sale of many million acres of state lands. At that time these lands were being offered for sale at $2 or $3 an acre. Dr. Wheat's measure set a minimum value of $6 on them, and in the northern section, where mineral had been discovered, and in general whenever mineral might be discovered the sale of the lands was prohibited.

Saved St. Louis County Lands.

This led first to the preservation of the lands in the northern part of St. Louis and Crow Wing counties, from which the state today receives a large revenue in leases, and also of the swamp lands now drained and rendered valuable or undrained but still priceless because of underlying mineral deposits. The result was an accumulation of a permanent trust fund, which will soon be larger than that of any other state in the Union, and is at present nearly $25,000,000.

Dr. Wheat went to Redlands in 1887 and became prominently identified with the city's advancement. He was secretary of the city board of health until a short time before his death.

Dr. Wheat is survived by his wife, who is a native of this state, and by two children.

Simmons Gets Verdict.

London, Dec. 13.—P. C. Simmons today was awarded the sum of $25,000 damages in the action which he instituted against the Daily Chronicle, alleging that false statements made by the defendant paper caused his defeat in the election of last January.

Simmons was the Unionist candidate for St. George's division of Tower Hamlets.

Immediately preceding the polling the Chronicle charged that the candidate had helped to throw 3,000 men out of employment and further that on three occasions he had voted against a proposition to feed poor children by the use of public funds.

FEAGLE IS PUT ON GRILL AGAIN

Father of Alleged Murderer of Four People Defends Him.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 13.—John Feagle, held by the Kansas City, Kan., police as a suspect for the murder of Mrs. Emeline Bernhardt, her son George, Thomas Morgan and James Graves, was subjected to another careful examination by the chief of police and his assistants today. The prisoner said nothing that added materially to his statements of yesterday, the officers said.

The sheriff of Johnson county, Kansas, said this morning that he was trying to find a farmhand who worked for the Bernhardts about six weeks ago. The sheriff said George Bernhardt had expressed himself as being afraid of this man.

Feagle's wife and his father, J. B. Feagle, have come to his aid. The elder Feagle said his son had at times shown signs of insanity. He said the stains of clothing found in his son's home were made by red paint.

WHITE COMES TOO LATE TO SWEAR

May Let Harlan Preside Over Supreme Court Until After Recess.

Washington, Dec. 13.—To the disappointment of a gathering that crowded the supreme court of the United States to its capacity, Justice Edward Douglass White did not take the oath of office today as chief justice of the United States supreme court.

For one thing, the justice was late. The court, led by Presiding Justice Harlan, had taken its place on the bench before Justice White arrived at the capitol.

It is understood that Justice White did not intend to take the oath today and that it is his intention to pay Justice Harlan, the senior member of the court, a delicate compliment by permitting him to preside over the court, possibly until after the holiday recess, which will end Jan. 3.

RAISE PENSIONS AUTOMATICALLY

Bill Presented in the House Favors Men Who Served Ninety Days.

Washington, Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A bill of the utmost interest to the pensioners of the United States who served either sixty days in the Mexican war or ninety days in the Civil war has been introduced by Representative Sulloway and is to be passed at this session of congress. The bill provides that all persons who served sixty days in Mexican or ninety days in Civil war, who have reached the age of 62 years, shall have a pension of $15 per month; those 65 years old, $20 per month; those 70 years old, $30 per month; and those 75 years old or over, $40 per month, such pension to commence from the date of the filing of applications.

Story Was Incorrect.

London, Dec. 13.—A jury in the king's bench division today awarded Miss Alexandra Louvima Knollys, daughter of Lord Knollys, King George's private secretary, damages in the suit of $2,500 for libel which she brought against the periodical John Bull for having published a report that the complainant had eloped with an English army officer. Horatio W. Bottomley, a member of the house of commons, who controls the paper, expressed to the court sincere regret that the groundless statement had been printed.

Health and Beauty Secrets

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

V. J.: To keep the scalp clean, sweet and healthful it is necessary for many to shampoo once a week regularly. If your head is inclined to be oily or if you encounter much flying dust, you should shampoo weekly. Soaps make the hair dry, hard and brittle—and cause streaks; don't use them, no matter how delicately perfumed or attractively colored. You can depend always upon canthrox thoroughly cleansing your hair and scalp, removing all dandruff, oil and dust. It makes an abundance of searching yet bland lather. Dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water, pour a little on the head at a time, rub as you would with any shampoo; then rinse well. Your hair will dry quickly and evenly, so that it is easy to do up, and it will be so light, bright and fluffy that it will seem as if you have twice as much as before your shampoo.

Mrs. X.: It is true your husband took you "for better or for worse," but I do not blame him for urging you to do something for your falling hair, for a partly bald woman is about the most unattractive sight I can imagine. You can postpone the "for worse" many years if you will. The hair responds quickly to proper treatment. Use canthrox for shampooing and rub into the scalp and hair roots twice a week a quinine tonic, which you can make at home at little cost as follows: Get from your druggist one ounce of quinzoin, dissolve it in one-half pint of alcohol, then add one-half pint of water, and shake well. This inexpensive tonic feeds the follicles and gives the hair new strength and life. It prevents dandruff and itching scalp, and keeps the hair clean, soft and silky. Quinzoin will not change the color of the hair but it will heighten the natural color and give it lustre. It will stop your hair falling out when you comb it and will tend to make it grow in thick and long.

Blanche L.: To be sure, you are likely to get fatter during the winter months unless you take proper steps to prevent the accumulation of excess flesh. In fact, you are even now entirely too stout for one of your height. Get from your drug store four ounces of parnotis and dissolve it in 1½ pints of hot water. Then take a tablespoonful before each meal. This remedy is harmless and a rapid flesh reducer that will not make it necessary for you to half starve yourself to keep from getting too fat.

L. T.: No person's eyes will remain clear and bright under all conditions. If yours are inclined to become dull, expressionless, red and inflamed when exposed to sun, dust or wind, you can easily remove the trouble by dropping one or two drops of crystos eye tonic in each eye. Make this tonic yourself. Just get an ounce of crystos from your druggist and dissolve it in a pint of warm water. That is all there is to this simple remedy, but it is so good that many have been able to dispense with spectacles after using it for a month or two.

B. W.: Red hairs are no more disfiguring on a woman's face than hairs of any other color. I think you are too sensitive, but you can easily get rid of that downy growth on your face and forearms if you wish. Get from your druggist one ounce of delatone, make a paste by mixing a little of the powder with a little water, and apply to the surface from which you wish to remove the hairs, allow to remain two or three minutes; then wipe off the paste and wash thoroughly with warm water. This treatment will not injure the skin and can be repeated if the hairs should return. Two or three applications will kill the hair follicles for good. Your druggist will charge you a dollar for one ounce of delatone, but I know of nothing else so good. It certainly is much cheaper and less painful than electrolysis.

Miss Patsy: You ask for some complexion beautifier more refined than powder. Try this: Dissolve four ounces of spurmax in a half-pine of hot water, add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, shake well and let cool. Apply to the face, neck and forearms with the palm of the hand and rub gently until dry. Spurmax face wash cools, freshens and whitens the skin, does not "shine" or streak with perspiration, and "holds" all day. It prevents freckles, tan, redness and roughness. You will be delighted with its delicate daintiness, I know.

R. F. G.: You can make a face cream without grease that will remove blackheads and cure open pores if you will get from your druggist one ounce of almozoin, dissolve it in one-half pint cold water, add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, stir well and let stand over night. Massage with this almozoin cream jelly nightly and it will prevent or arrest wrinkles, and soften and embellish the skin, for it carries into the cuticle and pores the glow of health and gives that transparency and satiny feel so much desired. It quickly corrects a greasy, coarse skin, effectually braces it and stimulates it to healthy action.

Nancy: You cannot expect to have a smooth, rosy complexion as long as your blood is full of imprities from a deranged liver, which causes those ugly red pimples on your face. What you need is a good, cleansing, system tonic that will purify your blood and enable you to cultivate good looks. Get an ounce of kardene from any drug store; dissolve it in one-half pint alcohol, adding one-half cup sugar, then enough hot water to make a full quart. Take a tablespoonful before each meal and in a short time this good, old-fashioned tonic will clear up your skin of sallowness, give you a good appetite and make you feel better and more energetic. It will really improve your looks a great deal and do you a world of good.

Reason Ultimately Rules!

Be it known that "caffeine"—the drug in coffee—is a poison that works directly on nerves, stomach and heart.

It is hardly as quick in destruction as whiskey, but in time, quite as certain.

Our duty ends with telling the facts. Individuals are, of course, free to follow their own inclination. They can continue the drug and pay the cost in physical suffering or quit and return to comfortable health, provided the disease (stomach, bowels, kidneys, nerves or heart) has not become chronic.

It is our work to narrate the facts and offer an easy way to slip off the coffee habit and not feel it.

If a good, hot, well-made cup of Postum is served instead of the coffee, it furnishes the deep seal brown beverage which turns to a rich golden brown when cream is added and all the comfort of the morning cup is there, with this increased and never-to-be- forgotten advantage.

The drug-poison and its effect on stomach, nerves, bowls and heart is gone. In its place day by day can be plainly seen the effects of the change. The killing work of the drug has been stopped, Nature begins to repair, and is helped tremendously by supplying the needed elements Dame Nature requires to do her rebuilding.

These elements are in Postum. It is not necessary to take anyone's word for it. Try it yourself. Quit the coffee 10 days. Use Postum (well made according to easy directions on package). Then at the end of the ten days take account of your gain toward health. If it shows well (and it will) keep on the good comfortable road.

There's no joy on earth equal to the joy (24 hours in the day) of perfect health. If you have been a coffee victim, you'll appreciate it. Besides, health gives you power to make money, and money rightly used brings comfort.

Wake Up!

RESULTS IN COLORADO

Commission Plan Is Working Successfully in Grand Junction.

"Government as Good as Citizenship," Says Mayor Todd.

"Through the direct legislation and recall, the people have the power to control the affairs of the city. The government of the city will now be just as good as the citizenship and no better," is the way Thomas M. Todd, mayor of Grand Junction, Colo., puts his views on the commission form of government.

Grand Junction is a city of about 9,000 people and the first election under the commission plan was held there Nov. 2, 1909. All the different charters in effect in cities having the commission form of government at that time were taken, and a charter was drafted combining what the citizens of Grand Junction considered the best features of all, with some new ideas of their own. The charter is extremely liberal along municipal ownership lines.

In response to The Herald's question as to the reason for the change in Grand Junction, Mayor Todd writes: "We are a progressive people and want the best. The granting of some of the franchises here didn't look good and we concluded we would ma.... our own affairs."

"Quick action and economy are the features of the new plan," Mayor Todd writes. "We found a tax levy of 31 mills and reduced it to 27 mills."

There has been no public sentiment for a return to the old system in Grand Junction and Mayor Todd says he sees nothing to condemn in the new plan in the short time it has been in operation.

Jury Cases Finished.

The jury calendar of the district court for this term is about finished. Twenty-four court cases have been set for Thursday. Nearly forty cases have been continued over until the next term, which begins Jan. 4.

Denied a Divorce.

Harold E. Elden was denied a divorce from his wife, Charlotte D. Elden, yesterday, by Judge W. A. Cant. He alleged cruel and inhuman treatment, but his claims were not substantiated. He is 33 years old and she is 27.

Complain of Coal Chute.

More complaints were made to the city authorities this morning relative to the coal chute at the old Masonic temple building, Second avenue east and Superior street. It is in close to the building and when coal dust was unloaded there this morning it blew in all directions, to the great discomfort of pedestrains.

Woman Found Guilty.

Mrs. Anna Carney, arrested on a charge of keeping a house of ill-repute, following a raid on her place on West Michigan street, between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues, when three couples were arrested on statutory bookings, was found guilty in police court yesterday afternoon after a trial. She was fined $100 with the alternative of sixty days in the county jail. A stay was granted until Dec. 19.

Case Will Be Appealed.

F. D. Orr, charged with storing dynamite back of Duluth Heights in violation of the city ordinance, was found guilty in municipal court yesterday afternoon. A fine of $25 was imposed. He is agent of the E. D. Dupont De Nemours Powder company. The findings were made upon the filings of stipulations of facts. The case will be appealed to test the validity of the ordinance.

Woman Held as Witness.

When Lizzie Crittenden, colored, came to the police station with her face a mass of blood and bruises last evening, to lodge a charge of assault against Otis Hance, she was not allowed her freedom. She was detained by the police as a witness. They have had trouble in the past when complaints were made and the persons making them failed to put in an appearance to prosecute them. The officers say that the two have been living together and that they had a fight over a domestic difference. Hance, also colored, pleaded not guilty in police court this morning and will be tried this afternoon.

CLEARING UP DIPHTHERIA

Dr. Albert J. Chesley, a representative of the state board of health, arrived in Duluth today to supervise the work of stamping out diphtheria in St. Mary's hospital, which was placed under quarantine by the city health department yesterday.

Cultures will be taken from all patients in the hospital, the building will be thoroughly fumigated and no patients will be received until it is certain that no traces of the disease exist. Dr. Chesley is working with Dr. H. E. Webster, health commissioner of the city, in the case of the hospital.

GIRL'S STORY SHOCKS EVEN HUMANE AGENT.

Joseph Hullenbeck and Fred Milgure were arrested this afternoon on the complaint of Humane Agent Fifer, as the result of statements made to him by a 17-year-old orphan girl.

The girl was discovered by the humane agent walking the streets. She stated that her mother and father were dead, and told the humane agent a story which shocked even that official, hardened as he is to such tales. He immediately swore out warrants for the arrest of Hullenbeck and Milguro. The girl's name is withheld.

COPPER MARKET IS DULL AND WEAK

The copper market was dull and weak today until toward the close when short covering caused a slight rally. Values in most issues closed with net losses for the day. The curb and the local markets were especially weak, nearly all of the local stocks declining, some sharply. There seemed to be pressure to sell from tired holders.

The steel business is dull and the copper trade shows a slight falling off. The weakness in Steel common and Amalgamated today caused a corresponding softness in other issues. Strength in the market which appeared at the close, appeared first in the Western rails, which rallied on short covering due to a report that the prospective strike of Western engineers will not be called.

Large sellers of copper are not disposed to hold supplies for higher prices and quotations in many instances have been shaved from 13c to 12⅞c a pound. Brass manufacturers have been buying sparingly and their commitments for the near future are exceedingly small. The postponement of the electrification of several branches of the New Haven railroad has placed in abeyance large orders of the red metal, which had been expected.

Exports of copper for November, including Southern and Pacific ports, amounted to 30,441 tons compared with 24,028 tons in the same period last year, an increase of 6,413 tons.

The local market was weak. Butte Ballaklava sold at $7.25, Sierra at $1.75, North American at $2.31¼ to $2.37½. Copper Queen at 15c, Denn at $4, $3.87½ and $3.91¼, Live Oak at $23.25, Red Warrior at $1.81¼, $1.56¼ and $1.62½, Shattuck at $24.62½ to $24.37½, Butte & Superior at $7.50, Butte & Superior, old, at 75c and 77c, Calumet & Montana at 80c, Cliff at $1.87½, $1.75, $1.62½ and $1.68¾.

Amalgamated sold at $63.62½ to $62.37½ to $63.12½ and then at $63, Butte Ballaklava at $7 to $6.75, Calumet & Arizona at $51.75 to $50 to $50.25, Giroux at $6.87½, Greene at $7.12½, North Butte at $29.50 to $29 to $29.25, Shattuck at $24.50, Superior & Pittsburg at $14 to $13.75.

The Boston News Bureau said today: New York.—The net result of the movement of the copper metal for the current calendar year to Dec. 1, has been a decrease in world's visible stocks of about 62,382,000 pounds. Of this decrease the United States has contributed 11,377,000 pounds and the foreign visible 51,000,000 pounds. Total decrease is equivalent to approximately 16 per cent of world's stocks as of Jan. 1 last. November's failure to show more than a nominal reduction in production was a disappointment to the trade and the impression is creeping in that the much talked of production curtailment is something of a failure, or at least so far as the substantial results that were expected to accrue are concerned.

The average daily production for 1910 to Aug. 1, the latter date being the time when curtailment is supposed to have begun, was 3,944,098 pounds. A curtailment of 15 per cent would have reduced the average daily rate to 3,424,484 pounds, but as will be seen in the following table, production has not as yet come anywhere near that level.

	Production	Production over Deliveries.
November	3,978,435	295,575
October	4,079,654	307,476
September	3,983,000	669,583
August	4,112,697	56,575
July	3,818,387	72,732
June	4,240,639	265,333
May	3,975,563	594,898
April	3,915,921	605,310
March	3,373,144	526,676
February	4,025,446	311,596
January	3,759,589	1,396,364

Ninety days was the time allowed for mine reduction to show in refined copper output and that time has already elapsed without any more than a nominal effect on the refined output. Allowing for all possible contingencies such as stocks at the refineries, imports, etc., it would appear that if the curtailment does not appear in the December statistics, the trade may as well make up its mind that copper production has about reached its low level, except for such falling off as usually comes with cold weather."

Shattuck has declared dividend $1, payable Jan. 20.

November production of C. & A. was 965 tons and of the S. & P., 1,080 tons.

The report of the Butte & Superior company for November is attracting some attention. It shows a tonnage milled of 11,160. The net earnings of the company amounted to $26,834.35. If this rate is maintained the company can meet its fixed charges and quickly accumulate a surplus for dividends.

OBITUARY

Leonard C. Blaisdell, who spent more than thirty-five years and hundreds of thousands of dollars in attempting to force the Federal government to pay the famous Durkee claims, died at the Soldiers' home in Danville, Ill., Dec. 12. He died penniless and alone.

The case had its inception in 1874, when Charles Durkee, governor of Utah and an uncle of Blaisdell's wife, died in Salt Lake City. His estate was left in a tangle. Included in the assets were bonds valued at many millions, owned by Durkee, Leland C. Stanford and Collis P. Huntington. As Mrs. Blaisdell was the only heir to the estate, Blaisdell took charge of the matter. He found the bonds had been issued on account of the building of the Union Pacific railroad. He maintained there was no record at Washington that the bonds had been paid for. Officials of the Union Pacific company asserted otherwise.

Blaisdell not only impoverished himself, but many of his relatives and friends.

Mrs. Hanna J. Jack, aunt of Mrs. William H. Taft and sister of Judge John W. Herron of Cincinnati, died in Decatur, Ill., Dec. 13, of pneumonia. She was 89 years old.

Family Has Close Call.

Linton, N. D., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Awakened by the heat and smoke of a fire in the lower part of their home, the family of Chris George near here had a narrow escape from death. All slept on the second floor, and the three children were rescued with greatest difficulty through the upper windows, being helped out by their father and taken in charge by the mother when they reached the ground.

THOUSANDS OF MEN WANTED!

Able bodied, healthy, vigorous, ambitious, brainy, strong men are wanted in every walk of life. Uncle Sam, the railroads and other larger employers of men require a physical examination of applicants before they are given employment. Where examination is not required the critical and experienced eye of the employer quickly chooses the man who looks healthy and strong. He kfinows that SUCCESS FOLLOWS HEALTH. HEALTH IS ALSO REQUIRED FOR REAL HAPPINESS. We have proved both in our successful practice here in Duluth.

Men who were down and out, or received low salaries, since cured by us have been promoted, and are able to hold steady jobs. SUCCESS HAS FOLLOWED health. Many of our former young men patients have gotten married after having been made strong, healthy and well by us. HAPPINESS HAS FOLLOWED HEALTH.

We do not publish names, but of the hundreds of patients, whome we have cured, a goodly number have from pure gratitude, asked us to refer to them any man in doubt. Se we give a few cases as illustrations and references. Case 241—Mr. W., manager wholesale house, Duluth; cured after several doctors here and in St. Paul had failed. Case No. 362—Mr. C., attorney; cured of fistula after two operations by Duluth and Superior doctors had proven failures. Shortly after our cure, he married. Case No. 364—Mr. F. Cook, cured after he had spent $600 with various Duluth doctors. He also soon after got married and has brought at least twenty-five patients to our office in thankfulness. Case No. 506—Rev. Father K. Michigan, was cured of lumbago, and says our methods surpass those of specialists of Chicago and Milwaukee whose treatments he had taken. Case No. 603—Mr. S., brakeman, after doctors of Duluth and Superior had failed. Case No. 607—Mr. H., stenographer and shorthand writer, city, cured after three home doctors had failed, the last of them advising an operation. This cure took but little time. He holds a much better position since the cure. Further has sent two brothers to us. Case No. 824—Mr. K., meat cutter, cured after several doctors had failed, of chronic ulceration of both legs. These cases are but a few of the thousands we have cured. We are busy, our offices are crowded. We succeed and make others to succeed and live happily. Do not go to fakirs, who are either self-styled doctors, hire a doctor to protect them, or hide under spurious firm names. They are sharpers after your money and cure no one.

We are graduates of several universities and their medical departments. Are licensed physicians and surgeons. WE ARE HERE TO STAY. WE DO BUSINESS UNDER OUR OWN NAME AND USE OUR OWN PHOTOGRAPH. We cure men of any any all diseases. Hours, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., 7 to 8 nights. Sundays, 11 to 1 noon.

DAMAGES FOR THE PLAINTIFF

A jury in the district court this morning returned a verdict of $1,433 in favor of August Lindy and against the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company for damages done Lnndys property during a fire which took place last fall near the Knox location.

Lindy claimed that the railroad company was negligent in that combustible matter was allowed to accumulate around the tracks. It was claimed that sparks set fire to this matter which spread to dry hay and finally destroyed a boarding house owned by Lindy.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF LEGISLATORS AND POLITICIANS

Republican Progressives Variously Esteemed By Newspaper Editors—Sidney Anderson's Editorial Dinner Productive of an Unusual Enterprise—St. Cloud Politicians in a Merry Mix—Senator Barker Dies Suddenly.

Progressives Have Been Rebuked.

The Progressive Republican league of Minnesota might as well quit. The Eveleth Star doesn't approve of it, mostly because Knute Nelson is not a member of it, apparently. It probably is not true that the Star is trying to curry favor with Republicans of progressive tendencies, for it speaks of them in terms of derisive contempt. "Peewees Seek Power," reads the headline over an article published in the Eveleth paper, and it goes on to tell about "Republicans of small caliber" calling a convention. Then it proceeds to devote most of its attention to Alex G. McKnight, to which procedure Mr. McKnight is not likely to object. He will be more inclined to enjoy it.

The Star says:

> The whole list is about the most unimpressive we have ever seen. Not one person of any importance in any line, or with any standing in the public life of the state, has attached his name to it. The question is whether the small persons interested hope to get the big fellows to follow them. They have given no promise as to orators. They have not said what the progressive convention hopes to do, except to hint that it will "progress" in a general way. Whether it will insurge radically and kick over the political skillet, is entirely a matter for imagination.
> From Northern Minnesota the name of A. G. McKnight of Duluth is the most prominent. He used to be an alderman in Duluth, and was a candidate for the congressional nomination against Congressman Miller. Beaten to a frazzle by the young lawmaker from Duluth, Alex has his ambition left. Ambition is a queer thing. By its eccentric promptings men who should know better are induced to turn handsprings and flipflops. The banker tries to turn high financier, the saloon man aspires to be preacher, the ox teamster looks longingly toward the professor's chair, the small boy wants to become a pirate and the small lawyer a congressman.
> That's what's the matter with Mr. McKnight. He sees in the progressive movement a ladder by which he may climb into congress from this district.
>
> Men in this state have been accounted good insurgents. There are Clapp and Lindbergh. Their names are not among those on the "progressive" list. There is Knute Nelson, also, who is a reactionary. There doesn't seem to be much of a move to retire him. Do the "progressives" contemplate doing so? They might say something about it at least, and train with somebody who is big enough to try.
> Maybe they will, but they will have to show the people.

But probably the convention will be held anyway.

The Minnesota Mascot takes a different view, saying:

> The only thing that will save the Republican party is the giving over of its control into the hands of the progressive element. Unless that element gains an ascendancy and shapes the policy of the party, the Republicans, as a party and a national power, are down and out.
>
> If the leaders are wise they will accept the condition that confronts them and court instead of spurn the assistance of the "insurgents." The insurgents are the "new blood" of which the old Republican party is so much in need.
>
> We believe that this "progressive call" is one of the most significant political moves that has been made for some time in the state of Minnesota. The leadership of the Republican party in this state needs to be rescued from the stream of standpatism, into which it seems to have fallen, before the current carries it and the party over the rapids.
>
> The combined "interests" are so dangerously close to having things their own way in this state that it is time the people were becoming alarmed—becoming alert to the condition that confronts them.
> This progressive convention which it is proposed to hold on the 4th of January next will be just an ideal time and place to sound the warning needed.
>
> The "progressive" movement should enlist the aid and sympathies of every Republican who believes in saving his party from the failure and defeat which surely awaits it if it is allowed to remain under the thumb of the Cannons and the Aldriches.

First District Editors Get Together.

When Sidney A. Anderson called a dinner meeting of the editors of the First congressional district he started something unusual. Of course, it would be idle to assert that it was not his intention to jolly the editors into a satisfactory mood toward him, but aside from that, the dinner at which he was host was productive of one of the most unusual organizations ever launched in Minnesota. It's a forum of forumers. The editors of the district have simply got together to discuss things, with the idea that they will arrange to carry on propaganda for the public good in a systematic way.

It is explained that the "Progressive Newspaper league" is not a political league—simply an editorial organization. The scheme is to work together in presenting arguments relating to public questions, rather than to discuss them at random.

The primary election law is to be the first subject tackled by the federated opinion molders. They feel that the law needs amending and are convinced they are as well qualified to debate the needd changes as are members of the legislature.

The officers of the league are: President, A. W. Blakely of the Rochester Post and Record; vice president, Scott Laird of the Winona Republican-Herald; secretary, J. P. Hurley of the Albert Lea Tribune.

Post-Campaign Troubles Reset St. Cloud.

It may be no comedy, but it has that aspect from this distance. O. F. Doyle of East St. Cloud was a candidate for the legislature and the East Side Progressive club of that place is suing him for $25, alleging that the candidate promised to come across with that sum and did not. Mr. Doyle replies that he wasn't asked for the money until after the election was over and that it was an attempted hold-up and nothing more.

FORMER SENATOR HAS PASSED AWAY

HENRY F. BARKER
Of Cambridge, Minn.

Not only does Mr. Doyle refuse to replenish the club's coffers, but he says that if the organization bothers him any more he will see to it that the progressives are prosecuted for failing to file their expense account. The club took an active part in the campaign and naturally incurred some indebtedness. If the officials don't quit pestering Doyle, he will retaliate by demanding that they suffer for their sin of omission.

At a meeting of the club a few evenings ago it was determined to make Doyle sweat for that $25 and one of the members was retained as attorney for the club, with instructions to move expeditiously. He was told he might charge as much as $50 for his services. The club members don't want the money; they want satisfaction.

Senator Barker of Cambridge Dies.

Henry F. Barker, a former member of the state senate, died early yesterday morning at his home in Cambridge, a victim of heart disease. His funeral will be held tomorrow at Cambridge. Senator Barker was in the legislature two terms, serving from 1899 to 1905. He was one of the best known Republican politicians in legislative circles and was an able and industrious representative of his district. Senator Swanson succeeded him.

Mr. Barker was born in 1850 at Naples, Mo., and since 1878 had been a resident of Cambridge. He served in the house in the session of 1883 and then dropped out of legislative activities until he was elected to the senate. He was county attorney of Isanti county in the interval and was a delegate to the Republican national convention in 1900.

Senator Barker is survived by his widow, three daughters and two sons. They are all residents of Cambridge.

Mesaba Ore: Governor Eberhart made another good selection, in the appointment of Guy Eaton of Duluth as state oil inspector. Mr. Eaton was formerly postmaster at Duluth, and is what may be safely termed a "working Republican," which doesn't, in the least, interfere with his being one of the very best fellows in the world.

Relief Committee Furnishes Fodder to Settlers in Fire Zone.

Duluth Members of Committee Pleased With Conditions on Border.

W. A. McGonagle and H. V. Eva, respectively chairman and secretary of the Baudette-Spooner fire relief committee, returned this morning from Baudette, where they disposed of business relating to the relief work which has accumulated in the last three weeks.

Mr. McGonagle said today that he is very well pleased with the way the work is being carried on at the border. Conditions are satisfactory and no hitch has interrupted the administration of relief measures.

The work that occupied the attention of Messrs. McGonagle and Eva at this time was checking over the accounts and the appeals for help, with which task their time is taken up completely when they go to Baudette.

Settlers in the outlying districts are being given especial attention by the relief committee, and they are being urged not to dispose of their live stock. The committee volunteers to supply the fodder if the settlers will refrain from selling their cattle.

About a score of militiamen remain on the ground doing the tasks necessary for the proper policing of the fire zone.

DULL AND UNCHANGED

Wheat Stays in a Rut and the Market Is Featureless.

Offerings From Country More Liberal—Flaxseed Is Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, Dec. 13.—Wheat closed unchanged after a dull session. The Northwest was the weakest place on the wheat map. Offerings from the interior were slightly more liberal. Weather in Argentina was favorable. December wheat and May wheat were unchanged. Cash wheat was 1½c over December. Durum lost ⅛c; oats, rye and barley were unchanged.

Flaxseed was stronger. A few scattered buying orders and an absence of offers sent prices upward. Crushers were among the buyers and there were two or three shorts in the market. December gained 4½c and May advanced 5c. Cash flax closed 6c under May. The strength in the premium was due to a demand for the seed from an elevator concern and an absence of supplies.

The wheat market was as dead as the proverbial door nail. Even the scalpers were discouraged. Values opened lower when there was a little pressure but the market firmed and then marked time. The situation stuck in a rut and was without interest. Traders waited for definite news and looked about for a loader. No new factors materialized and leadership was lacking.

Bradstreet's wheat decreased 2,157,000 bu. The European visible decreased to 116,480,000 bu from 119,240,000 bu, the decrease for the week being 2,760,000 bu. Last year stores amounted to 78,800,000 bu.

Argentine offerings were liberal but the Liverpool market showed unexpected strength. The continental markets were weaker, however, and buyers backed away from offers. Bids on Manitoba wheat were out of line. Broomhall cabled that weather conditions continue favorable in Russia for the growing crops. Interior reserves of wheat are said to be large and increased arrivals at ports are predicted.

Prices are on a domestic level and the market is deriving much of its strength from the prevailing dullness. Holders think their wheat is worth more and bears are not disposed to press the situation. They have been somewhat nervous on account of the drouth in the winter wheat states, which is more severe than in several years. Rain fell in the last twenty-four hours in the neighborhood of Fort Worth, Texas. Elsewhere it was dry. Whatever crop scares may happen along to boost prices, however, are too remote now for serious consideration.

Cash markets did not show pronounced strength. The flour demand is steady, but is showing no signs of improvement. Shipping directions are improved, but new business is difficult to get. There seems to be plenty of wheat and flour in the country and while cash wheat may be in strong hands, it is not held in such positions as to render logical a disparity in prices in the interior and at seaboard points, export business being out of the question. After the first of the new year, some folk think, cash wheat will rapidly shrink under inroads caused by increased consumption. There are not signs at present, however, of a sudden stimulation to consumption.

People who have hopes of export business later expect a foreign demand for American wheat of good quality for purpose of mixture with inferior Russian, French and Argentine grain. The continued wet weather in France probably will result in heavier importation of wheat by that country. The floods throughout Europe this year have done considerable damage to potatoes as well as wheat. The short potato crop has stimulated importations of wheat. Germany usually produces as many bushels of wheat as France does of wheat. Germany is a heavy consumer of the former staple. Owing to the shortage of potatoes, much of this consumption, it is expected, will be transferred to wheat. The poor quality of the French and Russian wheat is also a stimulant to increased buying from exporting countries.

MARKET GOSSIP

Foreign wheat closed: Liverpool ⅜d lower; corn ½d higher to ⅜d lower. Berlin ¼c higher. Budapest ⅜c lower. Paris ⅜c to 1c lower; flour ⅜c to 1½c lower. Antwerp unchanged.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: The wheat market at the opening was influenced by larger offerings induced by realizing on the Broomhall report of favorable harvesting weather in the Argentine and values were ⅜d to ½d lower. The American cables were considered disappointing in the face of Liverpools sharp advance and mail samples of new Plate wheat show a very fine quality. Advices from Russia continue very favorable and prospects are for a continued liberal movement. Just before midday the market showed a steadier undertone and prices advanced ¼d to ⅜d. There was no special feature given for the advance and it was attributed to an absence of pressure to sell. At mid-day the market was steadier and ¼d to ⅜d up from the opening and ⅛d lower than yesterday.

The corn market at the opening was quiet and unchanged. Later the Plate grade was firmly supported, owing to firmness of offers and the advance of half in this grade of spot.

The American grade was under pressure and declined ⅜d on the decline of ½d in spot and the cheaper American offers.

The European visible this week 116,480,000, last week 119,240,000; showing a decrease of 2,760,000 bu last week there was a decrease of 2,346,000 and last year a decrease of 3,800,000 bu when the total amounted to 78,800,000.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Prices Are Eased By News From Abroad.

Chicago, Dec. 13. — Favorable harvesting weather in Argentina eased prices for wheat today. Advices from Russia indicated a liberal movement, and served to emphasize the bearish feeling. Nevertheless, there was not much selling pressure, although the only definite development early in favor of the bulls was a decrease in the European visible supply. Cloudy conditions prevailed in the American Southwest, where lack of moisture has been a source of anxiety, but no heavy rain or snow was shown anywhere in the winter wheat belt. The opening was a shade to ⅛@¼c lower. May started at 95½c to 95½@⅝c, a loss of a shade to ⅛c, and declined to 95⅜c.

Statements that the condition for winter wheat Southwest were the worst in twenty years caused a rally. The close was firm with May at 95½@95⅝c, a net loss of a shade.

Big receipts caused considerable unloading of corn, and weakened the market. May opened unchanged to ⅛c off at 47⅛c to 47¼c and fell to 47c.

Failure of Southern demand caused the market to droop. The close was steady with May at 47c, a net loss of ¼c.

Resting orders to buy proved an effective sustaining influence for oats. May started a shade down at 33⅞c, and rallied to 33⅞@34c.

With the run of hogs enlarging as a result of cold weather, provisions turned downward at the opening. Trade, however, was lively, and initial losses were soon overcome. First sales showed a decline of 2½@5c to 10c with January at $17.70 for pork, $9.80 to $9.85 for lard and $9.40 to $9.45 for ribs.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Trading Throughout the Session Is Lightest for Some Time.

Losses Recovered in Numerous Cases, But Not Well Held.

New York, Dec. 13.—Price changes were unimportant and business in light volume at the opening of today's stock market. With the exception of Lehigh Valley, which showed a decline of ⅝, the list sold off in minor fractions with an irregular undertone.

The sluggishness of the market was relieved by a brief selling movement which forced United States Steel down to 72 and also other leaders a good fraction below yesterday's closing. New York Central gave way 1¼. Slight fractional recoveries threw the market into dullness again.

A majority of issues sold under yesterday's low prices with some recovery before noon. The session as a whole was the dullest in some time and many of the semi-active issues had not been quoted up to noon. Out of a total of 116,000 shares, which changed hands in the first hour, 74,000 consisted of United States Steel, Reading and Union Pacific in the order named Trading in the second hour was even lighter. Reports of another copper curtailment agreement were without effect on these issues. Bonds were steady.

The market closed dull and irregular. In the last hour prices hardened generally and recovered to yesterday's closing level in numerous cases. The improvement was none too well maintained, however.

ROCHESTER LIKES COMMISSION PLAN

Winona and Red Wing Also Said to Favor That Form of Government.

Rochester, Minn., Dec. 13.—Rochester may be the next city in Minnesota to adopt the commission form of government. Other Southern Minnesota cities contemplating this step are Red Wing and Winona, but there seems little doubt that this city will adopt a new charter at a special election to be called after the holidays.

ROCHESTER ALSO SEEKS CATHOLIC BOYS' COLLEGE.

Winona, Minn., Dec. 13.—While the Winona committee appointed to work toward securing the location in Winona of the Catholic Boys' college, proposed to be established by Bishop Heffron, is actively at work, other places in the diocese are getting busy also, and Winona will have to do well by the school to secure its location here. Bishop Heffron has been advised that in the course of the next few days a committee from Rochester will wait upon him for personal consultation concerning the school and to obtain his views of what will be necessary to be done to secure it.

INDIAN COUPLE WEDDED.

Pipestone, Minn., Dec. 13.—The first Indian marriage to take place in Pipestone in years, was celebrated Sunday at the government Indian training school here, when Allen Sheppard and Miss Lizzie Goodwin, both of whom were graduated from the school with honors, were married. Rev. W. F. Jones of the Presbyterian church performing the ceremony. The wedding took place in the school chapel and was witnessed by all of the officials of the school as well as the employees and 400 students.

EXPERIMENT A SUCCESS

Duluth's Co-Operative Market May Be Self-Sustaining Next Year.

Has Encouraged Farmers to Extend Their Activities Next Season.

The importance to Northeastern Minnesota of the work that is being done by the Duluth Co-operative Produce Market association is strikingly demonstrated in an editorial published by the St. Hilaire Spectator. St. Hilaire is a flourishing town in Red Lake county. The editorial, under the caption "A Good Market," is as follows:

"The farmers of Northeastern Minnesota now have a market to Duluth to which they are not only shipping their potatoes, but everything they have to sell, vegetables of all kinds, poulty, veal, eggs, butter, anything they have to sell. A manager is employed at a salary of $150 a month, stenographer, clerks, teamsters, and a commission house mintained on the market street of Duluth. The value of this co-operative movement for the farmers of Northeastern Minnesota can be estimated only by the success attained by similar co-operative movements in other sections of the country that have become worldwide in their usefulness and influence."

Duluth's co-operative market association has not made any money for itself but it has made a market where, comparatively speaking, there was none before. Farmers in the territory tributary to Duluth are extending their clearings, enlarging their equipment and expanding their activities in many directions because of the bettered market conditions brought about by the association.

The headquarters of the association are on Michigan street, where all the commission houses are located and the business of the organization is rapidly growing without injuring the interests of the commission men. As a matter of fact, the association's activities have contributed to the prosperity of the commission dealers, although the point of view of the two institutions is altogether different. It is the business of the individual commission man to make the farmer's margin of profit as narrow as possible, to the enrichment of the commission man, but the association's work is based on the idea that the farmer's margin should be increased, to the end that Duluth will have a readier and more desirable source of produce supply.

The association's market has not been a profit maker. The business it has transacted has not been sufficient to pay expenses, but another season may be expected to bring about a condition of self-maintenance.

So far the association's experiment has been productive, of nothing but beneficial results, not only for Duluth but as well for northeastern Minnesota.

UNION MINERS CAST BALLOTS

Lewis Predicts His Re-Election in Record Poll of Votes.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 13. — Union miners all over the country today are balloting for their international officers.

The ballots will be sent to the international headquarters in this city, and after the count the result will be kept secret until the annual convention, which will be held in Columbus, Ohio, next month.

President Thomas L. Lewis is opposed for re-election by John P. White of Oskaloosa, Iowa, a former vice president of the international organization and at present president of the Iowa district. President Lewis declares that the balloting will be he heaviest in the history of the organization and at the same time predicts his own election.

THOUSAND POUNDS OF OPIUM SEIZED

Customs Agents Find Smuggled Drug in Chinese Dens.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Special agents of the customs service seized 1,000 pounds of smuggled opium in a raid on Chinese dens in Portland, Or., last night, according to an official report received at the treasury today.

Chief Wilkie is conducting a campaign against the opium trade. More than a ton of the drug has been confiscated in various raids during the last two weeks.

MAKES RETAILERS PEEVISH.

North Dakota's Change in Method of Retailing Foodstuffs Unpopular.

Wahpeton, N. D., Dec 13.—The recent order issued by Food Commissioner E. F. Ladd relative to the selling of foodstuffs by weight instead of by measure, is causing consternation among retail dealers. Potatoes, apples, eggs, celery, squashes—in fact, all vegetables and other food products must be sold by weight, and the wrapping and packing on products will not be counted in the weights. The weights must all be net.

Every sale of a barrel of apples means that the dealer must empty the barrel of apples, weigh them and then weigh the barrel, after which he can pour them back and repack them and then deduct the weight of the barrel from the weight of the apples and give his customer a price with an additional charge of a few cents for the barrel.

The ruling necessitates a readjustment of buying and selling schedules in mercantile establishments. It will be necessary to buy eggs by the pound that are to be sold by the pound, and the same deviation from the old style of buying seems necessary in the purchase of all foodstuffs.

Given $10,000 Verdict.

Montevideo, Minn., Dec. 13.—The jury in the case of Henry O. Reber against the Chippewa Milling company of this place, returned a verdict of $10,000 in favor of the plaintiff.

Reber was employed in the mill and last February, while painting, was caught in a shaft and horribly mangled. The accident resulted in his losing both legs. He sued the company for $30,000. It is said the mill company will appeal to the supreme court.

RAILROADS GAIN NOTABLE VICTORY

Privately Owned Cars Are Held Subject to Demurrage Rules.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Privately owned freight cars were today declared to be subject to the uniform demurrage regulations in the decision of a notable case by the interstate commerce commission which favored the railroads' contention that such cars were subject to the demurrage rules.

The decision was rendered in the case of Proctor & Gamble Company of Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad company and other interstate carriers. The complainant, which operates approximately 500 private tank cars, and the Indian Refining company of Cincinnati, which operates nearly a thousand private cars in the distribution of petroleum and its products, maintained that demurrage should not be collected on private cars located on the private tracks of the complainants, whether loaded or unloaded.

MARINE

SETTLE LAKE STRIKE IN 1911

Lake Seamen Now in Convention at Detroit Are Hopeful.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13.—G. C. Bodine of New Orleans has announced that he is a candidate for secretary and treasurer of the Lake Seamen's union, now in convention here. The office has been held for eleven years by W. H. Frazier of Boston.

President Andrew Furuseth of San Francisco will have no opposition for re-election, it is said.

The matter of selecting the city for the next convention is causing much discussion. Cities in various parts of the country have been talked of, but the number has dwindled down to two. These are San Francisco and Baltimore. The concensus of opinion among the delegates seems to favor the Western city.

It is stated that government intervention in the strike now on against the Lake Carriers' association will soon be asked, and a federal investigation of conditions on the lakes is expected.

Officers of the union are confident that the strike will be settled during 1911.

FEWER DIASTERS ON GREAT LAKES.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13.—There were fewer disasters on the Great Lakes during the season just closed than during the season of 1909. Last year there were 128 lives lost, a much higher toll than for 1910.

The worst disaster of this year was the sinking of Car Ferry No. 18 of the Pere Marquette railroad off Ludington, Mich., with the loss of more than a score of lives.

The greatest monetary loss of the 1910 season was incurred when the steamer W. C. Moreland was stranded on Eagle River reef, Lake Superior. The loss to the hull was $420,000 and to the cargo $40,000.

There were eight important fires, accidents and wrecks during the year. The total resulting loss was $1,500,000.

HURONIC, ICE COATED, IS LAST BOAT DOWN.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald)—Literally covered with ice and presenting a most beatuiful sight, the steamer Huronic of the Northern Navigation company passed down through the Canadian lock at noon today. She was the last boat of the season from Lake Superior. The work of laying up the American dock has already started and work will be commenced on the Canadian side immediately. The Glenellah, the last boat up, arrived last night and locked up this morning.

PRESSNELL IS COMMANDER.

Joshua B. Culver Post, G. A. R., Holds Annual Election of Officers.

Capt. Thomas H. Pressnell was elected commander of Joshua B. Culver Post, G. A. R., at the meeting held at Memorial hall last evening. Capt. Pressnell succeeds W. S. Woodbridge. The other officers elected follow: W. F. Bailey, senior vice commander; W. H. Stultz, junior vice commander; S. C. McCormick, surgeon; Rev. Jeremiah Kimball, chaplain; J. H. La Vaque, quartermaster; S. W. Clark, officer of the day; Dr. C. M. Wilson, officer of the guard, and C. E. Holt, patriotic instructor.

FARGO BOY LOSES INITIATIVE TO SPEAK.

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 13. — (Special to The Herald.)—The 18-year-old son of Charles Herdeg of this city has been ill since September and two yeeks ago was found unconscious. Since he recovered consciousness he has been unable to speak except to repeat parrotlike what is said to him. He has entirely lost the initiative to speak. His case has puzzled local physicians and the youth will be taken to Twin City specialists.

Charles Herdeg, the father of the boy named in the dispatch, formerly lived in Duluth, being foreman in a local printing office and worked in The Herald composing room for one year. He was also an old resident of Winona, coming from there here.

PETITION WHITE TO PARDON A. T. PATRICK.

New York, Dec. 13.—The Medico-Legal society has appealed to Governor White to pardon Albert T. Patrick, serving a life sentence for the murder of William Marsh Rice in this city some years ago. It is maintained that Patrick was convicted on medical testimony that embalming fluid introduced into a body through the right bronchial artery would not enter the lungs, but that it has since been demonstrated that the testimony was wrong.

New Bessemer, Mich., Bank.

Bessemer, Mich., Dec. 13.—This city will have a new bank. A temporary organization has been perfected and the bank will open as soon as its capital stock of $25,000 is subscribed.

DEATH PACT IS ALLEGED

Duluth Man Found in Apartment House on Chicago North Side.

Woman's Mother Denies Knowledge of Her Relations With Him.

Divorced Wife of Victim Now Residing in Indianapolis.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Christie, Jr., of Duulth and a woman who gave the name of "Mrs. Goodman," took poison last night in the former's apartments in a fashionable apartment house at 5051 Sheridan road. The man is in serious condition and the woman less dangerously ill. The police claim that there was an agreement to end their lives together.

Christie came to Chicago six months ago. He is a son of John Christie, president of the Christie Lithograph & Printing Company of Duluth.

Christie was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where physicians say he has a chance for recovery.

Both took corrosive sublimate, according to the doctors, and the man's Carnegie Now Has Given Away $180,000,000 for Benefactions.

New York, Dec. 14.—Andrew Carnegie's gift of $10,000,000 for the furtherance of peace brings the total of his benefactions to something like $180,000,000. The endowment announced today is second in size only to three others of his—the $10,000,000 foundation for the advancement of teaching made in 1905, and increased to $15,000,000 in 1908; the $16,000,000 endowment for the Carnegie institute in Pittsburg, and the $12,000,000 fund for the establishment of the Carnegie institute in Washington. Mr. Carnegie's gifts to libraries during the last twenty years are estimated at $36,000,000 for the United States and $17,000,000 abroad.

Mr. Carnegie's latest endowment widens the gap between him and John D. Rockefeller, who alone rivals the retired steel master in his public benefactions. A conservative estimate places Mr. Rockefeller's gifts to institutions at $120,000,000. All but a small part of this was for educational purposes.

HOUSE RULES FIGHT BEGUN

Representative Hughes Precipitates It By His Demand.

Speaker Cannon Decides to Let the Members Settle It.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Renewal of the fight on the rules which signalized the last session of congress was precipitated today by Representative Hughes of New Jersey. The point raised was whether a bill considered in regular order last calendar Wednesday could be taken up again today.

The question under consideration was whether a bill for the codification and revision of the laws relating to the judiciary, consideration of which occupied all last Wednesday, should again be taken up today simply on the call of the chairman of the committee reporting the measure.

Opposed by Democrats.

The question was raised by Mr. Hughes after Representative Moon of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee on revision of the laws, had asked

HATTIE LE BLANC IS FOUND "NOT GUILTY"

Spectators Cheer Verdict at Bay State Murder Trial.

Judge's Charge Includes Reference to Widow of Slain Man.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 14.—Hattie Le Blanc, the 17-year-old French girl, was acquitted today of the charge of murdering Clarence F. Glover, a laundryman of Waltham, on Nov. 20, 1909.

The verdict was cheered by the spectators.

When she was brought into the courtroom by the matron of the Cambridge jail the defendant was pale and the greetings of her attorneys failed to dispel her anxiety.

Judge Bond, in his charge to the jury, defined circumstantial evidence and informed the jury that such evidence must establish guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. He referred to a sore on the finger of the defendant which, he said, the prosecution claimed was made by the backfire from the revolver.

No Experiments With Revolver.

The court called attention to the fact that no experiments had been made with the revolver to show that such a shot as had been described on the defendant's finger could be made with the weapon.

"You will be safer," said Judge Bond, "to err in acquitting than to err in convicting."

He said that the jury had the right to infer what interests influenced testimony on either side.

BRITISH SHIPYARD STRIKE SETTLED

Men Accept the Terms Offered By the Employers.

London, Dec. 14.—The boilermakers' lockout affecting 50,000 men in the yards of the Shipbuilding Employers' federation ended today with the acceptance by the men of the terms made by the employers. The yards will reopen tomorrow.

The lockout was instituted on Sept. 2 following a strike of the riveters employed at the Walker shipyard at Newcastle-on-Tyne. The federation asserted that the strike was a violation of the agreement made between the federation and nineteen workmen's societies last spring for the prevention of strikes and lockouts, and declared a lockout to remain in force until the boilermakers were prepared to guarantee the fulfillment of the agreement.

THREE ARRESTED FOR MURDERS

Another Suspect Is to Be Taken Into Custody in Kansas.

Kansas City Mo., Dec. 14.—One more arrest will be made in connection with the Bernhardt quadruple murder case, Chief of Police Zimmer of Kansas City, said today.

Sam Bailey and Ike Whitsell, former employes of the Bernhardts, and John Feagle, a neighbor, who are being held for investigation, were questioned by the police and all denied any knowledge of the crime.

A coroner's jury met at Olathe, Kan., today to investigate the case.

"I do not believe we have arrested the right man yet," said Edward P. Boyle, chief inspector of detectives of this city today. "I am confident that Feagle is innocent. I have good reason to believe that the murderer was a farmhand who left the employ of the Bernhardts about Nov. 1."

GRAND JURY PROBING BOY SCOUT METHODS.

New York, Dec. 14.—The grand jury has begun an inquiry into the manner of soliciting subscriptions to the American Boy Scouts, from which W. R. Hearst, Admiral Dewey and others recently resigned. Mr. Hearst was a witness, as was supreme Court Justice Gerard, who says he contributed $1,000 to the organization.

A statement was issued from headquarters of the Scouts announcing that the directors have offered the grand jurors the free use of all records of the organization.

CARNEGIE GIVES TEN MILLION DOLLARS TO MAKE RACE PERFECT

Establishes Fund and Names Trustees to Do the Work.

Says War Is to Be Abolished First---Other Reforms Later.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Ten million dollars to help the human race reach perfection was transferred to a board of trustees today by Andrew Carnegie, with instructions as to how the board is to begin its work.

Abolition of war is to be the first step in the Carnegie perfection program. Then the trustees are to take up the next greatest human evil and abolish that, and the remaining ills of mankind are to be assailed in order of their magnitude. Under the terms of the trust deed given today the board is to be self-perpetuating and is to continue "for all time."

Half Million Income.

The $10,000,000 is given in the form of 5 per cent first mortgage bonds, the revenue of which will be used to "hasten the abolition of international war" and establish a lasting world peace.

The formal transfer was made at a meeting in the rooms of the Carnegie Research foundation. The trustees organized by choosing as president United States Senator Elihu Root, the

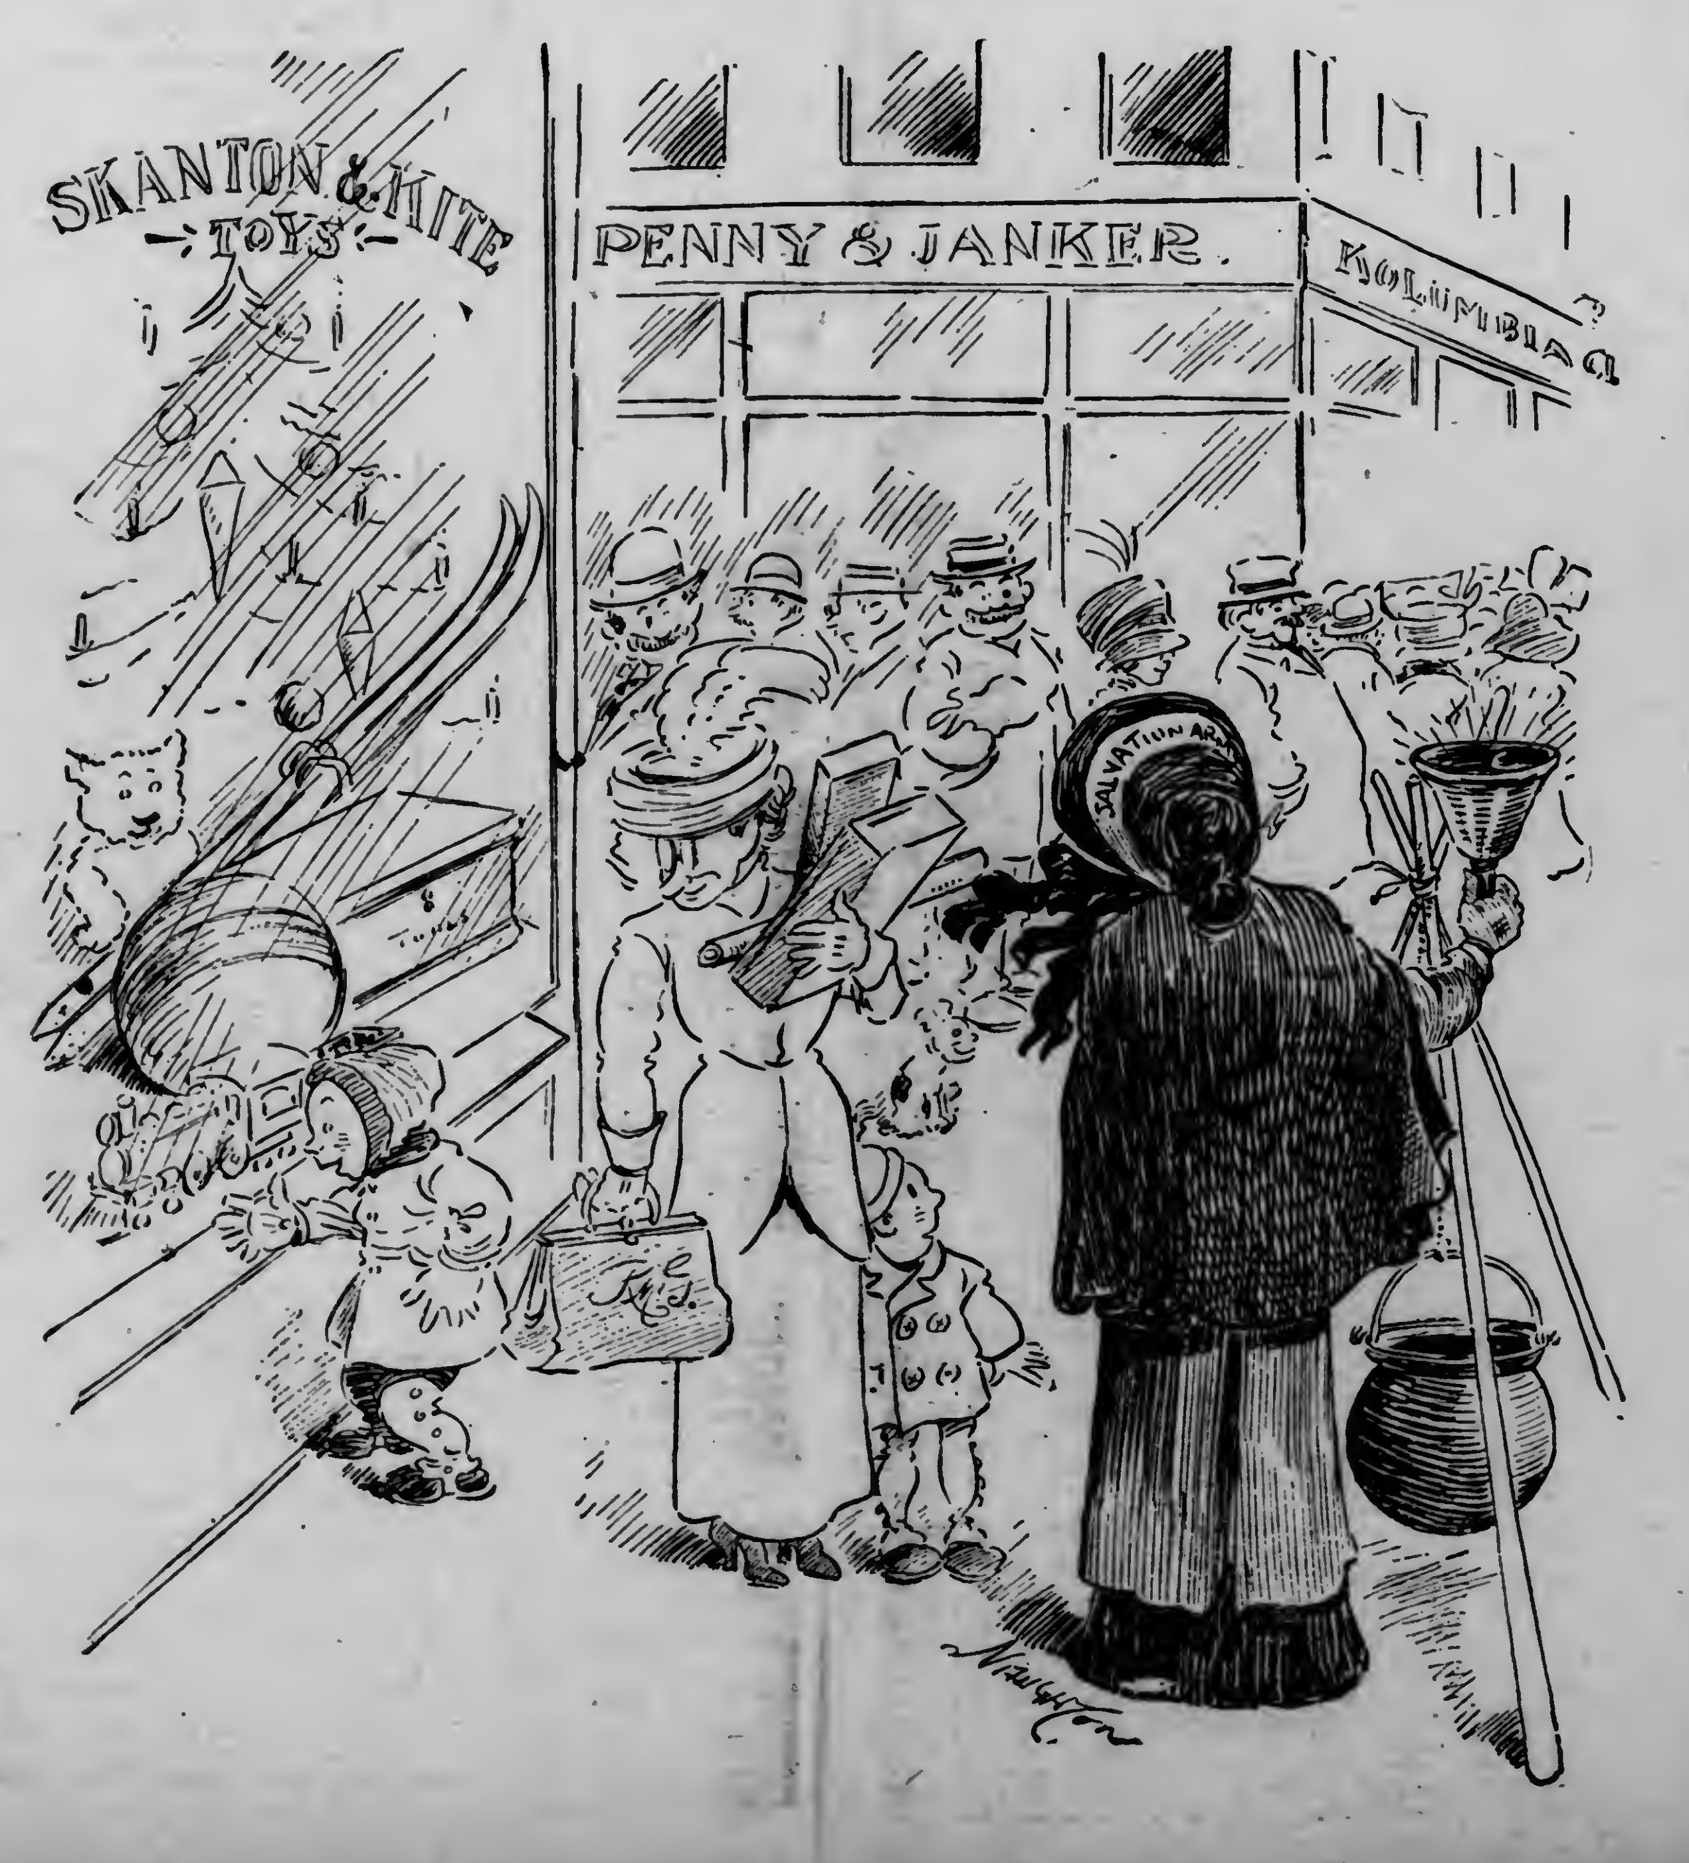
"HELP TO KEEP THE POT BOILING"



JOINT COMMITTEE'S REPORT FAVORABLE TO THE NEW SYSTEM

Des Moines Charter With Some Changes Is Recommended for Duluth.

Committee Announces Its Decision Following a Thorough Investigation.

RECOMMENDATION OF JOINT COMMITTEE

"We are of the opinion that the commission form of government is practical and advisable for the city of Duluth, and we recommend the so-called Des Moines plan with the modifications as herein suggested, many of which are contained in the present Duluth city charter."

MODIFICATIONS SUGGESTED.

Election of judges of municipal court by the people.

Alternating of names of candidates in different precincts so as not to give advantage by alphabetical arrangement.

The commissioner receiving the highest number of votes qualify as mayor.

All ordinances be published immediately after passage.

Rejection or retention of commission plan after six years' operation.

Daily meetings of the council open to the public.

Initiative, referendum and recall based on 25 per cent of the number of votes cast for the commissioner receiving the highest number of votes at the last general election.

The joint committee of the Commercial club and the city-council, appointed to consider the commission form of government and the practicability and advisability of its adoption for the city of Duluth, completed its report today, commending the commission plan and urging its adoption by Duluth. The Des Moines plan, with certain modifications, is recommended. The Commercial club committee submitted its report to President C. A. Luster today and the council committee will report to the council at its meeting next Monday night.

The joint committee was made up of R. B. Knox, A. C. Volk and L. E. Lum, representing the Commercial club, and Aldermen Joseph Shartel, Watson S. Moore and C. R. Hoar of the city council. Alderman Shartel was chairman of the committee and A. C. Volk, secretary.

The report goes into the merits of the commission plan and also into the objections offered against it. It is pointed out that the commission plan is not a cure-all for municipal ills, but the committee reaches the conclusion that the commission plan—giving as it does, the power of controlling the government into the hands of the people through the initiative, referendum and recall, and wiping out party designations and ward boundaries—is a great improvement on the system of government under which Duluth is now working. The committee lays stress on the fact that the commission form of government is a business government and that under it a city is operated as any big business would be, the commission corresponding to the board of directors.

The committees forming the joint committee were appointed about a year ago and have been busy since that time collecting the data on which the report is based. Charters were obtained from the different cities having government by commissions and statements of results were also obtained. The joint committee made an exhaustive and careful study of the subject and the suggestions embodied in the Prisoners and Wounded Are Bayonetted By Order of Navarro.

At the Front, Rancho Santiago, near Pedernales, Dec. 12, via El Paso, Tex., Dec. 14. — In yesterday's engagement the revolutionists fought Gen. Navarro to a standstill, although inferior in numbers. All told seventy-four persons are known, by independent investigation, to have been killed.

Navarro took no prisoners — it is contrary to his orders — and in his camp today there were no wounded of the other side. The bayonet had completed the work of the bullet.

A horrible instance of the barbarity of the campaign occurred after the battle. Every man in the hamlet of Cerro Prieto (Dark Hill) was brought before the mayor to prove his innocence of participation in the revolt. Thirty could not do this. As fast as

GOVERNMENT HAS MAJORITY OF 77

Steadiness of Electorate in British Polling Further Emphasized.

London, Dec. 14.—The steadiness of the electorate so marked since the polling began was further emphasized at yesterday's elections, the returns of which were received today. The totals today were: Coalitionists, 328, Unionists, 251. The standing by parties was as follows: Government coalition — Liberals, 220; Irish Nationalists, 61; Independent Nationalists, 9; Labor members 38—total, 328.

Opposition—Unionists, 251.

Present coalition majority, 77.

Capt. Frederick Guest, whose wife is a daughter of Henry Phipps of Pittsburg, Pa., recaptured the Liberal seat for the East division of Dorsetshire, from which he was ousted by the courts in May last on the ground that the money expended to promote his election exceeded the limit set by law.

The election continues to drag along. The public has lost interest.

Absence From Dinner at New Haven Explained in Letter.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 14.—An explanation is now given out which bears upon the absence last night of Judge Simeon E. Baldwin, the governor-elect, at the Chamber of Commerce dinner at which Col. Roosevelt spoke. The invitation extended to the judge read: "To meet the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt."

As there had been a failure to adjust the differences which arose over Judge Baldwin's exceptions to Col Roosevelt's criticism during the recent political campaign, the former absented himself from the dinner. A letter sent to President Ullman of the chamber explained the matter. It is understood that the correspondence between Col. Roosevelt and Judge Baldwin has not yet been closed.

Tapping Testifies at Inquiry in New York State.

New York, Dec. 14.—Edward J. Tapping of Milwaukee, called as a witness today in the inquiry into fire insurance matters by the legislative investigating committee, admitted that many of the rates prevailing were unfair and too high, and that commissions paid to agents in many instances are exorbitant. He said he knew fire insurance companies that paid from 30 to 40 per cent of all premiums they collected.

VOLUNTARY REDUCTION

Superior Light and Power Company Will Reduce Its Rates.

Is Result of Agitation to Have Railroad Commission Take Action.

The Superior Water, Light & Power company will make a decided reduction in its rates on gas and electric lights next year, according to an announcement made today by W. H. Winslow, general manager.

The reduction will be a voluntary one and will probably put an end to the agitation which was started by the Commercial club to have the matter of rates laid before the railroad commission.

The reduction of the gas rates will become effective May 1911 and the electric light schedule will be altered so as to take effect Sept. 1, 1911.

FRANK E. SPRING NEW PRESIDENT

B. C. Cooke, retiring president, submitted his annual report in which he emphasized the need of new quarters for the organization.

The secretary's report showed the organization to be in a flourishing condition, with about $1,600 on the right side of the ledger. The club extended congratulations to Prof B. H. Meyers of Madison on his appointment by President Taft as a member of the interstate commerce commission.

After a warm discussion the club voted to lay before the state railroad commission matters pertaining to the rights of the city and the public utility corporations, the street railway company and the water and gas company.

County Board Meets.

Following the protest made by the Superior Business Men's league against the enactment of the "Barber resolution" passed at the last meeting of the county board and providing for the distribution of 80 per cent of the county's road fund among the various towns of the county, it is probable that it will be resoinded at a meeting of the board Thursday.

The meeting of the board is primarily for the purpose of cleaning up the bills before the holidays and the first of the year and to listen to a report of Highway Commissioner C. J. Morrisset.

PRESCRIPTION FATAL TO BOY

Brother of Dead Lad Is Seriously Ill as Result of Medicine.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 14.—John F. Staley, 6 years old, is dead and his brother Chester, aged 4, is in a serious condition as the result, it is said, of an overdose of atropine sulphate, from a city dispensary prescription.

The mother, Mrs. C. J. Staley, who is almost prostrated, said she obtained the medicine yesterday with instructions to give the older boy seven drops in water and the younger five, at bedtime. Shortly after giving the medicine she said her older son became worse and she called the dispensary. The doctors attended the children until the older boy died today.

The dose of atropine sulphate for a child is 1-200 of a grain, and it is said the seven drops given to the older child contained 14-15 of a grain. The coroner is making an investigation.

HEAR ABOUT THE CITIES OF CUBA

Delegates of American Civic Association Meet at Capital.

Washington, Dec. 14.—The American Civic association, which has for its object the cultivation of higher ideals of civic life and beauty in America, began a three days' session here today, with delegates in attendance representing all the national and international organizations corelated to civic effort.

"The Sociological Aspect of Cuban Municipalities," was discussed by Dr. F. Correra-Justiz, minister from Cuba to the United States.

"Since Cuba became a republic, through the generous aid of this powerful country, the progressive citizens of the island have undertaken the work of modernizing its local public life," said Dr. Justiz. "We entered into a new state of things with our independence, and one of the first requests was a new organic law of the municipalities.

"Our law contains a full declaration concerning the judicial entity of the municipalities, and the Cuban municipal government is vested with all of the necessary powers in order to regulate all local conditions. The autonomy of the Cuban municipalities emanates from the constitution of the state itself.

Christmas Eve in Bethlehem.

Ex-Vice President Fairbanks in Leslie's: At 10 o'clock at night we again set out upon our pilgrimage to the homely spot where was centered the thought of hundreds of millions of Christians throughout the world. Bethlehem! What a sweet and majestic name! The story of it was being told from countless pulpits and was bursting forth in song the world about. It was being told about the hearthstones in the abodes of the humble and in the mansions of the great. It was Bethlehem's particular day, when she claimed the attention of the world as no other city claimed it. Our dragoman provided us with a carriage well inclosed, as the air was sharp. The moon was well up, and if the barren, rocky hills and the valleys had been clothed with snow, it would have seemed like an old-fashioned, moonlight, New England Christmas. Our horses were adorned with bells, which they habitually wore and which tended to give a familiar Christmas aspect to the scene.

As we passed out of Jerusalem upon a slow trot, we encountered processions of camels going to and fro with their monotonous swing, as they had done for centuries. Some of the riders had accomplished their day's work in the city and were en route to their distant homes, and others were coming in for the night or business the day following. When we reached the Well of the Magi, a large, bright star above Bethlehem burst upon our vision. It came into view as we reached the summit in the road. The moon was above and back of us, and no other stars were visible from our inclosure, so this particular star almost startled us when we first saw it, and for a moment he was almost speechless. He said he had never seen it, and thereafter frequently commented upon the incident. As we progressed, the star seemd to rise and fall as we followed the undulations of the highway, until we entered the narrow streets of Bethlehem, when we lost sight of it. There was of course, nothing marvelous about it—it was a perfectly natural phenomenon; but observing it, as we did, under the circumstances, it was particularly impressive.

Christmas Morning.

Before the wintry sun is up,
  Oh, what a racket greets my ears,
The din is surely loud enough
  To wake the folks of other spheres.
The trumpets toot, the dollies squeak,
  The woolly lambs in chorus bleat.
The baby locomotives chug,
  And rat-tattoo the drumsticks beat,
    For this is Christmas morning.

A toy piano tinkles out
  A tiny, teeny-weeny tune,
So faint and sweet it might be played
  Away up in the silver moon.
The air with merry laughter rings,
  And shrieks of glee, and whoops of joy,
And happy gurgles of delight
  From rosy, romping girl and boy,
    For this is Christmas morning.

Wee Jimmy sports a soldier suit.
  And Johnny has a wagon red,
And Susie got a camera,
  And Bruce and Bobby each a sled.
And Tom in fringe and feathers gay,
  Just like an Indian chief appears,
And mother hugs them every one,
  And murmurs "Bless the little dears."
    For this is Christmas morning.
      —Mina Irving in Leslie's.

Christmas Plea for Peace.

Rev. David James Burrell of New York, in Leslie's: If the history of war could be adequately written, what a red, red chronicle it would be! Only a pen of sharpest steel dipped in an alembic of hottest fire could record it. It began with the beginning of time. Out of the primeval shadows strode Cain, with a red mark on his forehead and a bludgeon in his hand; and the embattled host fell in behind him, to pursue its sanguinary march down the centuries. The first of songs is the "Sword Song" of Lamech: "Hear my voice and hearken unto my speech; for I have slain a man!" Hear the rude cry of Samson as he returns from Philistia: "I have slain them; heaps on heaps, masses on masses, a thousand men!" On the heights of Esdraelon the daughters of Israel are shouting, "The stars in their courses fought against Sisera!" A father bereaved of a son slain in the battle of Gilboa is staggering up the stairway to his chamber on the housetop, moaning, "Oh, Absalom, my son, my son! would God that I had died for thee!" The banners of Assyria are waving on the mountains that encircle the holy city, and presently a long procession of captives moves eastward, and the glory of the chosen people vanishes in the darkness of an unbroken night. War, war and rumors of war; all along the ages!

At length the Sun of Righteousness arises, with healing in His wings. Now surely the sword will be sheathed, for is this not Shiloh, the Prince of Peace? Was ever a sweeter birthsong than His, "Glory to God in the highest; on earth peace, good-will toward men?" Was ever a more irenic proclamation than His golden rule, or ever a more pronounced "peace policy" than that which He outlined for His church on the farewell night: "Put up thy sword into the sheath; for they that take the sword shall perish by it?"

He'll Find It Useful.

A pretty worker's companion either for a man or a woman is made in the following manner: Take a skewer or an odd knitting needle (a wodden one) and put a few spools of cotton on it. Tie a bow of ribbon on each end. Then make a long loop of ribbon with another bow at the top. After the first spool at each end of the skewer attach a ribbon to hang down. Two small dolls are then seated on this novel swing and are dressed very prettily, to be used as pincushions.

A QUESTION OF VERACITY

Owner of Camps Claims Story of Joseph Zareck Is Untrue.

Employment Agents Want Charges Investigated By City Authorities.

Axel Hagstrom, one of the owners of the lumber camps at Dibell siding, today flatly denies every detail of the story told yesterday by Joe Zareck to one of the city officials. The story of Zareck and the vehement denial upon the part of the man who is charged with throwing a man from his camp without necessary clothing, furnishes another chapter in the agitation that is being waged at the present time between the employment agencies and the laboring men.

Mr. Hagstrom came to Andrew Johnson, the agent who sent two men to his camp last Saturday, and today denied every statement made by Zareck, declared the statement a lie, offered to prove the untruth of the man's sensational claims, and furthermore stated that Zareck and his companions ran from his camp after eating at his expense from Saturday until Sunday noon, without doing a stroke of work in return for the board.

According to the story of Hagstrom, he needs men, has employed seven men at the camp, has hired six more here this morning, and will hire more in the near future, as men are scarce. He also says that he tried every argument to keep the men at the camp, as their services were needed.

"There is not a word of truth in the story," says Mr. Hagstrom. "I have always treated the boys fairly and honestly. I have never had a word of complaint against me among the men who have worked at my camp. Zareck and three others came to me Saturday. Only two of the party had tickets. They lived at my expense, sleeping Saturday afternoon. Sunday they had breakfast and lunch and ran away from the camp. I went after them, trying to persuade them to return to work, as I was pressed for men. They refused and ran away through the woods.

"There are farmers' houses all the way along the road to Duluth. If these men had followed the railroad they would have found station houses every ten miles. The story about being nearly frozen doesn't sound good to me or to people who are familiar with the country."

According to the story of Mr. Johnson, the employment agent who has been sending men to the Hagstrom Brothers' camp for a number of years, he has never heard a word of complaint from men who have worked in that camp. In company with Mr. Hagstrom today, Mr. Johnson states that he endeavored to have the men making the charge held pending an investigation, but that they could not be found.

According to the story of some of the employment men who voiced their sentiments today, the managers of lumber companies have stated that instances are not few, where laborers have come to the camps on Saturday, stayed over until Monday, and then refused to go to work.

Employment men today further expressed the intention of compelling the assistant city attorney, if such a course is possible, to make a thorough investigation into the matter that is being wrangled at the present time, find out if there are not certain agitators who make capital out of the fancied wrongs of hte laboring men, to force out of business the dishonest employment agent, and to reach the real facts in a matter that is stirring up a certain amount of bitterness.

The Zareck case is typical of other charges, the employment men claim, and they also state that they want this charge to be tried thoroughly, and that in this particular case the public be shown whether the employment agent or the man making the charges is telling the truth.

RECEIVER FILES BOND.

J. T. Nevin Takes Charge of Pittsburg Newspapers.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 14.—Joseph T. Nevin, formerly one of the best known newspaper managers in Pittsburg, filed his bond late yesterday as receiver of the Pittsburg Post Publishing company and the Sun Publishing company, both of which are owned by the same company. The bond in each case was $25,000.

Application for the receivership was made by the Farmers' Deposit National bank of Pittsburg on the ground that the companies could not meet approaching liabilities and were unable to pay their obligations. Answer admitting the allegation was filed. The receiver is to have full charge of the property, and business is to be wound up, and the property and franchises converted into money. Publication of the papers is to be continued.

The bill against the Post says it has 2,500 shares of stock of a par value of $100 a share and has assets as of Oct. 1 of $217,338.13; bills receivable valued at $50,000; other accounts, cash in bank and deposit with postmaster, $6,888,14; accounts receivable from Sun company $124,940.91; plant, $647,621.

There is mentioned in the bill a mortgage to secure 400 bonds of a par value of $100 each, all of which are outstanding. Debts aggregate $882,797.

The Post is the only Democratic newspaper published in Pittsburg and was established in 1842. The Sun is an afternoon newspaper and began its career almost five years ago.

"NIG" CLARK GOES TO ST. LOUIS TEAM

New York, Dec. 14.—The first important trade of the baseball meetings here was consummated today when the Cleveland club traded Catcher "Nig" Clark to the St. Louis Americans for Second Baseman Griggs.

President Ban Johnson believes the inter-league series rather chimerical and says that so far as he knows, the American league season will open on April 12 and close on Oct. 6. He says he has reason to believe the National league will do the same."

Mr. Johnson expects that the American league magnates will authorize him to confer with President Lynch of the National league and prepare a playing schedule instead of having the playing dates fixed by a schedule committee.

BUILDERS IN SESSION

President Corning of State Association Commends Industrial Education.

Urges Members to Work for Fair Workingmen's Compensation Act.

If the commission appointed by Governor Johnson after the last session of the legislature to consider the subject of employers' liability reports a bill fair to all parties, the employers of the state should get behind it and do everything in their power to obtain its passage, is the opinion of J. W. L. Corning of St. Paul, president of the Minnesota Association of Builders' Exchanges. The presentation of President Corning's report was the feature of the morning session of the annual meeting of the association, which is being held in Duluth today.

Mr. Corning was unable to attend the meeting and his report was read to the assembled delegates.

Mr. Corning dealt at some length with the subject of employers' liability and workingmen's compensation. He recommended that the members of the association lend their influence to the passage of a bill providing for suitable workingmen's compensation, if the bill submitted by the commission prove to be fair to the employers as well as to employes.

Industrial Education.

Mr. Corning also discussed the subject of industrial education at some length and referred with commendation to the steps being taken all through the state to extend the system of industrial education in the public schools. He urged that the builders' exchanges of the state lend their encouragement to all such movements and pointed out that industrial education promises to keep the ranks of the building and others trades full with competent men of advanced ideas.

A special committee appointed at the last meeting of the association to consider industrial education also reported, the report containing the same recommendations as those made by the president.

The committee on uniformity of specifications reported a form for specifications, with sub-heads specified and arranged and recommended that the association adopt the draft for all specifications.

"Peddling" Denounced.

The committee on abuses incident to sub-bids on general contracts submitted a report denouncing the practice of "peddling" sub-contracts. The committee scathingly referred to the "peddling" of contracts as dishonorable and urged the association to adopt a strong resolution condemning the practice. "Peddling" of contracts is a common practice yet, but the holding of the practice as a violation of the ethics of contracting is diminishing it.

All of the reports received were submitted to the resolutions committee with the exception of the president's report, which went to a special committee.

The morning session was given over to the reception of report and the appointment of committees. About forty members of the association were present when the session opened at 10 o'clock in the rooms of the Duluth Builders' exchange, in the Lyceum building. In the absence of President Corning, Alexander Anderson, president of the Duluth exchange, presided. Delegates were present from the Minneapolis, St. Paul, Faribault, Stillwater and Duluth exchanges.

After the morning session, the out-of-town delegates were the guests of the Duluth exchange members, at luncheon, at the Commercial club.

The principal business of the meeting will be transacted this afternoon. The resolutions committee and the committee on the president's report will report and their recommendations will be discussed. Officers will also be elected.

Evening Meeting.

The annual banquet, which has been a feature of the state association's annual meetings in the past, has been dispensed with this year and the open meeting at the Commercial club tonight has been substituted. Employers' liability will be the subject of the addresses at the meeting tonight and the principal speakers will be George M. Gillett, president of the Minnesota Employers' association, and W. E. McEwen, state labor commissioner and secretary of the Minnesota Federation of Labor, both members of the state commission on employers' liability.

HAD TO DANCE AT POINT OF GUN

Saloon Loungers Forced to Do Tenderfoot Stunt By Louis Peterson.

Louis Peterson pulled off a near Wild West stunt on a Bowery saloon early last evening.

With a loaded revolver the police say that he had half a dozen men in the saloon dancing and jigging for all they were worth. All that was lacking to complete the Wild West part of it was the popping of the gun and the zipping of the bullets through the flor about the rapidly moving feet.

Peterson was arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons and got $100 or sixty days in the county jail. Not being supplied with funds he will board with the sheriff for a couple of months It appears that Peterson got the impression that the men in the place were not giving him sufficient room at the bar, and that he pulled the gun to get even for that imaginary grievance.

SUBMITTED TO THE DIRECTORS

Commercial Club Receives Report on Commission Form of Government.

The board of directors of the Commercial club today held a meeting in the office of the secretary of the club and received the report of the joint committee appointed by the council and the club to inquire into the commission form of government question. The report was signed by all the members and was described as a unanimous report. It was accepted by the board of directors.

It is understood that Alderman Shartel, who was chairman of the joint committee, plans to submit to the city council a minority report. He signed the report received today by the club board. It is strongly in favor of the commission form and is printed in full in another column.

The suggested modifications of the Des Moines model to fit local conditions attracted much attention and were quite generally approved by those who had an opportunity to see the report.

RELATIONS WITH CHINA

Prominent American Resident of Shanghai Will Talk to Business Men.

Dr. Gilbert Reid Tells of Scope of International Institute.

Dr. Gilbert Reid, founder and director of the International Institute of China, who will make an address at the Commercial club tomorrow night on "Commercial Relations with China," is in the city, a guest of C. E. De Witt. Dr. Reid is exceptionally well informed about Chinese affairs and has made speeches before commercial gatherings in many of the larger cities.

The institute of which he is the head is located at Shanghai and it is a most remarkable one. It was founded for the purpose of bringing about closer relations between the Chinese and the people of other nations and is doing its work well. Dr. Reid left China last May with an appointment from the authorities of the institution to present to the people of this country a clearer understanding of conditions in the Orient and arouse a more intelligent interest in Oriental questions. America is influential in China and this country's opportunities there are great in a commercial way, Mr. Reid says.

Dr. Reid has addressed the commercial organizations of New York city, Cincinnati, Buffalo and Chicago, among others, and from here he will go to the Twin Cities. From there he will go to the cotton belt, where interest in China is more acute than in any other place in the United States.

"The institute at Shanghai is nothing like the American commercial organization," said Dr. Reid this morning. "It has some similarity to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, on a smaller scale, and is primarily designed to be an agency for the advancement of learning, of knowledge and the spreading of enlightenment. It has scope for special research work and it labors in co-operation with the government of China. The institute has assisted in the establishment by the government of Western systems of education, which has just been adopted, and its activities extend in every direction. It is not unlike the International Association of Conciliation societies, which has headquarters in New York, and promotes peace between China and the rest of the world.

For Educated Chinese.

"It is the one organization where the intelligent Chinese and the prominent American or European united and work for co-operation, and it is the only organization under foreign control that has the sanction of the Chinese government. This sanction was first given in 1897 and then again in 1909. In the latter year the throne conferred a decoration on the largest American contributor to our support, William G. Low of New York city, a brother of Former Mayor Seth Low. The board of foreign affairs also bestowed on the institution an honorific tablet, together with $1,500 in token of its good will and approval.

"The Institution being cosmopolitan, it makes no discrimination as to religion. Representatives of all creeds are joined together in efforts to further humanitarian movements.

"We have one section known as the religious section, in which the representatives of the different religions in China confer on the best ways to prosecute missionary, insuring amicable endeavor by all sects. This section is really a congress of religions in miniature.

"Being located in Shanhai, we have a commercial section, in which the leading merchants of China and foreign merchants engaged in business in the Orient confer on trade questions and on the best ways of removing barriers to commercial progress. The Chinese chamber of commerce and the foreign chamber enjoy the advantages this section offers.

"As the institute is largely educational in character, the educational section is important and its work covers a wide field.

"Then there is the women's section, with which is affiliated the Ladies' International Tea-cup club, the first woman's club ever organized in the Orient. Women of China here associate with those of other lands.

"The institution is incorporated at Hong Kong under the British laws. A most remarkable thing about it is that the Chinese are generous supporters of the work, their contributions proving their appreciation and approval of the enterprise. The subscriptions of foreign residents of Shanghai are liberal, too. All nations are interested in the work and the benefits are common to them all.

"It was in 1904, during the China-Japanese war, that the idea of this institute accurred to me, and it is really worthy of note that within three years it had gained the sanction of the Chinese government. Two months ago the Chinese naval commission visited this country, and the admiral at its head was the president of the institution's general committee."

A large attendance is expected to hear Dr. Reid tomorrow night.

"I'M CRAZY, YOUR HONOR," SAYS PRISONER.

John Lahey, a laborer, claimed in police court this morning, when arraigned on a charge of being drunk, that he wasn't drunk. "I'm crazy, your honor," was his unexpected declaration.

The court ordered that a plea of not guilty be entered on the records and his trial set for Saturday morning. Lahey said that he thought he is entitled to an examination as to his sanity, and he will get it in probate court before being tried on the drunk charge. He came to the police station himself last night, claiming that some one was chasing him with a gun.

SCHOOLS HAVE SOLD 39,479 SEALS ALREADY

Only a small part of the returns from the sale of Red Cross seals from the various schools of the city have been received at the superintendent's office, but already the money for the sale of 39,479 seals have been sent in. These last few days are busy ones for the boys and girls who are determined that their school shall secure the prize of $10 offered to the school that sells the most seals. The contest will close Friday of this week. Every one is requested to note the change in time. It was planned at first to have this contest last until next week.

There are many boys and girls writing essays for the individual prizes offered by the Duluth committee for the best essay on "The Uses of the Red Cross Seal." The essays must be in by Friday of this week, the boys and girls to hand them to their teachers. The prizes will be awarded next week. The essay is to be not longer than 100 words and there is yet time for any boy or girl to enter the contest. Just write what you think are the best uses that the Red Cross seal can be put to and you may win the prize.

1910

Here is the way some one thought the Red Cross seal told about itself:

"I came from Denmark. Santa Claus adopted me there from a big family of brothers and sisters, and said to me, 'Every time you see a letter or a package going off to bring a Merry Christmas to somebody, you just call out to the sender, "Let me go along. I'll make your gift more enjoyable; I'll bring more happiness than you can think of." And then, said Santa Claus to me, "folks will stick you to their letters and parcels and send you all over the world." I was so glad when he told me that, but I was happier still, when a pretty lady with a bright red cross on her sleeve, just like the one on my face, said to a man who wanted me, 'He costs only a penny, and every penny you give for him goes to cure and prevent that awful plague, consumption.' The man listened intently and then he said, 'I'll take $10 worth.' Wasn't I glad? I was helping him to bring a Merry Christmas and I was helping the pretty lady to fight consumption. How happy I was to think that Santa Claus adopted me over in Denmark six years ago!"

RAILROADS

SURVEYORS ARE RUNNING LINES

Work Being Done in Marshall and Beltrami Counties Starts Rumors.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.) — Settlers northeast of Thief River Falls report that surveyors are running lines through Eastern Marshall and Northwestern Beltrami counties. These engineers inform the farmers that they are ditch viewers—a statement hardly credited as all the great ditching projects in that territory have been located, viewed and contracts let for their construction.

Within the last three years several railroad parties have run lines from this city northeasterly towards the Canadian boundary, ostensibly with a terminus at International Falls. The region within these surveys is the only rich territory left in the Northwest not traversed by a railway line, and the company first entering it is assured of an abundant return.

It is probable that the surveyors at work in this territory represent one of the two competing lines which are striving to get possession of the bulk of the railway business in this northwestern part of the state.

FIXES UNIT OF OFFENSE.

Court Sustains the Federal Safety Appliance Act.

New Orleans, Dec. 14.—In an opinion sustaining the safety appliance act of congress and giving to it a broader application than has heretofore been recorded, the United States circuit court of appeals for the Fifth circuit holds that the use of each defective car in a train is the unit of offense.

If as many as twenty cars not equipped as required by the act are used in one train, an equal number of penalties may be recovered, and the court held that even the mere coupling with other cars in a train of such defective cars, were such train engaged in interstate commerce, is a violation of the law.

The opinion was handed down in the case of the government against the St. Louis & Southwestern Railroad company, which came up on appeal from the Eastern district of Texas.

Rossteuscher, who was made prisoner late yesterday afternoon after he had defied a posse all day, died last night. It has not been determined whether he was shot by a member of the posse or shot himself.

The streets of the city are in a slippery condition, and those on the hillsides are especially dangerous, all of them being used by the youngsters for skiing and coasting.

LAST COMPANY PLEADS GUILTY

Chemical Paper Concern Is Fined $1,000 Under Sherman Law.

New York, Dec. 14.—The Chemical Paper company, one of the forty corporations composing the American Paper Board association, all of which were indicted by the federal grand jury a year ago for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, today withdrew its plea of not guilty entered at the time of the indictmen, and pleaded guily.

Judge Hough, in the United States circuit court, imposed a fine of $1,000 on the company and at the request of United States District Attorney Door, quashed the individual indictment found at the same time against F. W. Newton, president of the company.

The other thirty-nine companies pleaded guilty when the indictments were returned and were fined $2,000 each.

BILL ALMOST COMPLETED

Employers' Liability Commission Will Report at Opening of Legislative Session.

George M. Gillett and W. E. McEwen to Speak at Open Meeting.

The employers' liability bill, which is being drafted by the commission appointed in 1909 by Governor Johnson to investigate the subject, will be completed next week and, with the report of the commission, will be ready for submission to the legislature at the beginning of the coming session, according to George M. Gillett of Minneapolis, one of the commissioners.

Mr. Gillett and W. E. McEwen, who is also a member of the commission, are in Duluth today and tonight at the Commercial club they will speak on the subject at an open meeting under the auspices of the Minnesota Association of Builders' Exchanges. H. V. Mercer, the other member of the commission, was unable to come to Duluth for tonight's meeting, as he is still suffering from a slight injury sustained last week.

"The subject of employers' liability and workingmen's compensation is a large one and must be approached carefully and with absolute fairness to all parties concerned," said Mr. Gillett this morning. "We have given careful study to the subject since our appointment and the bill we submit to the legislature will be the result of that study, which extended to the countries of Europe and the states of the United States which have laws on the subject."

ANDY H. JONES MAY BE FREED

Former Rugby Banker Hoping to Leave Federal Prison.

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Friends of Andy H. Jones, the convicted Rugby banker, see hope of his early release from the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., since the Federal government has adopted the parole system. The well-behaved prisoners can secure parole at the expiration of one-third of their sentence. Jones was sentenced last February to ten years, and his friends are already planned to have him out on parole as soon as the necessary time expires. Jones was president of a national bank at Rugby, which was wrecked as a result of his exploits in frenzied finance. He was captured in the extreme southern part of Texas some months afterwards. Some Minnesota bankers were among his victims.

CANADIANS URGE THAT CANALS BE HURRIED.

Ottawa, Ont., Dec., 14.—Large delegations from different sections of Canada urged the government to begin work on two canal projects, either of which would involve the expenditure of $100,000,000. An Ottawa-Montreal delegation favored the immediate construction of the Georgian Bay canal. It was urged that the proposed deepening of the Welland canal in conjunction with the building of the Oswego canal would tend to divert the grain traffic of the Canadian West to New York instead of Montreal.

The second delegation, representing towns and boards of trade in Western Ontario, demanded that the Welland canal be first enlarged. The cost of deepening the Welland canal to twenty-five feet is estimated at $25,000,000. The completion of the waterway to Montreal would necessitate the expenditure of an additional $75,000,000.

Sir Wilfred Laurier said the government favored both projects and that the question of money was the only thing that deterred it from beginning the work. Both canals eventually must be provided, but in well-informed circles it is believed that neither project will be undertaken for some years.

DISTRICT JUDGE IS INJURED HERE

Judge McClenahan Falls on Duluth Street Fracturing Bone of Wrist.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge W. S. McClenahan of the district court sustained a painful injury while at Duluth last Saturday. In company with his court reporter, George W. Moody, he left the Holland hotel at night, and as he stepped from the pavement to the street he slipped and fell. He supposed at the time that it was a strain to his left hand.

On Sunday he saw Dr. J. L. Camp, who examined it and found that the judge had broken one of the bones of his wrist. On Monday morning Judge McClenahan took his seat on the bench and attempted to hold court, but the injury pained him so much that he was unable to concentrate his mind on the business of the court, which was adjourned to yesterday morning. Although his hand caused him much trouble, he listened to one case and heard thirteen applications for citizenship papers. Court was then adjourned to Dec. 27.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 14.—At a meeting of the executive council of the Minnesota Historical society in the old capitol Monday night G. S. Ives, formerly lieutenant governor, was elected member of the council to take the place of Channing Seabury, deceased.

The president of the society was authorized to appoint a committee to go before Governor Eberhart to ask him to recommend in his message to the legislature an appropriation for the erection of a new building for the society. It was suggested that the governor recommend an appropriation sufficient to erect a complete building or at least $200,000 to build a wing to be completed and added to later.

Biographical sketches of Channing Seabury, Judge Francis M. Crosby, and Father Ambrose McNulty were read.

FAIR

Discontented seekers after ideal weather conditions may flee to California, Florida, Cuba and other resorts, but they are missing something. The wise ones stay right here in Duluth and not all are held here by force of circumstances either. Last night was just beautiful and today merits the application of the same adjective. Continued fair weather is promised, with a little more snap to the air tonight.

A year ago today was a delightful winter day.

The sun rose this morning at 7:47 and it will set at 4:19, giving eight hours and thirty-one minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The Alberta-Saskatchewan disturbance has moved its center to the Hudson bay country, its easterly advance resulting in milder weather throughout the entire lake region and Upper Mississippi and Upper Ohio valleys and snow over Lakes Erie and Ontario and the St. Lawrence valley and high southwest winds over most of the lower lake region, Buffalo reporting a velocity of fifty-two miles per hour. Some rain has fallen over Louisiana and Texas, due to a depression overlying Western Mexico. The barometer is high over the Southern states and the plateau region. Freezing temperatures continue as far south as Alabama."

General Forecasts.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday:

Upper Michigan—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; colder Thursday and in north central portion tonight.

Wisconsin and Iowa—Fair tonight and Thursday; moderate temperature.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Thursday; cooler in north portion tonight.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Thursday; cooler tonight.

Shippers forecast: Protect thirty-six-hour shipments of perishables against temperatures of 10 deg. to 20 deg. above zero in the Dakotas and Minnesota and 20 deg. in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

WEST END

CO-OPERATION OF CHURCHES

West End Congregations Will Work With Associated Charities.

Will Care for Poor Families in Large District of City.

West end churches will co-operate with the Associated Charities in the work of caring for the city's poor.

Courtenay Dinwiddie, secretary of the Associated Charities, this morning held a conference with the pastors of the various West end churches and the sense of the meeting was that they would assist Mr. Dinwiddie in his work in every possible way.

A systematic plan was hit upon and that section of the city between Twenty-first avenue west and the ore docks was the district alloted to the churches, both Catholic and Protestant. Whenever a new case comes to the attention of any pastor, he will report it to Mr. Dinwiddie.

West of the ore docks, Thirty-second avenue west, the West Duluth branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union has agreed to co-operate with the Associated Charities in the work of looking after the needy.

Most of the West end churches will furnish Christmas dinners to the poor of their congregations. Sunday evening at the Swedish Mission church, Twenty-first avenue west and Second street, a free-will offering will be taken up at the church door for the benefit of the poor on Christmas. There will be a special song service at this church Sunday evening.

The conference this morning between Mr. Dinwiddie and the West end pastors was held at the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church, Twenty-fourth avenue west and Third street, and was well attended.

FRENCH HEELS BARRED IN MINNEAPOLIS HIGH.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 14.—French heels in Minneapolis high schools are doomed by the physical director, and Minneapolis high school girls have been told they can not wear them.

The effect of this order will be felt after Jan. 1, when the new gymnasium at the South High school is opened and a woman physical instructor placed in charge.

Dr. C. H. Keene, the physical director, has observed that a large number of the high school girls wear French heels and suffer from deformed feet, which have to be cured by physical culture.

NO WORD ABOUT THE ELECTIONS

Roosevelt Makes His Scheduled Address at New Haven.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 14.—Ex-President Roosevelt's first political speech since the recent election, was delivered here last night at a dinner given him by the New Haven Chamber of Commerce. Col. Roosevelt made no reference to the recent elections, or to current political subjects. He confined himself to a reiteration of broad political doctrines to which he gave expression many times during his speaking trips of the last summer, saying he was glad to make in Connecticut just such a speech as he had made to former gatherings in the West.

Governor-elect Simeon E. Baldwin's place at the banquet table was vacant. There were no new developments in Col. Roosevelt's controversy with Judge Baldwin during the colonel's stay here.

Calls Himself Radical.

Col. Roosevelt defined his attitude on policies in these words:

"I am a radical, but I am a radical who earnestly desires to see a radical program carried out by conservatives."

He again declared his faith in efficient regulation of corportations by the Federal government, and defended his attitude by asserting that he sought not to controvert the Constitution, but to help in bringing about the fulfillment of its purposes.

Later Col. Roosevelt started for Boston, where he will speak tonight.

Governor Weeks was not present to represent the state, nor was any member of the congressional delegation present, but the absence was due to other engagements.

Col. Roosevelt was greeted with cheers which lasted fully a minute when he rose to speak.

Praised Taft's Action.

"It seems to me nothing could be a better augury of the future of this republic," he said, "than that a Republican president should appoint an ex-Confederate, of opposite political faith, chief justice of the United States supreme court and receive the unanimous applause of his countrymen.

"With the permission of your president I shall propose two toasts:

"First to President Taft and second to that learned jurist, Chief Justice White."

DIVORCE CASE IN DISTRICT COURT

Brookston Woman Asks Decree on Grounds of Cruel Treatment.

On the ground of inhuman treatment, Mrs. Mabel Brittany of Brookston, Minn., asks a divorce from her husband, Fred Brittany.

Mrs. Brittany appeared before Judge Dibell of the district court yesterday and gave evidence in the action. She desired the custody of their 2-year-old son.

They were married at Mattawamkeag, Me., in 1900. She alleges that in August of this year he threw a rocking chair at her. In September she claims that he blackened her eyes and threatened to put her in her coffin.

He is said to have written the following to his wife after she started the divorce action. The letter was introduced in evidence:

"If you get a divorce, I'll make life as miserable for you as I can and I hope you will live to be 100 years old so I can have plenty of time. This is no idle threat but I will be so cruel to you that my former cruelties will look a picnic to you."

PIERCE BUTLER TO FIGHT BEEF TRUST.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Because United States District Attorney Soms and his assistants were overloaded with regular work at Chicago, the department of justice has arranged for a special trial force to conduct the prosecutions pending under the anti-trust law against the packers recently indicted at Chicago.

The prosecution will be under the direction of the attorney general, but will be conducted by James Wilkerson, J. M. Shean, Elwood Godman, Burton Corneau, all of Chicago, and Pierce Butler of St. Paul. W. S. Kenyon, assistant to the attorney general, will assist in the trial.

OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED.

Maj. A. M. Diggles' Camp, U. S. W. V., Will Hold Installation.

The election of officers of Maj. A. M. Diggles camp, No. 13, United Spanish War Veterans, was held last evening and the officers elected at the organization of the camp a short time ago were re-elected. The officers will be installed at the first meeting in January

Lieut.-Col. Charles E. Johnson of the Fourteenth Minnesota Volunteers, a resident of Mankato, Minn.; Lieut. Christian Briand, United States cavalry, the recruiting officer at Duluth, and W. C. Kimball, Joseph Carhart and Paul Clarkson were elected members of the camp. Several new members were mustered in and the new camp now has fifty-one members.

After the completion of the business of last night's meeting, a social session was held. Louis Larson presented the camp with a gavel, hand-carved, with the emblem of the "military order of the serpent," all his own work.

MOOSE AND DEER SEIZED BY WARDENS.

One moose and four deer passed through the city last night on the way to the state fish and game commission at St. Paul.

The venison was seized near Hill City and the shipment made from Swan River. The carcasses were in charge of the Great Northern Express company.

The moose was a large specimen and weighed close to 1,200 pounds. The deer were all of ordinary size.

The game wardens in the northern part of the state are particularly active this year. The commission at St. Paul has sent them word to be on the job all the time, that the big game of this part of the state may be protected.

HUSTON GUILTY OF MISUSE OF MAILS

Former United States Treasurer Convicted of Fraud.

Washington, Dec. 14.—James N. Huston, treasurer of the United States from 1889 to 1891, was convicted last night together with Harvey M. Lewis of Cincinnati and Everett Du Four of this city by a jury in the criminal court on indictments charging the use of the mails to defraud in connection with the operation of the National Trust company and other concerns.

The trial lasted five weeks, but the jury was out only a few hours. The maximum penalty for the offense is two years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000.

The three men were allowed to remain at liberty on their bond, pending the hearing of a motion for a new trial, which will be made within a few days.

The men were indicted Jan. 30 last by the federal grand jury following a raid on the offices of the National Trust company, which was incorporated in Delaware with a capital stock of $1,000,000. It is alleged it guaranteed the stock of other companies on a commission basis. The inspectors declared at that time that they failed to find any funds to support the guaranty assertions.

BALLOT FRAUD WORSE THAN KILLING PRESIDENT.

Camden, N. J., Dec. 14.—Ballot frauds were declared a worse crime against national institutions than the assassination of presidents, by Supreme Court Justice Garrison in his charge to the grand jury which will consider a number of alleged election crimes committed in this county.

"It has been the unfortunate history of this nation to have three of its presidents assassinated," he said, "but terrible as those things were, they had no tendency to destroy the institutions of our government. But a single suppression by fraud or force of the right of suffrage strikes at the institutions of the government more than would any number of assassinations of presidents or judges or any other set of officials."

WANTS KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS OUSTED

Brooklyn Man Attacks Order in New York State.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Attorney General O'Malley has received a communication from Milton Bucky of New York, a lawyer, asking him to begin an action against the Knights of Phythias, one of the largest fraternal organizations, to cancel its certificate to conduct a life insurance business in this state. He also asks that the order be enjoined from doing any further business in New York.

Mr. Bucky, acting for Thomas Barber of Brooklyn, alleges that information furnished by the supreme lodge of the order shows that at the present time it is carying insurance of the fourth class amounting to $20,667,500, with cash on hand to pay this totalling $615,568.

The attorney-general has taken the letter under advisement.

SAY REPORT IS COLORED.

American Publishers Criticize Consul at Quebec.

New York, Dec. 14.—The paper committees of the American Newspaper Publishers' association has sent a letter to the government tariff board stating that the United States consul at Quebec, in reporting upon the available pulpwood supply for American paper mills in private forests in Quebec, "has suppressed data that had been furnished to the consul by the highest official authority in that provice and that province that the consule has misrepresented the situation."

The consul's report said that the recent prohibitions "will not have the effect of reducing the quantity of pulp wood for export for some years to come and perhaps never," implying that all the present needs of the American market, 1,000,000 cords of pulp wood per annum, could be obtained from private forests. But, according to the committee the suppressed data from official sources showed that only 330,000 cords per annum under present restrictions would be available for the American market.

On behalf of these who pay $60,000,000 per annum for news print paper, the committee "protests against one-sided and colored reports."

REFUSE JEWS EQUAL RIGHTS IN FINLAND.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 14.—The duma committee on the bill defining the rights of Russian subjects in Finland has rejected an amendment giving the Jews equal rights. The Octoberists favored subsequent legislation. The Democrats refrained from voting because they were opposed to interfering in Finnish affairs.

Nations Make Up.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 14.—Friendly relations were re-established yesterday between Argentina and Bolivia. The trouble between the two countries originated in Bolivia's resentment of the decision rendered by President Alcorta, the arbitrator of the Bolivia-Peru boundary dispute, it being alleged that he had favored Peru.

Old Fire Kills Two.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 14.—Two men were killed and five injured in the Northwestern Improvement company mine at Ravensdale, as the result of an explosion of gas. Fire which had been smouldering in the workings of the mine had eaten into the gangway.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF LEGISLATORS AND POLITICIANS

Dunn Says the Speakership Fight Is Over, But Burnquist Refuses to Quit the Fight—Congressman Lindbergh's Letter to Sixth District Papers—La Follette Presidential Boom Is on in Minnesota.

Dunn Considers Fight Ended

Although J. A. A. Burnquist of St. Paul persists in saying the speakership fight has not been won or lost. H. H. Dunn of Albert Lea. declares it is over and he "is going ahead making up the committees." "I have enough votes pledged to insure my election and there is no indication that any of them will get away from me," said Mr. Dunn. "I am certain the men who have said they will support me mean it and I don't see where Mr. Burnquist has any excuse for continuing the fight."

Mr. Burnquist has not threatened to carry the fight on to the floor of the house if he fails in the Republican caucus, but he does say he will not be out of the race until the votes are counted. He said yesterday he had received word from the Ninth district that that delegation is staying by him.

P. J. Youngdahl, until lately state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, is blamed by the Dunn men for Burnquist's persistence in the contest.

The Minnesota Mascot takes a rap at the Twin City delegation's course in the speakership fight, saying of Dunn that he has little legislative experience and that his election would be a victory for the cities as against the country. The Mascot praises Burnquist as a young progressive.

W. D. Washburn, Jr., chairman of the Hennepin delegation, discussing the speakership situation, said:

"While I have hitherto made no comment on Mr. Burnquist and his theories of political ethics, I want to state that Mr. Burnquist expressed violent indignation when certain of his friends went back on their pledges to himself and cast their votes for Mr. Spooner. He now uses every effort to induce the Hennepin county delegation to do the same thing. Saturday afternoon Mr. Burnquist spent two hours endeavoring to persuade me to assist him in undermining the Hennepin county delegation to do the same thing. Saturday afternoon Mr. Burnquist spent two hours endeavoring to persuade me to assist him in undermining the Hennepin county delegation, so that it should break its pledge for Mr. Dunn and vote for himself. He even advanced the argument that other friends of his own had broken their pledges, which was a reason that the Hennepin county delegation should do the same thing.

"He not only felt that this was right and proper, but when my slow mind refused to follow, he advanced various contrivances whereby the delegation could be sapped without the apparent assistance of myself. I flatly refused to do anything of the sort.

"'Now, with the full knowledge of the fact that nearly every member of the delegation had already refused to break its pledge, Mr. Youngdahl and Mr. Burquist make the deliberate statement that they have nine votes and they send the news to all parts of the state to hold their own men in line."

Mr. Lindbergh And The "Old Guard."

The Menahga Journal mentions that it has received from Congressman C. A. Lindbergh a letter telling about conditions at Washington, "in which he deplores the fact that it will be necessary for the insurgent members to mingle with the defeated members of the 'old guard' during the short session." The Journal suggests that if he finds the association so obnoxious, "he could easily remedy the matter by sending in his resignation."

In this letter, which is published by many Sixth district papers, Mr. Lindbergh says:

> In the closing session of the old congress it is easily discovered that the Constitution miscarried in not providing that a new congress should begin by holding the first session following its election.
>
> In the first place, the people should have an opportunity to judge of the entire work of congress before being forced finally to pass on it.
>
> In the second place, no one defeated by the voters should be continued in service. That is especially noticeable in the beginning of this session.
> In spite of the fact that the old congress was disapproved of, it is going to do business largely under control of the old guard. The people have vetoed many of its members, but they are still on the job, some of them venting their bitterness of defeat in cursing their constituents. A great deal of harm might be done in a short session by disgruntled members.
> There is, however, generally evidenced a disposition to repair. Many were reminded by the election that they are after all only servants, and in a desire to reinstate themselves in the people's confidence, may be expected to take greater interest in the people's cause. Unless some members should resort to filibuster, and it to be tolerated, the short session may turn out some desirable new legislation, but it is doubtful that much will be done.

Congressman Lindbergh announces that he will from time to time send similar communications to the papers, as he did during the last session.

La Follette Is Boomed For President.

Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin is being put forward by a number of Minnesota newspapers as the best man available for the Republican nomination for president two years hence. The Wisconsin senator is praised as the foremost leader of the progressive movement and an ardent, unfailing advocate of measures in the interest of all the people. The Cannon Falls Beacon is epecially eloquent in its espousal of the La Follette cause, saying in part:

> Among the able and courageous leaders of the forward movement, some of whom have long service and distinguished accomplishments to their credit, there are none in quite the same class of merit as Robert M. La Follette. In the bright lexicon of the little giant of Wisconsin there is no such word as compromise. His principles are well defined; his methods clear cut; he neither asks nor gives quarter in the fight which for more than twenty years he has continuously waged against ambitious rivals, backed by corporate power and unscrupulous and tyrannical wealth.
> The old leaders flattered themselves however that doing things with the legislature of the state of Wisconsin and with the United States senate were contrasting propositions, and that when the "organization" put the steam roller of senatorial custom and personal discourtesy over him a few times he would be reduced to his proper place in the rear rank and would be seen little and heard less.
>
> The senatorial conspiracy persisted and the senator from Wisconsin met it bravely and always in the spirit and with the manner and language of the gentleman. He was absolutely sure not only that he was right and that the conspirators were wrong, but he knew that eventually he would win and they would lose. Undismayed he forged ahead, winning his way into the confidence of the people and into the deadlier enmity of the leaders of the old regime. No one dreamed, even so late as two years ago, of the rapid development of the progressive sentiment that has already retired several of the vicious leaders and that changed the policy of the Taft administration; but the seed of insurgency had been sown broadcast by La Follette on the lecture platform for years, and when it germinated its growth was astonishing. There is no question of La Follette having been the main publicity agent of the new movement. His daring, when he stood alone, to demand the dethronement of "Big Business" in the congress made present success possible.

Senate Combine To Hold a Confab.

Tomorrow afternon at the Minnesota club in St. Paul there will be a meeting, it is said, of the men who rule the state senate, commonly designated "the senate combine." Some of the old guard will be missing from this gathering, for they failed to "come back," and as a result the senate machine will be assembled and set up without their help. Lieutenant Governor E. E. Smith, however, will be there, it is reported, to give the political mechanics the advantage of his deep learning.

Senate patronage will be parceled out at this meeting and other phases of session plans elaborated. Contests are to be decided by the senate and the combine may decide now what shall be done in each case. These contests are between A. D. Stephens and John Saugstad of Polk, Ray G. Farrington and S. J. Froshaug in the Fifty-sixth, S. D. Works and Ben Taylor of Mankato, and Henry J. Emmel and J. J. Hamann of St. Cloud.

There are expected to be thirty-two senators at this meeting, two or more of them Democrats. The senate combine is a non-partisan organization, for the most part.

GARMENT WORKERS REJECT SETTLEMENT.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—A plan for the settlement of the garment workers' strike submitted by Hart, Schaffner & Marx, and approved by the Chicago Federation of Labor, was not accepted by the strikers. The arbitration plan was not submitted to all the strikers as had been planned, only a small proportion voting.

At a meeting of 5,000 strikers they demanded that the closed shop agreement be incorporated in any settlement plan before they would cast a vote. In another meeting 6,000 strikers, by a rising vote, agreed not to accept the settlement plan and no ballots were cast.

MRS. SHONTS' CASE IS SETTLED BY MR. LOEB.

New York, Dec. 14.—Collector Loeb has disposed of the case of Mrs. Theodore P. Shonts, wife of the head of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, by assessing $10,800, the usual 60 per cent duty, on jewelry appraised at $18,000, which was taken from Mrs. Shonts when she arrived from Europe last week. Mrs. Shonts did not declare the jewelry which she had obtained in Paris in exchange for jewelry on which she had already paid duty in this country.

The customs duty regulations state that "no seizure should be made in the absence of clear evidence of fraudulent intent," and Collector Loeb cited this in giving his decision.

J. FREDERIC BAARS, JR., SAW ALEX GLENN LAST.

Alex Glenn, the timber cruiser, who has been missing for some months, was, so far as is known, last seen by J. Frederic Baars, Jr.

At that time Glenn was sitting on a log beside the railroad track of the Spring mine extension, six miles northeast of the mine location. He was leaning forward with his elbows on his knees and his head in his hands.

Mr. Baars says that he thinks this was the last time the man was seen. The land he was sent out to look over was but a short distance from the point at which he was last seen. The work would have taken him but a day and he had provisions for but that length of time. He has now been missing for several months.

A body that was at first supposed to be that of Glenn was found some time ago in the Dunker river, but it was later identified as that of another man.

MRS. SCHENK WILL MAKE INSANITY PLEA.

Wheeling, W. Va., Dec. 14.—Insanity will be alleged in defense of Laura Farnsworth Schenk, who is charged with the attempted murder of her husband, John O. Schenk, by poison, according to affidavits filed by her lawyers in support of a motion for postponement of her trial. Judge Jordan of the criminal court granted the postponement from Dec. 19 to Jan. 9 on the ground that the depositions of witnesses outside this state were wanted to go to prove that the defendant inherited unsoundness of mind. For another month, until the trial, Mrs. Schenk will remain in the county jail where she has been since Nov. 9, when she was arrested.

THREE SUICIDES ON 13TH IN PITTSBURG.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 14.—Three persons ended their lives in Pittsburg yesterday, one woman and two men. An unidentified man jumped from a bridge into the Monogahela river and was drowned. His body has not been recovered. Dr. Francis Vincent Fly, a well known physician, made a few professional calls early in the day and, returning home, kissed his wife and two sons then shot himself and died. He had been ill for some time. The body of Mrs. Nellie Brewer Tiggelbeck, wife of Mounted Policeman Henry H. Tiggelbeck, was found on the floor of their kitchen. They had quarreled and she shot herself.

PEANUT FATAL FOR BABY.

Eau Claire, Wis., Dec. 14.—Picking up a peanut on the floor and swallowing it before his mother could interfere, proved fatal for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Matson Walker, residing near Durand, as the child choked to death, the peanut lodging in the windpipe.

Eau Claire Man Hurt.

Eau Claire, Wis., Dec. 14.—Run over by a heavy oil wagon which he was driving, George F. Garnett, driver of one of the wagons of the Standard Oil company, was taken to a local hospital with a broken collar bone, seven broken ribs and perhaps serious internal injuries as a result of the accident.

F. B. KELLOGG TALKS RATES

Says Government Never Will Get Them Low as They Were.

He Urges Commission for Control of Railroad Tariffs.

New York, Dec. 14.—Frank B. Kellogg, who was special counsel for the government as a prosecutor of railroads and trusts, spoke of railroad regulation last night at the first banquet of the Economic Club of New York.

"The American people," said Mr. Kellogg, "do not wish to, and could not if they did, under this constitutional government, destroy or confiscate the property of railroads or corporations. Agitations may do harm, but wrongs breed agitation, and agitation leads to reform. What the American people have done during the nearly forty years of legislation and experience is to establish a policy for the control of transportation lines and great aggregations of capital in corporate effort. I maintain the wisdom and the necessity for such reasonable control. It has been adopted by the deliberate judgment of the nation, and, in my opinion, has come to stay.

The Days of Rebates.

"Are you willing to return to the days when railroads discriminated and paid rebates? I know whereof I speak and I say that prior to 1903 few if any of the large shippers in this country paid the tariff rates. In my opinion, no lasting prosperity, no permanent industrial growth, could possibly be based upon such an unstable, corrupt and dishonest system.

"I do not believe that the government will ever reduce rates as low as the railroad managers reduced them during the years of paying rebates and cutting rates.

"The only way to control rates is by inquiring into their reasonableness through a commission created with power to fix them subject to the judgment of this nation, expressed through the laws of all the states and the federal government, is that great aggregations of wealth should be controlled."

KEEPING A LINE ON WASHINGTON DOINGS

Getting On the Band Wagon.

The senate listened to the first tariff debate of the session yesterday, and while necessarily the discussion was largely academic, it served to develop the important fact that some senators, among them Messrs. Lodge and Aldrich, are willing to join with Western associates in the piecemeal revision of the tariff.

The subject came up on a motion to refer to the committe on rules the Cummins joint resolution, providing for the limitation of the power to amend bills looking to the modification of paragraphs and schedules of the Payne-Aldrich bill. Mr. Cummins contended that unless the rules of the two houses were amended there would be no possibility of amending the tariff with the consequence that it must remain as it is until "the people in their indignation and wrath rise up and compel a general revision."

Friar Lands Again.

The Philippine Friar land transactions were again under investigation by the house committee on insular affairs. Representative Martin of Colorado continued his statement elaborating the charges against the manner in which those estates had been handled in the Philippine government. Dean C. Worcester, secretary of the interior of the Philippine islands and Frank W. Carpenter, executive secretary of the Philippine government, were present. Capt. T. H. Sleeper, director of lands of the Philippine government, testified that when E. L. Poole, who has figured in Mr. Martin's charges, called upon him, he denied that he was representing the sugar syndicate.

Discuss Tariff Commission.

The creation of a tariff commission to colect and assemble tariff data, but not to make recommendations, may result from a dicussion at a hearing before the house committee on ways and means. Representatives Good of Iowa and Lenroot of Wisconsin, Republican insurgents, and John C. Cobb of Boston, president of the National Tariff Commission league, will endeavor to harmonize the differences and frame a substitute bill. Representative Payne of New York, chairman of the committee and Republican floor leader, opposed the action. Mr. Fordney of Michigan, Republican stand-patter on the committee and owner of large lumber interests, objected to a tariff commission on the ground that it would keep up agitation and business unrest. Mr. Lenroot argued that a commission would solve tariff problems and end business unrest.

The principle difference is over tenure of ofice of the members of the commission, as to whether its members serve five or ten years. Advocates of the long service claim that business interests would be better served by the less frequent changes in personnel.

LAW INDEFINITE; RULING DESIRED

Question of Ownership of Penalty and Interest on Assessment Levies.

Grand Forks, N. D., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Every township in North Dakota is interested in an action that will be brought in the district court of Grand Forks county to determine whether the county, the municipal, or the township corporation that levies special assessments is entitled to the penalty and interest collected on such assessment by the county. The action will be brought by this city against Grand Forks county as a result of the county commissioners refusing to make such payment of interest and penalty to the city.

When special assessments are certified to the county auditor for collection, and the time passed in which such taxes are to be collected and they become delinquent, penalty and interest is added. Heretofore it has been the custom of the counties to retain the penalty and interest so collected, contending that it is entitled to such money for making the collection. On the other hand the cities contend that the collection of the money is paid for in the 1 mill allowance that is made.

In Grand Forks, where the special assessments are large, the penalty and interest collected amounts to several thousand dollars a year. The city's contention is that the penalty and interest collected is to reimburse the city for interest that it is obliged to pay because it does not have the tax in question before the time it becomes delinquent.

The law on the question is very indefinite and an effort will be made this winter to clear up the questionable points.

PROPOSE HALF HOLIDAY.

Traill County Sunday School Workers Would Stop Sunday Baseball.

Hillsboro, N. D., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—To stop Sunday baseball playing the Traill county Sunday school workers propose at the annual meeting of the association, just held, that business men throughout the county give employes a half holiday for ball playing.

Sunday school people also will ask that the merchants and other business men who assist in supporting the "home team" by cash subscription or otherwise, refrain from doing so when Sunday ball is played, agreeing to come to the front liberally in case Sunday play is banished and the Saturday afternoon rule is adopted.

The association has also adopted resolutions favoring the very strictest enforcement of the state anti-cigarette law, and will take steps to assist the state's attorney in compelling complance with this measure so far as Traill county is concerned.

SEIDEL WILL SPEAK.

At Dedication Next Sunday of Negaunee's New Labor Temple.

Negaunee, Mich., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Elaborate preparations are being made for the dedication next Sunday afternoon and evening of the new Labor temple.

Emil Seidel, the Socialist mayor of Milwaukee, will speak in the afternoon and in the evening a historical drama in five acts, entitled "Daniel Hjort," will be presented. In addition to Mr. Seidel's address in the afternoon, a musical program will be given by the Negaunee Italian band and a Negaunee choir. Mr. Seidel will speak at 2 o'clock. The admission will be 50 cents. In addition to the drama in the evening there will be several musical numbers, including selections by a large orchestra.

NORTH DAKOTA HATCHERY SECURES WATER SUPPLY.

Rolla, N. D., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the construction of a drain leading from Garber lake to Gravel lake the probability that the state fish hatchery at Fish lake would be obliged to suspend operations, is done away with. Because of the low water during the last year, Gravel lake, from which the state hatchery secures its supply of water, went dry, and to obtain the same kind of water it was necessary to drain Garber lake. The newly constructed drain, which has just been completde, does this and in that manner the work of the hatchery will not be in any manner interrupted.

Presbyterians Reject Immersion.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 14.—A movement to substitute immersional baptism for the sprinkling method now employed by the Presbyterian church in the United States was approved in the report of a committee yesterday, but was finally defeated by a large majority. The movement, altogether a futile one, was regarded as important for the fact that the Presbyterian headquarters are nominally in Pittsburg.

What About Brain Food?

This Question Came Up in the Recent Trial for Libel.

A "Weekly" printed some criticisms of the claims made for our foods. It evidently did not fancy our reply printed in various newspapers, and brought suit for libel. At the trial some interesting facts came out.

Some of the chemical and medical experts differed widely.

The following facts, however, were quite clearly established:

Analysis of brain by an unquestionable authority, Geoghegan, shows of Mineral Salts, Phosphoric Acid and Potash combined (Phosphate of Potash), 2.91 per cent of the total, 5.33 of all Mineral Salts.

This is over one-half.

Beaunis, another authority, shows "Phosphoric Acid combined" and Potash 73.44 per cent from a total of 101.07.

Considerable more than one-half of Phosphate of Potash.

Analysis of Grape-Nuts shows: Potassium and Phosphorus, (which join and make Phosphate of Potash), is considerable more than one-half of all the mineral salts in the food.

Dr. Geo. W. Carey, an authority on the constituent elements of the body, says: "The gray matter of the brain is controlled entirely by the inorganic cell-salt Potassium Phosphate (Phosphate of Potash.) This salt unites with albumen and by the addition of oxygen creates nerve fluid or the gray matter of the brain. Of course, there is a trace of other salts and other organic matter in nerve fluid, but Potassium Phosphate is the chief factor, and has the power within itself to attract, by its own law of affinity, all things needed to manufacture the elixir of life."

Further on he says: "The beginning and end of the matter is to supply the lacking principle, and in molecular form, exactly as nature furnishes it in vegetables, fruits and grain. To supply deficiencies—this is the only law of cure."

The natural conclusion is that if Phosphate of Potash is the needed mineral element in brain and you use food which does not contain it, you have brain fag because its daily loss is not supplied.

On the contrary, if you eat food known to be rich in this element you place before the nerve forces that which nature demands for brain-building.

In the trial a sneer was uttered because Mr. Post announced that he had made years of research in this country and some clinics of Europe, regarding the effect of the mind on digestion of food.

But we must be patient with those who sneer at facts they know nothing about.

Mind does not work well on a brain that is broken down by lack of nourishment.

A peaceful and evenly poised mind is necessary to good digestion.

Worry, anxiety, fear, hate, etc., etc., directly interfere with or stops the flow of Ptyalin, the digestive juice of the mouth, and also interferes with the flow of the digestive juices of stomach and pancreas.

Therefore, the mental state of the individual has much to do (more than suspected) with digestion.

This trial has demonstrated:

That Brain is made of Phosphate of Potash as the principal Mineral Salt, added to albumen and water.

That Grape-Nuts contains that element as more than one-half of all its mineral salts.

A healthy brain is important, if one would "do things" in this world.

A man who sneers at "Mind" sneers at the best and least understood part of himself. That part which some folks believe links us to the Infinite.

Mind asks for a healthy brain upon which to act, and Nature has defined a way to make a healthy brain and renew it day by day as it is used up from work of the previous day.

Nature's way to rebuild is by the use of food which supplies the things required.

SEARCHING THE COUNTRY FOR HIS MISSING SISTER

John Bohlin, automobile driver at the police department, has been prosecuting a country-wide search for his sister, Margaret Matilda Bohlin, for over twelve years. He has advertised extensively and followed up every possibility of loctaing her, but without success. He is firmly convinced that she is alive and that he will be able to find her. The last he or any of her relatives heard of her was in 1898 at St. Paul. They were in Sweden, their old home, at that time, coming to this country since. Her brother says that she does not know that he is in Duluth and thinks that she would look him up if she knew his whereabouts. She is now 36 years of age, about 5 feet 2 inches tall, of stout build, with brown hair, blue eyes, medium complexion and carries a scar over her right eyebrow and parallel to it. He has heard that a man named Hanson, living at Cloquet, saw her about four years ago, but he has been equally unsuccessful in getting into communication with him.

Settles Lovers' Quarrel and Is a Witness at Marriage Ceremony.

County Attorney John H. Norton has settled all kinds of difficulties between people, neighborhood rows and the like, but it remained for him to break his own record when this morning he straightened out a badly mixed love affair and accompanied the principals to the judge of probate's office, where he signed their marriage contract, as a witness.

Some people have the idea that the county attorney is a kind of bureau where free advice is doled out for the asking. The men in charge are supposed to know everything. If they don't, they have no right to be there. Not a day goes by but what several people visit the office asking that some one be arrested on some petty charge or another. Sometimes the other side will come in at the same time, and they are usually sent away together the best of friends.

This morning there was a young man waiting at the office when Mr. Norton appeared. He said that he had been unable to sleep last night thinking about his troubles. Asked as to what they were, he answered that the girl had given him the worst of it, and it had happened at a most inopportune time, for they had planned to be married this afternoon, so that they could catch an afternoon train for Detroit, Mich., where they had intended to make their home.

He said that last night when he had called at the girl's home, the father and he had a difficulty in which the girl took the father's part and it ended suddenly when he called the older man a "slob" and the father said that the first thing he would do in the morning would be to get the county attorney after him.

The young man said that he wanted to get married and didn't care anything about fighting. Besides he was all over his fit of anger. He was afraid the father had been there earlier in the morning and he wanted to get his story in first.

It seems that the father left home this morning vowing that he would visit the county attorney's office and that before noon the would-be son-in-law would be thinking it over from behind the bars of the St. Louis county jail.

The girl became alarmed and hurried to the office. The young man was there telling his story. The father had not shown up.

After hearing the story, it didn't take Mr. Norton long to decide what to do. Yes, that was just what they wanted—to get married.

It was but a moment's work to get the license and the judge of probate was but two floors down.

It was over in a short while and they left to tell their folks, gather their traps and catch their train as though nothing had happened.

The girl said she was a little disappointed as she had wanted to be married at home and several of her friends had been invited in, b utshe said she did not mind as it would be almost as much fun to surprise them.

One wedding that had been planned for this afternoon is off because it has already taken place.

BURIAL BY A MINISTER

Poor Farm Inmates Will Be Interred With Fitting Services.

Will No Longer Be Placed Without Ceremony in Potter's Field.

Human derelicts who die without money, friends, or relatives, and who have to be cared for by the county, will henceforth be given a Christian burial.

In the past no one has taken an interest in the matter, and they have been placed in the paupers' field at Greenwood cemetery at the poor farm without any services of any kind, unless some one has taken the trouble to make a special request.

This morning Rev. R. S. Read, assistant rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, had charge of the last rites over the bodies of five men and women who had no one, except the county, to look after them. Services for two were held at Crawford's undertaking rooms. They were Howard Fish, a woodsman 35 years old, who died at a hospital after contracting typhoid fever in a lumber camp, and Mary Anderson, who had earned her living for years at West Duluth by taking in washing. All the rites and ceremonies of the church were observed.

At the poor farm Rev. Read performed the same office for three others in the same position. A deep interest in the services were shown by the other inmates of the institution.

The matter was taken up at the last meeting of the ministerial association and the president directed to appoint a different preacher each month to take charge of services of this nature. The situation was explained by Rev. Read and he and Rev. A. W. Ryan volunteered their services for the months of November and December.

A REPORT ON THE COMMISSION PLAN.

It is to be hoped that every citizen will read the report of the joint committee from the Duluth Commercial club and the city council on the commission form of city government, published in The Herald tonight.

After several months of earnest investigation, during which the committee has studied the workings of the plan in many communities where it has been adopted, its report is warmly and enthusiastically in favor of the plan, and urges its adoption in Duluth. One member of the committee, Alderman Shartel, found himself unable to agree with the others, and will present a minority report, it is understood, expressing his hostility to the plan.

The reasons offered by the committee for its approval of the new system are sound, strong and convincing. They agree in every particular with the conclusions reached by The Herald as a result of its study of the theory of the plan and its operations in a score of cities. The committee favors the commission form of government for this city, and its reasons are as follows:

1. Because it establishes the city on a business basis and under it the city is operated as any large commercial corporation would be, thus eliminating political interests of all kinds.

2. Because it centralizes responsibility so it cannot be evaded.

3. Because it facilitates and expedites the transaction of business and the making of public improvements.

4. Because it naturally follows that greater economy will result from such a purely business administration.

5. Because it provides, or should provide, that the commissioners shall give all their time to the city's business, and that they shall be paid salaries sufficent to attract the right kind of men.

6. Because the provisions of the referendum, initiative and recall give the citizens greater responsibilities, greater interest in public affairs and greater incentive to participate in them.

7. Because it abolishes the ward system by electing city officers from the whole city, makes them responsible to all parts of the city and compels them to take care of the needs of all parts of the community.

In a nutshell, the commission form of government centralizes responsibility, now so divided that it is impossible to place it, and thus evils creep in for which nobody will admit responsiblility; it eliminates ward and party politics, putting city business on a plain business basis; and it puts the government of the city in the full control of the people at all times. Thus it works for better service at smaller cost.

The committee recommends the adoption in Duluth of the Des Moines system, which undoubtedly is the highest type of city government yet devised, with a few minor changes. For instance, it is proposed that instead of having the municipal judges appointed by the commission, they be elected by the people subject to recall as are the commissioners. An innovation, so far as we have observed, is the suggestion that the charter contain a provision that after the new system has been in operation for six years, it be submitted again to the people for their indorsement or rejection. There is no harm in this suggestion, and we venture the prediction that, if it is adopted, when the six years have elapsed the commission plan will be indorsed by a much larger vote than it will get when it is first adopted, and that in the second election many of those who were most active in opposition to its adoption will be most active in favor of its retention. It has worked that way in most of the cities in which it has been tried.

A TAX ON CHRISTMAS TREES.

A chorus of warning against despoiling Duluth of its last remaining evergreens for Christmas decoration has lately risen, in which The Herald has joined. Similar choruses have been heard in previous years, yet every season sees fewer sightly spruce, balsam and fir trees in the Duluth landscape.

Vermont, which has been furnishing a large part of the Christmas trees for New York, Boston and other large Eastern cities, has become fearful that its supply of evergreens will vanish, and its legislature is anxiously casting about for a way to stop it.

It is announced from Montpelier—which, you may remember if your "jogerfy" lessons still cling to your mind, is the capital of Vermont—that a plan has been devised.

The legislature is going to pass a law imposing a tax of 25 cents a tree on all the Christmas trees shipped out of the state. "This means," says the dispatch from Montpelier, "that the Vermont Christmas tree will disappear from the markets of Boston and New York.

That's a beautiful plan if it would work—but it won't.

The trouble is that the states haven't the power to levy taxes on exports, and that's what the proposed tax on exported Christmas trees comes to. If it doesn't get into the courts it may be all right; but it will not last five minutes in any court.

It's a pretty wise inhibition, too, though there are exceptions, such as this Christmas tree tax would be, that show the possibility of beneficent results from state export duties. But if the states were allowed to levy such taxes, the very mischief would be to pay. Some coal-producing state, for instance, might get greedy and levy an export tax on coal, with a view to conserving its supply for its own use and to getting a little easy money for state purposes. That would anger the coal-consuming states, and they would retaliate with export duties on wheat and corn and lumber. Presently the sisterhood of states would be engaged in disastrous commercial warfare, in which all would lose and none would gain.

The Minnesota legislature found out about this thing when the tonnage tax made its first appearance. The tonnage tax was not devised, in the first place, especially as a mode of taxation. Its originators thought that there should be more iron ore manufactured in this state, and not so much shipped out. They were willing to agree that it was possible to tax the iron interests adequately by the ordinary methods; but what they wanted was to penalize the practice of shipping most of the ore out of the state instead of manufacturing it within the state—a thoroughly worthy object, of course.

So the first tonnage tax bill provided a tax of 25 cents a ton on iron ore, of which 20 cents was to be rebated on every ton manufactured in the state. This meant that iron ore manufactured here would be taxed 5 cents a ton, while ore shipped out would be taxed 25 cents a ton. This glowing plan was nipped in the bud by the discovery that it would be a tax on exports from the state, and therefore unquestionably unconstitutional.

That was the beginning of the tonnage tax agitation. Its original purpose has disappeared, and those who still advocate it do so only because they have got into the habit.

ANOTHER OREGON EXPERIMENT.

Oregon seems likely to prove itself every useful in deed as a trying-out place for political and economic experiments, something as New Zealand is the world's political experiment station.

Oregon has succeeded in getting around the fact that the Federal Constitution didn't intend that the people should pick out United States senators. It has succeeded in getting around the fact that the fathers of the nation had little or no conception of the fact that some time the people might like to do their own lawmaking without relying on unreliable representatives.

And in the recent election it adopted an amendment to its Constitution authorizing a new experiment in taxation that will be watched with keenest interest by tax experts everywhere—county option in taxation.

Under this new provision of the Oregon Constitution, each county may choose whatever form of levying taxes it thinks best. If one county wishes to get all its revenues from land, and does not wish to penalize progress and reward sloth by taxing improvements, it may do so in Oregon.

Undoubtedly one or more counties in Oregon will adopt the land tax idea. It is high time that an experiment were being made in this plan of taxation. Though never tried in this country, it has theoretical merits that are appealing more and more to thinking citizens. It is so clear that taxing personal property is unequal, unjust and impossible, that there is great need of some system of taxation that will obviate the need of taxing personal property. It is so clear that taxing improvements on land tends to discourage the building of homes and to encourage the holding of vacant property to allow the enterprise of others to increase its value, that there is need of a demonstration of the plan of taxing land only, and taxing it so that the community, which gives land its value, shall receive some of that value for the common good.

What will be done as to state revenues under the county option system of taxation in Oregon is not yet decided. Though it has always been assumed that there is only one way to take care of this point, really there are two. The method usually urged is to provide the state with independent sources of revenue, so that it need levy no direct taxes. The usual procedure looking toward county option in taxation has been along this line. It was with a view to divorcing state and local taxation to make county option in taxation possible that the tax amendment which the supreme court read into the Minnesota Constitution was proposed.

But of late years tax experts have come to believe that it is not wise to sever the relations between state and local taxation, for two reasons: first, because it is wholesome to have the state interested in local taxation; second, because it is wholesome to have the individual taxpayer interested directly in what is done with the state's funds.

Another way to take care of the state's needs would be to apportion among the counties the state's need for money, leaving to the counties the option of raising it as they please. This would allow county option in taxation, without divorcing state and local taxation from each other.

A SUBJECT OF VITAL IMPORT.

The most interesting and most important feature of the convention in this city of the State Association of Builders' Exchanges is the open meeting tonight at the Commercial club for the discussion of employers' liability laws. This meeting will be addressed by W. E. McEwen, state labor commissioner, and George M. Gillette, two members of the commission appointed by the late Governor Johnson to study this subject and report to the next legislature. Their studies have been deep, and they are equipped with valuable information.

Minnesota must soon adopt an employers' liability law that will insure justice to both employers and employes, and by eliminating the wastes of litigation will provide ample protection for the worker without additional cost to the employer. That is why tonight's meeting is of unusual importance.

DULUTH'S CO-OPERATIVE MARKET.

A local article in The Herald last night called attention to the growing success of the Duluth Co-operative Market association. It is not yet paying expenses, but the rate of growth in its business is such that it seems certain that within a short time it will be on a self-sustaining basis. It is not planned to make money by it, but to make it helpful to the farmers in Duluth's territory by providing them with a market service on which they can rely, and to help the consumers of Duluth by getting farm products to them with as little waste and as few middlemen's profits as possible. It is fully justified by results so far, and that's very good to know because its success is a fundamental need of this city.

Roosevelt drank a toast to Taft last night, but one swallow does not make a summer.

The tide that began at Bemidji, grew at Crookston and reached its flood at Brainerd will sweep down upon the legislature next month and wash away some of the old prejudices that have hampered the development of Northern Minnesota.

Governor-elect Foss must be crowding Senator Lodge pretty closely judging by the latter's "seeing a great light" on the tariff question at this late hour. A few more Fosses to camp on the trails of other standpat senators would help.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

SHOULD GRANT OFFICERS' REQUEST.

To the Editor of The Herald:

If the finance committee of the council believes that the policemen of the city are entitled to a raise, why doesn't the committee recommend that they be paid $5 a month more from July 1, 1911, instead of $2.50? This in accordance with the recommendations of Chief Troyer. He said that with the appropriation for next year he thought it could be done by starting July 1. The firemen are getting a $5 raise and the policemen are certainly entitled to the same consideration. It doesn't seem fair that one department should be raised more than the other. There is scarcely a doubt but that the policemen would rather wait until July 1, for a $5 raise than to get a $2.50 raise beginning the first of the year. It would amount to the same thing the first year, but the department will not go out of existence after next year. The men will still be on the job, and the same arguments that apply for a raise now, will apply then.

Duluth, Dec. 14, 1910.

BARDELL AGAINST PICKWICK.

By Charles Dickens: You have heard from my learned friend, gentlemen of the jury, that this is an action for a breach of promise of marriage, in which the damages are laid at £1,500. The plaintiff, gentlemen, is a widow; yes, gentlemen, a widow. With her little boy, her only child, the desolate widow shrunk from the world, and courted the retirement and tranquillity of Goswell street. Here she placed in her front parlor window a written placard, bearing this inscription: "Apartments furnished for a single gentleman. Inquire within."

Mrs. Bardell's opinions of the opposite sex, gentlemen, were derived from a long contemplation of the inestimable qualities of her lost husband. She had no fear; she had no distrust; all was confidence and reliance. "Mr. Bardell," said the widow, "was a man of honor. Mr. Bardell was a man of his word. Mr. Bardell was no deceiver. Mr. Bardell was once a single gentleman himself. To single gentlemen I look for protection, for assistance, for comfort and consolation. In single gentlemen I shall perpetually see something to remind me of what Mr. Bardell was, when he first won my young and untried affections. To a single gentleman, then, shall my lodgings be let."

Actuated by this beautiful and touching impulse (among the best impulses of our imperfect nature, gentlemen), the lonely and desolate widow dried her tears, furnished her first floor, caught her innocent boy to her maternal bosom, and put the bill up in her parlor window. Did it remain there long? No. The serpent was on the watch; the train was laid; the mine was preparing; the sapper and miner was at work!

Before the bill had been in the parlor window three days—three days, gentlemen—a being, erect upon two legs, and bearing all the outward semblance of a man, and not of a monster, knocked at the door of Mrs. Bardell's house. He inquired within; he took the lodgings; and on the very next day he entered into possession of them. This man was Pickwick; Pickwick the defendant.

Of this man I will say little. The subject presents but few attractions; and I, gentlemen, am not the man, nor are you, gentlemen, the men, to delight in the contemplation of revolting heartlessness, and of systematic villany. And when I say systematic villany, gentlemen, let me tell the defendant Pickwick, if he be in court, as I am informed he is, that it would have been more decent in him, more becoming, if he had stayed away.

Let me tell him further, that a counsel, in the discharge of his duty, is neither to be intimidated, nor bullied, nor put down; and that any attempt to do either the one or the other, will recoil on the head of the attempter, be he plaintiff, or be he defendant; be his name Pickwick, or Noakes, or Stoakes, or Stiles, or Brown, or Thompson.

Intoxicants and Tobacco.

Harper's Weekly: We are drinking more alcoholic drinks than ever, more not only in gross, but per capita. So the internal revenue bureau says after toting up its receipts for the year ending on the 30th of last June. Here is its report of some of the products that paid taxes:

163,000,000 gallons of distilled spirits, 30,000,000 gallons more than the year before.

59,485,117 barrels of fermented liquors, an increase of 3,000,000 barrels.

7,600,000,000 cigars, 160,000,000 more than 1909.

6,830,000,000 cigarettes, an increase of 1,000,000,000.

402,000,000 pounds of plug, fine-cut, cube-cut, granulated, or sliced smoking or chewing tobacco or snuff, 4,000,000 pounds more than the year before.

141,862,282 pounds of oleomargarine, 50,000,000 pounds increase.

It appears that the consumption of spirits increased last year by over 20 per cent. Perhaps taxes were paid on more liquor than was drunk, but the payments from year to year are a pretty close measure of consumption. That drinking should increase in the face of so much prohibition and local option legislation causes some astonishment, but is not, we believe, contrary to experience. Legislation may have an effect on manners, methods and details of consumption, but it does not change habits. Prohibition, if Maine is any criterion, does not help at all in promoting temperance. Local option may do good, but is more likely to benefit the rising generation than the one whose habits are formed.

It is possible that in spite of the internal revenue figures the manner of drinking may be improved and the drinks better distributed.

It bears on this subject that of the 9,000,000 population in New York state 7,000,000 live in cities. Local option in this state is confined to country townships. The increase of city population all over the country has doubtless a relation to this increase in the consumption both of alcohol and tobacco. The nervous tension of city life is greater than of country life, calling more for stimulants, and affording more convenient opportunities to get them. Drinking and smoking, too, are both social practices, and there is more society in the cities than in the country.

The consumption of spirits has increased more in proportion than the consumption of beer, and the consumption of cigarettes more than of cigars. The report is not complimentary to legislation.

Mixed Emotions.

Lippincott's: A Bostonian tells of a clean, well-set-up young Irshman, who formerly saw service in the British navy, but who is now engaged in business at the Hub.

"When are you going to get home rule in Ireland, John?" the Bostonian once idly asked.

"The only way that we'll get home rule in ould Ireland," said the Celt, "will be if France—an' Russia—an' Germany—an' Austria—an' maybe Italy—if they would all join together to give those blackguards of England a rare ould batin'. That's the only way, sir, we'll get home rule."

Then, as he looked cautiously round, a twinkle of cunning was added to his expression. "An' the whole lot of 'em together couldn't do it, sir. Oh, it's the grand navy we've got!"

Snow-Burden.

They bear the burden of the snow—
They bear it with a patient grace,
The drooping trees! Yet well they know
A melting hour comes on apace.

Ah, if but Time, that crowns me white,
An equal clemency would show,
Then I, some soft, mild day or night,
Would drop the burden of the snow!

—Edith M. Thomas in Scribner's.

ALL ABOUT PUSSYFOOT.

Very Dry Humor.

Mesaba Ore: Supposing, now, that Pussyfoot should take it into his three-cornerd head to close the saloons of St. Paul this winter, what kind of a legislative session do you think we would have? (Add another question mark, or two, for good measure.)

He's Real Enough.

Princeton Union: It begins to look as if the padfooted Mr. Johnson is the real chief of the interior department.

Take It To the Indians.

Moorhead Citizen: The closing up of the saloon at Georgetown was a fine piece of work on the part of the government agents. It seems to us they at least ought to have given him a chance to get out of town with his stuff. We wouldn't be afraid to bet that there are people who have lived there for twenty years who have never seen an Indian.

One Course To Pursue.

Crookston Times: Enough has been said on the subject to fix it in the mind of any reasonable person that there is but one course to pursue at the present time, and that is, to take no chances. The sale of bottled goods, or jugs, is dangerous business, and in Crookston it is actually crooked business. They have agreed not to. Let them stick to the agreement, and not try and sneak a little business on the side for which their fellow dealers may suffer also.

Pussyfoot and the Future.

Coleraine Optic: Hibbing people are rejoicing. A cruiser and surveyor over there have figured it out that the 1855 treaty line runs four miles west of Hibbing. Nevertheless, "Pussyfoot" will come along some of these fine mornings and inform them that the 1851 treaty extends eastward over Northern Minnesota and Michigan and then "there'll be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth."

New Job For Mr. Johnson.

Bemidji Sentinel: It would seem that it is against the treaty of '55 to maintain a trust. If it is, all that will be necessary is to put Pussyfoot on the trail of the octopus. If there are no prominent men in it he will put it out of commission as quickly as he put down the rebellion in Cass Lake in 1910.

In the "Indian Settlement."

Virginia Virginian: "Pussyfoot" Johnson is by far the most cordially disliked man in Bemidji, in fact the whole Indian settlement.

Property Is Destroyed.

Litchfield Independent: Northern Minnesota has been having a hot time of late with the government Indian bureau on the liquor question. Agents of the interior department have been closing saloons at Bemidji and lots of other towns, destroying the stocks of liquor, worth thousands of dollars. This has been done by authority vested in the department through Indian treaties. The object of the raids is to prevent the sale of liquor to Indians.

Dr. Osler's Challenge.

Chicago Evening Post: The American Magazine prints an interesting address by Dr. William Osler in which, among other things, that great physician pays his respects to the anti-vaccinationist. He says:

"A great deal of literature has been distributed casting discredit upon the value of vaccination in the prevention of smallpox. I do not see how anyone who has gone through epidemics as I have or who is familiar with the history of the subject, and has any capacity left for clear judgment, can doubt its value.

"Some months ago I was twitted by the editor of the Journal of the Anti-Vaccination League for a 'curious silence' upon the subject. I would like to issue a Mount Carmel-like challenge to any ten unvaccinated priests of Baal. I will go into the next severe epidemic with ten selected vaccinated persons and ten selected unvaccinated persons. I should prefer to choose the latter—three members of parliament, three anti-vaccination doctors, if they could be found, and four anti-vaccination propagandists. And I will make this promise: Neither to jeer nor jibe when they catch the disease, but to look after them as brothers, and for the four or five who are certain to die I will try to arrange the funerals with all the pomp and ceremony of an anti-vaccination demonstration."

The challenge, of course, has a slightly mediaeval air—in spite of the grim smile with which it was probably accompanied—but, after all, it has certain obvious merits. It looks now as though the anti-vaccinationists would make large gains simply by talking, talking, talking. If they talk long enough and passionately enough they will impress a good many people. If the history of medicine does not suffice to still the clamor, then about all that is left, it would seem, is an actual test. Such a test was proposed in a recent vaccination struggle in St. Louis, but unfortunately nothing came of the suggestion.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A very good investment is to be born the son of a millionaire.

Most all of us can remember experience without being guided by it.

So many men can get swindled because all the others feel ashamed to tell it.

A woman knows a man loves her long before he knows it, and then goes to work to prove it to him.

People who are ashamed of a good appetite have lots of other things in their lives they could be more ashamed of, but they aren't.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: The loser never wastes his sympathy on the winner.

It's not a difficult matter to be as honest as policy is.

The world is full of misers—as the spendthrift looks at it.

No man is so color blind that he can be fooled on the long green.

People who try to practice all they preach learn to cut their sermons short.

A man is sure to have enemies—unless he marries a woman who has no relatives.

Some women would eat predigested sawdust if it was labeled "complexion beautifier."

Anyway, a woman can sharpen a pencil just as gracefully as a man can thread a needle.

You may have noticed that a good many men who attend church are not troubled with insomnia.

The average girl is apt to generate a desire to kiss her little brother when the right young man is present.

The Generous Pullman Company.

Detroit Journal: The Pullman company announces a reduction in the price of upper berths. That is, some upper berths. To be sure, it isn't entirely patriotism and impulsive generosity on the part of the Pullman company. The announcement is incidental to a little litigation which the interstate commerce commission is conducting against the Pullman company. Indeed, the Pullman company insists that "upper berths cost more to build, furnish and maintain than the lowers," but concedes the fact of "public discrimination against the uppers."

Such candor is disappointing. It would have been more gratifying if the Pullman company had merely confessed, sobbingly, that the protest of the rotund myriads who for these generations have been mounting blushingly upon the broad shoulders of the colored porters to climb into those inquisitorial cabinets of torture had at last melted the hearts of the Pullman. If that were the case, we could continue to cling frantically to the bars and the sliding covers of those upper berths with contrite hearts for a decade or two more. "Mister Dooley" still preserves his authority as a student of the vicissitudes of the upper berth. He says:

"Hennessy, when you feel like takin' an upper berth, don't do it. Stay home. Go out and climb up to the upper panthry-shilf, put a cinder in your eye and throw a dollar and a half out of the window, and you'll have all av the binifits of travel—with little av the discomfits."

Even with the involuntarily reduced price that holds pretty good.

THE FACE UPON THE FLOOR.

(Printed by request.)

'Twas a balmy summer evening, and a goodly crowd was there,
Which well nigh filled Joe's barroom on the corner of the square;
And as songs and witty stories came through the open door
A vagabond crept slowly in and posed upon the floor.

"Where did it come from?" someone said. "The wind has blown it in."
"What does it want?" another cried. "Some whisky, rum or gin?"
"Here, Toby, seek him, if your stomach's equal to the work—
I wouldn't touch him with a fork, he's filthy as a Turk."

This badinage the poor wretch took with stoical good grace;
In fact, he smiled as though he thought he'd struck the proper place.
"Come, boys, I know there's kindly hearts among so good a crowd—
To be in such good company would make a deacon proud.

"Give me a drink—that's what I want—I'm out of funds, you know;
When I had cash to treat the gang this hand was never slow.
What? You laugh as though you thought this pocket never held a sou;
I once was fixed as well, my boys, as any one of you.

"There, thanks; that's braced me nicely; God bless you, one and all;
Next time I pass this good saloon I'll make another call.
Give you a song? No, I can't do that, my singing days are past;
My voice is cracked; my throat's worn out, and my lungs are going fast.

"Say! give me another whisky, and I'll tell you what I'll do—
I'll tell you a funny story, and a fact, I promise, too.
That I was ever a decent man, not one of you would think;
But I was, some four or five years back. Say, give me another drink.

"Fill her up, Joe, I want to put some life into my frame—
Such little drinks, to a bum like me, are miserably tame;
Five fingers—there, that's the scheme—and corking whisky, too.
Well, here's luck, boys, and, landlord, my best regards to you.

"You've treated me pretty kindly, and I'd like to tell you how
I came to be the dirty sot you see before you now.
As I told you, once I was a man, with muscle, frame and health;
And but for a blunder, ought to have made considerable wealth.

"I was a painter—not one that daubed on bricks and wood,
But an artist, and, for my age, was rated pretty good.
I worked hard at my canvas and was bidding fair to rise,
For gradually I saw the star of fame before my eyes.

"I made a picture, perhaps you've seen, 'tis called 'The Curse of Fame.'
It brought me fifteen hundred pounds and added to my name.
And then I met a woman—now comes the funny part—
With eyes that petrified my brain, and sank into my heart.

"Why dont' you laugh? 'Tis funny that the vagabond you see
Could ever love a woman, and expect her love for me;
But 'twas so, and for a month or two her smiles were freely given,
And when her loving lips touched mine it carried me to heaven.

"Did you ever see a woman for whom your soul you'd give,
With a form like the Milo Venus, too beautiful to live;
With eyes that would beat the Koh-i-noor, and a wealth of chestnut hair?
If so, 'twas she, for there never was another half so fair.

"I was working on a portrait, one afternoon in May,
Of a fair-haired boy, a friend of mine, who lived across the way;
And Madeline admired it, and, much to my surprise,
Said that she'd like to know the man that had such dreamy eyes.

"It didn't take long to know him, and before the month had flown
My friend had stolen my darling, and I was left alone;
And ere a year of misery had passed above my head
The jewel I had treasured so had tarnished, and was dead.

"That's why I took to drink, boys. Why, I never saw you smile;
I thought you'd be amused, and laughing all the while,
Why, what's the matter friend? There's a teardrop in your eye.
Come, laugh with me; 'tis only babes and women that should cry.

"Say, boys, if you give me just another whisky I'll be glad,
And I'll draw right here a picture of the face that drove me mad.
Give me that piece of chalk with which you mark the baseball score,
You shall see the lovely Madeline upon the barroom floor."

Another drink, and, with chalk in hand, the vagabond began
To sketch a face that well might buy the soul of any man.
Then, as he placed another lock upon the shapely head,
With a fearful shriek, he leaped and fell across the picture, dead.

Imported Tuberculosis; A Black Cloud in Texas.

Francis H. McLean in The Survey: Tuberculosis, both imported and domestic, hangs like a black cloud over Texas. Wherever there exists an associated charities, there also exists a feeling approaching despair, caused by facing a situation without facilities to combat it. There is very little provision for sanatorium care. The state regulations for registration and disinfection are variously carried out in the different cities. Consider that into this state which, after all, is just beginning to know itself, there is pouring a stream of unfortunates from other states, fleeing, as they think, to save their lives in this sunny clime. Some do; but they are the ones who have resources. Many others, whose resources are small, through the criminal ignorance and incompetency of local medical practitioners, waste what would go a long way at home toward care in coming her to strive and scrimp for a few weeks or a few months, and then collapse. Even then they may become victims of a ghastly comedy, may be shipped from place to place, by public officials, at public expense; shipped wherever their despairing whims suggest; hastened to death, and the public treasury in the end the sufferer.

So far only the associated charities have attempted to send home sufferers of this sort. Public officials in some instances have acted humanely in providing what care they could.

Not Enough Boy.

New York Tribune: Mayor Frank J. Rice, in a Thanksgiving speech at a newsboy's dinner in New Haven, praised mince pie.

"Mince pie," he said, "is the crowning glory of a Thanksgiving dinner. I am sure you will all agree with me when I declare that it is impossible for anyone, at any time, ever to get too much mince pie.

"Once upon a time a mother said to her little son during the Thanksgiving day repast:

" 'Tommy, this is the last piece of mince pie you can have.'

"Tommy frowned as black as a thunder cloud.

" 'There was a little boy like you,' his mother continued sternly, 'and he ate mince pie and he ate mince pie and finally he burst. Yes, he burst from too much mince pie.'

" 'No,' said Tommy, 'there's no such thing as too much mince pie.'

" 'Then,' said his mother, 'why did he burst?'

" 'There wasn't enough boy,' Tommy answered."

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Roseleaf: "That man you see over there is a sky pilot."
"Pulpit or airship?"

Buffalo Express: "We live in an age of marvels."
"It is, indeed, wonderful how so many persons escape being struck by automobiles."

Washington Herald: "How would you like a game picture for your dining room? A brace of canvas-backs, say?"
"No cheap stuff for me. Paint me a picture of a dozen eggs."

Toledo Blade: "Is your daughter getting on well with her music?"
"I guess so. The neighbors are getting so they speak to me civilly again."

Smart Set: Crawford—Do you really like to please your wife?
Crabshaw—I can't say that I do, but I've found out it's the best plan.

Judge: Young Lady—Please show me your extremest style of hobble skirt.
Salesgirl—For yourself.
Young Lady—No for my chaperon.

Cleveland Leader: "So your proposal was not pleasing to Miss Stoxe?"
"Oh, I guess it pleased her all right. I never, in fact, saw anybody laugh so hard."

Houston Post: "How's your divorce suit coming on?"
"It is almost done, and it is a dream!"
"I mean in court?"
"Oh, I guess that's coming along all right."

Washington Star: "If your ideas fail to find popular indorsement now, you can appeal to posterity."
"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum, "but the contributions to campaign funds made by posterity will be of no service whatever to me."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Why are you weeping, little boy?"
"I broke de pitcher."
"Well, there's no use crying over spilt milk."
"G'wan! Dis wuz beer."

Washington Star: "All men," said the earnest citizen, "are born equal."
"They are that," replied Mr. Rafferty, "but they don't stay equal after they're big enough to get together in the school yard."

Cleveland Leader: "Your face is a mass of scars. Did you cut yourself while shaving?"
"No, but I managed to shave myself while cutting."

Out of Work.

Am the fall guy
You see.
Some Wall street gentlemen desired to break some other
Wall street gentlemen,
And incidentally
They broke
My boss—with one stroke—
And me
At the same time.

Consequently I'm out of a job,
In debt—and though perfectly respectable,
Just about desperate enough
To throw a bomb.
Yes, I know I should be calm
And placid and patient, like a psalm,
But you see,
You can't blame me,
Very much, because, after all,
It's us kind of people that are the fall
Guys for everything.

We pay the higher cost of living,
We're forever giving
Somebody something for nothing.
And when they feel,
Ill at ease or mean
They turn on us and clean
Break us. Yes, I'm keen,
For the present state of things.

I tell
You, it's hell,
To be out
Of a job; in doubt
Where the next meal is coming;
To go bumming
Around begging for work,
With the kids at home and the wife
Making you hate your life
Because you can't do better for them
Than you do.
I'm no shirk,
I'm no charity case—I want work,
I'm willing, honest, true
To my employer—when I have one.

Yet I get
Out of a job and in debt,
And desperate because
Somebody goes after Another big grafter
And gets Me.

VERDICT AGAINST GREAT NORTHERN

North Dakotan Put Off Freight Train Gets Judgment for $1,000.

Towner, N. D., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Because he was not allowed to ride on a freight train, but was obliged to leave it under pain of being thrashed, Ador Javnagor, former sheriff of McHenry county, will receive $1,000 from the Great Northern railroad. A jury in the district court having granted him a verdict for that amount.

According to the company's claims, Javnagor boarded a freight train without a permit or pass, and refused to pay for his transportation.

GRAND JURY TAKES HAND

Directs Crow Wing County Board to Grant No More Licenses.

Inquisitors Also Severely Criticize the Brainerd City Jail.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 14.—In addition to finding several indictments, which, in the interest of justice, have not been made public the grand jury examined the county jail and found it to be in a clean and sanitary condition. The city lock up was strongly criticized. The jury said a railing should be put around the stove to prevent a drunken inmate from upsetting it. The bedding was found in a filthy condition: the facilities for lighting were inadequate. The building should have its interior painted and whitewashed.

The county commissioners were instructed not to grant any licenses to sell intoxicating liquors in Crow Wing county in that part of the county included in the Indian reservation treaties until such time as these treaties were abrogated or amended.

In the criminal case against John Miller, arraigned on an indictment found by the grand jury, the defendant entered a plea of not guilty of the assault charged.

OLD COUNTIES TO MAKE FIGHT

Expected to Resist Loss of Representation in North Dakota.

Williston, N. D., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The warmest fight before the next session of the legislature promises to be that waged over a reapportionment of the representation in the legislature in keeping with the big gains in counties in the western part of the state shown by the federal census.

Under the present apportionment the counties of the western section, have not as great a number of members as they are entitled to compared with the condition in the eastern and older settled counties.

The new apportionment, which is provided for under the constitution, will create a hot fight, as several of such old established counties as Pembina, Walsh, Cavalier and Traill county are due for a reduction in members, while such newer counties as Morton, Williams, Ward and Stark will get increases. Ramsey, too, will seek for greater recognition in the assembly.

Under the present apportionment the six Red River valley counties, Pembina, Walsh, Grand Forks, Traill, Cass and Richland, have a total of forty members, but this number will be reduced under the new bill because of decrease in the population of three of the counties, Traill, Walsh and Pembina. The last apportionment of the state was made in 1907 following the state census.

SOUTH DAKOTA BAD MAN TAKEN

Rejected Lover of Farmer's Niece, Who Shot Her Uncle, Captured.

Yankton, S. D., Dec. 14.—George Rossteucher, the discharged farm hand who shot and mortally wounded, last night, his former employer, Daniel Courtney, living six miles from here and then barricaded himself in the home of Courtney, was shot and captured last evening by the sheriff's posse and members of the South Dakota national guard.

Rossteucher had made a truce with Sheriff Hickey and members of Company M., whereby friends were allowed to enter the house and remove his dying victim, the latter's wife, the niece Bernice Culligan and a son.

Rossteuscher, who was discharged a week ago by Courtney, returned to the Courtney farm Monday night at 11 o'clock, and asked to be let in. Courtney refused and Rossteuscher then fired at him, the bullet taking effect in his intestines. Courtney sank to the floor of the porch and Rossteuscher entered the house and sat talking to Courtney's wife and son, aged 8 and Bernice Culligan.

The little boy stepped out of the door, mounted a horse and rode to Utica, two miles away for help.

The house was soon surrounded by armed men.

After Rossteuscher had allowed friends of the family to remove them from the barricaded home, Sheriff Hickey ordered the soldiers to open fire and a fusillade of shots was poured into the house.

Rossteuscher, it is said, was enamored with Bernice Culligan.

The girl's refusal to marry him, and his discharge on account of his unwelcome attentions, were the cause for the tragedy.

DIETZ' TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Case Goes Over Until March on Motion of Defense Which Wins Victory.

Hayward, Wis., Dec. 14.—About the first ray of hope that has been the lot of John Dietz and his family since the Cameron dam defender was taken into custody came yesterday afternoon when Judge Reid, after hearing motions by counsel for the defense, granted a continuance of the trial of John Dietz his wife and Leslie for killing Deputy Sheriff Oscar Harp, until March 6.

These two victories, the first that have come to the Deitzs, were the result of yesterday's proceedings.

The continuance which Judge Reid allowed without naming the duration, was made until Feb. 27 at the opening of court at 2 o'clock and later changed to one week later at the request of Attorney W. B. Rubin, chief counsel for the defense. A number of motions were made by the defense, one of them being a reiteration of the application argued before the state supreme court, that a lump sum of bail be named on all indictments and charges, which, if furnished, would set the prisoner at liberty. Judge Reid said he would not rule until he had seen the supreme court's opinion, which will be furnished him later.

Dietz, on being arraigned on the assault with intent to kill charge, pleaded not guilty, Mr. Rubin announcing that he would later file a demurrer to the complaint. The court announced that it would not consider the case and it will go over this term.

The next development will be the preliminary examination which comes up on Thursday morning of John, Hattie, Clarence, Leslie and Myra on a charge of assault with intent to kill John Regich and John Hefft, and a charge against John and Clarence of assault with intent to kill Bert Horel, last primary election day. The attorneys with the exception of District Attorney J. C. Davis, left town last night. Mr. Davis is a resident.

MOUNTRAILL COUNTY IS TO BUILD COURTHOUSE.

Stanley, N. D., Dec. 14.—Assurance of the fact that Stanley will be the permanent county seat of Mountrail county has given rise to discussion as to the question of constructing a court house. It is planned at the present time to bring about the holding of an election next spring at which the question of issuing bonds would be up for consideration.

WILKIN COUNTY RECOUNT HAS DEVELOPED TIE.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Dec. 14.—A curious condition of affairs has developed in Wilkin county, where a recount has failed to settle an election contest. There were three candidates for commissioner in the Third district and A. B. Pederson, (Dem.) received 59 votes; John A. Falla, (Rep.), 81 votes, and Emil Braun, who ran as an independent, using stickers, 80, according to the official count. Mr. Braun asserted that three doubtful votes that had been cast for him in the village of Rothsay had been thrown out, and he demanded a recount. The vote was recounted and Braun gained one vote, so that he is tied with Falla. The question who is to serve is to be submitted to the district court.

Tone Up the Hair From Root to Tip

(Mrs. Rohrer in Style and Fashion.)

"Many women cannot wash the head for reasons of health;—all find it inconvenient to do so at times. These can prepare a shampoo powder at home that will make the hair clean, fresh and glossy.

"Mix four ounces of therox with four ounces of orris root. Sprinkle a little of this mixture on the head once a week and brush it thoroughly through the hair. It is particularly good to use when the hair is dusty, dull or greasy, and no other shampoo or tonic is necessary.

"Therox has beneficial properties that make the hair grow and preserve its natural color. A shampoo powder made as above has a delicate perfume and makes the hair beautifully soft and fluffy. It is non-greasy, refreshing and revitalizing."

MARK TWAIN

1/2 Price

A New Edition

Now for the first time you get a complete set of all Mark Twain's writings at just exactly one-half the price they have ever been sold before. This is a new edition, just as complete as the old one, which still sells, by the way, at $50.00. This new edition is only $25.00—for the 25 volumes.

It had been Mark Twain's ambition to have his books in every American home, and he made a great personal sacrifice to bring about this remarkable opportunity—for the first time in the history of publishing, copyrighted books are sold at the price of non-copyrighted books—the chance will not come again.

But for Mark Twain's action this would have been impossible. Never before has a copyrighted library set of a standard author's works been issued at such a low figure.

His Complete Works—25 Beautiful Volumes

Brander Matthews says: "Mark Twain will be included in that group of writers headed by Molière and Cervantes. With the exception of Count Tolstoi, Twain was the greatest of recent modern writers, and will be handed down to posterity through the trio of his works 'Huckleberry Finn,' 'Tom Sawyer,' and 'Pudd'nhead Wilson.' Twain is a greater stylist than Stevenson or Thoreau, and his 'Man that Corrupted Hadleyburg' is one of the finest works in English literature." Mark Twain himself wrote a preface to this edition. Brander Matthews has written the biographical criticism of Mark Twain and his work. There are portraits of the author at periods when the different books were in process of writing.

There are beautiful pictures by such artists as Frost, Newell, Smedley, Thulstrup, Clinedinst, Kemble, and Opper. The binding is in rich red rep silk book cloth, with title labels stamped in gold. The books are printed on white antique wove paper, especially made for this edition. Each volume is of generous size and bulk, 5x7½ inches.

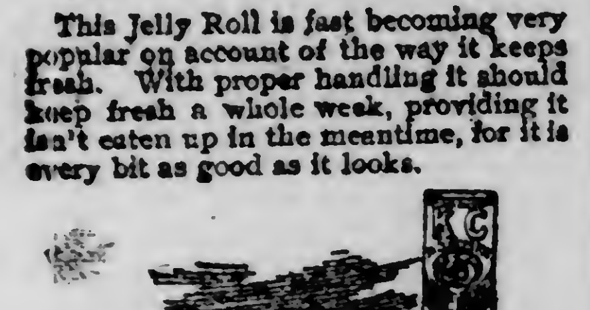
Jelly Roll Recipe

Only Two Eggs Required

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking-School Magazine

This Jelly Roll is fast becoming very popular on account of the way it keeps fresh. With proper handling it should keep fresh a whole week, providing it isn't eaten up in the meantime, for it is every bit as good as it looks.



K C Jelly Roll

One cup sifted flour; scant half teaspoonful salt; 2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; grated rind of 1 lemon; 2 eggs beaten light; 1 cup sugar; ½ cup hot milk; glass of jelly; powdered sugar.

Beat the sugar into the eggs; add the lemon rind, then the flour, sifted three times with the salt and baking powder; and, lastly, the milk. Bake in a buttered dripping pan; turn out on a damp cloth, trim off the crisp edges; spread with jelly and turn over and over into a roll while still warm. Dredge the top with powdered sugar.

Hot milk used in the jelly roll enables it to be rolled without danger of cracking. Have the milk scalding hot, also be careful to have the eggs and sugar beaten together until very light and creamy. Bake in a moderate oven.

K C Jelly Roll is illustrated on page thirty-two of the new and handsomely illustrated 64-page K C Cook's Book, which may be secured free by sending the certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K C Baking Powder to the JAQUES MFG. CO., Chicago, Ill.

Green Room Gossip.

Charles A. Marshall yesterday concluded arrangements with Henry W. Savage for the coming to the Lyceum in February, of "Madame X." Barney Reilly, well known here, is manager of the company.

* * *

John W. Considine of the Sullivan & Considine circuit, is expected in Duluth today or tomorrow to inspect the Empress theater, which is on the Sullivan & Considine circuit.

* * *

Manager Pierong of the Orpheum theater today received the billing for the Christmas week show at the Orpheum, and incidentally a most pleasant surprise. There are four headline acts on the bill, and the local manager predicted it would be the greatest vaudeville bill the local theater has ever played.

* * *

The dates for the "Three Twins" at the Lyceum, were definitely fixed today. They are Jan. 5, 6 and 7. Victor Morley and Bessie Clifford are still the leading members of the big cast.

* * *

Harry Alli, who is appearing at the Orpheum this week in the "Top of The World Dancers," is a son of George Ali, probably the most famous "animal actor" in the world. George Ali has appeared as almost every common kind of animal, from "Tige" in "Buster Brown" to the polar bear in "The Top of the World." He is always the first choice for an animal part in a new musical comedy. His son, Harry, has not followed in his father's footsteps, and does not play the polar bear in the vaudeville act, but appears as one of the comedians.

* * *

Hope Booth, the clever actress who is appearing in the feature sketch at the Empress this week, is a member of a very prominent Canadian family, and has been most sucessful in her work. She has appeared in the support of some of the most prominent American stars, and was in a fair way to herself become one of the leading emotional stars, when she was taken ill in Italy, and was an invalid for eight months. On her return to America she was too late to secure a suitable engagement in "the legit" and booked out for a tour of the Sulllivan & Considine circuit, in her present sketch, "The Little Blonde Lady," which is the work of George Cohan and herself.

MISS HOPE BOOTH.

The late Senator Platt of New York was godfather to Miss Booth, and she is now engaged in writing his biography.

* * *

Miss Maxine Elliott, who comes to the Lyceum theater next Monday night in her latest comedy success, "The Inferior Sex," has the distinction of bearing a world wide reputation as an actress of note, a beauty of renown and a business woman of eminence, which is proven by the fact that she is the only woman on the stage to own and manage a theater in New York, which she has naturally named after herself. Miss Elliott has recently completed a return engagement in "The Inferior Sex" at her own palatial playhouse and brings the company on tour with the same supporting company and the same scenic investiture which she revealed to the theater-goers of the metropolis.

* * *

In many cities where he has appeared, John Dough, the diminutive negro comedian appearing with the Harvey-De Vora trio at the Orpheum, has been subjected to the interested inspection of the people whose duty it is to enforce the child labor law. The little comedian's age is not definitely known, but he is on the shady side of 30, and has been on the stage for many years, appearing as the Gingerbread Man in the musical comedy of that name several years ago.

* * *

The company that will be seen in "Baby Mine" at the Lyceum, beginning Thursday for four nights and two matinees, is the one which was seen originally in that very successful farce during the entire summer just past at the Princess and Garrick theaters, Chicago. In the company are: Consuelo Bailey, George Probert, Natalie Perry, Earle Mitchell, Richard Collins, George Stanhope, J. H. Davies, Gilda Varesi, May Barton and others, who have established themselves as fun-makers of the finest quality.

William A. Brady, Ltd., in making the production of "Baby Mine," was aware that the psychological moment was due for the return of the farce to public favor, and the nightly receptions of the farce indicate clearly that William A. Brady, Ltd., struck the right moment with the right material.

The story, in brief, is concerned with the tribulations of a kind-hearted friend who wants to help a childless wife bring back her husband. To do so, a baby must be had, and the friend's wife gets an idea of securing a baby at a foundling home. The friend succeeds in stealing one there, but in order to cover his stealth, he tries to borrow a baby from the adjacent washerwoman. That plan fails. The deluded father, as a result, finds three babies in his arms. When the police are called, everything is explained, and the wife promises to tell the truth in the future.

"THE COMMISSION PLAN IS BOTH PRACTICAL AND ADVISABLE"

report are based on the best judgment of the six members of the committee.

It is understood that Alderman Shartel will file a minority report.

The report of the committee follows:

Merits of Commission Plan.

"While recognizing that in many of the cities to which the attention of the public has been called, there were exceptional conditions existing when the commission plan of municipal government was adopted, it is our opinion that it is a decided improvement over the so-called 'old form' of mayor and aldermen or councilmen elected from various wards, as such, of the city.

"It establishes the city on a business basis and under it the city is operated as any large commercial corporation would be, thus eliminating political interests of all kinds.

It centralizes responsibility so it cannot be evaded.

"It facilitates and expedites the transaction of business, and the making of public improvements.

"It naturally follows that greater economy will result from such a purely business administration.

"It provides, or should provide, that the commissioners give all of their time to the business of the city, that they have no other employment, and that they should receive a proper remuneration for their services.

"It provides for an initiative, referendum and recall, all of which have a tendency to give the citizens a greater personal interest in the government of the city, at the same time emphasizing to each commissioner the necessity for strict attention to his governmental duties, as he will be held strictly accountable to his own acts and the proper conduct of his particular office.

"It does away with the so-called ward representative, each commissioner being elected at large, thus giving all the voters a voice in the selection of the entire governing body.

"It makes it incumbent upon each commissioner to represent and legislate for the whole city, and does away with the feeling that he is sent to the legislative body for the purpose of representing his particular ward, and no other.

"The provision for recall makes it a comparatively simple matter to dispense with the services of an inefficient or corrupt commissioner.

Initiative and Referendum.

"The provisions for the initiative and referendum are such that in case the commissioners decline to enact needed legislation the people themselves may have the matter at issue presented at a special or general election and pass or reject it as the majority wills, and in case a measure that is distasteful to a certain precentage of the voters is passed by the commissioners its operation may be suspended until the people are allowed to endorse or repudiate it.

"It provides that all grants of franchises or other privileges to public service corporations must be voted upon by the people at a special or general election, this being an effective way of removing from municipal government much of the alleged corruption charged, whether truly or otherwise, against the old form of government. This might prove cumbersome in its application to all franchises, such as the right to lay a steam pipe across an alley for the accomodation of a small number of people, and our present charter handles such a situation well, but for all franchises of any size the popular vote is best.

Objections to the Plan.

"Some objections to the commission form of municipal government have been made on the ground that should a commissioner happen to be corrupt he would have a large power for evil, but our opinion is that this possibility is well taken care of by the provisions for the initiative, referendum and recall.

"Objections have been made that in the absence of an audit of the city's books, etc., independent of any appointee of the commission, improper expenditures or extravagances of administration might be covered by direction of a commissioner. This could be, and in some cases is, amply taken care of by a provision that requires an annual audit of the books of the city by an independent auditing company.

"The chief advantages of the Des Moines plan, so called, are its simplicity, the responsibility of its officials, and the complete power of public opinion over them. Five men, and five only, are elected by vote of all of the citizens every two years. Any voter, poor or rich, may be a candidate at the primaries; only ten names, arranged alphabetically, without party designation, appear on the final ballot, the five receiving the greatest number of votes being elected as commissioners.

The Des Moines Plan.

"The five men thus elected comprise the council, which immediately upon its organization elects one member at the head of each of the following divisions of the city's business, and makes him responsible for its operations:

"The department of accounts and finances.

"The department of public safety (fire and police).

"The department of streets and public improvement.

"The department of parks and public property.

"The mayor, ex-officio, is usually the head of the department of public affairs.

"Every meeting, attended by any person other than a member of the council, must be open to every citizen. All business of importance must be done by ordinance, and every ordinance must be filed for public inspection for a specified time before it becomes operative, during which time the opportunity is given for the use of the referendum.

"If any considerable part of the public is dissatisfied with any action of the council, a petition of 25 per cent of the voters will compel it either to rescind such action or to call a special election of the citizens to pass upon it; or a petition of 10 per cent of the voters will compel the council either to reverse its action, or to put it before the voters at the next general election.

"The right of initiative compels the council to take similar action on desired new legislation, on the presentation of similar petitions.

"The right of recall compels the calling of a special election to oust any member of the council at any time on the representation of a petition of 25 per cent of the voters.

Duties of Commissioners.

"The five commissioners under this plan bear about the same relation to the municipal corporation that a board of directors does to a commercial corporation. The plan is thus intended to facilitate the transactions of the city's business by competent men, few in number, upon whom the whole responsibility rests. These men are clothed with authority to appoint all subordinate officials, who are removable at the council's pleasure, but for cause only.

"Under the commission plan each commissioner represents the whole city instead of a part, and is responsible to the entire electorate. Under the ward system the representative of a ward sometimes loses sight of his responsibility to the city at large, and is driven into combinations with representatives of other wards, whereby the interests of his ward, or of the combination, which may represent a bare majority of the council, are cared for to the detriment of the interests of the city at large.

"It is contended by some opponents of the commission form of government that the elimination of ward representation is a dangerous change, fearing that some sections of the city might be neglected; but it must be remembered that the commissioners, from whatever part of the city they may be chosen, must look to all sections for the votes necessary to election or re-election. This same consideration would operate in great part to prevent the selection of all of the commissioners from one section of the city.

Depends on Voters.

"As to the alleged danger of the election of a type of men who would seek office purely for the sake of the salary, over men more capable to whom the salary would be a secondary consideration, it seems to us that this is quite as much an argument against any form of government as against the commission plan. No government can be better than the people who make it. The more fully your committee has investigated this matter the more the conviction has grown that the commission form of government is not, and cannot be, a panacea for all municipal ills, as no other mere form of government can be. The vital thing in all popular government is the people themselves and the personnel of the governing body.

"In conclusion your committee wishes to emphasize its conviction that the gist of the whole matter lies in the selection of the commission. The commission plan merely provides the means by which the best government can be secured; only by exercising great care in the choice of commissioners can the best results be obtained.

Modifications Suggested.

"Your committee would further suggest that for Duluth the Des Moines plan be modified in the following respects:

"That the judges of the municipal court be elected at the same time and in the same manner as the commissioners, and that they be subject to recall as are the commissioners. We are of the opinion that the judicial branch of the city government should not be controlled, at least so far as the appointment of the judge is concerned, by the commissioners.

"We are of the opinion that the names of candidates should be placed on the primary ballot in such a way as to alternate their order in the various voting precincts, thereby giving no advantage to a candidate whose name happens to begin with 'A,' as against one whose name begins with 'Z.'

"We are of the opinion that the commissioner receiving the highest number of votes should qualify as mayor rather than that one certain candidate stand for election as mayor.

"We are of the opinion that all ordinances should be published in the daily papers immediately after their passage by the commission and should not be operative until at least ten days after publication.

"We are of the opinion that after the commission plan of municipal government has been in operation for six years it should be indorsed or rejected by a vote of the people at a special election held for that purpose.

"We are of the opinion that meetings of the council should be held at the city hall daily and that all meetings should be open to the public.

"We are of the opinion that the initiative, referendum and recall should not be possible upon a petition of less than 25 per cent of the number of votes cast for the commissioner receiving the highest number of votes at the last general election.

"We are of the opinion that the commission form of government is practical and advisable for the city of Duluth, and we recommend the so-called Des Moines plan with the modifications as herein suggested, many of which are contained in the present Duluth city charter. Respectfully submitted.

"Chairman.

WHAT DULUTHIANS LACK IN NUMBER THEY MAKE UP IN ENTHUSIASM

Bentley P. Neff, sales manager for F. A. Patrick & Co., was on a train between here and Montana the other day. He was talking to a man from Los Angeles and another man whom he did not know.

"Our town," said the Los Angeles man, "has grown to beat the band. We have more than 300,000 population, while Duluth only gained 48 per cent in ten years."

"That's true," responded the third man before Mr. Neff could spring into the breach. "In Los Angeles you have the finest bunch of old barnacles that I ever ran into. They've made their pile and they are simply existing in your town because it's the warmest place on the map in the winter. I've just come from Brainerd where the Northern Minnesota boosters met. Say, friend, you may have some people out in Los Angeles that are live ones, but, believe me, those Duluth men are regular devils."

Mr. Neff didn't say anything. He guessed it wasn't necessary. When appealed to, however, he corroborated the stranger's statements.

Asphalt in Mexico.

Seepages of pure liquid asphalt are to be seen in a number of localities in Mexico. In some places this mineral product oozes from the earth in sufficient quantities to form small lakes. Because of its purity and invigorating qualities Golden Grain Belt beer remains unexcelled as a home beverage. CARNEGIE GIVES TEN MILLION DOLLARS TO MAKE RACE PERFECT permanent representative of the United States at The Hague tribunal. President Taft has consented to be honorary president of the foundation.

No String on Its Use.

The method by which the annual income of $500,000 shall be expended is left by Mr. Carnegie entirely in the hands of the trustees. The foundation is to be perpetual, and when the establishment of universal peace is attained the donor provides that the revenue shall be devoted to the banishment of the "next most degrading evil or evils," the suppression of which would "most advance the progress, elevation and happiness of men."

The trustees of the fund are:

United States Senator Elihu Root, ex-secretary of state and ex-secretary of war.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, New York, president Columbia university.

Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

Joseph H. Choate, lawyer, ex-ambassador to Great Britain.

Albert K. Smiley, Lake Mohonk, educator and humanitarian.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president-emeritus of Harvard university.

James Brown Scott, solicitor of the state department.

John W. Foster, lawyer, ex-governor of Virginia.

William M. Howard, lawyer, congressman, Lexington, Ga.

Judge Thomas Burke, Seattle, Wash.

James L. Slayden, congressman, San Antonio, Tex.

Andrew D. White, ex-ambassador to Germany.

Robert Brookins, lawyer, St. Louis.

Samuel Mather, banker, steel manufacturer, Cleveland, Ohio.

J. G. Schmidlapp, railroad man, Cincinnati.

Arthur William Foster, regent University of California, San Francisco.

R. A. Franks, banker, Hoboken, N. J.

Charlemagne Tower, ex-ambassador to Germany and Russia.

Oscar Straus, ambassador to Turkey.

Austen G. Fox, lawyer, New York.

John L. Cadwalader, lawyer, New York.

John Sharp Williams, senator-elect from Mississippi.

C. L. Taylor of Pittsburg, chairman of the Carnegie hero fund commission.

George W. Perkins of New York, financier and philanthropist.

Informal Trust Deed.

The informal trust deed presented by Mr. Carnegie to the trustees today reads as follows:

"Gentlemen: I have transferred to you as trustees of the Carnegie Peace Fund, ten million of 5 per cent first mortgage bonds, value eleven and a half millions of dollars, the revenue of which is to be administered by you to hasten the abolition of international war, the foulest blot upon our civilization.

"Although we no longer eat our fellowmen nor torture prisoners nor sack cities, killing their inhabitants, we still kill each other in war like barbarians. Only wild beasts are excusable for doing that in this twentieth century of the Christian era, for the crime of war is inherent, since it decides not in favor of the right but always of the strong. The nation is criminal which refuses arbitration and drives its adversary to a tribunal which knows nothing of righteous judgment.

"Question of Honor."

"I believe the shortest and easiest path to peace lies in adopting President Taft's platform, who said in his address before the Peace and Arbitration society, New York, March 22, 1910: 'I have noticed exceptions in our arbitration treaties as to reference of questions of national honor to courts of arbitration. Personally I do not see any more reason why matters of national honor should not be referred to a court of arbitration than matters of property or of national proprietorship. I know that is going farther than most men are willing to go, but I do not see why questions of honor may not be submitted to a tribunal composed of men of honor who understand questions of national honor, to abide by their decision, as well as any other questions of difference arising between nations.'

"I venture to quote from my address as president of the Peace congress in New York, 1907:

"'Honor is the most dishonored word in our language. No man ever touched another man's honor; no nation ever dishonored another nation; all honor's wounds are self-inflicted.'

Quotes Taft's Speech.

"At the opening of the International Bureau of American Republics at Washington, April 26, 1910, President Taft said:

"'We twenty-one republics cannot afford to have any two or any three of us quarrel. We must stop this and Mr. Carnegie and I will not be satisfied until nineteen of us can intervene by proper measures to suppress a quarrel between any other two.'

"I hope the trustees will begin by pressing forward upon this line, testing it thoroughly and doubting not.

"The judge who presides over a cause in which he is interested dies in infamy if discovered. The citizen who constitutes himself a judge in his own cause as against his fellow citizen, and presumes to attack him, is a lawbreaker and as such disgraced. So should a nation be held as disgraced which insists upon sitting in judgment in its own cause in case of an international dispute.

Resolution in Congress.

"I call your attention to the following resolution introduced by the committee of foreign relations in the first session, fiftieth congress, June 14, 1888:

"'Resolved by the senate (the house of representatives concurring, that the president be, and is hereby requested to invite from time to time, as fit occasions may arise, negotiations with any government with which the United States has or may have diplomatic relations, to the end that any differences or disputes arising between the two governments which cannot be adjusted by such means. (Resolution not reached on calendar during session, but reintroduced and passed senate Feb. 14, 1890. Passed house, April 3, 1890.)'

"This resolution was presented to the British parliament, which adopted a resolution approving the action of the congress of the United States and expressing the hope that her majesty's government would lend their ready co-operation to the government of the United States for the accomplishment of the object in view. (Resolution of the house of commons July 16, 1893, for rel 1893, 346,352.)

Spirit of Hague Conference.

"Here we find an expression of the spirit which resulted in the first international Hague conference of 1899; the second Hague conference of 1907; eighty treaties of obligatory arbitration between the great nations of the world, our own country being a party to twenty-three of them

"It was my privilege to introduce to President Cleveland in 1897 a committee of members of parliament of Britain, headed by Sir William Randal Cromer, in response to the action of congress, proposing a treaty agreeing to settle all disputes that might arise between America and Great Britain by arbitration Such a treaty was concluded between Lord Pauncefote and Secretary Olney in 1897. It failed of passage by the necessary two thirds majority of the senate by only three votes.

"There is reason to believe the British government has been desirous of having that treaty ratified by our government, or ready to agree to another of similar character, so that President Taft's policy seems within easy reach of success.

"If the English-speaking race adopts such a treaty we shall not have to wait long for other nations to join, and it will be noticed that the resolution of congress in 1890 embraces 'any government with which the United States has or may have diplomatic relations,' thus all nations seem still open to the invitation he is requested to give, there being no limitations as to time.

"If the independence and rights of nations to their respective international policies were first formally recognized in such treaties, no dispute, concerning these elements of sovereignty could arise.

Power of Trustees.

"The trustees have power to sell, invest or re-invest all funds, either in the United States or in other countries, subject, as respects investments in the United States, to no more restriction than is imposed upon savings banks or insurance companies in the state of New York.

"In order to give effect, it will be suitable that the trustees herein named shall form a corporation with lawful powers appropriate to the accomplishment of the purposes herein expressed and authorize the conveyance of the fund to such a corporation.

"No personal liability will attach to trustees for their action or non-action as trustees. They have power to fill vacancies or to add to their number and to employ all officials and to fix their compensation.

Reimbursed For Expenses.

"Trustees shall be reimbursed all expenses incurred in connection with their duties as trustees, including traveling expenses, attending meetings, including expenses of wife or daughter t oeach annual meeting. The president shall be granted such honoraria as the trustees think proper and as he can be prevailed upon to accept.

"Lines of future action cannot be wisely laid down. Many may have to be tried, and having full confidence in my trustees, I leave to them the widest discretion as to the measures and policy they shall from time to time adopt, only promising that the end they shall keep unceasingly in view, until it is attained, is the speedy abolition of international war between so-called civilized nations.

Next Most Degrading Evil.

"When civilized nations enter into such treaties as named or war is discarded as disgraceful to civilized men, as personal war (duelling) and man selling and buying (slavery) have been discarded within the wide boundaries of our English speaking race, the trustees will please then consider what is the next most degrading remaining evil or evils whose banishment, or what new elevating element or elements if introduced or fostered, or both combined would most advance the progress, elevation and happiness of man.

"And so on from century to century, without end, my trustees of each age shall determine how they can best aid man in the upward march to higher and higher stages of development, unceasingly, for now we know that as a law of his being man was created with the desire and capacity for improvement to which, perchance, there may be no limit short of perfection even here in this life upon earth.

"Let my trustees, therefore, ask themselves from time to time, from age to age, how they can best help man in his glorious ascent onward and upward, and to this end devote this fund.

"Thanking you for your cordial acceptance of the trust and your hearty approval of its object, I am, very gratefully yours,

"ANDREW CARNEGIE."

The names of Louise Whitfield Carnegie and Margaret Carnegie, wife and daughter respectively of the donor, are appended to the deed of trust as witnesses.

HATTIE LE BLANC IS FOUND NOT "GUILTY"

were explained by Judge Bond, who instructed the jury that one verdict would be sufficient. If the jury acquitted the defendant the case was ended. If it should find her guilty the jury must specify whether guilty of murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree, or manslaughter.

Much of the judge's charge was considered favorable to the defendant. Especially so were his words bearing on the question whearer the girl had the courage and the ability to use for the first time a revolver that required the grasp of a good sized hand and the knowledge how to release a safety attachment. He said the government had not shown that Hattie Le Blanc had ever used such a weapon, while on the other hand Mrs. Glover, the widow, did know how to use one.

He urged the jury to give the girl the benefit of any reasonable doubt.

Judge Bond ended his charge at 9:32 a. m. and Clerk Dillingham, turning towards the diminuitive prisoner, said: "Hattie Le Blanc, you now have the opportunity to say anything that you desire."

Wants to Go Home.

Pale and frightened, the girl rose and faced the jury. Her voice was faint and she spoke with a pronounced French accent as she said:

"I did not do it. I want to go home with my father."

The jury was unable to hear her because she spoke so faintly and her chief counsel, Mr. Johnson, repeated her statement for their benefit. Mr. Johnson then requested the court to explain the rulings on reasonable doubt and the rights of the defendant in refraining from testifying, which was done by the judge, and the case was then given to the jury.

DIAZ FORCES FOUGHT TO STANDSTILL BY REBELS

their identity became known they were taken out and shot. They are included in the number of the dead.

Gen. Navarro places his own dead at one captain, one lieutenant and twelve soldiers. Twenty-seven of his men, including two officers, were severely wounded.

Gen. Brandon Wounded.

Among the latter was Gen. Brandon, special correspondent of the Mexican Herald and a resident of Panama. A bullet struck his horse in the eye, passed through his neck and lodged in the rider's abdomen. Another bullet struck him in the wrist. Brandon is the champion middleweight wrestler of Mexico.

Five insurrectos who ran out of ammunition and surrendered were bayonetted. One of them who had fainted from a bullet which grazed his temple, took the boyonet thrust in the rib and was left for dead, but during the night he recovered and escaped. He grinned as he told his story. When the correspondent related the tale to Gen. Navarro today the latter laughed heartily, as if enjoying a joke on himself.

Battle Not Decisive.

The battle was indecisive in its results. It began at 11 a. m. and lasted until 4 p. m. and occurred at the village of Cerro Prieto, 100 miles west of Chihuahua, at the base of the low hills, nine miles east of here. Two hundred revolutionists had occupied the hills during the previous night. When Gen. Navarro with 450 of his advance guard passed east of the hills the insurrectos opened fire, but did little damage owing to the distance.

Later, when the field pieces came up, Navarro shelled them from their positions. The revolutionists retreated slowly, firing from the shelter of adobe houses. At 4 o'clock, their ammunition having run low, they took up a position at the base of a range of low mountains five miles southwest of Cerro Prieto.

No Fighting Monday.

There was no fighting Monday despite the proximity of the two forces, which in itself indicates a drawn battle. The camp fires can be seen from here at night. During the fighting Sunday the original 200 insurrectos were reinforced by 230 of their comrades. Two hundred more arrived last night and it was stated that by morning there would be 400 more from west of here.

In an interview Gen. Navarro stated that he expected serious fighting from now on. He admitted that the insurgents were brave, but declared their lack of military organization would defeat them in the end.

It was confirmed in his camp that government troops were converging in this section from Parral and Sonora.

Navarro, contrary to common report, has no rapid fire guns—only field pieces. The Parral contingent, however, is bringing rapid firers.

Task Before Revolutionists.

If the revolutionists are to win they must destroy Navarro in order to contend with the new forces.

The most serious loss suffered by the revolutionists occurred in an adobe house in which they had taken cover, a shell wrecking the place, killing and wounding several, but not before they had accounted for a number of the enemy.

The Asociated Press correspondent counted fifteen dead near the ruins of the house, apparently about equally divided between the two armies. About one-half of them had been stripped of their clothing. It is a practice among the soldiers to strip the uniforms from their dead comrades, partly for the clothing and partly to conceal the identity from those who may seek to discover their losses.

Given Military Burial.

Another unburied soldier, also stripped, was seen by the roadside on the road from this place to the scene of the battle. Six more were in the federal camp awaiting burial. These were placed in rough boxes and buried with military honors in a corral. Two companies lined up and the bugle blew "Glory to the Dead; Long Live President Diaz."

Other dead were accounted for as still lying where they fell on the hills.

Five Dollars a Box

The Price Cut No Figure With Him.

"I want to say for the benefit of some poor dyspeptic that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will give comfort and a cure every time. Five dollars a box would not stop my purchasing them should I ever suffer again as I did for a week before using them.

"The one 50-cent box I bought at my druggist's did the work and my digestion is all right again.

"Many of my neighbors have also tried these tablets and found them to be just as represented and Mr. Ellms also wants me to use his name in indorsing Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Asst. Postmaster,
South Sudbury, Mass.

Mrs. Jas. Barton of Toronto, Canada, writes: "For eighteen months I suffered from what I supposed was bladder and kidney trouble, and took medicine from three different doctors, without any sign of cure. I felt so ill at last I was hardly able to do my work

"I thought I would try a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and see if they would make me feel better, never really thinking I had dyspepsia, but after only three or four tablets had been taken all the acid trouble disappeared and then I discovered I had had acid dyspepsia, while the doctors had been treating me for kidney and bladder trouble and one of them treated me for rheumatism.

"My digestion is fine, my complexion clear and I am able to do my work and low spirits are unknown to me.

"I am thankful for finding a cure so good and so pleasant to take as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I am surprised at the change they have made in me."

All druggists sell and recommend Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they contain only the simple natural digestives, and taken after meals prevent acidity and cause prompt digestion and assimilation of food.

Physicians everywhere indorse them because they are as safe for the child as for the adult; they are invaluable for sour stomach, nervous dyspepsia, heartburn, gas on stomach and bowels and every form of stomach derangement.

NEW HARBOR AT MONTAUK

Will Prove Capital Base for Uncle Sam's Atlantic Fleet.

Day Saved to Ocean Liners By Unloading at Long Island.

New York, Dec. 14.—The improvement of the harbor at Montauk Point L. I., assumed full form last week, and the national government will be asked to aid in this most important work for the commercial interests of the country.

It is said fully one day can be lopped off the present time from land to land in the trips to and from Europe, and the depth of water at all times in the habor that can be constructed at the point being no less than sixty feet will enable the largest steamships to enter in perfect safety at any hour, day or night.

It is hoped that the government will establish a great naval dockyard there, and from that point be able to care for the defense of the coast from the capes of the Delaware to the New Brunswick line.

Norfolk, above and beyond all others the finest port for defense and offense of the entire Atlantic seaboard, can give abundant protection for the coast between the Delaware capes and our great naval establishment at Guantanamo, Cuba.

Montauk harbor, fortified and made a naval station of the first magnitude, would act as an outer and most formidable guardian of the safety of all of our northern sea coast cities.

Fleet Easily Assembled.

Twenty-four hours' time would enable our fleets, composed of all classes from submarine to Dreadnoughts, to strike any enemy approaching our shores within the radius from Charleston north to Portland.

Even a naval battle, in which honors were even between our own and an enemy's fleet approaching the coast, would leave the latter in such shattered condition that our port fortifications could not be successfully assailed by it after the fight.

The Japanese fleet off Port Arthur, but a few hundred miles from home, found immense difficulty to keep its leaguer so far from a naval base.

Montauk harbor as a repair base for fleets after an engagement would give us great advantage over any hostile naval force that might threaten us on the Atlantic coast.

The recent snowstorm and cold weather throughout the entire country east of the Rocky mountains has caused a sudden and heavy demand for all classes of woolen goods, furs, heavy shoes, rubbers and winter clothing of every description.

This has been appreciated by the merchants of the interior and the heaviest ordering of the season has been transacted, to the keen enjoyment of agents and manufacturers in the East.

Our retailers here have also profited by the change to cold weather, and the shops and department stores have been crowded all week with customers. The merchants in all the large cities of the country are united in their efforts to have the holiday purchases made as early in the month as it is possible for the convenience of their patrons.

Chance for Early Buyers.

One of the best known of the leading department stores of this city, in order to induce early purchasing, advertised to their charge customers that all purchases made prior to Dec. 10 would be charged as in January account, and rendered in the bills of Feb. 1.

No doubt the newspapers will contain similar offers from other concerns for the period to Dec. 20, as by this means it is hoped to equalize through the first twenty business days of December the trade that heretofore has rendered the week immediately preceding Christmas a terror to shoppers on account of the crowded streets and shops.

Inquiry among the leading dry goods men of this and other cities of the country as to the volume and value of sales of merchandise for this present autumn and winter, elicits that October and November sales were each greater than the sales of the same months of last year, and now, with one-third of the present month passed, the prospects are that December, 1910, will far surpass December, 1909, in its volume and value of distribution of merchandise to retail purchasers; that is, to the ultimate consumers.

There is no bubbling over with enthusiasm among our merchants on account of this increase in the volume of trade.

Our business men have for so many years witnesses a fine increase in business with each succeeding year that now many of them are actually disappointed if the increase is not extraordinary in its extent.

Small Increase Disappointing.

An increase of 5 or 10 per cent during the year is thought to be but small by many of the largest houses; they are not quite satisfied unless it rises 25, 50 or even 100 per cent higher than in prior years.

This is a country of continual growth in population, and it is an era of steady inflation of the volume of the currency, therefore the merchant and the manufacturer have two most powerful factors preparing the way for greater commercial achievements.

That this year will in its aggregate of both the foreign and domestic commerce be a record-breaker for the United States is already assured, and it can, with reasonable certainty, be stated that in each of these classes of trade the records of all other years have been surpassed.

Our securities markets have been however, depressed, and it is remarkable how many merchants, even while their sales accounts show larger amounts of business, are disturbed mentally and sentimentally by hearing or reading of falling prices in Wall street.

Quotations of declines in Wall street ticker lists for a fortnight will cause merchants on Broadway, Fourteenth, Twenty-third streets and Sixth avenue to doubt the value of their stocks of merchandise and to feel blue while their stores are crowded with purchasers. This is one of the strange phases of twentieth century business in this great metropolis.

To Make a Dry Shampoo.

Dry shampoos are all the rage now amongst society ladies and the more prominent stage beauties. Here is a formula much used in the East. It cleans, invigorates and stimulates the hair and scalp, while removing surplus oil, dust, dandruff, etc. Obtain of any well-stocked druggist six ounces of pulverized orris root, also obtain two ounces of vilane powder. Mix thoroughly and keep in a tight box or jar. Sprinkle a heaping tablespoonful over and through the hair, distributing with the fingers. Do this at night. Next morning comb and brush thoroughly until all trace of powder is removed. The results are a wonderful glossy, clean, soft and fluffy head of hair.

Men use it daily. Women one to three times a week.

DEAF MUTES SEE ON ACTORS' LIPS

In Moving Picture Shows at Cleveland Obscene Language.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 14.—Investigation of half a dozen moving picture shows of Cleveland by Mrs. Elmer Bates, a noted deaf mute instructor and lecturer, resulted in disclosures of the use of profanity by the characters in the films. This condition has been brought to the attention of the Humane society and is to be the basis of a crusade for the censoring of the productions of the film manufacturers.

A. B. Williams, secretary of the Humane society, said his organization would take up the matter at once. Moving picture shows have been declared the ideal form of dramatic amusement for the deaf mutes. They can see the action of the plays, and from the lips of the characters, as thrown on the screen, can read the words of the play better than others. But while moving picture show owners have taken advantage of the appeal to the deaf mutes in their variety of entertainment they have overlooked the carelessness of the members of the stock companies which put on the shows for moving-picture photographers.

Curses, vile names and vile comments are indulged in by the performers while being photographed, often without the least semblance of relation to the play being performed. The profanity and obscene language seem to be addressed by members of the companies to one another on the spur of the moment.

In some instances the profanity is a natural part of the dialogue in the play. Then it is indulged in with disregard for the fact that deaf mutes can read the lips of the performers as enlarged and thrown on the screens by the moving picture machines. Shocking language was used in all the shows visited.

CUPID WAS WINNER

Despite the Bride's Mother's Sword and Brother's Shotgun.

Springfield, Ohio, Dec. 14.—Cupid won in a contest which has been waging since Thanksgiving day. James Miller took out a license to marry Della Hawk. The girl's mother drove him from the house at the point of a sword and then locked her daughter in a room.

The girl has been held captive until last evening, when she was allowed to take a walk with some girl friends. James Miller was at the home of a neighbor. A street car stopped, Miss Hawk boarded it and then Miller jumped in as the car started. The young couple went to the home of Rev. Lawrence, where the ceremony was performed.

Several of the girl friends who had been made acquainted with the plans hastened back to the Hawk home. A brother of the bride-elect, armed with a shotgun, started forth, but arrived too late to stop the marriage. Miller boarded at the Hawk home until Thanksgiving day.

GEN. ZELAYA HOMESICK.

Is Anxious to Return to His Native Country.

New York, Dec. 14.—Gen. Jose Zelaya deposed president of Nicaragua, now an exile in Belgium, is decidedly homesick and longs to return to his native country to live in peace, according to a letter received by his son, Alfonso, who lives here.

Zelaya has written that he intends to sail for New York within a few weeks, that he will call upon President Taft and later send an appeal to President Estrada of Nicaragua, asking permission to return to his people. Zelaya promises his son that he will leave politics alone.

"I have never had a moment's peace since I left my soil," he writes, "and I long for it day by day, for my heart is filled with sadness over the realization that I am an exile.

URSULINE SISTER

Is Only Licensed Woman Engineer in Ohio—Several Men Failed.

Findlay, Ohio, Dec. 14.—Sister Mary Louise, of the Ursuline convent, at Tiffin, is the only licensed woman engineer in the state, she having just successfully passed a creditable examination. She had been in charge of the engine room at the convent for the past twenty years.

Recently orders were issued from the state department for the employment of a licensed engineer, according to the law of Ohio. Rather than relinquish the position which she had filled so many years she decided to take the examination.

F. P. Bronnstead, of Lima, was the examiner, and it is stated that several men failed to pass.

Koochiching County Has Jail.

Bemidji, Minn., Dec. 13.—The prisoners of Koochiching county have been removed from the Beltrami county jail, the official place of incarceration for Koochiching county, and taken to International Falls to be committed to the new county jail at that point.

METEORIC STONE

Found Imbedded in the Earth Near Sandusky, Ohio.

Sandusky, Ohio, Dec. 14.—A flint-like formation, four feet in diameter and weighing nearly five tons, was found imbedded in yellow clay about fifteen feet below the surface by workmen engaged in digging a boiler-room excavation at the new plant of the Hinde & Dauch Paper company yesterday. It is round and smooth. Students of science say the mammoth bullet is unquestionably the deposit of a meteor, and this recalls the fact that a meteoric light disappeared in the vicinity of the discovery some years ago simultaneously with the report of what sounded, according to old residents, like the explosion of a cannon.

Charged with Robbing Companion.

Bowbells, N. D., Dec. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charged with robbing their companion, J. Misner, two laborers are under arrest. John Carom waived a preliminary examination and was bound over to the district court, while Hans Kohrn will make a fight for an acquittal in the preliminary hearing.

SEPTUGENARIAN SKATES

Gay Old Resident of Little Falls Takes Whirl on Ice.

Little Falls, Minn., Dec. 14.—Martin Christenson numbered among those who dotted the ice near the ice house Sunday afternoon. Despite the fact that he has reached the age of 71 years and was the oldest protege of the winter sport by several years to venture onto the river's frozen surface, Mr. Christenson was not the most ill at ease by a considerable degree.

It had been thirty years since Mr. Christenson last donned a pair of skates but he found keen enjoyment in indulging in the former amusement which was so popular with him while still a resident of his native land, Norway. When a young man Mr. Christenson lived in the Scandinavian land near a river. His home was about fifteen miles removed from the nearest town and often he put on his skates to glide to the city to make his purchases and returned home in the same manner.

GARRY HERRMANN HAS NEW SUGGESTION ON SCHEDULE

Would Have Long Inter-League Series After Regular Season.

American League Magnates Not Likely to Take Kindly to Plan.

New York, Dec. 14.—With the National league in session and ready, it was thought, to get down to the business of electing a president, and the annual meeting of the American league on the day's program, today gave promise of being one of the busiest of baseball week in New York city.

There seemed to be little or no doubt that Thomas J. Lynch would be re-elected to the presidency of the older organization. On the authority of President Hermann of Cincinnati it was stated that at least five clubs—New York, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Boston and St. Louis—would vote for Mr. Lynch's retention. It may be decided to give him a three-year term.

Ban B. Johnson last year was elected president of the American league for twenty years so that the young organization has no presidential election on its hands. Routine business, such as the awarding of the championship pennant to the Philadelphia Athletics and action on the schedule question was predicted not to occupy more than two hours.

New Schedule Proposed.

The one thing which gave any promise of prolonging the meetings of the big leagues was possible discussion of a new schedule plan which Garry Herrmann has advocated. The Cincinnati president is quoted as favoring a schedule of 112 games for each league, which would carry the season up to the middle of August, and then to start a series of inter-league games.

Under this plan each club would play four games at home and four games abroad with each team of the other league, or sixty-four games in all in which teams of the National league would be pitted against American league teams. Each club would thus play 176 games during the season, which would start about April 10 and close about Oct. 15.

The old world's championship would be eliminated, it being calculated that the team winning the greatest number of games in the whole season would be deserving of a real world's championship title.

From statements attributed to President Johnson, there seems little probability that the American league would take kindly to this plan for this season at least. It was indicated that the American league season would be likely to begin about April 12 and consist of the usual 154 games. What the other National league magnates thought about the new inter-league schedule proposition had not been developed up to the time the club representatives got together for the day's business.

The National league occupied itself only with routine business yesterday.

Eastern League Meeting.

The Eastern league increased the salary of the president from $5,000 to $7,500 and authorized its new president, Edward G. Barrow of Montreal, to open and maintain league headquarters in this city.

A committee was appointed to "investigate re-classification for the Eastern league." It will report to the meeting in Baltimore, Feb. 6, when the schedule will be announced. It was decided to maintain the double umpire system, started last season, and to play 154 games. It is understood that the Eastern league will insist on a reclassification so that the National and American leagues cannot draft so many of its players.

Rebuke to Lynch.

The board of directors of the National league administered what was considered a rebuke to President Lynch of the league, in the McMillan case. President Charles Ebbetts of Brooklyn, last season released Player McMillan to Rochester of the Eastern league, and a number of major league clubs complained that Ebbetts had violated one of the cardinal rules of organized baseball in failing to obtain waivers. President Lynch fined Ebbetts $500. The board today "remitted the fine without comment." Lynch refused to discuss the action.

The National league awarded the pennant of last season to Chicago and decided to continue the pension payments to Mrs. Johnson, a sister of Harry Pulliam, the league president who ended his life a year and a half ago.

The matter of Pitcher Camnitz who claimed a bonus of $1,200 from Pittsburg on what he said was a contract that he was to receive that amount if he did not touch liquor during the season, was laid over until the February meeting so that Camnitz can appear personally.

Few Trades Made.

There has been a notable absence of important trades and deals in players at this gathering. Pittsburg yesterday asked for waivers on First Baseman Jack Flynn and announced that if no offers were received he would be released unconditionally. Jersey City traded Pitcher Sitton to Montreal for Pitcher "Bumpus" Jones. Detroit sold Henry Pernoll, its only left-handed pitcher to Oakland of the Pacific Coast league.

It was pretty well established last night that Fred Tenney, former manager of the Boston Nationals, but more recently first baseman of the New York Nationals, will be appointed manager for the new Boston team, negotiations for the sale of which are under way.

It was said that Fred Lake, present manager of the Bostons, whose contract has a year to run, will manage the St. Louis Americans, through a deal made with Robert L. Hedges, owner of the St. Louis club. Lake declined to discuss the matter yesterday, but it is understood announcement of the change will be made at the American league meeting.

Roger Bresnahan, leader of the St. Louis Nationals, said last night that Pitcher Bob Harmon will not go to Toronto as announced yesterday. Fred Clarke refused to waive claim on Harmon and Lester Backman was substituted in his stead. Bresnahan also announced that "Fiddler" Corridon had been passed to Toronto.

WAGNER WILL STICK.

Pittsburg, Dec. 14.—Hans Wagner, who was for seven different seasons the premier batsman of the National league, whose tenth year with the Pittsburg nine the past summer has been followed with rumors of probable sale or release, will either play with the Pirates again next year or else retire for good on the laurels he has won. Manager Fred Clarke silenced all rumors by this statement before leaving for New York with other Pittsburg club officials to attend the annual meeting of the National league: He said:

"I will neither sell, trade nor release Wagner; if he ever plays ball again, it will be with Pittsburg. Of course, he may not want to play, but if he does, he will be throwing dust around the inner field this summer."

It is, however, known that there will be a shakeup in the Pirate squad, and Clarke admitted it, but would not intimate in what quarter it would be made.

DAN McGANN KILLS HIMSELF

Former Captain of Giants Commits Suicide in Louisville Hotel.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 14.—Dan McGann, former captain and first baseman of the New York Nationals, committed suicide here yesterday.

McGann was found in his room at Bosler's hotel at 4 o'clock in the afternoon with a bullet hole over his heart and a revolver in his hand. He had been dead for some hours.

No one had seen McGann since midnight the night before, when he was about the hotel apparently in the best of health and humor.

McGann last season was with the Milwaukee team of the American association and it was understood efforts were being made to secure him for the Louisville team of the same league for next season. He had been spending the winter in this city.

So far no cause for his suicide has developed.

Although known throughout the baseball world as "Dan," McGann's name was Dennis. McGann was a bachelor about 38 years of age and was born and reared at Shelbyville, Ky., near here.

ZBYSZKO WINS FROM ROLLER IN NEW YORK.

New York, Dec. 14.—Zbyszko, the Pole, won two straight falls from Dr. B. F. Roller of Seattle last night, thus winning the bout. The first fall was secured by a bar-lock in 1 hour, 13 minutes, 25 seconds, and the second by an arm roll in 11 minutes and 40 seconds.

HEAVY TOLL EXACTED.

Many Hunters Killed During Deer Season in Pennsylvania.

Pittsburg, Dec. 14.—Fatal hunting accidents in the state of Pennsylvania, with the season not yet ended, almost equal the number of deaths in football in all forty-six states of the country this fall, twenty-two players succumbing on the gridiron and 499 sustaining serious injuries.

This comparison of "sports that kill" is obtained from a careful compilation of all gunning accidents reported in Pennsylvania to the local newspapers this fall and from a summary of football accidents which was widely published at the conclusion of the gridiron season. In view of the fact that football fatalities attract much the greater notice, any gain which exact figures would show may presumably be credited to the gun toll.

The record, as obtainable, is: Football in the United States (1900), deaths, 22; injuries, 490. Hunting in Pennsylvania (1909), deaths, 13; serious injuries, 31.

Young Men Are Victims.

The list of gunning casualties shows a death or injury for almost every day in the season thus far. The victims are mainly young men under 21 years of age.

Of the thirteen dead, seven were killed by weapons in their own hands and six by guns in the hands of other persons. The causes of the accidents were stumbling, fence-climbing, careless loading, stacking of guns against trees, heedless aiming and ignorance that guns were loaded. In no case is it reported that a hunter was mistaken for game as often happens in the bigger hunting grounds of Maine and the Northwest.

One peculiar accident was the death of a hunter by heart disease when a rabbit which he thought he had shot dead jumped just as he was about to pick it up. This victim was Albert Henne, aged 42, a school director and hotel man of Dickson City, Pa. His case is not included in the tabulation of deaths in hunting.

PROMOTER STOPS FIGHT AND REFUNDS MONEY.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 14.—A scheduled 10-round bout between Monte Attell and Jeff O'Connell was stopped by the promoters at the end of the fifth round here last night, and entrance money was refunded. Promoters refused to pay either fighter.

Attell was to have received 30 per cent of the gross receipts. The fight was tame from start to finish, Attell getting a shade the better of the exchanges.

Hissing started in the first round and throughout the fight. Between the rounds the noise would increase. Twice during the course of the fight Promoter Tommy Elks, coming to the ringside, requested the referee to make the men fight or get out of the ring.

MAKES GREAT SHOWING AGAINST RUSSIAN LION

Karl Lehto Proves Tough Mat Customer for Hackenschmidt.

Russian Wins in Two Straight Falls After Spectacular Battle.

In perhaps the greatest wrestling match ever witnessed in this city, contested before an audience that packed the Lyceum theater to the very doors, an audience containing many of the most prominent and professional men of Duluth as well as more than 1,000 of the yelling and wildly enthusiastic countrymen of Karl Lehto, George Hackenschmidt last night defeated the game and nervy Finn in two straight falls.

The Russian Lion, who is the most marvelously muscled man who ever wrestled before a Duluth audience, secured the first fall at the end of 29 minutes and 30 seconds, a half nelson and double wrist lock spelling the undoing of the young Finn. The second fall came in 13 minutes and was accomplished by a half nelson and crotch hold.

Never in a match in this city has such wonderful bridging been shown as that done by Lehto last night, when he held the massive and hard-pressing form of the Russian on a bridge for three or four minutes. With a contraction of the huge muscles of his wonderfully developed neck, Lehto finally escaped from the hold and brought the big crowd yelling to its feet.

Twice in the first bout the young Finn bridged out of dangerous positions, twice he broke full nelsons with the great strength of his neck, and once he wriggled and twisted free from a hammerlock that the Lion all but clamped on with all of its terrible force. Not only did the young Finn show remarkable versatility in evading the holds of Hackenschmidt, but he also had the crowd yelling deep-throated words of encouragement by his efforts to assume the offensive.

There may be one man in the world who can throw "Hack"—again, there may not be. This Russian is a monument of colossal strength. Therefore it is not to be wondered at that Lehto could make no impression on his huge and massive bulk.

Once Karl secured a half head lock and brought the big Russian part way out of his perfect balance. That is as near as he ever came to even worrying the big man, whose shoulders in all his long and wonderful mat career have never been pinned to the canvas.

Got Behind Once.

Once Lehto got behind the Lion, but "Hack" brushed the youngster off with a concentration of his huge muscles. Hackenschmidt works like a perfect and well oiled machine; he never rushed, and he likewise never made a false move. He presents an antithesis to Gotch and he also presents a wonderful study in the length that a man can go in muscular development.

GEORGE HACKENSCHMIDT.

During the second bout it was evident that Lehto was tired from his exertions in the preceding bout. He lacked neither nerve or courage, and yet his efforts of resistance had been reduced by the wonderful fight he had made in the first bout. Slowly but surely the big Russian wore him down, finally pinning Karl with a hold from which, struggle as he did, the Finn could not escape.

As a contest it was one of the greatest and surely the most interesting ever held in this city. Sprinkled throughout the big audience were a number of women, and they enjoyed the contest with an enthusiasm milder yet as keen as that of the men present.

The match presented a study for the lover of phyhical strength. Never has a man ever been formed more truly by nature than Hackenschmidt for the perfect gladiator, the fighter of the Roman arena. The big Lion has posed for famous London artists, and as he struggled back and forth last night, his huge muscles standing out in coils and bunches, he looked the primitive fighting man, who ruled by right of might.

The main bout of the evening was preceded by two interesting preliminaries. In the curtain-raiser Mauritz Harris won in straight falls from Joe Fish, a game little grappler who refused to quit under the punishment administered by Harris.

The veteran, Chris Person, won from Ole Johnson in 37 minutes, after one of the hardest struggles the old war horse has engaged in for some time.

Harley Davidson, the world's champion roller and ice skater and one of the greatest athletes in the world, refereed the two preliminary bouts. Davidson also introduced to the crowd Adolph Earnest, the German grappler, who stated that he will meet any 180-pound man in the world, bar none.

Tom Madden, the veteran referee and one of the most popular officials of the mat game who has ever worked in these parts, officiated at the main bout of the evening.

PUCK CHASERS HAVE RETURNED

Duluth Players State Chicago Used Professionals in Lineup.

The members of the Northern Hockey team reached the city this morning, coming direct to Duluth, after the game Tuesday evening at Detroit.

On the trip the team that was hastely gathered together won three games and dropped three out of the six contests played. Under the circumstances the showing was a splendid one and was much better than even the most ardent admirers of the team hoped for.

Jones was left at Cleveland. Duluth will lose a sterling player in his failuse to come home with the team. Cleveland was the former home of Jones and he has decided to remain there for the time being at least. Later it is hoped that he will decide to make his home here.

Ray Fenton stated this morning that the Chicago team, the aggregation that represented the Illinois Athletic association, was composed largely of professionals. It seems that the I. A. A. officials heard that Duluth might prove game.

When it is considered that the team dangerous therefore prepared for the that won three out of six games had never even practiced together before the first game at Chicago, the snowing may be considered one to make the hockey fans of this city feel rather proud of the team. The trip of the aggregation will also prove a boost for hockey in this city.

It is expected that the team that toured under the name of the Northern Hockey team will play intact under the Duluth Curling club auspices. Al Cummings will undoubtedly be added to the roster, and it is expected that with more practice the team will be able to hold its own with the very best teams of the country.

BOWLING SCORES

SKI ENTHUSIASTS WILL ORGANIZE NEW CLUB.

A meeting of the ski enthusiasts of this city will be held this evening at the commercial club for the purpose of reorganizing the club, increasing the membership, broadening the policy of the club, and making it a club that will include every form of winter sport.

It is expected that the meeting this evening will be a very enthusiastic one, as the directors have received numerous letters from business men of the city, asking the particulars of the reorganization and also requesting information on the price of membership.

The club will be organized at the meeting tonight, a constitution adopted, possibly and other steps taken in the forming anew of one of the greatest boosters of winter sport in the Northwest.

Looking for Trouble.

W. O. Brown of St. Paul writes that he is handling Jack Waltona, a bantamweight whom Brown claims has beaten some of the best boys in the Northwest. Brown is looking for a fight from some of the boys in this part of the country, and wants to have his boy box before one of the Duluth clubs. According to the information sent by Brown, his boy has never been beaten, and is looking for larger worlds to conquer.

GOSSIP PICKED UP ALONG THE SPORTING HIGHWAY

The Russian Lion and the Nature Loving Stuff—"Tex" Dropped a Roll at Reno—Curley Has a New One.

(BY BRUCE.)

WOULD YOU BELIEVE OR EVEN imagine for one second that the Russian Lion was possessed of a poetical and romantic temperament? This great fellow has traveled all over the civilized world and the things he has most observed have not been the people and the cities, but nature in its simplest and therefore in its most beautiful form.

Yesterday at his room in the St. Louis, attired in some sort of rich green bath robe, the pride of Europe, the man whose athletic achievements have caused two continents to wonder, spoke as a man who had studied life from his cabin in the forest or from the viewpoint of the rustic who has made nature his most constant companion.

"Hack" was asked what country, what city or what kind of life he most preferred. Up to that time he had been quiet and rather hard to draw out. He doesn't like to talk of wrestlers, and he doesn't like to talk of men he has beaten; but this nature stuff came to him in some sort of way, and he started.

"I love to live where the sun is always shining, where the air is balmy and where the birds are always singing," said the big wrestler, and he had that serious cast of Russian countenance when he let 'er go. "In California, now, I could live ever happily. I love the land there, the flowers. Somehow it reminds me of some of the countries of Europe. The people are happy and gay and there is life and joy in the very air.

"I love Monte Carlo. There is the casino, the concert, the laughter, the beautiful women, and you can sit at the cafe with your coffee and gaze on life; life that is bright, full of laughter and free of care. I would love to be there now. You see the aristocrats of all the world, the tourists and the rich and great. You see life at Monte Carlo, and you are free and happy, for somehow it is in the air."

Hackenschmidt has traveled in practically every country of the world. He owns two houses in London, has a home in St. Petersburg, and yet, as he said yesterday, he calls the world his home. He is a cosmopolite in the truest meaning of the word.

New York, Paris, London, Berlin, St. Petersburg—these cities are known somewhat more or less intimately by the remarkable man. But with all his travel, with all the big things he has done, the mobs, the glitter that goes with being a world's champion, this man at heart is as simple as a child; not simple in the sense of being ignorant, for old "Hack" is a chap who has read many books and has drawn something from his reading; but is as simple in heart and being as the primitive man must have been.

When he retires, Hackenschmidt says he will go to some little village or city, some quiet place, and live out the rest of his life. He is vastly different from the other champions who have come before him, yet in this side of his nature reminds you somewhat of Frank Gotch, who is another lover of the simple side of life.

Tex Tells as How He Lost Scandalously at Gay Reno.

TEX RICKARD, WHO IS KNOWN by some few of the inner circle of the Duluth mining men, is out with the statement that he lost heavily on the Johnson-Jeffries fight. Those who took a running jump casual opine of the financial result of the Nevada noise, were of the opinion that Rickard and Mons. Gleason cleaned somewhat handsomely on the result of the push into the larger hall of fame of Lil' Artha. But at Hot Springs the other day Tex grew reminiscent as well as confidential and told how and why he did not gather the gay sheckels with that merry abandon that all of us were allowing as how he had cashed.

The story of Rickard would make one of those heart beat stories of Lincoln Steffen sound like a treatise on the cost of painting the old barn.

He speaks openly about people with a keen and educated desire for money and without a healthy inclination for work, who make trouble for other people with nice and open-faced dispositions. But, anyway, Tex says he lost, and many of us are sorry, for the Tex boy is one of the most genial and whole-souled lads to meet who ever spread his legs languourously on another chair over in the lobby of the Spalding.

Any time a guy jumps into the jackpot with $100,000 cold he has nerve, and most of us in this drear world admire men with nerve, and men who do something; not the barking and biting small fry, who knock and sneer and cast nasty aspersions. The world loathes the knocker and loves the good fellow, and therefore let us throw a couple of tears in the case of Rickard, if he really dropped a bundle.

He was one of the few sports the short horn grafters of dear San Francisco could not hold up, and more power be to him in the future. Heart and soul, Tex is clear grit and whiteness all the way through, and he is dead game all the way to the end.

They Wanted to Know The Fight Result.

JACK CURLEY, THE GENIAL manager of George Hackenschmidt and one of the most famous athletic sport promoters in the world, told an amusing story last night that simply and to the point explains the absorbing amount of interest the public had in the Reno fight package.

Curley left for Europe shortly after the encounter at Reno, as he was in New York at the time the fight occurred. The journey across to the shores of dear white cliffed Albion was the most delightful man could imagine, said Jack, and every one of the passengers was present at his little meal. No one missed the kindly kidding of the inner man.

One day the sea was as sweet and calm as the reflections of a young lady on the way after he has asked with eloquent and pleading purpose for the hand that soon some diamond ring will mould into a wigwag system for the attracting of feminine attention. There wasn't a ripple or a bounding wave on the placid bosom of the dear blue ocean. Everything was quiet, the sun was shining and the upper decks were lined with passengers.

Suddenly off in the distance the lookout with the glasses discovered a signal of some sort. The big ocean greyhound veered toward the boat and that vessel kept coming toward the big Atlantic liner. The other boat kept wig wagging, and finally got to the side of the big tran Atlantic boat.

"What do you think that boat wanted?" asked Curely. "That boat came over twenty-five miles out of its course, stopped us, got all the passengers on our boat excited, and a few other things—why? Because the captain was one of the keenest sports I have ever glanced across the open water at; he wanted to know who won the Jeffries-Johnson fight?"

A Passing Thought on G. Hackenschmidt.

HE HAS COME AND GONE, AND AT last Duluth has had the opportunity of passing judgment on one of the most wonderful athletes in the world. "Hack" is not as fast as Frank Gotch, for they never made a big mat man as speedy as the retired Iowa farmer, but he stands today as the most powerful man in the world, which, Bill, is some distinction in these days of weight lifters and mighty opponents of the laws of gravitation.

After watching the wonderful physique of the man of Russia, an athlete who is worth an immense fortune by the way, one can only vaguely imagine and rudely guess at the Titanic strength of this modern giant. His muscles swell like huge cables, and his powers as the greatest weight lifter of the world can be readily realized when you watch the superb gathering of the whole muscular system in one mighty effort.

He is crafty of foot and to the student of athletics a speed can be seen that is belied by the bear-like gait that the big man travels around the mat with. There is no such modern athlete, when the list of achievement in many fields is considered, as the wonderful Hackenschmidt.

He is as genial and frank as a boy. He is courteous as a foreign gentleman of royal birth and, like many giants possessed of the elemental strength of some rude primitive force, he has a big and kindly heart. Jack Curley says the big fellow wouldn't kill a fly, that he gives freely to charity, and of all the athletes he has ever associated with, the Russian possesses the finest traits of manhood and real downright good fellowship.

NO MATCH GAMES PLAYED BY CURLERS.

St. Louis Releases Three.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 14.—In a telegram last night from New York, Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Cardinals, announced that he has released Catcher Eddie Phelps and Pitchers Johnny Lush and Lester Bachman to the Toronto Eastern league. Backman's release was looked for, and it was being forecasted that Lush would be disposed of in a trade, but the release of Phelps was unexpected. Bresnahan got a good price and the promise of some choice young material from the Toronto club as well. It is rather surprising that National league clubs did not claim Phelps under the release rules. Phelps was popular here and was considered as good a second-string catcher as any club has.

Stahl Is Through.

New York, Dec. 14.—President John I. Taylor of the Boston Americans received a letter from Jake Stahl last night dated Chicago, Dec. 11, in answer to a letter from the Boston magnate asking if Mr. Stahl really meant to give up professional ball playing.

"I have fully decided to give up baseball," writes Mr. Stahl, "and stick to the banking business, as I consider that it is my duty."

After reading the letter Mr. Taylor said:

"The letter has the true ring, and I am convinced that Mr. Stahl has decided to quit. I am certainly very sorry, for we all like Jake very much in Boston. Boston will look about for some one to play first base."

Fogel Heads Phillies.

Philadelphia, Dec. 14.—Horace Fogel yesterday was re-elected president of the Philadelphia National league club. Arthur T. Hagstoz of Camden, a member of a large smelting firm here, and one of the men who, Fogel declares, is behind him in acquiring a controlling interest in the Phillies, was elected to the board of directors. Fogel refuses to tell how much money Hagstoz advanced to him, but from the business standing of the new director he is able to advance money in large bunches. Fogel also declared that other persons assisted him in the purchase of the club, but refuses to make their names public.

In Fogel's annual report he "pans" Umpires Klem and Kane and Former Umpire Moran. He also declares he has the youngest team of both leauges, the average age of the players being 24 years. He blames McQuillen and Moren for breaking the discipline of the club last season.

Another dealer said that within a few weeks, he expects meats to go as high as they were last summer.

VIRGINIA MAY RAISE LICENSE

If City Shows 10,000 Population or Better Fee Will Be Doubled.

Virginia, Minn., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The police force and Judge James P. Carey of the municipal court were given a vote of thanks at last night's meeting of the council for rounding up a large number of "blind piggers." Twenty-four of these offenders were arrested within the past two weeks, twenty-two of whom paid fines of $50 each and two being dismissed. This action by the council resulted from the report of Miss Jessie McNeil, clerk of the municipal court, which showed that the fines collected for the week ending Dec. 10, amounted to $933.55, the greater part of which was paid by those fined for the illegal sale of liquor.

Mayor Andrew Hawkinson suggested that City Clerk Bickford write to Senator Clapp and Congressman Miller to ascertain the population of Virginia taken at the last census with a view to raising the liquor license fee from $500 to $1,000 per annum. This, in view of the fact that a law was recently passed giving cities of 10,000 or more population the right to raise its license fee. Mayor Hawkinson believes the city has passed the 10,000 mark, but said that the report from the census bureau must be received before Jan. 1 in order to allow the council to fix the license fee at $1,000. Alderman Boylan contended that the council had the right to raise the fee at any time after the census bureau made its report if it was found that the city had a population of 10,000 or over. City Attorney Poirier stated that he would look the matter up.

E. B. Heigberg, state food inspector, applied for the position of meat and food inspector and assistant health officer. Mr. Heigberg stated that he had had years of experience in this line of business and that he did not use liquor. Mr. Heigberg is a resident of Duluth. The application was referred to the health department which is composed of Alderman Weber and H. O. Johnson and Dr. J. H. Crowe. The office of meat and food inspector is now held by John Byrne and that of assistant health officer by J. P. Chalmers.

The ordinance amending the original ordinance relating to the cruel and inhuman treatment of animals, received its third and final reading, which, among other things, gives the power of a humane officer to Ole Johnson, at present holding the position of poundmaster.

The Virgina Electric Power & Water company, were instructed to install an arc lamp at the corenr of Sage street and Cleveland avenue.

Robert Garvey, and Gust Carlson were granted renewal of liquor licenses by a vote of 8 to 1, Alderman Mollan voting in the negative on the Garvey license.

HIBBING MEN NEARLY "FALL"

Scheme to Sell Alleged Rich Michigan Iron Mine Nipped in the Bud.

Hibbing, Minn., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prompt use of the wires prevented several Hibbing people nearly "falling" for a fake mining scheme, according to current report. Information was gained through finding a letter dropped in a public place that purported to tell about the existence of a rich iron mine near Menominee, Mich., said to run 85 per cent iron. Local men became interested and dispatched a couple of men to Menominee to close a deal for the property. A local attorney when told of the matter knew from his familiarity with iron in that section of Michigan that 85 was a very high percentage, the average run being 61 per cent. He suggested something was wrong and a wire was sent to the Hibbing men at Menominee calling off the deal and the local men who were about to become interested in a bonanza are happy as the alleged mine bears all the evidence of a fake.

JOHN CHRISTIE, JR., AND MRS. EMILY GUSTON TAKE POISON—BOTH ARE LIVING

overdose of the poison is all that prevented his immediate death. The woman did not take enough of it to prove fatal.

Woman Found at Home.

The woman has been identified as Mrs. Emily Gutson, whose maiden name was Emily Colseth. She lives with her mother, Mrs. B. C. Colseth, at 1538 Wells street.

The alleged attempt at double suicide took place in Christie's room. Mrs. Gutson disappeared after taking the poison and the police were unable to find her until nearly noon.

At the Colseth home, Mrs. Gutson's mother said her daughter came home late last night and this morning was confined to her bed. The mother refused to discuss the case and disclaimed any knowledge of her daughter's private affairs.

"The Pace That Kills."

The woman's grandmother, Mrs. Marie Dugacipali, said that she expected something of this kind to happen.

"Emily often came home with expensive hats, furs and jewelry," said Mrs. Dugacipali, "but she would never tell us where she got them. We have heard her mention Mr. Christie's name, but know nothing of him. It is the old story of the pace that kills."

John Christie, Jr., received a telegram from his father in Duluth today, but the contents were not given out.

Parents Live In Duluth.

John Christie, Jr., is 33 years old and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Christie, live at 1811 East Second street. The son left Duluth a little over a year ago.

The young man's wife left him about two years ago and went to live in Indianapolis, where she now lives with their child. She sued for divorce in district court here last summer on grounds of cruelty and the divorce was granted Sept. 15. She was given custody of the boy, who is about 3 years old. They were married Oct. 16, 1906, at Indianapolis.

John Christie, Sr., declined to make any comment on the matter this morning. He has not decided whether he will go to Chicago and is anxiously awaiting information as to his son's condition. If he receives news that warrants the action, he will go to Chicago this evening to be at his son's bedside.

HOUSE RULES FIGHT BEGUN

that the house proceed with the consideration of the bill for codifying the judiciary laws.

Representative Fitzgerald of New York led the Democratic side of the house in opposing consideration of the bill. He declared that the house under the rules could decide for itself what business it shall consider.

It was declared by the Democratic members that the judiciary bill, which is lengthy, might be used as a buffer to prevent the house from taking up any other bills for many calendar Wednesdays to come.

Representative Sherley of Kentucky, in discussing the rules, declared that the consideration of the bill, which is 203 pages in length and contains 286 sections, might occupy every calendar Wednesday during the session. The house last Wednesday reached only section 11 of the bill.

Left It to House.

After the discussion had proceeded for an hour, Speaker Cannon ruled that there were no precedents exactly fitting the situation, but that the house should not be deprived of doing what it desired.

Therefore, he ruled that the house could settle for itself whether it would proceed to consider the bill. By a vote of 146 to 51 the house decided to take up the measure.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

There remain but nine more shopping days until Christmas and those who do not avail themselves of the opportunity of shopping tomorrow or Friday can not honestly put themselves in the class of the early shoppers.

"There are still many women shopping in the afternoon who could arrange to do this important part of Christmas work in the mornings by taking a little extra trouble and they cannot realize the great help it would mean if they would come in the early morning hours," said a merchant today. "It would help themselves, the salespeople and those who are so occupied that they can only shop at noon hours or during the afternoon. This would help more than any other one thing—early morning shopping from now until Christmas time."

The frenzied and hopeless rush of the last week before Christmas has not yet come, but next week you can go into any store and discover her who holds a limp palm against a whirling head trying to think, amid the distraction of hundreds of other harried souls, what to get for Uncle John. Also next week will see the helpless wandering of poor masculine things hunting for they know not what, in a weak, smilingly apologetic manner until some good hearted girl will take them in tow and sell them anything to relieve them of their misery.

It is expected that the rush during the last week this year will be less than ever before, but it will be bad enough unless you do your Christmas shopping early and politely.

Also buy your Red Cross Christmas seals.

ANNIVERSARY.

Lakeside Residents Married Fifty-Five Years.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Watt, of 5415 Otsego street, Lester Park, yesterday celebrated the fifty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, and a host of their friends gathered at the family residence to wish them further years of happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Watt have been residents of Lester Park for over twenty years, and for many years previous to that were residents of Two Harbors, where Mr. Watt was connected with the Duluth & Iron Range railway, by which road he is still employed in this city. His son, J. E. Watt, is station master at the Endion depot.

To very few is given the distinction of enjoying so many years of married life together, but Mr. and Mrs. Watt, although having arrived at a somewhat advanced age, are still unusually active and take a keen interest in life and its problems.

The gathering yesterday was in honor of their long life together. As a mark of respect and affection, the visiting friends left many tokens, one a sum of gold, and others being beautiful flowers.

The out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Owens, Miss Ellen Roberts, Mrs. W. D. Lawrence, and Master Lawrence, all of Two Harbors; Mrs. H. G. Avery of Tacoma, Wash., and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Helm of Tower, Minn. Among those present from the city were: Mrs. Frank Spurbeck, Mrs. Margaret Whitting, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Watt, Misses Clara and Florence Watt, and Miss Emma Gritzmaker.

Your Happiness and Others'

By ALVA ARMSTRONG.

A little thought will show you how vastly your own happiness depends on the way other people bear themselves toward you. The looks and tones at your breakfast table, the conduct of your fellow-workers or employers, the faithful or unreliable men you deal with, what people say to you on the street, the way your cook and housemaid do their work, the letters you get, the friends or foes you make—these things make up very much of the pleasures or miseries of your day.

Turn the idea around, and remember that just so much are you adding to the pleasure or the misery of other people's days. And this is half of the matter that you can control.

Whether any particular day shall bring to you more of happiness or suffering is largely beyond your power to determine. Whether each day of your life shall give happiness or suffering rests with yourself.

The naturally strong willed have grave need constantly to guard against the sin of tyranny, of overriding for their own pleasure or success, the personalities of those gathered about them. In the very name of affection the greatest injuries are sometimes wrought.

There are fathers and mothers, husbands and wives, and friends of every degree, who are not willing that those about them should have the opportunity to live their own lives. It is not less true that there is no condition of happiness in friendship so great as this same reverence for the person as such.

The heedless insistence that people shall be happy in the way in which you please, and not in their own way, may not always provoke rebellion, but it makes genuine happiness impossible.

There are some apparently smooth-running households that are smooth running not because the relations are what they ought to be, but simply because five people in the home have decided that the only way to have peace is to allow the sixth to have his own way.

And this sixth person may very likely think of himself as peculiarly devoted to the happiness of the other inmates of the house. But his standpoint is that he knows far better than any of them what is good for them, whether they like it or not.

He is able, thus, with good conscience, to maintain his intolerant self-will and at the same time to seem to himself devoted to the happiness of his household. These benevolent tyrants, who have a fully developed plan for every soul they meet, and are even ready to go to considerable lengths of self-sacrifice of a sort, if they meet, and are even ready to go to considerable lengths of self-sacrifice of a sort, if they may only be allowed t ocarry out their own plan, may well be reminded of those suggestive words of Charlotte Yonge, that none of us are likely to take too deeply to heart.

"It is a great thing to sacrifice; it is greater to consent not to sacrifice in one's own way."

Seek "the Silence"

By CARA REESE,

All truly great souls seek "the silence." When the sulky fit comes on and the feminine partner of your joys and sorrows "won't speak," you should be careful and tread the carpet as though on storage eggs.

All great souls seek "the silence." A few little souls get in now and then, but it is not at all likely that the one of whom you complain belongs to the shrivelled up persimmon type. Never try to make either a big soul or a little soul "speak" when it is determined not to. Only dogs are forced to "speak" and are disciplined for not so doing. Your whole policy is wrong; "the silence" is the most beneficial of remedies. It begins, as a wag in a current magazine says, with the "jellyfish" stage. If it can manfully or womanfully, swim up through the lukewarm vapors, to the ultimate progress, lo, behold, you have a real yogi in your midst! But rest assured that no woman has yet remained in "the silence" long enough to transcend that which is of the earth, earthy, or, in other words, an eye on the rest of the house and the bossing of things. Be patient and your partner will emerge from the gelatine and soft soap.

Just about the time you clumsily break one of the good teacups, or crunch a chair from its legs, or put your foot through the curtains, the "silence" will break and the probabilities are that you will need ear muffs? The "silence" is a foreign element to all real womankind. You need only to wait awhile and to get into mischief or do damage of some sort and the "silence" is scattered, there is a beating of fins and a gasping for fresh air and the real things.

A woman does not stay "great." This is where the trouble lies in all the cults and doctrines. She goes into the trance, but just about the time you think she is blinded to faults and misdemeanors, or, to crudeness and deception, that is the time you may look for an awakening. About the time you imagine she has stopped "speak-club agitation, that is the time you need ear protection. And about the time that you imagine there is peace and quiet in suffrage movements or in club agitation, that is th etime you are more likely to be shaken from your boots and routed from position.

The "silence" means a great soul—while it lasts. And take courage, for the yogi of your fireside will never be of womankind. No woman has ever been evolved to a plane beyond wishing; of hunger for bread, and finding bread there without a hand in the kneading, figuratively, if not in reality. No woman is there who might require hat, clothing and trimming and have these come running and filled perfectly without her skill in selection or bargaining. No woman is there who might enjoy the gratification of a sufficiency of all good merely in the inert sense and, without stirring tongue or foot. Be patient, man, the "silence" will end. Be patient, man, the "silence" yogi.

Hints For the Boudoir.

By MILDRED WYKOFF.

For Ugly Finger Nails.

"My finger nails are very crooked and irregular. Can I get them in proper shape again?" asks "Mart T."

You must learn not to neglect your nails or they will never look nice. After washing your hands, make a rule of pressing back the skin at the quick of the nails and then use a bone file or orange-wood stick to still further press them into their proper position. Cut the nails with proper scissors, rounding them off nicely, so that they will form a filbert shape.

How to Cure Warts.

"I have several warts on my hands and should be happy if I could get rid of them. Can you help me?" asks "Flora."

To cure warts on the hands you will find castor oil one of the simplest and best remedies. Rub a little of the oil over them after washing the hands and also apply some at night. In a few days the warts will begin to dry up.

* * *

Rough Skin and Its Remedy.

"I am going on a voyage, and whenever I take a trip the skin of my face becomes dry and afterwards peels. Will you tell me how to avoid this?" asks "Stella."

The only way to prevent this condition of the skin is to constantly apply a good skin food or cold cream to the face. First of all, bathe the face in fairly hot water, apply the cream and let it remain on for fifteen minutes; then wipe off with an old linen handkerchief and apply a little good face powder.

THE EVENING STORY

A GOOD HAUL

By George Hart.

It was noon of a brilliant, still day on the south coast of Louisiana. My partner heard a rapid crunching of feet on the dazzling shore of white shells marking Barataria bay. Then a shout, eager, tremulous, in German; then two burned and ragged boys of 18 came round the mangrove and rushed to Allen, with cries of joy.

They were almost unable to speak from thirst, and their feet were bleeding; but after Allen had offered them the contents of our canvas water bags, they crawled into the strip of shade and explained. Oscar did the talking and Paul kept his blue, teutonic eyes steadily on the red sail of a lugger that hung lifeless over the sunlit water miles down the shrimp platforms. They were afraid of that lugger, Paul explained. Only yesterday they had escaped from the old Etienne, the seine captain, and his Filipino-Chinese company, and they did not want to go back.

"No more shrimping" said Oscar. "We were just landed from New Orleans from a Bremer ship. We deserted to get out to Paul's sister in Kansas. Ach, if we could only get there. Gretchen and Hans, her man, says what money we could make. And we landed in New Orleans and on the quay a man asked us if we didn't want to fish for shrimp down in Barataria—he, too, tell what money a man could make."

"Shanghaied," said Allen, laughing. "I've been told of this before."

"Slaves," cried Oscar; "that's what we were."

"I know the game," said Allen. "Every man in the company has a share—the lugger is counted a share, and the seine a share, and the captain's wife a share for the cooking, a share for the steamer men, and against the catch is charged all the stake expenses. And old Etienne juggles the account to suit himself."

"And all the time," quavered Paul, "beans and bread—ach. Oscar and I, we jumped that camp last night."

"You don't say," retorted Allen, "that you spent the night in the swamp?"

Oscar nooded. We might have known by a single glance at them. Their faces and necks were swollen by mosquito bites as their tongues were with thirst. If they had known the hopelessness of getting away unaided they would never have plunged into that morass.

Back of our camp, near the scrub-oaks with their Spanish moss and the mangrove bushes, one of Etienne's seines was stretched to dry. The crew had landed only the day before and hung the 2,000 feet of grey net back and forth on the flimsy frame, its leads and floats sagging it to the shells. The marooned men were alarmed when we told them that it was the captain's, but we assured them the lugger would hardly come for it tonight. She was, in fact, becalmed miles away, and all the afternoon the German boys ate and slept in cur camp, after their tough twenty-four hours in the swamps.

At sunset Etienne's crew pulled the lugger with their oars far to the east. The castaways breathed easier.

Allen and I slept soundly in our tent; our friends slept under the big net. I was awakened by an exclamation and a fumbling at the flap. Oscar was there warning me in a scared voice.

"Someone's fooling round our camp," he whispered. "Paul's still asleep, but I heard noises in the shells, and went out. I crept along the net rack, and down by the little scrub oaks somebody was prowling about. I heard him in the trees."

We were sleepily inclined to stay in our blankets. But the German boy was scared, and shivering in the chill before dawn. So Allen and I crawled out, slapped a few mosquitoes from our necks and looked about. We could see the white patch under the seine marking the mosquito bar under which Paul slumbered in our blankets.

"Come on then," said Allen; "we'll see. Oscar, there's no boat about, so it's not your friend, Etienne."

"But I heard something sneaking up," affirmed Oscar. "It stopped when I went out, but it's there in the little oaks at the end of the seine drying-frame."

We went down to the oaks unarmed, and casually enough to ease the German boy's fears. The wilderness, indeed, to his town-bred and orderly mind, might have presented enough dangers with its black moccasins, alligators, sharks, giant gars and stingrays in its shallow bayous.

But when we had crunched along the narrow shell beach to the oak clump, there was a stirring in the bush, a clater of the dirt. We stopped and peered into the star-lit obscurity; then Allen threw a chunk of wood. And at that there was a scamper, a scratching up the largest of the oaks, and a dim form shot out of the branches. Allen started back.

"Wild cat!" he cried, "or maybe a coon. But lets get the gun."

"Some beast out of the jungle," I retorted.

Oscar, meanwhile, went nearer and looked up. Then he, too, hurled a chunk of driftwood up in the oak scrub. And at that there was another swift rush, and straight out from the other side of the tree a gray body short.

"Panther!" Allen and I yelled together. And our amazement at this moment was swallowed up in what followed, for the big cat, describing an arc in the air, came down on all fours squarely in old Etienne's mass of seine.

He crashed through the flimsy frame upon the shells, instinctively closing his claws in the meshes. The next instant he rebounded in a whirl, and came down again, jerking yards of the stuff over him. And the whole long frame collapsed just as we heard a howl from up the line. While we stood staring, the panther, which must have partially freed himself, charged up the line of net, sprang again, and alighting not twenty feet away from where Paul was fighting about in his bar and blankets under the seine.

When the place was reached the cat was on its back, kicking and tearing great holes in the net, only to find successive layers. Then it would jump and twist, growling. Paul, too, was rolled in yards of the sein, for the strugles of the panther drew it tight about the boy. Tear at it as we might, we could not get him out, and he, wildly yelling, could not understand what was the matter. Another convulsive leap of the panther landed him not two yards from us.

'Hold on," shouted Allen; "let me get the gun!" He dashed away for the camp. But meanwhile the fighting panther had dragged the sein to the edge of the water, and then another leap and twist sent him in. Paul, struggling to his feet in the shells, was hurled down also in the shallows, and Oscar and I dashed in to seize the seine, for we though surely that he would be drowned. But salt water had a surprising effect on the panther. The minute he was beyond his depth he ceased tearing at the net and struggled round in circle under it.

"Get the head line and twist them!" I shouted. 'Twist them hard and we'll tighten him in."

Paul had got his panic-stricken head out of the net at last. He could hardly comprehend our cries; but he seized the lead edges of the seine, and when Allen came up we were dragging a half-drowned but very big panther ashore. He lay breathing convuisively on the shells, and before he recovered from the water we got the heavy seine haul-ropes about his shoulders and hind quarters. The cat in fact, did not recover his fighting strength for hours, and then he was helpless.

When sunrise came we sat about the brute, near our campfire, all of us bruised, cut by shells and palmettoes, but with the prisoner safe. I never saw two such excited boys as the German fellows. And when Allen and I told them we would throw the panther into the launch and hurry him off to the city, where he surely could be sold for enough to pay them for the three months they had been marooned, they were the happiest castaways imaginable.

"Old Etienne's seine did make a haul for us after all, eh, Oscar?" cried the younger one.

"Ach, we get by Kansas now," shouted his friend. "Und Gretchen's farm, where her man'll pay us big in the harvest."

The next week, indeed, we saw them off bound for the promised land. A speculative commission man in New Orleans had given them $150 for the last catch in Etienne's shrimp net.

DEFAULTED ON CONTRACT

The Government of Honduras Collected $10,000 as the Result.

Contractor Sues Duluth Firm for Failure to Snpply Equipment.

Claiming that the failure of the defendants to fulfill a contract with him caused him to forfeit $10,000 to the government of Honduras for non-completion of a contract within a specified time, Luther M. Fairbanks of Mansfield, Ill., has filed suit in United States court against M. Zalk, H. Y. Josephs and Louis Zalk, doing business under the firm name of the Duluth Iron & Metal company, for that sum and $6,054.58, the difference between notes given the defendants and the value of the goods delivered.

In his complaint, which was filed today, Mr. Fairbanks sets forth that early in 1909 he secured a contract for the construction of a railroad for the government of Honduras and put up a forfeit of $10,000, which was to go to the government if he failed to complete his contract during August, 1910.

Aug. 31, 1909, he alleged, J. J. Frey, acting as his agent, with the knowledge of the defendants, entered into a contract with them for the purchase of rails, cars and other equipment to be used in construction work. He alleges that the defendants understood the terms of his contract with the government of Honduras and the consequent necessity for speedy delivery. He alleges six weeks would have been a reasonable time for delivery.

At the time Mr. Fry closed the contract notes indorsed by Mr. Fairbanks were given for the sum of $10,000. Mr. Fairbanks alleges that the defendants delivered $3,945.42 worth of the goods ordered and promised to deliver the remainder from time to time until it was too late to have an order filled elsewhere. In consequence, he alleges, he was unable to complete his contract in the specified time and the sum of $10,000 was forfeited. He alleges that the defendants disposed of the notes to a third party.

He asks that the defendants be held responsible for the forfeiture and that he be reimbursed for the amount of the notes outstanding.

To Follow Duluth Plan.

Mrs. W. C. Saterfield of Cartersville, Ga., has written a letter to the mayor asking for information relative to the sanitary drinking fountains which she saw in the parks when she was visiting here last summer. She wishes to know where she can secure them to install them in local parks and schools. The sanitary fountains appealed to her instantly and she believes that they are a great improvement over the old drinking cup.

COPPERS STRONGER; MARKET LISTLESS

Values Advance When There Is No Pressure---Outlook Is Dull.

The copper market today was stronger. There was no pressure and values gradually firmed. There was little news of interest and holiday apathy reigned. There is little reason to expect anything else than a quiet market for the remainder of the week. The range today was small and it is not likely that it will vary much the rest of the week. There is no news on which stocks are liable to advance, appreciably while there is plenty of bear news in sight. It has been fairly well discounted, however, so it is not likely that there will be any developments in the immediate future to turn the market sharply one way or the other.

The market is not depressed over the possible appointment of a tariff commission to revise tariff schedules. The fact that the tariff will be revised piecemeal does not indicate that there will be any changes at this session. Congress is less of a market factor than usual. Business developments, however, are paramount in interest and will be watched closely.

Any pronounced contraction in business would result in lower prices for stocks. Prospects indicate a quieting down in business circles after the turn of the year. If there is any expansion it should appear after Jan. 31, when money will be more plentiful and business interests will begin to lay plans for active development in the new year. At present there are no indications of such an expansion. The fact that bankers predict easy money after January disbursements, aside from the easiness usually caused by the automatic release of money, indicates that they expect trade recessions.

The local market was dull and featureless. American Saginaw sold at $1.68¾, Denn at $3.93¾, Shattuck at $23.75, Amazon at $1.50, Butte & Superior, old, at 75c, 76c and 78c, Calumet & Montana at 78c and 75c, Calumet & Corbin at 20c, Cliff at $1.75, Keating at 87c.

Amalgamated sold at $63 to $62.87½ to $63.87½ to $63.75, Butte Ballaklava at $6.75 to $6.62½, Butte Coalition at $13.75 to $19.25, Greene at $7, Superior & Pittsburg at $14, North Butte at $29.50, $29.25 and $29.75, Shattuck at $24.25 $24.50 and $24.25, Calumet & Arizona at $49.50 to $50.25 to $49.75.

Practically all of the $3,000,000 of 6 per cent convertible ten-year bonds of the Ray Consolidated Copper company, subscriptions for which have closed, was subscribed for by the stockholders. The bonds are convertible into stock at $20 per share. The proceeds of the sale will be used for providing working capital, completing underground development work, mine equipment and mill and smelter construction.

A wire from Boston to Paine, Webber & Co. said: "The subject which caused the most discussion at the last meeting of the Copper Producers' association was the discrepancy of the current year to date between the government reports of copper exports and the producers' exports.

"At the present time the producers have reported about 20,000,000 more pounds of copper exported than has the government. An accountant will probably be sent to Washington to examine the government methods of tabulation, check up the figures and find out if possible the reasons for the discrepancy."

FOR THE MERE MAN:

The stamp case for carrying in the waistcoat pocket will prove an acceptable little present for a man and should be made in two pieces, the upper portion holding the stamps being slightly smaller in size than the other part of the case, into which it may be slipped. The case can be made from any small remnants of silk, and when complete it should measure not more than two inches by one and a half. The back portion of each part should be stiffened with a piece of thin cardboard, and an ordinary visiting card cut to the size required will answer the purpose very well. A small loop of narrow ribbon is sewed in the center of the upper part of the case by which it may be pulled from the lower part when a stamp is required. The sketch so clearly shows the nature of this little article that further description is scarcely necessary.

NEW FACTORIES FOR WEST DULUTH

Three New Industries Will Be Added to Growing List.

At least three new industries seem assured for West Duluth for next year, according to rumors which have been persistent in realty circles during the past few weeks.

The new concerns which will locate on factory sites at West Duluth are said to be a pump works, an iron and metal repair factory, and a box manufacturing company.

It is understood that the Osborn Pump Works of Virginia will establish a plant in West Duluth and that negotiations have been completed through a West Duluth land concern for a site near the Transfer tracks and the Imperial Iron works. The Osborne plant at Virginia now employs about fifty men and is taxed to its capacity. In branching out, it has selected West Duluth for the site for its new and larger plant.

It is also understood that the Duluth Iron & Metal company will establish a branch at West Duluth on a site near the place to be occupied by the pump works. This plant will repair machinery and remodel equipment used in the iron industry.

The new box factory, it is said, will be located on Traverse street, between Forty-second and Forty-third avenues west, where a fifty-foot frontage has been purchased by those who are back of the company. The factory will cost about $15,000, and will employ about forty men. Peter L. Berke, former foreman at the Petruschke Box factory is president of the company.

WILL GIVE SERIES OF CHURCH LECTURES.

A series of lectures will be held this winter at Merritt Memorial M. E. church, Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street.

Friday evening, Rev. M. S. Rice, pastor of the First M. E. church of Duluth will lecture on "My Rambles." It will be illustrated with stereoptican views taken from photographs, secured by Mr. Rice himself. He will tell of his trip from Cairo to Jerusalem and from Athens to Rome last summer.

In January Rev. W. R. Palmer of Biwabik will lecture on "Ben Hur" and in February Rev. Andrew Gillies, pastor of the Hennepin Avenue M. E. church of Minneaoolis will be heard. In March, it is planned to have a concert by local talent.

With the Curlers.

The Simplest Fan Bag.

Just to throw together in a hurry and yet to accomplish the most dashy and effective of presents, here is one of the most fascinating of fan bags for the young girl party goer or for the matron who never stirs without her fan.

It is merely a finished strip of Chinese embroidery on satin, the kind ripped from a royal mandarin's old jacket and sold in our country as a curio. The embroidered strips run to blues and yellows and are about thirty inches long. Double one together, wrong side out, and fell the sides with perfect stitches. Face the top with its least obtrusive color in a plain satin or china silk, draw the bag with ribbons of its darker shade run through a casing and put the fan inside or not, according to the dictates of your conscience or your purse.

For Soiled Handkerchiefs.

A handkerchief bag is fashioned from half a fringed towel twenty-three inches long and twelve inches wide. This is first embroidered in with small flowers, such as violets or forgetmenots. Damp and iron on the wrong side, then sew it up and stitch across the bottom. The hoop at the top is half of an embroidery frame six inches in diameter, which is hemmed in by hand. To suspend it use inch wide satin ribbon.

REWARD

$10.00 will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person, who cuts, injures or removes any evergreen tree or shrub from property inside the city limits of Duluth, without permission of the owner.

Property Owners' Association.

CHRISTMAS IN GLASGOW

GLASGOW, the commercial metropolis of Scotland, with its well nigh million inhabitants, can be chosen as an interesting illustration of the manner in which one-fourth of the country spend the holidays, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Many days before the store fronts on Argyll street—a thoroughfare as busy as any in the land—are gayly and profusely decorated with holly and evergreens. Above nearly every entrance signs of welcome and the compliments of the season are exhibited in holly leaves. On Christmas eve the stores keep open late. Either side of the thoroughfare is a mass of blazing, cheerful light. and there is a moving mass of humanity between. But when the stores close they close until boxing day. All the working people now get their Christmas holiday.

On Christmas forenoon the lord provost or mayor presides at the annual meeting and breakfast given by the directors at the royal infirmary. His lordship makes a speech, after which there is a distribution of good things to all the patients in the large institution. Then he visits sundry other institutions for the care of the sick and poor, where there are Christmas treeing and feasting. By the way, Christmas day is one of the lord provost's busiest days. At 2 o'clock, according to annual custom for years past, he presides at the annual dinner given to from 5,000 to 6,000 poor men, women and children in the city hall, Albion street. His lordship and the city magistrates occupy the stage and take dinner with the poor. During the repast, which consists of soup, beef, an entree, stirring Scotch airs are played on the big organ, by the city organist. At the close his lordship makes a speech, which is reported verbatim in the newspapers. It is usually a masterly production.

Outwardly the aspect of the city resembles that of Sunday. Nevertheless thousands of people are moving about. The myriad of riverters in the miles of shipbuilding yards along the Clyde have come to the city with their wives and families and are attending the matinees or evening pantomime performances that have already been running. These pantomimes are a feature of city life in Scotland during the winter. Usually three open at the big theaters in Glasgow Christmas eve. They are rehearsed for weeks before. The playwright usually chooses as his theme a fairy tale. "Jack the Giant Killer," "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" and "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp" have been favorite themes. As a rule, the playwright retains enough of the tale so that the young folks can recognize the characters, but taken altogether the production becomes really a dramatic burlesque of local life and character, interesting, entertaining and even elevating to old and young. Actors and actresses of renown take the leading parts, while there are dazzling costumes, magnificent scenery and a gorgeous ballet thrown in. No wonder it is that often until the middle of spring the pantomimes enjoy a continuous run. Latterly they become in a sense classics, for their libretti undergo weekly improvement at the suggestion of local wits noted for the pungency of their sayings and the fund of dry Scotch humor they possess. It is no exaggeration to say that these pantomimes are visited by some persons each night all the season through and by others fully a score of times.

Then there is the usual exodus of young men to the country at Christmastide. It is a common saying among Scotchmen that all roads lead to London. This is changed to Glasgow in some cases. There is scarcely a family of note in the Highlands that has not a son at the universities of Glasgow or Edinburgh studying for the professions of law, medicine, the pulpit, the army or the home or foreign civil service. With what hope and pride the advent of the young student is looked for at the little railroad station up in the mountains on Christmas eve or morning! If he lives on an estate the next day he is given a side by his rustic countrymen in their annual Christmas day football match. The game is usually a stoutly contested one, umpired and refereed by the laird and heads of the estate. At the corner of the field is placed a cask of good Scotch ale, from which the players regale themselves at half time. Then the game resumes, and the second half is fast and furious. Around the ropes are the young women of the estate looking on with pleasure and discussing their choices in the dance list of the evening.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR BUSINESS MEN

A FITTED kit bag — what man doesn't long for one? There is no risk to be run for a woman buying one of these traveling necessities if she goes to a reliable shop—no such risk as in purchasing cigars, neckties and the like.

One kit bag to be found in the stores is in English russet leather and is sheep lined and fitted with ebony military brushes, comb and whisp, hook, file and scissors, flask and toothbrush tube, tooth powder bottle, soap box and cologne flask, with fine nickel tops. Fitted it costs $35 and unfitted $19. Cheaper bags are, of course, to be had that answer the same purpose, but they are not nearly so good looking.

Cannon to Hold Cigars.

The woman in search of a useful Christmas gift for husband or brother need not ponder further if the man to be pleased is a smoker.

Some attractive articles in brass answer the question for her. One of these represents a mortar mounted on a gun carriage. It is eight inches in length, six in height, and by means of the sturdy wheels can be conveniently moved around the table where several are enjoying the fragrant weed together. The mouth of the cannon is designed to hold cigars, while elsewhere are attached match safe and ash receiver.

Another new arrival worth describing is a well made brass box for cigars or cigarettes, according to the size of the box selected. There is a drawer in the bottom divided off into compartments for matches, etc. This is mechanically connected with the lid, so that when the former is raised the latter slides out of itself, closing mechanically too. In the cigar size this box costs $10. A smaller one, for cigarettes, sells at $3.

Comfort for the Weary Man.

When the business man gets home at night after a hard day's work the first thing he wants is a good dinner, the next a good cigar, and probably the third move will be toward the couch for forty winks before he is wide awake enough to hear about the cook who, etc., and the children's naughty ways, etc. So give him a cushion for his weary head to rest upon. Stencilled designs on tapestry, linen or leather are much admired. There should be no fussiness about a man's cushion, and don't make it at home, for the shops are full of attractive cushions that are as cheap as any woman can make.

For the Average Man.

If the lawyer of the family needs a new brief case get him one for Christmas. Shaving stands are fine presents for men who shave themselves. Handy bill folds may be bought from 50 cents up. Riding crops for the man who rides horseback, playing cards of some odd design or a cribbage board are all fine things to give the masculine sex.

Silk slumber robes or bathrobes make useful presents, and a half dozen initial handkerchiefs with the new, slim drop letters are not to be overlooked.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR SWEETHEARTS

IT is always much easier to choose an acceptable present for a woman than for a man, the needs of the sterner sex being more limited and practical utility being favored rather than mere decorativeness in all those things of which they are prepared to make use with any pretense of pleasure. The man who smokes will be genuinely pleased if some one presents him this Christmas with one of the new tobacco cases in whose silver shelter fourteen little cartridges of the fragrant and favorite weed are compactly stowed away and accompanied by a filler which, without any of the usual trouble or untidiness, adjusts the contents of the beloved pipe.

For the automobilist or for the man who travels—indeed, for the smoker everywhere—this little gift is just the thing he'll want.

When Gift Hunting.

For exquisite, the book lover and the traveler in one, whether man or woman, a gift par excellence would be a beautiful book rack of rare wood with much fine inlaid work, which comes from Florence. Birds and scrolls in intricate designs are deftly shown in woods of varying hues. For the man or woman bridge fiend there are bridge score pads supplied with covers of Chinese embroidery. Belt pins and buckles are welcome offerings.

Give Her a Placque.

If you give your best girl a pendant she will be charmed, but should you select the latest ornament from gay Paree, "la placque," she will love you better than ever, for it's the smartest thing we've had in jewelry for many moons.

This novelty is a round medallion about the size of a silver dollar and is of platinum or silver, but never of gold. Pearls, gold or colored stones are incrusted on the surface, and delightful color combinations are secured by enamels.

The little ornament is worn around the neck suspended on a fine gold chain or a narrow velvet ribbon with jeweled slides.

The Smart Vanity Set.

All girls like dangling trinkets, and here's an invention that is both swagger and convenient. It consists of a number of toilet accessories made of solid gold or silver dangling from a bracelet. These include, lip salve holder, coin purse, powder box and eyebrow pencil. To these is sometimes added for the very up to date girl a cigarette case, with, of course, a tiny receptacle for matches. These sets won't do for the nervous woman, for their jangling and tinkling are very pronounced as the wearer walks.

The Walking Stick Again.

There are years when the walking stick is not carried by men, but this is not an off season, so why not buy the man a stunning stick of meerschaum wood with the ever popular straight handle tipped with silver on which the monogram of the prospective owner is engraved?

A Lawyer's Bag.

One hears it at every turn, "Men are so difficult to buy for." And it is the Christmas present for Bob, Jack or Tom that some devoted woman is hunting. If she were just once to get away from the idea of "frivols" the road would be straighter and she might walk right up to the very thing she seeks—for instance, a lawyer's bag made of dark bottle green kersey cloth, exactly the size of the old one, unless there has been complaint of its awkward proportions.

These bags usually are drawn up with mohair braid, two strings of it, and the ends sewed together by a flat lapping process, admitting of easy pulling open and shut. Neither bows nor knots are allowable, and in order to insure the easy working of this convenient gift the casing must be of generous width.

HAS ABANDONED THE DUNELM

Capt. Featherstone of Wrecked Boat Is in Fort William.

Fort William, Ont., Dec. 14.—Capt. Featherstone of the steamer Dunelm, which went on the rocks at the north end of Isle Royale, is here today, having abandoned the steamer to the underwriters.

The vessel's nose is submerged and her decks are awash. She is loaded with wheat and flour for Goderich, Ont., and as her hold is full of water, the damage, which is estimated at $100,000, will be left for the underwriters to adjust

CLAIMS CHICAGO GETS WORST END

Legg Tells Commerce Commission About Rates From Duluth.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—"Ex-lake" freight rates were up for a hearing today before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty. The Chicago Board of Trade complained of the rates charged by railroads from Eastern lake ports to seaboard or Eastern consuming points on grain shipped part way by water.

"The railroads," charged Chester A. Legg, for the Board of Trade, "fix a rate far in excess of that charged in other parts of the country for the same haul, just to retaliate on shippers who desire to take advantage of the lower water rate from Duluth or Chicago or Milwaukee to Buffalo. As a result of the high rates thus charged by some thirty railroads, Chicago is rapidly being made an all-rail point, whereas its location on the lake and its opportunity for a harbor should make it a greater water shipping point."

SWEARS TO COMPLAINT AGAINST AGENT.

Following the allegations of Joe Zareck and Fred Baker, that they had been sent to the woods under false pretenses by the National Employment company, Walter F. Dacey, city prosecuting attorney, this morning drew a complaint against G. S. Richards of the National Employment company, charging him with violating the employment ordinance. The complaint was sworn to by the interpreter.

The complaint states that Richards failed to comply with the provisions of the ordinance in that he didn't have his books kept properly. It is claimed that the order which he had from Hagstrom Bros., to whose camp the two men, accompanied by others, were sent, did not state the number of men he was to hire.

"Under an order of that kind he could keep on sending an unlimited number of men to the camp," was the comment of Prosecutor Dacey, when asked relative to the case in question this afternoon.

GRAIN COMMISSION RATE IS UNCHANGED.

Chicago Dec. 14.—The Chicago Board of Trade today voted against a proposition to raise the rate of commission on grain sales. The present rate, which will stand, is $1.25 per 1,000 bushels. An effort was made to raise this to $2 per 1,000 bushels. This lost by a vote of 618 to 341.

A Brush of Velvet.

For the wearer of the silk hat, whether he be father or grandfather, there may be made by one of the little ones at home a soft pillow of plush.

Plush will make a better hat smoother than velvet and, whether it be of soft blue, of glaring scarlet, of vivid purple or merely a quiet gray, will depend on father's taste—on his previous expressions as to color. Some men want the brightest, others the dullest tones possible, but few of them want those shades that lie between.

When finished the plush pad will measure three inches by six, and it is filled with cotton to a desirable softness and pliability, but not stuffed.

CHRISTMAS IDEAS FOR THE TABLE

RED is the Christmas color, and the more vivid a table is the more appropriate. Formerly the tone was given by holly and red ribbon, but lately the poinsettia has superseded everything.

If possible have a huge mass of the natural flowers in the middle of the table. These look lovely when arranged in one of the miniature peach baskets to be had at the florist's, gilded if desired. The effect is heightened by having a bunch of poinsettia at each plate.

If one cannot afford the real flowers or but a few of them they can be made from paper so well as to escape detection, especially if mixed with a few natural blossoms.

The candle shades should be paper poinsettias, edged with red bead fringe. The ices may be served in poinsettia cups on standards representing stem and leaves.

For more elaborate effects garlands of paper poinsettia can be bought and festooned over the windows or from the chandelier to corners of the room. It can also be draped on tablecloth.

For a place card use a poinsettia blossom, with a tiny doll head set in the cup of flowers. Should one not wish to use the poinsettia plants as favors the small red sleds filled with candy are new and attractive. These can also be filled with waxed paper and used for entrees.

Santa Claus Table for Grownups.

Here is a table that can be arranged with but little trouble and expense. The centerpiece consists of a toy figure of old Santa Claus standing on a mound of snow made from cotton batting. On this mound are placed little Christmas favors done in tissue paper and sealed with Christmas seals. A wreath of holly surrounds the centerpiece. The place cards are bells, and the nut dishes are made from pink and green tissue paper, while a row of tiny candles surrounds the center of the mound. A large Christmas bell trimmed with holly hangs from the chandelier with strings of tiny chimes reaching to the sides of the table.

A White Christmas Dinner.

If you have had a red Christmas dinner so long that it palls substitute a snow scene in green and silver. Put a long oval mirror in center of table, surround it with miniature evergreens and sprinkle the surface of the mirror with mica snow to represent ice. On the mirrored ponds have Santa Claus on a sled drawn by reindeer.

Dress him in white covered with tinsel, and on his back have a pack filled with small favors. Tie each gift with tinsel silver cord and run it to the various covers with a silvered place card representing a snow sceen attached to the other end.

Have a similar mirror masked in evergreens at each corner, and on it stand a silver candle with shade of white paper sprinkled in mistletoe.

Use green and white cakes and candies in silver baskets or have mounds of snowballs made of cotton batting and tinseled or the bought glass filled with nuts and candy. There could be a mound before each plate.

You'll Find These in the Shops.

Christmas shoppers are fortunate this year in the number of novelties offered in the shops. There are sets of hat stands that come incased in leather and make ueful presents for a man or a woman. Of more doubtful practicality is a new shoehorn with a handle thirty inches in length. It must appeal to the stout woman and maybe to the lazy.

For the woman who travels in out of the way places, there is a compact leather case inclosing an alcohol flatiron. While it costs more than an electric iron, it will be found valuable for summer travel, especially when going to the wilds where electricity is not known.

What to do with hatpins is always a question. The small bottles with crocheted cover and ribbon hangers that some women have given their friends are pronounced worse than useless. Doubtless it was a woman who invented the substanial leather tumbler shaped holders which are heavy enough to keep from tipping over and high enough to hold the pins.

A useful thing is a matchbox with a phosphorescent top that can be seen in the dark. Some curious pencil holders may have their admirers. A heavy glass stand has set into it a post of spiral wire on the end of which is a short chain to which a lead pencil is attached.

Children at Christmas Time.

We watched the trooping children play
About the old house, once so gray
And still. Then darkness fell,
And one by one they said farewell.
The music and the laughter stopped,
The play was done, the curtain dropped.
The waning lamp of mirth burned low
With each last cry across the snow,
And we, old friends, were left alone.

What was it lost that we had known?
Old friend and true, must even we Find nevermore what used to be?
Man lives by change; through ebb and flow
The new lives come, the old lives go.
We lose and gain, yet year by year
The aging heart grows more austere.
It may be that the strain and stress
Of our mad times tempt joylessness;
It may be that our feverish days
Forget the old more genial ways:
It may be, too, the ashes of
Dead hopes and dreams have smothered love!
But plain it stands, no more we hold
Earth's fond good fellowship of old.

Yet thanks to one small spark, old friends,
As down the dusk of things we trend,
Age shall not strip our very heart
Of all its old congenial art.
Aye, thanks to each small voice and light
That lent its youth to us tonight,
And thanks to that strange fugitive
Enduring love by which we live,
Through childlike eyes and childlike act
We yet shall hold our youth intact!
And thanks to one still jovial day
We still, old friend, shall make our way
By thought and mem'ry through the snow
To youth and that lost long ago
Where laughter, holding both his sides,
Made all our days seem Christmastides!
—Arthur Stringer.

GIFTS MADE IN A DAY.

Suggestions for Women With the "Put Off" Habit.

"Only a day until Christmas and not one-half of the presents ready!"

This is the exclamation one hears every year, and usually with the addition of, "Next year I will begin in plenty time," and usually this promise is broken; consequently many women will be glad of new ideas for holiday gifts that may be easily made in a day.

With a bit of ribbon and a few scraps of lace a woman can easily make the most adorable little bit of fancy work in an amazingly short time. The color and texture of the ribbon go a long way toward the beauty of the finished article.

Ribbon has many advantages over silk for most fancy work articles. It is easier to work on, as there are no edges to be hemmed; the whole design from which to choose, and more neatness is possible, as flatter edges may be kept.

A New Double Bag.

Bags are always acceptable, and each season new designs are brought out for the holidays.

The newest is a double bag—that is, one placed over the other. The inner one is usually of plain silk or ribbon, the outer of brocade or hand embroidered fabric. The first bag is made in the usual way—that is, the sides sewed and the top finished with a drawstring. The outer bag must also be sewed at the sides, but in the center it is slashed from the top down three inches or more and the corners turned back, reverse fashion. These are faced with plain goods. One corner may display an initial, or all four may be decorated with sequins or any device the sewer pleases.

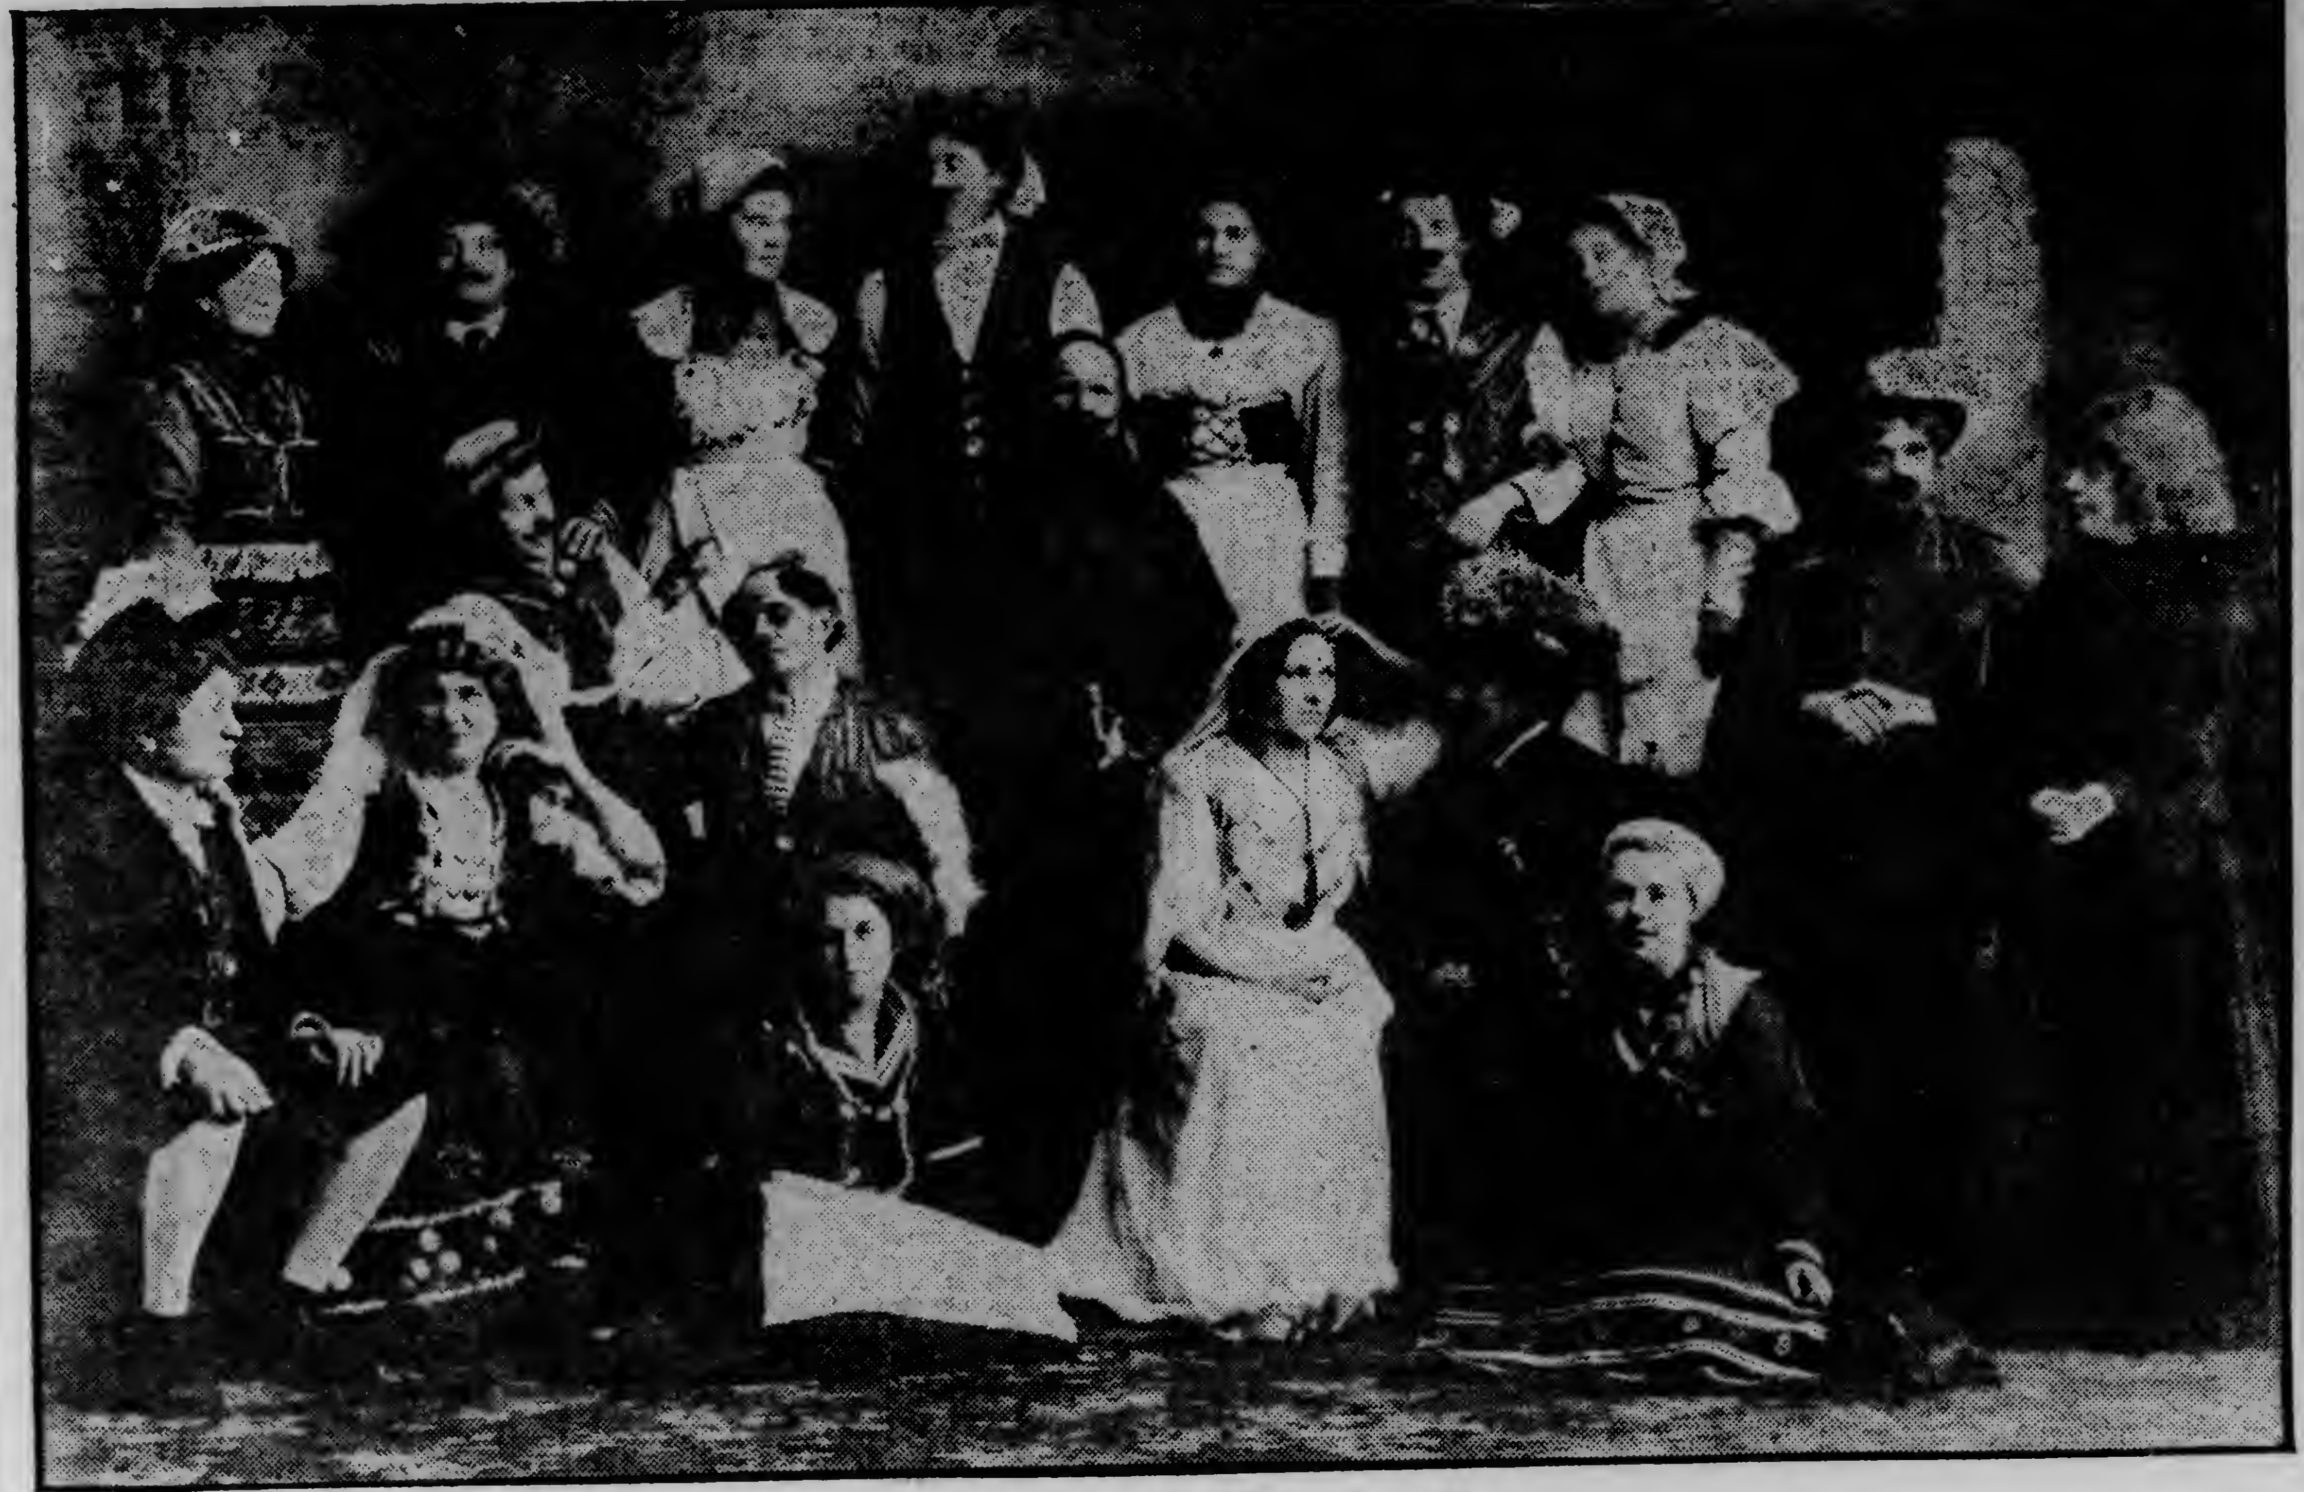
The bags are placed one within the other and firmly secured at the ends.

The inner bag will hold the opera glasses, while the outer pockets serve as receptacles for the handkerchief, powder puff, etc. This is another example of a dainty present that can be made with small effort and for little expense.

Christmas Ornaments.

To make little dangles for Christmas trees fashion popcorn into little balls, thread with dark green silkateen, dip into gum arabic and cover with any of the colored dye powders. This makes a pretty ornament. Silver or gold dust may also be used. A quarter's worth of dye in blue, yellow, red and the like will make a great quantity of balls. If threads are suspended in a glass jar containing water and 10 cents' worth of alum it will adhere to the threads and make little icicles for the tree. Continue to add alum until the strings are the desired thickness. Place in a window or warm place.

FINNISH AMATEURS TO PRESENT PLAY IN COPPER COUNTRY



"THE DEVIL'S CONQUEROR" CAST.

Hancock, Mich., Dec. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Finnish home talent of the Copper Country are interested in the production to be given at the Calumet theater, Dec. 26 and at the Kerredge theater here, Jan. 1, of "The Devil's Conqueror," a five-act musical drama, the cast of which is shown in this picture. Those who will take part are members of the Finnish Glee Club of Hancock and the Finnish Ladies' Choir of Calumet. There are eighteen in the principal parts, as shown in the picture, while there are about forty in the choruses.

GIFTS FOR MOTHER AND FATHER

EVERYTHING has its place in the great economy of things, and the useful Christmas present is not barred out. In the great array of gifts spread out to choose from it is not well in every case to be led away from the useful by the mere glitter of brass and crystal.

There are other useful gifts besides collars and pajamas, bathrobes and corset covers. Each person's home life suggests hundreds of needs which do not touch too closely on the personal and which yet may be numbered among the useful.

Why Not Buy Mother a Bag?

Mother can never have too many shopping bags, for they have an unpleasant habit of wearing out very rapidly. Then if she is a mother who likes to keep up to the minute in her fashions she will appreciate a shopping bag such as the model seen in the illustration. Light gray velvet is the fabric used, and it is hand painted in soft colors. The appearance is much newer and smarter than the average bag of commerce. The handles are also of velvet. It is fitted with a long purse betwen two open compartments.

Gifts in Mourning Jewelry.

When mourning is worn there are useful and attractive gifts to be found in the shops. Among them are black onyx beads, a necklace or a lorgnette chain in gun metal. An umbrella with one of the new gun metal handles is always appreciated. Or what do you think of a dull jet comb for the hair?

For Elderly Women.

If she is an elderly woman a Spanish lace scarf or fichu would be a nice gift. These scarfs come all the way in price from $4 to $15. Down comfortables, whether of silkoline or real silk, are a good choice, also a pretty shoulder shawl. If she is a really old lady a lace dress cap or a pair of black kid gloves will suit, or a folding knitting stand may be purchased from $3 up. And for grandma this present is indeed a useful one. Silk or satin for a waist is another gift to be labeled useful.

Furniture Gifts.

A lamp, a mirror, a sewing stand, a magazine rack, a desk and chair, a great easy chair or perhaps a sewing chair, a handsome library table, one of the beautiful bookcases, any of the beautiful rugs offered, a jardiniere or a vase of flowers, a cabinet to hold an overflow of treasures, desk or writing table fittings to harmonize with other furnishing, a framed photograph, an old print or a fine reproduction of a famous painting.

For Soiled Handkerchiefs.

A handkerchief bag is fashioned from half a fringed towel twenty-three inches long and twelve inches wide. This is first embroidered in with small flowers, such as violets or forget-me-nots. Damp and iron on the wrong side, then sew it up and stitch across the bottom. The hoop at the top is half of an embroidery frame six inches in diameter, which is hemmed in by hand. To suspend it use inch-wide satin ribbon.

Silver Eyeglass Cases.

A silver eye glass case would be a happy offering either to father or mother. If father is to receive the case a black leather affair with his monogram done in silver on one side would be most appropriate. Mother would doubtless rather have an all silver case. If the head of the house goes in for athletics give him a golf bag—the one he has may be worn out—or a dozen golf balls and perhaps a new putter; if he's fond of bridge or whist, some packs of handsome cards; watch fob or a brass desk set—and in plain dull brass they're stunning. For the motorist there are auto records and if money's no object piano players and talking machines are on the market waiting for a purchaser.

A Nut Set For Mother.

Mother would be pleased with a set of six paper ice cream cups covered with red crepe paper and tied with red ribbon and a spray of holly. These, filled with home-made salted peanuts or candy, would make a charming addition to the Christmas dinner table.

Christmas.

Along the slopes of Olivet
A hush and halo linger yet;
A whispered homage stirs the trees—
Vocal through twenty centuries.

The stable where the oxen stood
Left us Life's best beatitude,
Where, in a manger, it gave breath
To Him of lowly Nazareth.

And still Wise Men come from afar,
To seek there that strange, unmapped Star;
To Bethany wend, and Galilee,
Some traceries of His steps to see.

His Life is now a diadem
For quiet, nestled Bethlehem;
Though crushed on cruel Calvary,
What greater on this earth can be?

Hallowed is Kedron's pensive stream;
No room remains for doubt or dream,
Since the World's Hope, dear and divine
Gilds thus—forever—Palestine.
—Joel Benton in the Christian Herald.

A Christmas Thought.

Hildegarde Hawthorne's "Books and Readings" in December St. Nicholas: When on Christmas morning you find a pile of fine new books beside your plate, all so brave in their handsome covers and full of beautiful illustrations, stop a moment to think what a little while ago it was when no boy or girl ever thought of owning a book, unless it were the "hornbook," as the primer that held the alphabet and a few short sentences to teach spelling was called.

A Happy Suggestion.

There never was a man who didn't enjoy having a match scratcher handy when he wanted to light his pipe. Take a heavy card 7 by 9 inches, either white or cream, and gild the edge by putting on gold paint in little irregular splashes; also gild a clay pipe to hold matches, tie diagonally across the center of card by punching two holes close to the bowl, one each side of the stem and again near the end of stem, run ribbon through and tie in bow. Cut large heart from sandpaper, gild and paste to lower corner. In the upper corner letter with gold paint, "A Striking Proof of My Affection." Make two holes at center of top, run ribbon through and tie in a bow on the right side.

A Little Boy's Christmas Wish.

I like to be a little boy
Almost all of the year,
And all the joys of other boys
To me are very dear;
And one pair of shoes and stockings
Can bother one a sight
If they're put on every morning
And taken off at night—

But, ah! when Christmas comes along,
With all its cold and snow,
And good Santa fills our stockings
All hanging in a row,
I'd love to be a centipede;
'Twould sure be jolly fun
To hang a hundred stockings up
Instead of only one!
—Francis McKinnon Morton in December St. Nicholas.

TRAINING OF A MARQUISE.

How a Geat Lady of Eigtheenth Century Was Brought Up.

One has seldom the occasion to read a reliable and detailed account of the way in which a child was brought up a century or two ago. Memoirs and biographies devote but little space to "early days." Yet in the way in which those early days were spent could be found to a large extent an explanation of the years that followed.

A book on the celebrated Marquise Emilie du Chatelet contains an excellent chapter on the education which the young Emile received, says the London Daily Mail, and with her most of the filles de qualite of the period.

The Marquise du Chatelet, daughter of the Baron de Breteuil and later on known as "the Divine Emilie," famous in history for her beauty, her intellectual powers and her long friendship with Voltaire, was born in 1706.

"Her upbringing," her biographer tells us, "was in most particulars similar to that of other girls of her class, with the exception perhaps that her tastes led her to profit by the classical education her father provided for her." The Baron de Breteuil, a typical courtier, was introducer of ambassadors at the French court, secretary to the king, minister plenipotentiary and reader to his majesty!

"The birth of a daughter at that period," the author proceeds, "was almost invariably a disappointment to the parents. A girl could add nothing to the family glory, nay, her dowry would before long deplete its coffers. She could not transmit her father's name nor win fresh glories on the battlefield or in diplomatic circles. Her arrival left her father indifferent and her mother a little regretful. She was welcomed in a kindly manner, as a pretty little doll to be dressed up and regarded as a plaything. Her home was a forcing house of artificiality.

"She aped her grown up sister in her habits, her manners and her dress. A little girl of the eighteenth century had her hair done high and padded, crowned with feathers or a ribbon laden bonnet trimmed with flowers. She wore an embroidered muslin overdress, covering a wide spreading blue or pink silk underskirt.

"She loved grewgaws and adorned herself with ornaments of gold and silver, coral and pearl. Her playthings, consisting especially of dolls, were as much bedizened as herself, possessed hard, red cheeks and gaudy clothes and were so large as to be inconvenient to carry.

"Yet no good eighteenth century mother of dolls would have dreamed of walking out in the park with her governess unaccompanied by her waxen babies. The children were taught their manners very carefully by their mother, who made them read books of advice as to the best way of eating boiled eggs, of serving glasses of liquor and of breaking their bread carefully at table.

"A child at that time was taken to stiff bals d'enfants, driving there in her carriage, gorgeously attired, her hair decked with feathers, her person with jewelry, a coquettish bouquet fixed on her left shoulder, scented, powdered, rouged and artificial to her finger tips.

"Her relations with her mother were probably limited to a visit once a day for a few minutes to the semi-lighted, rose tinted room where the latter lay resting after her fatigues of the previous evening, receiving casual privileged visitors of either sex.

"The little daughter was encouraged to caress her mother's outstretched hand, delicate and white and glittering with rings, to say, 'How are you, chere maman?' to obey the answer, 'Kiss me, ma petite, and then run away and enjoy yourself as much as you can,' with an added remark, addressed sotto voce to the visitor, 'Isn't she a darling? I can hardly bear my lovely child out of my sight.'"

All this does not go to make up an efficient, rational or even intellectual bringing up! But Emilie, the future Marquise de Chatelet, with whom we are here concerned, was more lucky than the average young girl of gentle birth of her time.

The great Voltaire has written that "she knew by rote the most beautiful passages in Horace, Virgil and Lucretius and all the philosophical works of Cicero were familiar to her."

WHEAT UP; FLAX OFF

Armour on the Buying Side---Northwestern Offerings Are Increasing.

Argentine Prices Firmer---Flax Values Rally Toward the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, Dec. 14.—Wheat firmed today. Trading was light. Country deliveries in the Northwest at elevators are heavier and offerings more liberal. Buying by Armour at Chicago was chiefly responsible for the bulge, the crowd trailing. December gained ⅝c and May advanced ⅝@¾c. Cash wheat was 2½@2⅝c under May. Oats gained ½c, rye and barley were unchanged.

Flaxseed was erratic and trading was light. The market is in the hands of a few people. The market was depressed early in the day, but recovered a part of its loss. When a few buying orders appeared toward noon values quickly rallied. December lost 1¾c and May lost 2½c. Cash was 5¾c under May.

Wheat was dull and firm today. The news was colorless. There was an absence of pressure. While sentiment inclines to the bear side, yet there is an impression among traders that prices have about found bottom. When the market displayed signs of weakening, support came from the Armour interests, and the crowd followed. The December option was lifeless and May was not very active.

The steadiness in the Buenos Ayres markets and a better inquiry from abroad caused a firmer tone on this side. Export business was out of the question. Advices from Russia continue favorable. The weather in Argentina is satisfactory.

There was some precipitation in Southeastern Texas, but otherwise the map was dry, so far as winter wheat states were concerned. Illinois sent out reports of damage. The acreage in that state is estimated at 3 per cent larger than last year. While the damage reports had a sentimental effect, the factor was not of sufficient importance to move values appreciably.

Cables were higher and contributed to the firm situation on this side. Floods in Italy and rains in Southern France are causing some apprehension. Continued wet weather, it is expected, will result in increased consumption of wheat on account of destroyed and damaged stores as well as injured crops.

The cash market was dull. Mills offered 2¼c under May for choice stuff, which was difficult to find. Elevators offered 2c under the distant delivery.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "The wheat market opened quiet, but with a steady undertone and values were ⅛d to ¼d high and following the opening prices further advanced ⅛d to ¼d. The persistent support shown in America and the steadiness in Buenos Ayres closing prices together with a fair continental inquiry caused some covering among shorts. Spot markets were quiet and about unchanged, advices from Russia continue favorable and stocks are liberal. At midday the market was steady with prices ¼d to ½d higher than yesterday. The corn market was quiet at the start and unchanged to ⅛d higher. Following the opening La Plata grade was firmly supported and showed a further advance of ⅛d on the firmness of La Plata offers. The American grade was under pressure of increased offers and declined ¼d.

Chicago Record-Herald: H. D. Medcalfe of Winnipeg, who was a visitor here yesterday, says the wheat crop of the Canadian Northwest was much under-estimated this year, and is still coming out steadily from sections that were thought to have been through shipping some time ago. The country is still asking for bids, but is getting a poor response because of the poor outlet for wheat. Some export sales have been made recently on a low all-rail freight rate, but even at this the shippers have not made any money on the trade.

ARGENTINE FLAX ESTIMATE

From reports received by a New York correspondent of The Herald and a correspondent at Buenos Ayres, who has collected reports from local Argentine correspondents, The Herald believes the Argentine flax crop will amount to 33,350,000 bushels, giving an exportable surplus of about 31,350,000 bushels. The acreage is estimated at 2,900,000 and the prospective average yield at 11.5 bushels an acre. This estimate is subject to revision in the immediate future or at the time of harvest.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Price Range Is Narrow With Upward Tendency.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—The approach of the holidays had a narrowing effect this morning on the price of wheat. There was a general tendency upward following an advance in Europe but the foreign rise seemed to be chiefly a reflection of previous firmness in America, and therefore did not exert as much influence as usual here. Argentine advices were construed as slightly bullish, those from Russia the reverse. The opening was unchanged to ⅜c higher. May started at 95¾c to 95⅞c, a gain of ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c, receded to 95⅝c and rallied to 95⅞c.

Winter wheat in Illinois was reported suffering for want of rain. Corn strength gave reason for additional firmness. The close was firm with May at 96⅜@96½c; a net gain of ⅞c.

Assertions that car shortage would soon lessen receipts led to a little strength in corn. May opened unchanged at 47c, and advanced to 47⅛c.

Purchases by a leading elevator and packing concern caused a further rise. The close was firm with May at 47¾@47⅞c; a net gain of ¾@⅞c.

A trace of stiffness appeared in oats, owing to lightness of offerings. May started a shade up at 34⅛c, touched 34c and reacted to 34⅛c.

Free buying of ribs made the provision market firm regardless of a decline in hogs. First sales were 7½c higher to 2½c lower, with May at $17.92½ to $17.95 for pork, $9.90@9.92½ for lard and $9.52½ for ribs. An advance all around ensued.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Prices Start Higher and the Gains Are Well Sustained.

Trading Light But Movement Has an Appearance of Stability.

New York, Dec. 14.—Stocks advanced at the opening today, but the inquiry was very light and the gains of little consequence outside of Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Reading and Lehigh Valley, which were up ½c to ¾c.

Bull operators finding that the initial rise did not bring out any stock, became more confident and pushed the list up further. Purchases were slight but the whole movement had an appearance of some stability. Western Union rose 1½, Reading 1¼ and Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Lehigh Valley, United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting a point.

The improvement held well throughout the morning's session with especial strength in the leading issues. The rise in the Harriman stocks was associated with reports favorable to Southern Pacific, while the buying of Lehigh Valley seemed to have some connection with the meeting of the company's directors, scheduled for today. Reading's advance was sympathetic. Bonds were steady.

The market closed firm. The final hour was the dullest of the session, but the greater part of the early gains were fully sustained.

New York stock quotations furnished The Herald by Piper, Johnson & Case, Alworth building.

Realizing was extremely heavy on the advance and slight recessions occurred, but prices held within a point or two of the top during the middle of the morning.

THE POET OF THE SWAT.

Emporia Gazette: Doc Crumbine's fly swating campaign has had the earnest support and approval of the Gazette from the beginning, although the various editors, including the Screen Door open to criticism. Old Doc Crumbine has urged people to swat flies at every opportunity, and that's all right as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough. It doesn't get to the root of the evil, it lacks comprehensiveness, and consequently efficiency.

If we want to put the flies out of business we'll have to hold a convention somewhere, with delegates from all parts of the world. Of course the delegates will all make long speeches and pass resolutions calling upon congress to pass a law requiring people to wear flynets. The speeches will all be printed in advance and mailed to newspapers, in order that telegraph editors may be driven to drink. In choosing delegates to the fly swatters' convention it will be important to choose all the bores available; long winded old cranks, male and female, who have a weakness for figures and statistics. They will explain at great length how many descendants a properly married couple of flies may produce in a summer, and how many human beings are carted off to the boneyard as victims of those descendants.

Some doctor who is badly in need of advertising should be chosen to address the convention, giving all the sickening details concerning the diseases distributed by flies. He will urge women to have their gowns made of sticky fly paper, and will insist that men havedents in the crowns of their hats, which dents may be filled with liquid fly poison. Thus ladies and gentlemen will becatching and killing flies all the time, even when following their customary vocations.

A tall bony woman from some Eastern village should read a poem to the convention having a refrain something like this:

> Swatt, till the last blamed fly expires!
> Swat till the arm that swats 'em tires;
> Swat till you've stilled the buzzing choirs!

Many public spirited citizens who took up the swatting idea with vigor and enthusiasm when it was first inaugurated have grown weary of well doing merely because there has been no inspiring slogan. A man can do far better execution among the flies if he has some thrilling, exultant war cry to utter at intervals. A tocsin or a pibroch would be a great help, but a slogan is absolutely indispensable.

It might be a good plan to offer a prize for a national anthem for fly swatters. They'd all work with more vim if they could kill flies to the strains of a noble, triumphant song. As, for example:

> I have read a fiery gospel in Doc Crumbine's bulletins:
> "There are flies upon your whiskers, there are flies upon your shins;
> Oh, swat them, fellow citizens, as soon as day begins,
> Or they'll keep marching on."

Then all the fly swatters can come in strong on the chorus: "Glory, glory," etc.

LITTLE DORRIT'S LAND.

London Chronicle: Though there are few folk living—except perhaps its actual denizens— who are not glad that Tabard street should be wiped off the face of the earth as a disgrace to modern civilization, it has to be confessed that hardly a street in London is so famously connected with history, poetry and every circumstance of greatness.

In the old, old days, before the new Dover road wheeled round from the borough into the Kentish highway, Tabard street was called Kent street and was the main approach to London for every one who arrived from anywhere in Kent, from Canterbury, from the Cinque Ports, and so one might almost say from Europe.

Up Tabard street nearly 600 years ago rode the Black Prince, conqueror at Poictiers, bringing with him in triumph the captive French king, a pageant compared with which these twentieth century shows are but half hearted pieces of make believe. Up Tabard street swarmed the peasants of Kent under Wat Tyler and later on Jack Cade and his Kentish men, pouring in from the heart of England's industry, the "Lancashire lads" of that day.

Down Tabard street some time before either of these events, the Canterbury Pilgrims clattered over the stones on their way to Becket's shrine, laughing, jostling, jingling in the May morning, a bevy of jollity and color.

Yet even in those far off times Tabard street seemed to have made up its mind to prove unworthy of this honor of welcoming the coming and speeding the parting guest. As long ago as the thirteenth century it was a haunt of depravity and poverty. In Shakespeare's time it was shunned by all respectable folk. For centuries it was deplored that distinguished foreigners coming from the continent should get their first impression of London from Tabard street, and sometimes they used to be hurried through by night so that they should see as little of it as possible.

Soon on to our own times. The recent resource of changing its old name to something pretty and poetic has had absolutely no effect. Vice and dirt seem to be in its very air, and since the creation of Dover road turned the stream of traffic elsewhere it has just quietly degenerated into a back slum, from the associations of which one fancies the very earth will need to be cleansed.

Yet with it all, the very dingiest—though not the worst—features of Tabard street, still have a romance for us of today. For their last distinction was that of being touched by the genius of Charles Dickens. Not a hundred yards from Tabard street, Little Dorrit was born. At St. Gorge's church hard by she was married and there, too, is the vestry porch where the kindly beadle laid her to sleep with the burial register for pillow.

Even the old Marshalsea, the debtors' prison, where Mr. Dorrit was so distinguished a resident, where Dicken's own father was not unknown and to which Dickens himself paid many a visit as a boy—is still to be traced to a far greater extent than can be imagined. One has only to dive into Angel place—the little court on the left just before one comes to St. George's from London bridge—to find the grim old walls of the Marshalsea standing as they stood a century ago, with here and there an old grated window that still recalls those times of tears.

Following the old walls round by warehouses and offices flanked by grimy little paved alleys that are probably themselves Dickens survivals, one reaches the Southwark mortuary—a blithe resort by comparison, surrounded by a little garden of old fashioned flowers. Close by is a battered old door—once an actual door of the old Marshalsea. If one peeps over the wall here from across the alley close by the entrance to the mortuary one may catch a glimpse of the old Marshalsea belfry, still practically just as it was when it rang out locking up time for Little Dorrit and her old father. Coming round into St. George's churchyard one has completely encircled the famous old prison that was the world of Little Dorrit's girlhood.

PARIS RESTAURANTS INCREASE PRICES.

Le Journal: The ever increasing rise in the price of food in Paris has resulted in the posting of a notice in restaurants and cafes to the effect that in order to insure their clients being supplied wtih first-class food or liquor the restaurants find themselves, much to their regret, obliged to increase their prices

LINLITHGOW CASTLE.

Court Journal: There are two schemes as a memorial in Scotland to King Edward, the improvement of Holyrood palace and the restoration of Linlithgow palace. The former seems to find most favor, possibly because of the idea that with Holyrood thoroughly habitable the king and queen might use the ancient palace for a brief period each year.

Holyrood is in a fair state of preservation, whereas Linlithgow palace, on the shore of the beautiful sheet of water of that name, is in ruins, and this being the case perhaps the better plan would be the restoration of Linlithgow. The palace, which is somewhat square and heavy looking, was the birthplace of Mary Queen of Scots; in Linlithgow church James IV of Scotland was forewarned by an apparition of the coming disaster at Flodden field; in its streets the Regent Murray was shot; close by the town Edward I had two ribs broken by his horse the night before Falkirk, and on its loch a chancellor of the exchequer, bent on economy issued instructions that the royal swans should be kept down to a dozen!

Though a building with little to attract the eye, Linlithgow palace is a most interesting place and many people would like to see it carefully and judiciously restored. The oldest parts, the east and west sides, were built in the fifteenth century; the newest, the north side, in 1620. The original entrance was by a drawbridge on the east, where is an archway surmounted by the royal arms and three towers, remains of an older building.

On entering by the present doorway on the south side the guard room is on the right, where the Regent Murray died in the center of the quadrangle is a fountain erected by James V, of which that in front of Holyrood is a copy. The kitchens have a fireplace as big as a railway arch and the parliament hall is 100 feet long, with a noteworthy chimneypiece restored. It had a minstrels' gallery, and a long passage from it leads to the chapel. The room in which Queen Mary was born is a great contrast in point of size to that which witnessed her son's birth in Edinburgh cstle. At the northwest corner a spiral staircase leads up to Queen Margaret's bower, the most perfect little room in the palace, square within, hexagonal without. There is a fine lookout, and here the queen is said to have watched for the return of her husband, James IV from Flodden. There are also those adjuncts of the mediaeval fortress, dungeons and a torture chamber.
